The ROYAL ROAD to the CORONATION

A Princess Charming is Margaret Rose

A mighty storm swept the Scottish countryside around old Glamis castle in Scotland the night of August 21, 1930, when a second daughter was born to the Duke and Duchess of York. When she was a few weeks old a London astrologer predicted that she would see great upheavals during her life and that a major episode affecting her would occur when she was about seven years of age.

Perhaps the seer was right. The little princess was in her seventh year when the upheaval came that placed her father and mother upon the throne and left her second in the line of succession instead of fourth. Only her sister, Princess Elizabeth, outranks her and it was only after her grandfather, King George V, had made a thorough investigation that it was decided beyond further doubt that Margaret Rose ranked below Elizabeth in the line of succession.

Scotland claimed as its very own their majesties' second daughter, but the birthplace of her mother was a daughter of the land but because she was the first royal princess in many years to be born on Scottish soil incidentally it was in the right wing of ancient Glamis, where the ghost of the supposedly haunted castle is reputed to walk, that Margaret Rose first saw the light of day.

The British Isles greeted her arrival with a fervor second only to that accorded Elizabeth and when the names "Margaret" and "Rose" were chosen for the baby, a further link of sentiment was forged between the two countries.

Ten weeks old, she was christened in the private chapel of Buckingham Palace with the Archbishop of Canterbury officiating and an imposing list of royal sponsors in attendance. A huge crowd which had gathered outside the home of their royal loyalty for the occasion. But the then Duke and Duchess of York a tremendous ovation as they arrived with their little daughter for the ceremony.

The same enthusiasm has greeted every subsequent appearance of the blue-eyed, fair-haired princess, who is a famously good "miser," enters into the spirit of all functions, be they public or private, with unabounded zest and enjoyment. No trace of shyness in this little charmer who, second only to her sister, whom it seems she is fated to look up to in her life, has won the hearts of the empire. Today we present her in two pictures, the one at left taken by the King, her father, in the garden of the royal lodge at Windsor.

The two children, claiming as they do so large a hold upon the public affections and helping to form the model family that has caused so much favorable comment toward the new King and Queen, will share a very large part of the spotlight at the coronation pageant and in the reign that will follow it.

Next—Public Appearances.

CERTIFIED TRUE AND CORRECT

Provincial Auditor

In pursuance of a promise made during the Third Session of the Nineteenth Legislature of the Province of Ontario, I take this opportunity of publishing, for the information of the citizens of Ontario, the above financial report, together with this announcement as to the plans of the Government for passing on to the people certain benefits made available by reason of the surplus of $9,313,938.54, realized last year;—

MUNICIPAL DRAINAGE AID AND TILE DRAINAGE DEBENTURES

A reduction in interest on Municipal Drainage Debentures and Tile Drainage Debentures effective April 1, 1937, from 5 per centum to 4 per centum.

PASSENGER MOTOR CAR LICENSE FEES

A substantial reduction in passenger motor car license fees will be announced before October 15 next.

LICENSE FEES ON COMMERCIAL VEHICLES

Effective on November 1, 1937, when the 1938 permits will be available, there will be a reduction of 25 per cent. in the fees to be charged for the registration of all farm trucks and all other commercial motor vehicles and commercial trailers.

The approximate annual saving will be $1,000,000.00 to the operators of commercial vehicles.

PROVINCIAL SUBSIDY

The Provincial Government will pay, by way of a grant, to every city, town, village and township of the Province a sum representing the equivalent of one mill on the dollar of their respective assessments for general municipal purposes. This grant is made unconditionally but in the expectation and with the intent that the amount shall be passed on to the taxpayers of every community by a reduction of one mill in the general municipal tax rate. This subsidy will amount, in the aggregate, to the sum of approximately $3,000,000.

ROAD SUBSIDIES TO TOWNSHIPS

The 313 Townships which have in the past received subsidies of less than 50 per cent. will enjoy an increase to 50 per cent.

The annual benefit to the 313 Townships will be approximately—$300,000.00.

OLD AGE PENSIONS AND MOTHERS' ALLOWANCES

To further take the burden off real estate, the Provincial Government will assume the municipalities' share of Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowances.

This will enable the municipal councils to reduce their taxation by approximately $3,500,000.00 per annum.

PENSIONS FOR THE BLIND

The Province will assume the municipalities' share of the cost of this social legislation. It is estimated that the municipalities will therefore save approximately $100,000.00 per annum.

AMUSEMENTS TAX

Effective June 1, 1937, the Amusements Tax will be totally abolished. As over 80 per cent. of the amusements tax is collected from admissions of 25 cents or under, the benefit, largely to citizens of lesser means, will amount to $1,500,000.00 for the year 1937.

Prime Minister and Provincial Treasurer.

Are Both of Your Eyes "Working' Eyes?

One person may be able to see with only half the effort which another person requires to get the same results. Scarcely, if ever, are two eyes exactly alike, no two people are alike—and very few people see as clearly as they should.

Also it is quite common to find upon examination that some people have only one "working" eye—the other not doing its full share of the work. Obviously, a condition like this causes constant strain and can only be corrected with properly fitted glasses.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Monck announces the engagement of their eldest daughter, Beatrice Lillian, to Mr. James J. Moore, of Kingston, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Moore of Shelburne, the marriage to take place June 12th, in Bridge Street United Church. sm-11

Mr. Arthur Booth and son George, Foreman Street, motored to Toronto today where they will spend the week-end.

Miss Mary Forster has returned home after completing a ballroom dancing course at the Mosher Academy, in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Sharpe of Quebec City, are visiting their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. B. Theobald, Charles Street.

In the list of fifty-three student nurses at Queen's University Hospital Training School, Montreal, who have received diplomas of graduation, the names of Bessie Inkster, Trent River, and Mae Reid of Napanee, are included.

Mrs. J. Ely, 133 Bleecker Avenue, was the lucky winner of the contest for which tickets were sold by St. Thomas' Women's Guild. The ticket number was 16823.

Miss Helen Byrne left the city today to assume her duties as cashier for the S. S. Kresge Co. Ltd., in Montreal. The store in which Miss Byrne has been transferred is a department store and the largest of its kind in Canada. Miss Ruby Fair entertained the local staff at the Kresge store at her home, and a number of other parties have been held by friends in the past two weeks to bid Helen farewell and to wish her every success in the new position, for which she has been chosen from among many other eligible students.

A most delightful shower, which was a complete surprise, was held at the home of Miss Rhea Bunn, 162 Dundas Street East, on Thursday evening, when Miss Hazel Frost, a popular bride-to-be, and James Wright, the intended groom, were honored. The home prettily decorated in pink and white streamers while a ring was erected at across one room and there the various linen presents were placed. Miss Frost and Mr. Wright thanked the thirty guests assembled for their thoughtfulness. The evening was spent in bridge, euchre and games which delightful refreshments were served and all wished the pair many happy years of wedded life before their departure to their several homes.

Mr. Fred Slater is receiving congratulations today on attaining his 93rd birthday. He was born in Arundel County, Sussex, England, in the Duke of Norfolk's Castle, in the year 1854, and has resided in Belleville almost continuously ever since. He came to this country at the age of three years.

A most delightful bridge was sponsored by the Kiwanis Queens under the direction of Mrs. Eddie Long, in the club president's home, the Moose Auditorium on Friday afternoon, there being fifty tables in play. The prizes donated for the bridge will be used to assist in furnishing the Dental Clinic now situated on Pinnacle Street and sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. The auditorium was decorated in the Coronation motive, while pictures of the King and Queen and other Coronation coach were prominently displayed. The winners of the bridge were, Mrs. Townsend and Mrs. J. D. Anderson; Mrs. Keith Scott and Mrs. Charles Meagher were winners of the lucky prize. Delightful refreshments were served at the conclusion of the play.

The annual meeting of the Women's Section of the Belleville Golf Club was held at the home of Mrs. Cowell, No. 261 William Street, on Tuesday, May 4th. There was a good attendance and the election of officers for the coming season took place. The president, Mrs. MacColl, was elected for a second year; Convener of Games Committee, Mrs. Waldegr; House Committee Convener, Mrs. Train; Entertainment, Convener, Mrs. Dewar. After a enjoyable tea hour, the meeting adjourned.

Mother's Day Tomorrow

Mother's Day! And with those two words comes memories of happy times and loving care by mothers throughout the world. Tomorrow, May 9, is that day observed by children and adults alike as the special day of the year when mother's welfare is the main consideration. The lovely lady shown ABOVE is Mrs. Carl R. Gray, of Omaha, Neb., mother of three sons, who was assisted by a committee of the Golden Rule Foundation "The American Mother of 1937." Mrs. Gray is reading the Bible of which she is a student and an authority.

Mother's Day, 1937

Fifteenth Annual Letter on Mother's Day

By W. H. MABEE

As we dwell upon the thoughts of Motherhood, we see the influence of Motherhood from the beginning of human history on down through the ages. The factor of Motherhood is one of the greatest in influencing the destiny of humanity. Two outstanding points assembled for their thoughtfulness. The evening was spent in bridge and euchre after which delightful refreshments were served and all wished the pair many happy years of wedded life before their departure to their several homes.

MOTHERHOOD

Responsibility of Motherhood

Although we are now living in an age called "The Christian Era," it still seems to be necessary for religious leaders to emphasize the responsibility of Motherhood. There may not be as much attention paid to those voices crying in a wilderness of indifference as there should be, but the exhortation is really needed, badly needed, I might say. It is not a pleasant task that I have to tell of this two-sided picture of Motherhood to bring before you, but truth must prevail. Oh, that all mothers might be noble Christian women giving the sweet influences of their lives to help to make the world better and to help bless and brighten mankind. The exaltation of Motherhood is a challenge to all mothers to be worthy. Mother-love is a strong and powerful influence; but it takes a wise woman to be one of the best of mothers.

President Roosevelt once said: "It is the mother, and the mother only, who is a better citizen, even than the soldier who fights for his country." The true mother's whole life is spent in educating her family for good citizens so that there will be no need of war. God bless the mothers of our land whose lives are consecrated to the good of humanity! One woman in writing about her mother said: "The older I grow, the more I marvel at the wisdom of my mother. I could not see it when I was very young—I suppose I was not wise enough then—but I can see it now." Yes, mothers are immortalized, but it is the strangely contrasted lives of Motherhood that we have to deal with. I admired her most of all for her own particular ability of making everything seem all right. Do you understand me? I mean in hard times, in days of trouble, in tight corners, when I did not know what to do, or which way to turn, Mother came to me, and lo, and behold, troubles vanished as if by magic. The creases ironed right out of my cares. Mountains melted and dissolved away into nothingness, while at the edge of a cloud the sky smiled again. In sorrow she was a standby, a mainstay; in weariness, a loving support to lean on.

I Serve

In this story that I have just written, we see the type of hundreds and thousands of good mothers throughout the world whose lives are like the life of this noble mother that we have just written of. The words of another woman have touched me deeply. Her name is not signed to these precious words, she signs the article, "I serve."

"I feel that we have a reason to be very grateful that in our youth and inexperience we were hedged about by so many influences only in the gifts of real fathers and mothers, and that fills life to the full. I am thankful for the up-bringing they gave us, so unworldly, so sound and so true and pure, I say, 'God bless you, dear Mother,' and in this I include my father, as I think with joy in my heart of that great day when our family shall be remade and we join in the anthem sung by "The four and twenty elders as they fall upon the throne of God about with the rainbow of emerald and who rest not day and night, saying, 'Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty.'

"To all who read these letters, I would ask you to remember that had it not been for all these noble Christian mothers, who stand behind them such precious golden words that we cherish as gems, and from which we received our inspiration, and a longing to let others know, with that knowledge many a mother's heart would be cheered and blessed through the influence of their children reading those letters. This year, or if I have brought joy to some mother's heart that would be all the pride that I could possibly take to me the greatest joy one hopes to attain is to bring joy to some one's heart that is lonely and sad, and the world has enough of the sad and lonely mother and may God be their refuge, their abiding hope. There is no trail like the wearisome, lonely trail of memory that leads our thoughts back to the days of long ago when in the dear old home we were so happy because we had Father and Mother with us.

A Mother's Love

They say that a Mother's love is the only virtue that did not suffer by the fall of Adam. It is quite clear that the unselfish love of a good mother is the crowning glory of the race. Its method is long and how sorely it may be tried, its arms are ever open to receive the returning prodigal. One faithful heart never loses its affections for a special boy who has strayed from the fold. Adversity and sorrow may come with all their terrible force, but the motherly affection clings to its idol closely. We never think of a good old mother sitting in her arm chair that we do not think of the storms which have pelted that dear cheerful face without scurring it. Her smile is a solace, her presence a benediction. A man may stand more enemies of some kind than a woman, but he is apt to lose much of his laughter, his cheerfulness, his gentleness and love. Did we rarely find a frail mother whose spirit has been worn threadbare and unlovely by trials that would have turned a dozen men into misanthropes and demons. An exhaustless patience, hope, faith and benevolence, the noblest gifts of God. Alas, that their worth too often is not fully known and properly appreciated until they pass beyond mortal reach. God bless our Mothers!

MOTHERHOOD

Patiently working in their home,
Never asking for to roam,
Never, not fame nor full degree.
Ordinary women they seem to be,
But in their hearts a power for good
As they fill their office of Motherhood.

All the mothers on the earth
Are kin to that wonder of lowly birth
Who bore the Saviour of mankind,
Beautiful, immaculate, and kind.
Weeping by the Cross she stood,
Glorifying the office of Motherhood.

Gracious Lord, we pray to Thee,
Listen to a mother's plea.
These, Lord, are the things we ask:
Strength to do our daily task.
Help us to be kind and good
And worthy of our Motherhood.

18 Frank Street, Belleville.

The turbulent career of a feminist in the eighteenth century is followed by George R. Preedy in the volume "The Shining Woman," this biography of Mary Wollstonecraft Godwin, champion of woman's rights and author of "Vindication of the Rights of Woman", reveals herself as a woman, brave but unconventional, of a tragic environment as a child. She became a militant feminist during the period of the French Revolution. A bitter irony of her life was that she herself was broken by convention which she flouted. She is remembered not only as a pioneer for woman's rights but as the mother of Mary Godwin, second wife of Shelley. The name of the author George R. Preedy conceals the name of Marjorie Bowen, distinguished as a writer of historical novels.

A friendly and intimate study of everyday Japanese life is presented by Katharine Sansom in her book, "Living in Tokyo". Mrs. Sansom has lived among the Japanese long enough to be able to sympathize with the many difficulties "arising from life in two worlds" which beset their path. She confines her impressions to the social, domestic, and cultural aspects of life in Tokyo. "When all is said, however," concludes, "an observer of life in Japan must be impressed by two things: one, that they are a happy people; and two, that more than anywhere else, the novelty of today is the accepted thing of tomorrow". Amusing sketches by a Japanese artist are a highlight of the volume.

Few people realize that hundreds of thousands of square miles of Australia are still virtually unexplored and inhabited only by wandering tribes whose civilization has hardly reached the level of the Stone Age. The scene of "Lasseter's Last Ride" by Ion Idriess describes adventure and peril in those treacherous regions. The late Lasseter, a young prospector, Harry Lasseter, discovered a gold-reef in the wilderness. His defective instruments misguided his location and it was not until 1930 that a brave but ill-fated effort was made to re-discover the treasure. The party included, however, by faulty maps and inaccurate compass, Lasseter found himself rode into the desert and met his death at the hands of treacherous men. Mr. Idriess, who knows the country well has written a powerful story of endurance in the face of certain death.

Two new fishing books for fishermen will be of particular interest with the holiday season at hand. "Fishing for Bass, Muskalonge, Pike and Panfishes" and "Fishing for Salmon and Trout" are reliable handbooks for the expert or the novice. Various methods and techniques are described by masters in the art. Many illustrations enliven the text.

BONARLAW

Bonarlaw—The regular meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Thos. McKnown, Wednesday afternoon of last week with a good attendance of members and visitors. Mrs. Thos. H. G. A. Bailey, president, in the chair.

The roll call was well responded to. A letter was received advising that the District Annual meeting will be held Wednesday June 9th, at Copper Church.

The Co-Operative Program in Home Economics was discussed but it was decided to have the Lady Speaker again this summer.

The flower committee were instructed to send a plant to Mrs. Geo. Scarr who is ill.

The president appointed six ladies to act as a nominating committee for the Institute District Director, as convener.

Mrs. Dave Wellman, convener of the Agriculture and Canada Section in charge of the program and opened with community singing. Mrs. Ed. Haslett gave a splendid paper on the matter, often a home is made or thy friend, for weeds choke up the unused path". Mrs. (Rev.) Foley gave a talk on "Our Empire and Nations." Mrs. Geo. Williams contributed a pleasing vocal solo, "Lullaby Duet" by Mrs. Fred Thompson. This was followed by an interesting reading, by Mrs. Jason Thompson. Mrs. Fred Ketcheson gave a talk and demonstration of what the Institute is doing along the line of health course. Mrs. A. H. Reid staged an interesting contest. A social meeting was held with the National. Among them, after which lunch was served and a very social hour of social intercourse enjoyed.

Word has been received of the death of Mrs. Dan Wellman of Hamilton on Tuesday of this week. Mr. Wickens was formerly a resident of Bonarlaw and returned to Bonarlaw and returned home on Thursday of last week ill with pneumonia.

Mr. Grant Mekilojohn left on Monday of this week for Big Beaver, Sask., where he has been appointed Student Missionary by the United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Barlow returned home on Monday of this week after a months' visit at Mountain View. Prince Edward County, where they were visiting their daughter, Mrs. Geo. Mumby.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Bell and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Barlow visited friends at Mountain View on Sunday last.

Mrs. Mae Martin who has been suffering with pneumonia is now convalescent.

PICTON

Picton, May 8 (Special)— Large crowds from neighboring towns at the auction sale of the furniture from the beautiful home of the late Frank Bridel on Bridel on Wednesday. Dealers in antiques from Toronto were among the buyers. Prices were considered moderate. The antique mahogany chairs brought twenty-four dollars each—a small chest of hammered brass, eighteen dollars, etc. Bidding on the spacious residence rose from $6,000 to $8,000, prominent local men being the bidders, but the reserve bid was higher and the home was not sold.

Thursday, May 6th, Ascension Day was observed by a morning Communion service in the church of St. Gregory the Great and St. Mary Magdalene.

Jack Walmsley, young son of Crown Attorney and Mrs. Gordon Walmsley, is able to be about again after being confined to his home with illness since Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hamilton have returned to Buffalo, N.Y., were called to Stratford where Mrs. Hamilton's father, Mrs. Hamilton passed away at her home in that city on Saturday morning. She deceased had been in gradually failing health for some months.

Mr. and Mrs. Weather will Permitt work is being rushed forward by the town council on the new Tourist Club House. Specifications call for a 36 foot verandah, a huge fire place and many attractive features. Some citizens are now hoping that the county council may follow town's example in renovating under-privileged homes, also about a state of repair at the Agricultural Grounds, which are rapidly deteriorating for some years. The younger business men and progressive young farmers are realizing as the summer approaches, that a thoroughly public grounds attracts more tourists each year, and that attractive public grounds and buildings will mean increased revenue to the county.

HINTS ON HOME IMPROVEMENT

Tips for the Bride

Before you take that new apartment or house of yours be sure to check on these things.

First comes the paint on the walls. There are good washable paints on the market today for both walls and woodwork, and it will be a very wise head and backache if you have things right from the beginning. Let's start, either, and will give you such satisfaction. There's another good thing about washable paint—you can now have those grand light tints, soft yellows, greens, blues, peach, apricot and plain white will no long be the only washable ones to keep the walls will come forth clean and fresh with every bit of the true tint they were when first painted. Of course, these items may not sound to epicurean or interesting as stove patterns, and new china, but they are mighty important.

And then the floors. See that they have a good and interesting color finish—one that will take wear perfectly and one that will show rough spots. Of course, you can always let them up easily enough later on—there are easy to use, inexpensive varnishes on the market, quick-drying, too—but you'll want your home perfection itself to start with.

Here's something you just must tend to—if your landlord won't do it, do it yourself. Fix those closets—fresh enameled shelves and crisp edging. See that the inside of the door has a good, pear-resistant finish—one that will take wear perfectly and one that will show rough spots. Of course, you can always let them up easily enough later on—there are easy to use, inexpensive varnishes on the market, quick-drying, too—but you'll want your home perfection itself to start with.

These and just a few important points for the bride, or for the home holder of long standing. They are of great importance in every home, and can be obtained and cared for in little time and at less cost.

IN MEMORIAM

MOXAM—In memory of the dearest of Mothers on Mother's Day, Mrs. George Moxam.

"I Miss You Mother Mine"

I miss you at the dawning when the robin pipes his call,
I miss you in the twilight, when the shades of evening fall,
When I gather partners with best ties gleaming, gilded daffodils,
Jaunty bouquets, violets blue and gold beside the romping ribbon "Mother Mine."
I miss you in the summer when the world is all in bloom,
Beneath the soft and azure skies, blest by the mellow sunshine,
Where the asters grow, with the golden rod, and roses changing,
Where the faint witch hazel bends did untold your tender smile to greet—"Mother Mine."
How I loved to wander with you, 'mid the pansies and the phlox,
When your face so sweet and placid rose to meet the hollyhocks,
For I watched you many summers, bending o'er the poppy bed,
And you praised their glowing colors,
While you smoothed my curly head —"Mother Mine."
I fancy I can hear the true forgotten-note your sing
"Our loving little flower-pal from us has gone to stay."
The' the Lord has called you yonder, when the spring is in the vine,
Well they know that you are happier in "The Upper Garden Over There."
But in lovely May, on "Mother's Day" sweet memories I recall
To them, O mother dear of mine,
I miss you most of all.
—Daughter Pearl.

AT THE BELLE
Canada's Epic Story of Romance and Adventure
With its speedy and ever-changing succession of scenes, backed by the rugged beauty of the Canadian Rockies, many arresting highlights will be seen in "Silent Barriers", the dramatic story of the building of the C. P. R. starring Richard Arlen, Lili Palmer, J. Farrell Macdonald and Barry Mackay, Canada's first million dollar picture which was made amid the mountainous grandeur of British Columbia and Alberta last year under the title of "The Great Barrier." This is the production which created a sensation in London, England, when it was given its world premiere in the presence of Queen Mary, and later aroused a demonstration of approval at Montreal for its second world preview.
Thousands of extras are utilized in huge railway construction scenes for the sequence in which standard locomotives wreck and join the head to head settlement of "Moodyville." The audience will see the danger, death and disaster which beset the expedition into the wilderness of mountains, headed by Major Hell's Bells Rogers, to find the pass which made possible the transcontinental railway. Men die in the turbulent rapids and from the cracks in the terrifying forest fire. There are desertions by the faint-hearted and treachery from the native servant of the party when suddenly, by a matter of fate, the pass is discovered.
A whole train is engulfed in the treacherous muskeg; there is a stirring horse chase to head off a train from destruction; a workman is seen drowning in a swamp; one sees a whole mountain blown out in a tremendous explosion; there is an awe-inspiring snow slide of huge proportions and many other dramatic incidents with all of which is coupled a theme of daring romance and misunderstandings and final happiness. The many well-known supporting players including Antoinette Cellier, Roy Emerton, Ben Weldon, Colin Kenny, Frank Dawson, Reginald Barlow, Howard Hickman and Arthur Hull.
"Silent Barriers" will be presented at the Belle today, Monday and Tuesday, opening daily with a funny and tuneful musical comedy, "No Place Like Home," the Belle World News Events, and a funny Walt Disney Color Symphony. Performances start at 2.30, 7.00 and 9.10. "Silent Barriers" starts daily at 2.00, 7.40 and 9.50.

Canada Geese Seek Seclusion But Happy to be Home Again

Found Trying to Raise Family in Fence Corner

AWAY THREE WEEKS

Then three weeks ago a strange thing happened. The Canada geese strutted about the yard in their usual unsettled manner without warning, in the middle of the mid-afternoon they took wing and passed out over the rush lope.

One week passed, then another. Each morning they but did not give up hope, that his favorites would return. The third week had nearly gone, when he received a telephone call, which caused him to rejoice.

That morning Robi Blakely, a farmer living about two miles north of the Murphy sanctuary, noticed a large bird rise from a near-by corner while working in a field. It circled in the air then settled down. Something he was startled, when the bird rose again with a sudden whirring of wings. Something told him that it circled above his head.

Another idea attracted his attention. Turning, he saw in the fence corner, the male of the flying pair sitting or sitting on a nest. He advanced toward it. Then with a loud noise and wide wings beating a rattling tattoo, the bird advanced to the attack. He fought it off, and it immediately joined his mate in the air.

Then in the fence-corner were six eggs. Blakely recognizing the geese, for that is what they were and immediately got in touch with Murphy. The next day, the Murphy owner carefully removed the eggs and placed them in a nest in a building near where the home of the geese is located.

But his eyes opened wide in surprise the next day for upon a tour of inspection, what did he find but Mother Goose sitting calmly on her eggs as if nothing had happened. The birds had returned early that morning.

Apparently the geese desired nothing more than a little privacy in which to raise their family.

Boston Red Sox Definitely On Way Up in American Loop Winning 7 of Last 10 Games

Three Hurlers Delivering And Batters Hitting The 'Apple'

CARDS SLOPPY

Lose First Game of Series to Giants by Bad Fielding

By SID FEDER

Folks, they aren't the red "flops" any more.

Boston's $2,000,000 beauties, as disappointing as a can of stale beer last year, and as full of tough luck as Friday the 13th this spring, are definitely on the way up in the junior American Baseball League.

At the moment the Red Sox are in first place, with a slim percentage edge over Detroit Tigers, and a half game lead over New York Yankees.

Sparked by a couple of first-class pooches in second-sacker Bobby Doerr and outfielder Fabian Gaffke, and the return to active mound duty of the veteran Lefty Grove, the Sox have won seven of ten starts, the last four in a row. Their "big two" in pitching, Lefty Grove and Wes Ferrell, have been joined by a third hurler, neither the comebacking Pootsie Marcum, winner of three straight so far for '37.

Green Is Wise Focus.

Grove had his knockdown slants working in top form yesterday and hurled his mates to a 5-3 win over Chicago White Sox, to give Boston the league lead. Detroit's Tigers, with Rookie Lynn pitching another sensational relief stint, topped the Senators 4-3 to hold second place.

The Yankees, losing their second in a row because of Bump Hadley's shaky start, bowed before the Cleveland Indians 7-6 and dropped to third place. The tribe but lasted in the Yanks' hands in a late rally which included Canadian George Selkirk's fourth homer.

Cards Shoddy Afield.

Featuring their National League program, the Giants and Cardinals opened their season rivalry in New York with the two champions finishing in front, 8-2. The gig house gang handed them the decision by some fielding of the "rush league" variety. Slick Cincinnati also had a six-hitter and Dick Bartell homered with two on.

Pittsburg Pirates increased their league lead with an 8-3 win over the Phillies as Joe Bowman mastered his former teammates effectively.

Wild Bill Hallahan was tight in the pinches and trailed a 6-5 decision for Cincinnati over Boston Bees—and gained credit for the relief—as Chicago Cubs' winning streak ended at six when Brooklyn Dodgers belted a couple of young twirlers for seven runs in a fourth inning uprising and went on to win 13-1.

HIGHLY PRAISED

Lee Handley, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was paid a high compliment by Wally Hoyt, dean of Pirate pitchers, when he claimed Handley's work a second base had saved them several games this season and would also save their pitchers a plenty of wear and tear. Lee was with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball league last year.

WINGS BELTING BASEBALL HARD

Rochester in Tie For Sixth Place After Defeating Jersey

The pitching is weak, but Rochester Red Wings are taking a tip from the loop leaders and are threatening to hold themselves out of the second division of the International Baseball League by the power of the bat.

After beating Jersey City in the opening game of the season, the Red Wings dropped their next six with a dismal display on the mound and at the plate. The only thing that prevented the Wings from dropping into the cellar were Baltimore Orioles, who couldn't win a game.

The Wings then shot the Orioles in a four game series and a diet of Baltimore hurling started their sluggers going. They won three of the contests and yesterday defeated Jersey City 5-3 in their home opening as their batsmen kept up their belting ways. The win put them in a tie for sixth place.

Other games were postponed yesterday.

BUCKO McDONALD CANNOT COMPETE

Lacrosse Association Refused Playing Certificate to Detroit Star

Toronto, May 8 (CP)—Bucko McDonald—or any other professional athlete—will not be permitted to play amateur lacrosse in Ontario. Hopes the big defenceman of Detroit Red Wings, world heavyweight champions, had of playing with a Toronto club were blasted at a meeting of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association last night.

Mike Dunn, president of the C. A. L. A., was among those who favored throwing open lacrosse to pros for competing in other sports. A. C. McDermitt, president of the Toronto league, objected but his motion against the specific McDonald case was ruled unnecessary because the O.A.L.A. constitution already provides no pros may play on teams under its jurisdiction.

Eighty-eight playing certificates were passed. The eight teams will be divided with Brantford, Mimico, Orillia and Markham in one section, Brampton, Fergus, St. Catharines and Burlington in the other.

A 56-team schedule opens in Toronto May 19 with Orillia as the opposition. First three teams in each group will qualify for the playdowns. Bill McGhee, last year with New Westminster, B.C., this year signed with Brampton, is to appear before the executive to have his certificate passed.

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT

North Bergen, N.J.—Joe Dusek, 221, Omaha, Neb., pinned Ed Mesker, 218, Ohio 22:45.

Tip Top, N.Y.—Cy Williams, 224, Tallahassee, Fla., threw Dick Lutze, 212, C ala Calif., 19:08.

TONY CANZONERI BADLY BEATEN BY LOU AMBERS

Failed to Lift Lightweight Crown He Held Twice Before

NOT THROUGH YET

Manager Claims Donovan Impeded His Fighter Through Bout

New York, May 8 (AP) — Tony Canzoneri still refused to ring down the curtain of a tragedy that may surpass anything the prize ring ever has known.

One of the greatest little fighting machines of the modern era, was beaten into a bloody pulp before 11,000 sympathetic onlookers last night when he attempted to lift the world's lightweight crown from the dark brown brow of Lou Ambers. But as he sat a grey man in the dressing room, he refused to believe it.

"I won," muttered Tony as his handlers tried to open his right eye so "I'll fight again. I'm not through.

Fight experts, unanimous in their opinion that Tony not only had been thoroughly beaten but was definitely through, shook their heads and said it was a shame for little Tony to carry on. They appealed to Sammy Goldstein, his manager, for the word that was promised before the fight. "If Tony is beaten he'll quit," Goldman had vowed.

"Quit nothing," roared Goldman. "Tony won the fight. Donovan (Referee Arthur Donovan) robbed Tony of the victory. Ambers hung on like let Ambers stick his thumbs in Tony's eye and he impeded him from using his left. I'm even happy. I think Tony won."

Canzoneri, like Ambers, weighed 135 pounds.

The subject of bad putting has been brought to the fore by Bobby Jones by a number of sport writers in their stories about the recent tournament. It is a matter of record that I claimed the kind of putting that was doing before the tournament would not be very helpful.

I made this claim because I found in his preparation no evidence of consideration for the mental side of preparation for success. His putting became torture to him. It was torture that caused him to take three and four putts on several greens. He was anything but sure about his putting the line he thought the fairways. This uncertainty registered strongly when it came to the very short delicate strokes.

Uncertainty is the gateway for doubt, worry and, worst of all, fear. And the more imagination a player has, the greater can be his fear of the outcome. Jones, being a highly imaginative person, suffered from visions of taking four putts long before he ever reached the green—he pictured yourself taking three putts you might as well write down the score card.

Next: Get Right Feeling.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Pinky Higgins, Red Sox — His single drove in two runs in 5-3 win over White Sox.

Dick Bartell, Giants—Hit homer with two on base in 8-2 win over Cardinals.

Gil Brack, Dodgers—His triple, a double and three singles and belted six runs in 12-1 defeat of Cubs.

Earl Whitehill, Indians — Fanned last batter to end Tribe's bases rally with tying run on second, and save 7-6 victory.

Jim Bottomley, Browns—His home-run driving in three runs in 5-4 victory over Athletics.

Arky Vaughan, Pirates — Belted double and three singles and helped in two runs in 8-3 win over Phillies.

Bill Hallahan, Reds—Held Bees to nine hits and fanned four in 5-3 win.

Rosie Lawson, Tigers—Pitched 7-hit ball for 4-3 victory over Senators.

TO COACH TIGERS

M. J. Rodden (ABOVE), Toronto sports writer, has been named coach of the Hamilton Tigers Rugby ball team for the next season. This appointment takes Mike back to his first love, since he gained prominence in Tigertown with his teams and brought Hamilton to the forefront with some great rugby squads. He coached Hamilton teams to two Dominion titles and four Interprovincial championships for a near-perfect record. Mike is also a prominent referee in the N.H.L.

BASEBALL FANS LOOK TEAM OVER

Foxboro Ball Club Prepares For Opening of Loop on May 24th

Foxboro, May 8th.—Foxboro baseball fans, and likewise the fanatics, are again in the throes of concern to see their favorite sport as the personnel of the local club are rounding the old pill around up at the ball park, preparing the lads for a date with destiny in preparation for the big opening of the South Hastings Baseball League which is the annual event in this village on the Queen's Birthday.

Regulars Missing

Some of last years' regulars will be missing from the ranks this year, the biggest vacancy to fill will be that gapping hole left by Bud Johnson. Bud did yeoman service on the hurling staff for a couple of years and will be sorely missed by his mates. Another big hole to fill will be the left field position left vacant by E. Ketcheson. Everett has accepted a position in Toronto and his big bat will be silent unless Coach Blakely can persuade Everett to play once to fill his shoes. Happy Kelcheson will be missed when he decided to hang up their spikes for good.

Dr. Blakely, the nucleus of last year's team will undoubtedly build around when the umps call "Play Ball" as also will be the rest of the infield, with the possible exception of Allan Gay who will miss a few games as he starts on the road cruising to his studies at Peterboro.

There will be a drain of material available for mound duty, as only Harry Ketcheson is left of last year's pitchers. In order to supply this deficiency, the boys, at a meeting held on the 3rd inst. decided to go strictly against their former principles, that of allowing outside players to join the team, and have accepted Rod Wilkin's offer to join their No. 1 hurling chore.

Many influx of Belleville players to include J. Murray and C. Tuttle, both of whom are fast baseball and rank outsider as he played with Foxboro a couple of years ago, while the two first named players were members of the last year's Belleville city team. Blakely has advised against the addition of any players who are not residents of Foxboro, but feels that special circumstances may warrant the addition of any player who is a resident of Foxboro with a few of the younger boys stepping up. Perhaps it is to at least put up a fair battle. But with the adverse argument being: "All the other teams are importing, so why not us"? it was finally decided to admit the first three afternoon-timed players.

Against Importation

This same practice of importing players was tried out in the slumbling block for the S. H. L. for all but Napanee's discipline idea was not to provide recreation for city boys, but rather to give the Belleville city lads a chance at action. This being the case it was a decided flop, and in the succeeding fall years, then the importation bug gained a stranglehold, increasing yearly until last year some of the better personnel was displacing but local kids. Country baseball enthusiasts will support an exclusively local team, but absolutely refuse to give support of any kind to a team that is fiying false colors.

The S. H. L. at its annual conclave extended its boundaries to include the Belleville Kiwanis Junior Club, also Stirling was included to make a six team loop. But since Stirling has made it known they cannot possibly field a team this year. Financial reasons prex given as the barrier. So unless another team is admitted, there will only be five clubs to fight it out again this summer as before.

TEEN-AGED BOYS OF CITY SCHOOLS IN LACROSSE LOOP

Eight Teams, Bantam And Midget, Will Compete in League

BUY OWN STICKS

George Laughlin Named as First Prexy of Loop

With over 100 enthusiastic teenage lacrosse aspirants clamouring to play Canada's national summer pastime the Belleville Minor Lacrosse League, to include a school zone group of bantam and midget lacrosse clubs, was formed at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. Although not directly affiliated with the various schools throughout the city the players competing must confine their playing activities to the area within their home respective zone or school which they attend. The school zones represented and to enter clubs were: Queen Alexandra School, Queen Victoria, Queen Victoria Annex, St. Michael's Academy, Belleville Collegiate Institute (bantams and midgets) and Albert Ave.

George Laughlin, physical instructor at Belleville Collegiate, was named as the league's initial president with Everett Fairman (Q.M.S.) as secretary-treasurer. The executive composed of J. G. Wallace, J. E. Hamilton, Doran, Victoria School, Stewart Pender who will guide the destinies of lacrosse within the ranks of the schools. The league voted to affiliate with the O.A.L.A. and playing certificates will be available for the team managers early next week. Minor regulations have been compiled with James Howard of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational High School staff in donating a fine silver cup for the school bantam league competitions.

Already 93 lacrosse sticks have been purchased in Belleville by teen age school boys during the past week and it is the hope of the executive to have a lacrosse stick in the hands of every boy desirous of playing the game within the next few days. The player limit of any team competing in the school zone league was set at 18 competing players, although a club may sign more if desired, but only 18 may be inscribed on the competition during a game.

The clubs at present named for the Belleville Minor Lacrosse League were: Queen Victoria, Queen Victoria Annex, Queen Alex and Arnovich, Phyllis, 23 each.

Doubles—Hazell Dodgers, 8; Medcalf, Cardinals, 7.

Triples — Vaughan, Pirates, 5; Brack, Dodgers, Medwick, St. Louis, Handley, Pirates, 3 each.

KI-Y BASEBALL

Tonight is the last night to register for Ki-Y ball team. Schedule will be made out and distributed on Tuesday, May 11. Play will begin next week.

All players must fill out registration cards at the Y.M.C.A. Anyone who has not filled out a card will be ineligible to play for his respective team.

VISITORS CROWD INTO LOUISVILLE

65,000 Expected to View Running of Kentucky Derby

By ORLO ROBERTSON

Louisville, Ky., May 7 (AP)—While thousands of turf followers mingled with the "hardboots" of old Kentucky today on gaily decorated streets, where only a few months ago flood water stood several feet deep, nearly a score of the finest

State equine royalty awaited the coming of Mrs. Kenneth Ellis' lovely winner as king of the three-year-olds.

Around 6:45 p.m. E.D.T. tomorrow Starter Bill Hamilton will release the barrier, pull "down on" and the 63rd running of the country's most famous horse race will be underway to the accompaniment of the cheers of 65,000 spectators.

Value of the winner will come from either Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Milky Way stable or Samuel Riddle's barn, with the latter sending out the favorite in the diminutive War Admiral, a son of Man o' War. He is expected to go to the post at odds close to 9 to 5.

In meeting Mrs. Mars' Reaping Reward and Military Governor, War Admiral will be asked to run records strides with one horse seasoned by 10 starts, while another has shown but two.

There will be 10 starters in the field for Col. Parish's Dellor, the Wheatley stable's Melodist, Reelfly from Calumet farm, Coldstream Stable's Three D's stable, Maxwell Howard's Declothesline, and J. R. Loundsbein's Pompoon.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

By Ken J. Colling

Signs of liveliness are beginning to rise on the horizon of the South Hastings League, but Whitton, local twirler who for these past two seasons has been dishing 'em up for the Canniffon "Stingers," is reported to have deserted these ranks and will be seen in the livery of Dr. Harry Blakely pestering batting Foxboro nine this season. The clouting Ernie Smith, former C.O.T.C. ball-hurler, is slated to strut his stuff for Canniffon, so it looks like an even break for those two clubs at least. "Doc" Welsh, mentor of the diamond game at Lads, is scouring the countryside for a seasoned hurler and to date is still sleuthing around. He tried to land Stan Spratt, former Enterprise speed-ball artist, but Walt Gerow beat him to the punch. Then there are rumors to the effect that "Speedy" St. Louis is being sought after by the Lads also. All in all it makes good reading and naturally creates pre-season gossip around the circuit.

Alex Weir who it is expected will play with Ernie Gibbard's, C.O.R.L. gang down in Napanee, is lumbering up his pitching arm and sharpening his batting eye at the local Kiwanis Juniors at the Fair Grounds Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening. There is a current rumour floating about that Jay Hawley, Napanee manager may try "Young Walt" out at first base. That will be given a trial at first base by Walter Gerow and he should help to round out a smart infield with Ban Cecil covering third.

When boys of the teen age will have the opportunity registered by that gathering of school boys at the Y.M.C.A. last night where 100 boys of the school age voted their desire to play lacrosse, there must be something behind it all. The people, as we understand it, is to form six bantam lacrosse clubs and one juvenile lacrosse teams, the bantam and the midget, teams to be made up of players playing in a league that is affiliated with the O.A.L.A. Those boys who are interested are requested by thinking of sending an all-star team into the provincial play-downs in the bantam and midget, thus keeping up the interest for those players who may find themselves with a second division club, but awaiting the call for the championship which will be drafted in the near future.

Hello, we have a stranger at the top of the American League today in the person of Boston Red Sox. Tom Yawkey spent a million on trying to buy a pennant-winning club. Then announced it couldn't be done, so immediately the team commenced winning to disprove Mr. Yawkey's theory. In the National League the Pirates increased their lead with a win over the Phils.

MILITARY FIGURES REACH LONDON

Prime Minister King And Other Premiers Rehearse in Abbey

Pirright Camp, Surrey, May 7. —(CP Cable)—The Canadian Coronation contingent arrived here today without fanfare.

The Canadians came by train direct from Southampton. Whereas other Dominion contingents marched from the railway station in London to city barracks amid cheering crowds, the Canadians did not touch the Capital.

London, May 7.—Canada's military representatives arrived today to swell the proud Empire detachments that will take part in Coronation ceremonies.

Peaceful Invasion

Their arrival, with 900 other Canadian visitors, brought the Canadian peaceful invasion of the United Kingdom to a new high—a high that was swallowed up in the vast impouring of visitors from all over the globe.

Preparations for Wednesday's great event were pressed up as the last week-end before the crowning of the King-Emperor approached. Rehearsals were believed about completed yesterday when twelve members of the Royal family gathered at Westminster Abbey to go through their parts in the ceremony.

Second Rehearsal

Last night the second Court reception—described by onlookers as more brilliant since the war—was held at Buckingham Palace. Hundreds among the 700 were presented to Their Majesties were 66 Canadians, wives of Government and military officials, debutantes and matrons, from coast to coast.

London's street decorations were practically ready. The most elaborate decorations were marked the Coronation route. Streets were festooned with flags, pennants and banners and streamers; buildings were draped with materials of brilliant hues; masts 26 feet high and 70 feet apart stood like sentries along Whitehall and Pall Mall, surmounted by a crown, with colored streamers fluttering from the top.

Splurge of Colors

The splurge of Coronation color, however was not confined to the city. Private dwellings were garbed in holiday finery. At night suburban areas lend a colorful picture with their colored electric lighted windows and doorways, with illuminated flower-beds and hedges and fountains.

Duke and Duchess Att

London, May 7.—(CP Cable)—The Duke of Norfolk and his sister, Lady Rachel Howard, took the place of the King and Queen today when a full rehearsal of the Coronation was carried out in Westminster Abbey.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and other Dominion Prime Ministers attended a rehearsal for the first time. All senior peeresses were there, including the Archbishops of Canterbury and York.

Yeoman of the Guard, in mufti and brilliantly-uniformed Grenadiers lined the processional route in the Abbey.

U. S. Visitors Come

London, May 7.—(CP Cable)—Nearly 600 visitors from New York and Boston arrived at Liverpool on the liner Caronia today, beginning the final phase of the American invasion for the Coronation. Thirteen today and Wednesday liners, with a total of 5,000 passengers, are due.

The Antonia, Lancastria and Britannia are due Saturday and the Berengaria and the Queen Mary Monday. The Queen Mary is bringing 1,800 passengers, the Britannia 1,500. A transport officer made the round trip on the Queen Mary to facilitate the landing of passengers, whose tickets and passports will be examined prior to the ship's arrival.

Dear Edna and Fred:—

As a group of young friends, some of whom have known you all your life and others long enough to realize the sterling qualities you both possess, we have come together tonight to convey to you our congratulations and good wishes on the occasion of your marriage today.

To you, Edna, we would like to express our appreciation of all that you have done in the community, thanks for your services in the community, in the church, in the Sunday School, choir and Young People's Organization. We regret your leaving our community but we would like you to know that you have helped make it a better place and true. We shall learn with gladness your happiness and prosperity in your new home.

To show the love we have for you both, we ask you to accept these gifts, (a set of dishes and tablecloth), and place in your new home with kindly thoughts of the many friends that have gathered here tonight.

Signed on behalf of your many friends and neighbours:—Phyllis Parks, Gladys Bailey, Jack Rollins, Joan Rollins.

Minutes of the last meeting were then read, and the treasurer's report showed $5.87 on hand. The roll call was answered by the name of a Missionary and their station. A letter from Manila was read from Mrs. Geo. Robinson for a box of fruit received while ill. Plans were made for an open meeting to be held May 31st at Union Church, and the following societies were invited, Cooper, Hazzard's, Queensboro, Madoc and Ivanhoe. The reception committee to be Mrs. F. J. Nickle, Mrs. A. Harvey and Mrs. A. Empey. Mrs. F. J. Nickle and Miss Annie Holmes. Mrs. A. Empey offered prayer for Mrs. N. Blackburn, a sick member of the society. The meeting closed with prayer and afterwards a dainty lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

TERRIBLE SIGHT SAYS SPECTATOR

Lakehurst, N. J. May 7.—(AP)—Alfred Groetzner, 20-year-old chef on the Hindenburg told his eyes and leaped just before the great ship sank to earth, a blazing wreck.

"I jumped," he kept repeating dazedly, in German, when he was placed on a hospital bed. "I jumped —and I'm alive!" He was only slightly injured. The man in the next bed, George Grant, 33, of London, badly bruised and his leg broken, managed a grin. "I'm alive, too. Thank God."

Most of the passengers and crew, who escaped death in the disaster were too stunned to talk. Some lay silent for hours.

"It was a terrible sight," said Sir Hazard of Pinewald, N. J., son of a Bystelan, who rushed with nurses to the scene of the wreck.

"It looked as if a lot of them burned right up. I don't know how anybody got out.

"It was good fortune that some were blown right out of the windows. I saw one passenger walking around the field afterward in a trance. Their clothes were torn and burned so much that in what was left had to be cut off."

REAPING REWARD IN 17TH POSITION

Louisville, Ky., May 7 (AP)—With no unexpected developments, 30 of the United States' outstanding three-year-olds, 19 colts and nine gelding were entered today for the 53rd running of added Kentucky Derby over 1 mile and a quarter at Churchill Downs tomorrow.

Figured on the basis of 20 starters, the race will have a gross value of $23,575 to the winner with $6,000 going to the second horse, $3,000 to the third and $1,000 to the fourth. The value of the winner will be reduced $500 for each horse scratched.

War Admiral and Reaping Reward received much the best of the draw for post positions. The Riddle colt drew No. 1 position, where he will need all his early speed to escape early interference. Reaping Reward was placed near the outside in No. 17 position. The latter's stablemate, Military, was more fortunate, however, drawing No. 5, with Deller, Meiolgist and Fairy Hill between him and the favorite. The positions in order:

War Admiral; Deller; Meiolgist; Fairy Hill; Military; Court Scandal; Merry Maker Pencing; Blimore Lonaire; Heelfy; Grey Gold; Sornchilter; Clodion; Pompoon; Burning Star; Bernard P; Reaping Reward; Sunset Trial 2nd; No Sir; Sir Damion.

The thrifty way to travel First-class

1937 Ford V-8 owners pay less for their cars in the long run, and travel first-class all the time!

Basic reason is the V-8 engine. Eight cylinders give smoother performance. V-type construction is the most advanced, and permits a much more compact power-plant. Space saved under the hood means more room in the body, and more comfort for you.

This year's V-8 engine is improved to give even greater fuel savings than previous economical Ford V-8 engines. The car itself is engineered throughout for the utmost economy. Long, trouble-free service is ensured by Ford soundness of design and simplicity of construction . . . by exacting Ford standards governing materials and parts built into the car. The number of features — seen and unseen — that makes the Ford V-8 thrifty to own is legion.

To Ford V-8 economy add the other Ford first-class features — Centre-Poise Ride, Easy-Action Safety Brakes, all-steel body, modern style — and you'll realise why the Ford V-8 is very definitely the quality car in the low-price field.

$30 A MONTH, with reasonable down-payment, buys any new Ford V-8 Car under Traders Finance National Plan.

WEST HUNTINGDON

West Huntingdon—The extra warm weather and recent showers of rain have painted the town up-to-date. The farmers are progressing rapidly with their seeding. The young cattle are being removed to their summer homes and the milking cows have been sleeping out of doors at night. This we believe is the earliest in years and is greatly appreciated by the farmers who have little feed left in their barns.

Mr. Alex Parrett is improving since his recent serious illness.

St. Andrews U. P. S.

The closing meeting of St. Andrew's Young People's Society was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wright, North Front Street, on Friday evening. The worship period consisted of singing Gospel hymns and prayer by Rev. J. A. Kofford. Miss Margaret Wright read a portion of Scripture. The topic for the evening was well given by Mr. Jas. Johnston and was on "Why God Should be Predominate in Home". Mrs. Samuel Donnell gave as a reading "Definitions of Home", also Miss Hilda Haggarty gave a reading on Home. Mr. Ross Scott of Stirling gave a demonstration of bird mocking.

At close of meeting a number of games and contests were enjoyed. Next meeting will be in October.

Mr. Geo. Post also was relieved of some seed potatoes on the same night.

The Ivanhoe Public Library sponsored a successful concert on Saturday evening in Town Hall when they employed a group of six Carolina Singers to stage the program. The Hall was filled to capacity. Proceeds $82.00.

The group were entertained in homes of the village and on Sunday assisted with the singing in the Bethel United Church.

TWEED

Tweed, May 8.—Final arrangements for the Coronation Day observance on May 12 were concluded at a meeting of Council Chambers on Wednesday evening. Reeve W. H. Sayers presided. After some discussion it was decided that the route followed by the parade should be from W. S. Gordon's corner to Memorial Park by way of Victoria street. Tweed Citizens' Band will lead the procession, followed by Tweed A. and H. Veterans, the pupils of the Separate, Consolidated and High Schools, the School Boards and the Village Council.

Arriving at the Park the children will form in line in front of the pavilion where short addresses will be given by Reeve Sayers and representative citizens on the significance of Coronation Day. Appropriate memorating the event will be presented to those children taking part in the parade.

On motion of K. Myles and C. R. Way the following committee was named to purchase the medals — Reeve Sayers, W. E. Dark and Ray Quinn.

The following were named parade committee: R. Quinn, S. H. Connor, W. E. Dark, J. Simpson, T. E. Moffat and Reeve Sayers.

The following were named sports committee: A. Simpson, H. Wilson and S. R. Curry.

The booth committee is composed of F. N. Beatty and C. E. Way.

On motion of T. E. Moffat and F. N. Beatty, the Council, Reeve Sayers, Councillors Myles, Way, Kingston and King were named to present the medals.

Two softball games will be played. The first will bring together Tweed Separate School and Consolidated

Little Benny's Note Book

Saltiday afternoon ma said to pop, I'm so glad you're home, William, it's a real bewtiful Spring Summer day and we can all go for a spin into the country in the car, maybe we'll even find some early wild flowers.

Maybe we'll find some rain showers, the sky is full of clouds, pop said, and ma said, Now William I don't care if it is library litered with them, they're sweet little fleecy clouds that wouldn't do if they tried.

Sure, pop, it dont rain every time there's a cloud, I said. Moley smokes, people dont sneeze every time their nose tickles, do they I said,

Being a good argument, and ma said, And besides I haven't had the faintest idea of a storm in my shoulder, and that's an infallible line of clear weather that's absolutely unfailing.

Dont count your twinges before they're twinged, pop said. It may be only a trick of nature to trap you into getting out in the rain, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum you're just seeking excuses to lay around the house.

What was that, thunder? pop said. O, it's the telefone ringing, he said.

With it was, and pop anserd it, saying, Hello, O helio, it's you. I'm so sorry, but we're just leaving for a drive in the country, have luck next time. Good by.

And he hung up, ma saying, I'm glad you've decided to go, but who on earth was that? and pop said, Your sister Fanny, it seems she drove into town with her goofy husband and their jumping Jack child and they have the afternoon free.

Pop not enjoying relations much, especially ma's, and she said, Now Willyum, really, I mean really, and he said, Hurry and get ready before it rains, and she said, It's not going to rain and you know it.

With it didn't, and we found some little blue flowers that nobody knew the name of.

SEVEN PERSONS KILLED WHEN RUNAWAY COAL CARS HIT EXPRESS

Seven persons were killed and 10 injured when the Ocean Limited, Montreal-Halifax express collided head on with eight runaway coal cars at Springhill Junction, N. S. The coal cars were being shunted about when eight heavily loaded cars moved out on the main track and crashed all efforts of an engineer to catch them with an engine. The engine and three cars of express were thrown from the tracks by the crash. The engine which received the brunt of the head-on crash is shown above, the front caved in and lying on its side. The engineer, an express messenger and five alleged tramps riding the "rods" were killed.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Bat. Ankerite.

More equipment is being installed in the Buffalo Ankerite mills and it is expected that milling rate will be boosted again within two or three months. At present slightly over 900 tons a day are being milled of which an average of around 630 tons have been handled in the No. 1 mill, a plant originally rated at 250 tons capacity.

Officials decline to prophesy what the increase in mill capacity will be, but it is understood a minimum of 1,000 tons a day is being the aim.

Leitch.

Leitch continued its profitable course during April with an output of gold valued at approximately $35,-000. This figure is somewhat below March production of $36,200 due to some troubles encountered with the mill solutions. Operating costs for March were around $22,000 which are expected to be improved together with some increase in production. Nearly two years ore has been fairly well developed at Leitch and important additions may be obtained from a drive now proceeding east to investigate drill indications of ore.

Base Metals.

Underground work at Base Metals was resumed during second half of April. Investigation of the new ore-shoot located last fall is being continued.

The opinion is gaining ground that the recent setback was overdone and that the majority of securities declined to levels not at all warranted by either business conditions or earnings prospects. Although an immediate resumption of the former movement is not looked for the pursuit, nevertheless, is considered an opportune time for the acquisition of a selected list of mines and industrials. As usually happens, the public will not be tempted back into the market until a noticeable recovery in prices has taken place.

If you happen to be watching the stock markets you will doubtless observe that there is a psychological aspect to affairs which, during certain periods often plays a stronger hand in directing market action than industrial earning reports or anything of that sort. It was largely psychology which smashed the market for Canadian gold stocks a few weeks ago; and it must be fresh in the memory of those market fans that a perfect wave of seemingly unfavorable situations cropped up.

Sir Edward, Beatty, Chairman and President of the Canadian Pacific Railway states that "it is gratifying to note that the foundation for better business conditions in Canada seems to have been laid. An increasing volume of industrial activity is absorbing unemployed workers. Increased prices for farm products have improved the agricultural outlook. The export is apparently ready to accept any surplus of agricultural and industrial products."

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

(Close)

Toronto, May 8 (CP)—Selling was more urgent than buying in the first closing session of the week on the Toronto Stock Exchange and prices suffered a mild decline. Trading was again in great volume with only about 300,000 shares changing hands. Hollinger and Wright Hargreaves sold down to fairly active trading.

Action was sluggish in the industrial. Dominion Steel and Coal B changed hands in considerable volume at a loss of 1¾ to 19½. Canada Cement and Steamboy Common and National Steel Car declined fractions. Implements were steady to strong. Weak spots in the construction group were Canadian Dredge, off 1½, and Standard Paving, off a half point.

Narrow losses predominated in the Base Metal, Nickel and Noranda dropped small fractions and Hudson Bay was off a point to 38½. Sherritt Gordon, Sherritt and Normetal slipped ½ to 1¼ points each.

A loss of about ¾ of a point was posted by Hollinger as the price slipped to 1.11. Wright Hargreaves backed up to 6.45 for a loss of 20 cents.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 8.—(AP)—Stocks were unable to get a recovery foothold in today's market and many leaders slipped fractions to more than a point. A handful of issues, notably rubbers, managed to weather chilling currents and a few even posted new highs for the year or longer.

Steels and Motors, as well as many of the rails, were unable to do with little or no resistance. At the same time many stocks held up in restricted groove.

Transfers approximated 300,000 shares.

Among Canadian issues Distillers-Corp. Seagrams, McIntyre and Canadian Pacific moved slightly lower. Hudson Bay, Nickel and Coniagarum inclined. Dominion Government 4s were inactive. Montreal funds rose 3-32 of a point to 100.26 cents. On the Curb Lake Shore Mines held steady.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, May 8—Prices on old laid eggs generally lower than yesterday. New potatoes, which are now coming from Bermuda and British West Indies, were unchanged. Cheese was inclined shade easier. Butter prices were a little firmer again. Dressed poultry were unchanged. Receipts were 1,607 cases of eggs, 228 boxes of butter and 304 boxes of cheese excluding trade items.

Sales on the Canadian Commodity Exchange were 50 boxes at Canada fresh 22 score butter at 22 1-4c. Closing prices were posted at 22 bid 1-8c to 22 1-4c for Quebec fresh, 22 score and 21 3-8c to 21 1-4c for Quebec fresh graded by inspection. The open market was generally given at 22 1-4c for No. 1 fresh cuts or 1c1. lots.

'It' Girl Refuses Movie Star Test

French Lick, Ind., May 8 (AP)—Clara Bow, the girl who once made the movie "it" conscious, is probably lost to the films forever.

Her cowboy-writer husband, Rex Bell, gave this indication last night in commenting on an interview in which Miss Bow said she had refused a test for the part of Scarlett O'Hara in the movie version of the spectacular novel, "Gone With the Wind."

"If Mrs. Bell had taken the test and won the role, the picture would have been the only one in which she would have attempted a comeback," Bell said. "Friends begged and begged her to take the test, but she refused. It was probably the closest she ever came to make another picture."

Mother and Daughter Banquet Held by C. G. I. T. Branch

Jean Sherry Acts as Toastmaster For Occasion

ADDRESS ON SERVICE

Members of the Canadian Girls in Training concluded one of the best years in the history of the local branch of the Sunday School rooms of Holloway St. United Church, when over seventy members, friends and guests were entertained at a "Mother and Daughter Banquet."

The Sunday school hall was beautifully decorated in keeping with the Coronation theme, tables also carried a Coronation motif with decorations, favors, menus and corsage novelties. The guests were received by the Misses Margaret Simpson and Barbara Lloyd.

Jean Sherry acted as toastmaster and opened the festivities with an address of welcome. A sing-song followed.

At this point the girls pleasantly surprised their leaders when with appropriate words they presented Mrs. R. E. Newman, Miss Jean Mountain and Miss Lottie Green with beautiful bouquets of Sweet Peas. Those making the presentation on behalf of the C.G.I.T. were the Misses Beverly Goodfellow, Nadine Hall, Jean Lucas. The leaders expressed their appreciation of the occasion of love.

Toast to King

The toast to the King was given by Miss Gwenn Burley and was responded to by the singing of the National Anthem. "Our Mothers" was proposed by Marie Lusk and response was given by Mrs. Agnew. "The Church" toast was proposed by Miss Ruth Simpson and responded to by Mrs. Hobbs. Mrs. Kilbank proposed the toast to "Our Daughters" which was responded to by Jane Pitzgibbons.

Miss Marie Templeton gave a brief address on "camp" and urged that leaders and campers be present. Mrs. R. E. Newman expressed her appreciation to the mothers present for their fine co-operation throughout the year. Progress in the work of the organization in the past year was discussed by Mrs. Reddick of Trenton, superintendent of girls work in the Presbytery for W.M.S. who was the guest speaker of the evening. Mrs. Reddick did address on "service". Thanks to the speaker was moved by Miss Jean Mountain, and seconded by Miss Lottie Green. Mr. Peterkin, superintendent of the Sunday school of the church and the Rev. R. E. Newman congratulated the leaders and girls on the success of their banquet. The singing of "God Save the King" brought to a close one of the most delightful affairs ever held in the Sunday school rooms. Serving at the banquet were the Misses Beasie Sweetman, Evelyn Yoakley, Betty Stoot, Ruth Cordis and Eva Hogle.

SPRING FLOWERS IN PROFUSION ON LOCAL MARKET

Asparagus Stole Limelight With Great Quantity Offered

SPRING VEGETABLES

Tomato And Onion Sets Find a Ready Sale

Spring flowers wild and otherwise transformed the usual drabness of the city market into a riot of color today with brilliants, the provincial flower of Ontario, the yellow of marigolds, pinks and the multicolors of other varieties adding a touch of Spring greatly appreciated by country and shoppers alike. New vegetables dominated a considerable part of the market, the holding well at the usual Spring level.

Asparagus stole the new vegetable limelight this morning with great quantity offered. Prices on vegetable selling at varying prices. Two bunches for fifteen cents were quoted in some sources with an upward scale of prices ranging as high as twenty cents per bunch. A brisk business was done in this commodity. Local housewives taking advantage of the first crops. New onions, radishes and garden rhubarb were also in great demand selling at five cents per bunch.

Flowers also entered in a brisk market with the white trilliums leading at five cents a bunch. Pansies in bloom sold at five cents per berry box. Yellow cowslips were offered at the same price. Potted geraniums in various colors also added to the general attractiveness of the mart, and sold at fifteen and twenty cents each. Foliage were offered at twenty-five cents the bunch.

Tomato Plants Offered

Raspberry sets were also in evidence today with red variety selling at two cents and the blue at five cents per dozen of roots, gooseberry sets were quoted, at five cents each. Cabbage plants, were offered at fifty cents per hundred with young plants of tomato sprouts at the same price. Tomato plants were quoted at fifteen cents the pound and spring onion shoots at seventy cents the flat.

Young pigs were plentiful with four and five week old porkers selling at about $2 down to $1 each.

Potatoes maintained their all-week level with sixty pound bags selling at prices from $1.50 to $1.75. Staple winter vegetables dropped off in their sales today with the new spring varieties taking precedence.

Eggs Slightly Down

Eggs experienced another slight drop in the inside mart today with the wholesale price of large extra quality at eighteen cents. Good good qualities however, had little difficulty in selling at twenty and twenty-two cents. Mediums were offered at sixteen and seventeen with ungraded being offered at nineteen cents the dozen.

Farmers butter remained unchanged selling at the usual prices of thirty cents a pound with two pound rolls going at fifty-five cents.

Young broilers were fairly plentiful at the quality offered at from 65 to eighty cents the pair. Other birds sold at from eighty cents to $1.50. Homecooking roosters did a brisk business with lady shoppers taking advantage of good prices.

Lake trout headed a fine array of fresh fish selling at twenty cents the pound. Muddats were slightly lower in prices buyers getting 2 1-2 pounds for twenty-five cents. Eels were offered at prices from twenty to thirty-five cents each. Pike was quoted at ten cents the pound. Lovers of panfish were offered their favorite food at fifteen cents the dozen.

LONDON'S PULSE

Today their Majesties rest at the Royal Lodge at Windsor where they motored last night. They return on Sunday night.

Windsor is converted into a veritable fairyland of color, is athrob with the pageantry of Empire as visitors from almost every quarter of the world have poured into the city during the past few days, foreign tongues and strange dialects are heard everywhere, cosmopolitan crowds are attracted to the proportions of a boom.

Arrival of Canada's main contingent of troops and the many foreign forces close to full strength. Drawn from all sections of the Dominion and including Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the Canadian Provincial Police, the Canadian Premier will be immediately behind the carriage bearing Prime Minister Baldwin.

Canada will have a representation of more than 300 in Westminster Abbey, where 7,000 will gather for the solemn ceremony of Coronation — and the Canadian assembly is most under one roof in several decades.

In the Abbey ceremony the natural unit of Canada will be carried by Canadian High Commissioner, Hon. Vincent Massey.

The Coronation Service will last approximately two hours, one of the shortest coronations the service lasted around three hours. Shortening of this time is due to the omission of the sermon and minor alterations.

The Three Services Heard.

Those who have received invitations to the Abbey must be in their places three hours before the service begins.

A royal salute of 41 guns will be fired in St. James's Park and another of 62 guns at the Tower of London to announce the actual Coronation.

The returning cavalcade which marks the second phase of the procession, will be headed by contingents of Dominion and Colonial troops and detachments from territorial army units. Then will come units of regular troops; followed by the Prime Ministers in reversed order; the Royal Family; and the King and Queen with their escorts.

On its journey to and from the Abbey the State coach, drawn by eight Windsor Greys, will be escorted by officers from the Dominion and Colonial contingents, a body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard and Indian Army officers. The Duke of Kent and Duke of Connaught, personal aides-de-camp to the King, will accompany the coach.

SENTIMENTAL

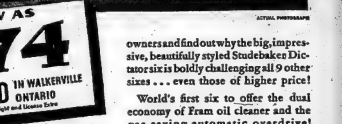
The wedding dress will be of the long afternoon type in soft silk with full sleeves and caught at the knee, such as forget-me-not, hyacinth, periwinkle, and cornflower form an ensemble in the bridal colors of the bridesmaid of the woman soon to become Queen by the side of the Duke of Windsor.

A darker shade of blue has been chosen by Mrs. Simpson for a going away costume. All the blues are of similar shades, each of the greenish tinge in order to conform with the wearer's clear blue eyes and dark hair.



Monte, France, May 8 (AP)—Premature fan mail for the Duke of Windsor has stopped since his arrival here, it is piling up. His daily mail has included several invitations to spend his honeymoon here there.

The duke was deeply affected by the Hindenburg disaster and spent most of last evening reading newspaper reports of it.

He planned a sight-seeing trip for today while Mrs. Simpson awaited dressmakers who were to give her blue wedding gown a second fitting.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Lost—One Whistle

By Hal G. Vermes

Harry Peterson's life wandering hand touched something in the corner of the seat. Absent-mindedly he snapped the rubber band and continued to dream. He often sat in the waiting room of the large railroad station watching the people.

Tonight, as always of late, he was thinking of Annette. The girl on the opposite bench looked a little like her; large blue-gray eyes with just a glimmer of laughter in them, a saucy nose, and hair the color of brown jam. Bob Wallace was dancing attendance on Annette now. For the past two months he had been taxing her to cinema and the theatre, to society dances, and for motor drives along the Hudson. But Harry couldn't afford to take Annette to dinner and the theatre except once in a blue moon.

Just today he had met Bob Wallace of the avenue. Harry had greeted a reluctant greeting and grunted a reluctant goodbye. He was about to pass on when Wallace spoke.

"Listen here, Peterson," he said grimly, "I'd advise you to stop seeing Annette!" Peterson merely laughed.

But though he hadn't asked her yet, Harry still hoped to marry Annette some day. He'd have to do something about it very soon, for he hadn't even been able to save enough money for the ring. As he played with the little package on the seat beside him, the rubber band around it broke and the paper wrapper came off. Looking down at the box in his hand, he opened it and stared, for shining in the blue velvet lining was a blazing solitaire.

Harry whistled softly. "What a beauty!" he whispered. Then he frowned. Maybe it was only one of those Mexican diamonds he had seen advertised for $1.98. But this was the finger of fate pointing the way. He would beat Bob Wallace to it and propose to Annette tonight.

The following Sunday morning Harry sat in his room reading the news in a leisurely fashion. First he looked through the rotogravure papers his mother had sent him; then he opened the city papers. He glanced casually over the advertisements of the apartments for rent. Now that they were engaged he and Annette must decide where they were going to live.

Turning to the news pages his eyes was caught by an advertisement in the public notices. It read: "Lost a diamond solitaire; between the Hudson apartments and Grand Central station. Finder please return to Bellon and Ballon, Attorneys. Reward."

Shifting forlornly on a cigarette, he paced up and down before the windows. Well, no matter what happened he couldn't let Annette know. But he must act at once. Dressing quickly he went out. On the long subway ride to Annette's home he formulated a plan. He couldn't tell her that he had found the ring; she'd never forgive him for that. And he didn't deserve to be forgiven either.

He stiffened suddenly realizing that he must lose her. But there was no alternative; he'd made his bed and now must lie in it. In order to get the ring back he'd tell her that he wanted to have it engraved inside the band. From Harry to Annette with love. And say that he'd bring it back in a few days. Then he would fade out of the picture entirely leaving a clear field for Bob Wallace. As he walked down the street to Annette's home, Harry tried to whistle, but though he set his lips the tune just wouldn't come.

Harry felt more lonesome than ever as he sat in Grand Central station a week later and watched the crowds thronging through the waiting room. He was tired and homesick, and now all the grim reminded him of Annette. She had called several times but he had told the landlady to say that he was out. She had written, too, desperately hurt at his sudden disappearance without a word of explanation. But he wouldn't see her again—ever.

When he reached his room, he walked to the window in the dark and sat down. Pulling thoughtfully on a pipe he gazed vacantly at the skyscrapers downtown. Lights shining from their windows twinkled as if they were trying to make him smile.

Getting up he snapped on the light and picked up the mail on the dresser. He opened an envelope carelessly. As he took out the letter a slip of paper fluttered to the floor. Looking down at it he saw that it was a check.

Dropping to his knees he stared at it. Five hundred dollars! When he came out of the mofenitary daze, he read the accompanying note.

"That ring belonged to me," it said. "And here is the reward for finding it. But the girl I proposed to turned me down; so I am sending the ring to you under separate cover. I am sure she will accept it form you."

The letter was signed by Bob Wallace.

Suddenly Harry found that he could whistle again—and very well, too.

JAMES J. TRAINING HARD FOR TITLE FIGHT WITH JOE LOUIS

Preparing for his championship fight with Joe Louis, James J. Braddock, heavyweight champion, is hard at work in his training camp. Latest reports are to the effect that Madison Square Gardens have withdrawn their suit against him for breaking a previous contract to meet Max Schmeling of Germany. Braddock stated he would meet Louis and only Louis if he defended his title. Here are two excellent pictures of James J. taken at his training camp. After a hard day's training the smell of a juicy roast should be certainly appealing. The photo on the left, pictures James as he set about carving the roast while the other pictures give you an idea of one of the things a boxer does during his training—driving in ten pegs. The title fight will be held in Chicago on June 22.

COUNT ARTHUR MADE FINISH LOOK DIFFERENT TO THIS PICTURE

When the bangtails enter the homestretch is generally when the fun and heart-aches begin for the racing enthusiast. This picture, taken as the horses entered the homestretch, shows Thorson, No. 4, leading at this point, but when everything was all over the story was different. Count Arthur, No. 1, is pulling up on his rivals at this point in the race and was successful in crossing the wire a head in front of Moonside to win the Suffolk handicap at the Jamaica track in New York.

BELIEVED FIRST VIOLENCE IN FILM STRIKE

The Westmore Brothers, Hollywood's ace makeup artists are pictured here looking over the crowd-ed walls of their Hollywood makeup studio. They are left to right: Monk and Ernie Westmore. This is the first violence believed inspired by the strike in the Hollywood motion picture industry. The damage was done by three men who forced the night watchman to let them in. The three marauders brought in cans of creosote, sprinkled it over the costly furnishings, and wrecked other furniture. No estimate of the damage to the studio was made.

SUES GRETA GARBO

David Schratter, German film producer, is seen in Los Angeles court as his suit against Greta Garbo, screen actress, for $10,000 was continued until June 21. Miss Garbo's attorney pleaded if the star appeared at present it would delay production and cost the film company $6,000 to $8,000 a day. Schratter asserts he spent the money on Miss Garbo in 1924 to give her a start in films. Her counsel denies this.

AMBERS KEEPS COOL WITH ICE CREAM

Lightweight champion Lou Ambers seems to be thoroughly enjoying this dish of ice cream in between the odd round of sparring. From the looks of things Lou is not worrying much about the shadows of some pugilists who would like to lift the crown from him, especially Tony Canzoneri whom he won the title over a year ago.

Ellen gets Her Man

FAS

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT

"I—I—is wonderful!" breathed Ellen ecstatically knowing what it would mean to Angus Mackay to have this big shipment of high-grade fur come into his post. "And I pledge myself to see that the tribes are cared for. But how are you going to get the supplies in for furs?"

"Fer'll see," chuckled Whillow. He turned to the breed again. "Where is Deterour now?"

The breed waved an arm upstream. "Deterour, he's camp at dat Cree Camp two miles."

Whillow shot a swift look at Ellen, who distinctly paled at the information. "Was John Benham there also?" asked Whillow.

The breed shrugged and shook his head, "I no see 'um."

"Very well," nodded Whillow curtly. He unearthed a notebook and pencil from his pack and wrote a swift message to Angus Mackay. This he tore out and folded. Then, starting with the breed, he went slowly over the entire crew of the boats. Each man he stopped in front of he stared at closely and scribbled swiftly in the notebook.

The men were uncomfortable, nervous, and they would not meet his eyes. When at last the complete round Whillow came back to the breed and handed to him the note he had written Angus Mackay.

"You will now head directly for Fort Severn," he ordered. "And furs you will turn over to Factor Mackay there, and also deliver this message I have given you. Then you will remain at the fort until I return. If one fur is missing or if any man in your crew is not there to report to me—let that man beware." And Whillow tapped his notebook.

The breed saluted respectfully. "She's been as you say, M'sieu'."

"Good. Now start immediately." The crew of furs were soon on the way, the oars flashing in the sun. Whillow watched until they were well around the bend and out of sight. Then she looked at Whillow.

"Do you think they will really deliver the furs?" she asked doubtfully. "How to keep them from going straight on and never showing up again?"

"Two miles above where the York boats had been met, the canoe shot through the last tugging stretch of the river and glided out upon the emerald, flawless surface of Mink Lake. A mile away to the north-east a sloping, tree-clad point jutted. In the still air just beyond the point loomed a pale cloud of smoke.

Ellen pointed. "There is the camp," she stated.

The cadence of the paddle quickened. Ellen glanced over her shoulder at Mooswa. The old Chippewa-man had not noticed her survey. His eyes were fixed on that column of smoke, and a strange exchange had come over him.

Expression showed into his wrinkled, brown face. No longer did it seem flat and stupid. Instead, by some strange process of inner excitement, each feature seemed to have sharpened. There was a new cast to his head. And his eyes, like the cruel, repacious look of an eagle was there.

The old man's lips were moving. He seemed to be chanting silently. Despite herself, Ellen shivered.

It seemed to Ellen that in no time at all their canoe was rounding the point. The hoarse unrecognizable murmur of voices reached her ears. Through the intervals of the tepees she caught sight of a surging group.

No one noticed them as they landed. All eyes were on two crouching men who paddled about one another on moccasined feet. These men were stripped to the waist, their faces were bloody, their gleaming torsos splotched and carmined, and they were driving out terrific blows at one another with knotted fists.

One was John Benham—the other Bernard Deterour!

Ellen Mackay never knew how she reached the inner edge of that crowding circle about the two fighters. But she was there and then it seemed that utter physical paralysis gripped her.

Only her eyes were free, and she stared unwinking. She saw Benham whip in a slashing punch which made a gory wreck of Deterour's face and when Benham leaped in to follow up his advantage she saw Deterour drive him reeling back with a wicked blow over the heart.

"Stop them!" she cried. "Oh, stop them!"

Whillow did not even hear her. With a little cry of despair, Ellen shrank away, and her eyes went back to the conflict like steel drawn to a magnet. She was just in time to see Deterour cripple into a mad cataclism of ferocious movement. His arms whirled, and he flung Benham from him like a child.

Then he charged in with flailing fists. They crashed into Benham's face and jaw with crushing force. Benham toppled back, his head rolling.

A sigh went through the watching circle, a circle of savage faces gleaming with the stark madness of combat. It seemed as though Benham could not stand—or recover from that beserk charge. He was bent back helplessly, his head and arms swaying.

Abruptly he caught himself, checked on a crouch and sidestepped. Deterour, unable to halt his charge, lunged past, and Benham smashed him under the ear with a blow which whirled the bigger man half off his feet.

Now it was Benham's turn to charge, and this time Deterour gave way, lunging blindly from side to side in a futile attempt to avoid the rapier blows that were cutting his face into a bloody mask.

Revulsion gripped Ellen. She felt nauseated—sick. The stark brutishness of it all cast a dreadful spell over her. The hoarse, gasping, snarling breathing of the fighters, their bloody, swollen features, their grim, hate-filled, blood-rimmed eyes—it was a nightmare plucked to the sensitive girl.

"Stop them," she cried again, her voice shrill and hysterical. "Oh—won't somebody stop them?"

One person in all the group heard her. And that person was John Benham. In the midst of his advantage he stiffened, and his hands dropped half to his sides. His head swung on his shoulders and his bloodshot eyes rested full on Ellen's white face'

For just a moment the madness of conflict seemed to fall from him. He relaxed. And in that moment Deterour was upon him like a pounding panther.

Dimly Ellen heard Whillow's sharp cry of warning. Then she saw Deterour's great arms wrap about John Benham's head ,and saw Deterour's steely thumbs dig into his opponent's eyes.

A gasp of sheer agony broke from Benham's lips. He was crippled from the body, both by pain and by the way slowly, tearing frantically at Deterour's wrists, he was overcome by blindness in Ellen's ear. It was Whillow, and his face was white and convulsed.

"You little fool!" he raged. "Now Deterour will blind him—he'll blind him! And it's your fault.

Ellen's world reeled. John Benham's face looked clear flawless eyes, helpless now before Deterour's ferocious gouging. Her cry that had made Benham drop his guard. She began to sob. Little breathless sobs. "Oh!" she whispered. "Please—God!"

NINTH INSTALLMENT

Her gaze was drawn again to the terrible drama being enacted so viciously she started forward. Whillow's left hand on her arm checked and dragged her back. "Wait!" he rasped. "Wait!"

Benham's hands, locked about Deterour's wrists until the barks of the latter's arms showed white ridged like steel, seemed to be dragging some of that awful pressure from Deterour's head. A gasp escaped—he be gathering himself for super-human effort.

Abruptly one knee drove upwards in a terrific thrust. A gasp broke from the bigger man, Ellen cringed slightly, and Benham tore himself free.

Benham's eyes were swollen, almost closed. But the watching Indian men seemed to pause and gather themselves. Then Deterour charged with a bellow of rage. He was to kill.

With one lithe, twisting movement Benham bent sharply at the waist and hurled himself forward. His head struck shooting out, in hard driven, muscle-ridge piston.

Ellen saw the bull Deterour's lower ribs the blow landed, and the impact. There was a gasp, then a hoarse, blubbering cry of pain erupted from Deterour his knees buckled, and he had dropped low ward. He reached violently, and wood-stained arms encircled about his lips.

"He's got him—the boy's got him now!" was Whillow's jubilant cry. Swiftly salve to his advantage. Benham was at his opponent's merciless, implacable machine. Setting himself, he delivered sledge-hammer blows into Deterour's gaggling chin. Slowly, ponderously, the big man seemed to crumple. His eyes were rolling and glassy, his mouth hung open, his body sagged in the grimace of fading consciousness.

Like an executioner before the block, Benham cut Deterour down. Bit by bit he beat him lower until Deterour's body was bent in a crouch and his nerveless arms swung helpless at his sides.

There was something almost magnificent in the manner that Benham called upon his great strength and vitality to stave off defeat. Out on his feet he refused to fall, his muscles subconsciously holding his body from utter collapse.

Abruptly Benham stopped his attack. His bloody, tight-locked fists fell to his sides. With a shrugging gesture he turned away, and without a look to right or left pushed through the crowd and was gone. And in that moment of magnanimity John Benham was also unconsciously magnificent.

By all rules of conflict he was entitled to go on with his triumph until human resistance could no longer exist, and Deterour should lie supine at his feet. But he, too, could appreciate sheer, rugged courage, even in a foe like Deterour, who had not hesitated to take unfair advantage.

In that refusal to batter helpless man Ellen saw Benham's better self behind him a white glow of spiritual nobility which seemed to dissipate the blood-red mists of combat.

Ellen saw Whillow step forward, grip Deterour by the arms and lift him to the ground. The milling crowd of Indians closed about them and Ellen could see herself alone.

Drawn by what seemed a resistless force, she moved in the direction John Benham had gone. She peered into tepees as she went, but nowhere did she see him. Unconsciously she hurried her pace. And then, below the trees at the edge of the lake, she found him.

Mooswa's deceptive lunge car'ried him through to his goal.

He was crouched low, and beside him was the same ancient squaw, gently sponging his battered face and body with the lay lake water.

Timidly Ellen approached the pair. The old squaw looked at her in frank hostility. Then she turned again to her ministrations. She stiffened, and his hands dropped to his sides. His head swung on his shoulders and his bloodshot eyes rested full on Ellen's white face'

Ellen went back in memory to her first meeting with Benham. How arrogantly he had borne himself she had been in approaching the free-trader with her request to be taken along on the trip north. And how bitter and humiliated she felt when Benham curtly refused. It was that pride as much as anything that had caused her to seek out Pat McGlashan's help in order to get away from the Benham boats. Ellen, for whose every mood had often made one kneel in jumping to her bidding, now had to plead for the favor of that man and was compelled to force herself upon his care when the favor was refused.

She remembered her tremulous fear when they had passed the canoes and she had brazenly revealed herself, certain in the knowledge that Benham could not return her to Athabasca Landing without creating a scandal that would destroy him.

Benham had been very kind and considerate. Whillow discovered her—he had thwarted him through the help of Pat McClatchin—and he was powerless. He had said no words of blame and had not scolded or upbraided as many others would have done. She had offered to pay for her transportation—he had abruptly refused. She remembered now that certain glint of humor that shone in his eyes as he told her, "My payment is already made." And next day some of the flesh had been paid by the flare of anger and the deep humiliation of that payment. She had not even learned of his indebtness to the man he hated most in all the world—John Benham, the free-trader. That had been the payment Benham exacted. He had taken advantage of her silence in slowing away on his trip north to accomplish a far greater heavier than that since she had discovered him. And he had been on guard she held for him. It was love . . . love almost at first sight, she realized.

Benham had leaped ashore to rescue Ellen from the canoe, taken a small enclosure on the boat to give her shelter and privacy. She had been impressed by his consideration and thoughtfulness then, and again when he had carried her across the night and she had carelessly gone to sleep in his arms. Still unchained wood and Benham, fearful of her safety, had waited for her return in the gloom of the fatuous from the heavy day's work.

TENTH INSTALLMENT

They had taken together then and Ellen had been startled by Benham's appreciation of the beauties of the country. Most of the men she knew were rough, hardened by the rigorous life. There had been occasional flashes of poetry in John Benham's understanding. In those moments Ellen had sensed that a bond of friendship, of common understanding between them was being forged between them. Ellen knew that it was love.

Then the trip north had stood there, across the dying campfire flames, staring at this stranger, this unfamiliar man. Her eyes had seethed with truant thoughts, and words had come to her part, quiet and soft lips. Then one of the sleeping Indians had awakened, breaking the spell. She had moved away.

"Good-night," she had called softly. "Good-night, John Benham."

She shivered a little now at the memory of that disastrous moment at the latter turn of events filled her with shame at the humiliating notion. Here was her mate, . . . the man she loved. . . . and she had left him with faith and understanding that she had believed all the false things that had been said about him. She had insisted on calling the Northwest Mounted Police and demanding Benham's arrest. To be sure, later events had cleared him of suspicion and trapped the real culprit' but she could well understand why Benham should hate her and refuse to listen to her apologies.

She paused, and she was unconscious of it. She merely sat and looked out towards a future which seemed very drab and very grey and very empty. Then she heard voices approaching. She rose and stepped ashore, her face stony and expressionless.

Whillow was there with his prisoner. In the background was Mooswa and John Benham, with a number of the tribe slinking furtively beyond.

"I'm sorry, Miss Mackay," Whillow was saying. "But you and Mooswa will have to return to the Fort by another canoe. I cannot chance your safety by carrying you with me and my prisoner. Deterour is dangerous."

Ellen nodded briefly. "Just as you say, Whillow," she answered.

Whillow stepped up to Deterour, a tiny key in his hand. "Let's see, Deterour," he said. "Your wrists are bleeding. I'll see that you earn your keep with a padding and make no mistake about it. I'll shoot you if you don't try any tricks."

Deterour shrugged again and held out his hands. The cuffs fell away.

The next moment Deterour exploded into movement. One terrific back-hand blow swept Whillow to the ground, half unconscious. With a swoop that followed the speed of lightning Deterour was upon him. The next second he was off again, and in his hand was Whillow's revolver.

"Back!" he snarled.

Whirling, he thrust the canoe out into the lake with a tremendous shove. Then he leaped lightly into the stern of it. Then he caught up a paddle and sent the boat foaming away.

The paralyzed group behind him broke into feverish action. Benham raced away up to the shore to where other canoes were beached but already, running like a deer, old Mooswa was leading him. Whillow turned to his fest and shouted for a rifle.

"Ahhh!" cried Ellen, despairingly. "John Benham. He'll kill you."

Benham did not hear her. Long before she could reach him he was afloat and hurling all the speed of his magnificent body into the paddle. Mooswa, too, had taken a canoe and drove out into the lake with surging strokes.

But before him was still another canoe. Benham saw a tall, gaunt figure of which was a hunched brown figure with wrinkled, seamed face and eyes that were like those of a red. Old Mooswa was launched upon great strength and relentless activity.

With perceptible speed he drew away from Benham, and the latter's face grew leaden. Deterour. His ancient cunning was stronger than the white man's cunning.

Deterour leaned on his paddle, and his long, powerful, sweeping strokes snapped the overstrained maple, short in his hands. Snarling, he flung the splintered wood aside, and in the same second the canoe shot forward, and Deterour lunged out in a great sprawling leap. His fingers closed on the jagged body hung clear in the air, and Ellen saw, in the sunlight, the gleam of the blade of a hunting knife.

Ellen held the centre of the flying body Deterour flung a bullet. But Mooswa's desperate lunge car'ried him through to his goal. Ellen saw him crash down upon Deterour and the two men disappear in a tangle of arms and legs. And when it rose the third time it was Deterour gripped in the sun. Then both men toppled into the water.

There was a sudden whirl of foam. A hand appeared—once. In it was a long, glistening knife that slowly from sight. At this moment the straining Benham drove his canoe forward over the spot. His right arm shot down into the water to the shoulder and groped unseeingly that struggled weakly.

Slowly Benham straightened and dragged the limp figure of Mooswa over the side of his canoe.

Silence settled over the placid depth of the lake again for a moment. Then with a gesture of resignation, he spun the canoe about and drove it back toward the shore.

Mooswa's head breathing when they lifted him gently out, but it was a breathing that was sobbing swiftly. He was shot through the centre of the body.

While-faced, and murmuring with pity, Ellen crouched the old Indian's head in her lap, and with gentle fingers smoothed back his thin, black, dripping locks.

"Mooswa," she murmured brokenly. "Oh—Mooswa—how can I face Gilchie now? What can I tell her?"

Mooswa stirred, his eyes opened. Strangely enough, he had heard Ellen's words.

"You may tell her our honour is clear, now little gentle-heart. You may tell her our own Fawn Eyes, who has been long in the arms of the Great Spirit, is smiling again, for though Mooswa was old, his hand was cunning and his arm was strong.

"Listen," many summers ago it was, when Fawn Eyes danced and sang through all the encamps. She was young and joyous. Her sweetness and beauty was that of a red deer. Then Deterour came.

"He, too, was young, and good to look upon. But even then the man was evil and his tongue was forked. And so there came a day when Fawn Eyes crept home to us. Her spirit was gone and her shame like some terrible sickness. She died that night her spirit went away to the Great Master.

"Long—long has Mooswa waited. But today the trail ended and at last Mooswa felt his arm grow strong and his aim was true. And Fawn Eyes is smiling."

Mooswa's eyes closed again and gradually his breathing grew less. His features softened into a look of peace. Tears blinded Ellen's eyes and choked from her throat. She fell moist upon Mooswa's wrinkled forehead.

Ellen felt a hand upon her shoulder, powerful yet gentle. She looked up. John Benham was bending over her. "He was a very brave man, Miss Mackay," Benham murmured. "And he shall have a brave man's burial."

They buried Mooswa when the purple gloom of the forest was shaking in the shadow of Time began the flurry of departure. Tepees were stripped of covering, bundles of the hunt, and trapping implements were gathered. Sales of furs unearthed.

Ellen sought John Benham. She found him at the lake edge—alone. A single Peterborough canoe rested on the sands. Ellen's face leaped, and she looked at the silent Benham.

Presently Benham cleared his throat.

"I owe you an apology, Miss—Mackay", he said, a trifle awkwardly. "I—I've always been rather overboorishly. But Whillow told me of the source from which you and your father had received some—certain misinformation."

But Ellen shook her head.

"No," she exclaimed. "You owe me nothing. It is for me to be round. I was the offender. There are some things in life that simply cannot be. That was one of them, and I should have had sense enough to realize that was the case from me. I would like you to know, John Benham, that I am bitterly sorry for my unjust words and thoughts. And it is I who apologize fully".

Suddenly she was a gentle child-like tremulous smile.

Benham looked back at her, his eyes warm and glowing. Ellen laid her hand in his, while her head fluttered and her breath came fast. But Benham's clasp tightened with spasmodic intensity and he held her hand imprisoned.

He laughed—big triumphant. "Ellen," he muttered huskily. "Ellen."

Her hands slole upward until her finger-tips were caressing his swollen eyes. "I'm sure your poor eyes would be quickly well again if you would let me kiss them, dear," she said softly.

But the next moment she was pressing and writhing with exquisite pain as Benham's lips found hers. Closer to her to him, vibrant withee of ecstasy.

At last the man and woman stood red and stood slightly apart, their eyes locked in strange story.

The lonesome trail was over.

CORONATION FLIERS CROSS ATLANTIC IN 21 HOURS

Land First in Essex To Repair Wireless Set Then Hop to Croydon

Landing is Only 15 Miles From Objective of Fliers

GO BACK WEDNESDAY

Will Carry Pictures of Coronation on Return Journey

Croydon Airdrome, May 10 (AP)—The United States coronation fliers, Dyke Merrill and Jack Lambie, landed at Croydon at 8:38 p.m. (1:38 p.m. E.D.T.) to complete the eastward leg of the ambitious transoceanic flight that may put them back in New York by Thursday.

They had landed first at North Weald Airdrome, 15 miles outside London, to repair damaged wireless apparatus and then sped on to land here 21 hours, 2 minutes after the take-off from Floyd Bennett Field in New York Sunday.

A large crowd greeted them upon their arrival.

The pair planned to pick up pictures of coronation day and fly back to New York after the ceremonies Wednesday.

Merrill popped out of the plane first and was rushed by Dorothy Daye, American correspondent for the Philadelphia Inquirer, who planied three resounding kisses. Perry Read of New York was with her and kissed Lambie. Merrill took some minutes to remove the lipstick and remarked it was a "grand little trip".

"We flew blind the entire way," he asserted.

Both fliers said they felt fine and expected to land back in New York Thursday.

The fine, land they saw, Merrill said, was the southwest corner of Ireland. An air ministry official greeted the flyers and gave them an unusual grant, permission to fly anywhere they desire while in England.

TAKEN TO BELLEVILLE

Cobourg, Ont., May 10 (CP)—William King of Halifax is in hospital here suffering from broken ribs, received when he was thrown as he was riding and driven by Percy Knox of Trenton, collided with one driven by George Graydon of Toronto. The accident occurred a mile out of Cobourg. Knox was taken to Belleville Hospital with a broken knee cap.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Light waves and radio waves! If Mars is inhabited by men like the earth, as a rule they do not interfere. Some do return by repetition, as for instance, the reddish "earth-shine" often very noticeable on the dark part of the new moon. At that time the earth is full moon to the "man in the moon". Radio waves, it was first thought would act as light waves do; that is, leave the earth curving into space. And, the wonder was how radio messages could be sent long distances around the curvature of the earth's surface. Kennelly-Heaviside layer (and others) do that for us. These layers make the radio waves rebound back to the earth sharply by reflection or refraction.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, May 10 (CP)—Pressure is high over the lake valley and Ontario States, also to the northward of Manitoba and the southern districts of Quebec, the Maritime Provinces, Davis Straits and Greenland. Elsewhere all over the Rocky Mountain States, showers have been general. It is much warmer to the southeast of Hudson Bay and the weather has become cool, while in the western provinces it has been generally fair and moderately warm.

Lake Superior—Moderate westerly winds, fair. Tuesday, moderate winds; fair and cool; frosty in tent-ing districts.

Manitoba—Fair and moderately warm. Tuesday, partly cloudy, warmer in the southeast, showers.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Partly cloudy today and Tuesday; possibly a few scattered showers.

SPECIAL SERVICE FOR MOTHER'S DAY

Tabernacle Sunday School observed Mother's Day by a special service, the theme of worship being "Ready to Serve." Many parents joined with the scholars in paying tribute to mother. Welcome to mother was given by four small girls from the Primary Department. Mavis Rumley told the story entitled "Do as I please house", and Mrs. L. B. Naylor gave an address on Mother's love.

NEW MOTORCYCLE FOR POLICE DEPT.

Fully equipped for police radio reception a new motorcycle was delivered to the Belleville Police Department today. The "bike" was manufactured by the Belleville Police Commission following the sale of the old motor-bike. The new machine is modern in every detail and will, in all probability be ridden by Police Constable Douglas Kirby who performed the duties of traffic officer last summer. The new motorcycle is radio equipped and will be known as "patrol car No. 2" when police broadcasts are sounded over the other waves through radio station CHBC. Belleville will police duties of the Belleville Motorcycle Patrol will be to enforce the motor traffic regulations within the city limits.

REVISION OF SALARIES BENEFITS CITY CIVIL SERVANTS IN CITY

Approximately fifty Ontario civil servants of the city and immediate district will receive benefits in the forward revision of salaries of officials of the Province as announced by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn on Saturday. The increases will range from 5 to 10 per cent. according to the statement from Queen's Park. The revised schedule is expected to be completed by June 1.

Locally the revision will affect the Sheriff's office; the office of the Police Magistrate; Employment Bureau; Ontario School for the Deaf; office of the County Registrar; Ontario Liquor Control Board store; County Gaol and others.

RACING PUNT 'JOKA' OUT FOR TRIAL SPIN

Fitted out with added improvements which are expected to add substantially to her speed the "A" Class racing punt, Joka, owned by Chas. Smith was launched as the first of her class in the harbor yesterday and was put through a trial spin in preparation for the season's races. In spite of gusty and threatening weather, the bay on Sunday had its quota of sailing punts, power boats and canoes filled with the first vacationers of the season.

DUAL CHARACTER IN CORONATION

Rev. R. E. Newman Conducts Special Service at Holloway St. Church

The coming Coronation of King George Sixth and his Queen on Wednesday next, was the theme of the services of worship at Holloway Street United church on Sunday, when the program arranged by the General Council was carried out. Rev. R. E. Newman told his congregation that no other country than Britain has anything to vie with the coming ceremony in dignity and antiquity, going back as it does more than one thousand years.

The preacher noted that the ceremony embodies the growth of the idea of kingship. The state and church went together; the archbishop, head of the church, anoints and crowns the king.

The fact that the Coronation possesses most emphatically a religious character as well as national character was indicated by the Rev. Mr. Newman. "It is not mere pageant, for mere pageantry could not hold the interest of the people for more than a thousand years unless it found something of supreme value and held it."

It is much like the consecration of a bishop, the heart of the service being in the anointing and crowning.

The empire is proud of Queen Elizabeth and the Princesses and of the place within the British Royal Family has given to the home life, Mr. Newman said.

The King is not coming to the throne as a dictator or autocrat, but he unexpectedly steps into the line of kings with the finest of democratic personalities.

During the service Mr. Harry Atkinson of Albert College sang a composition of his own on the Coronation.

BOYS ADMIT THEY RANSACKED HOME

Had Many Articles Piled up For Removal at Opportune Time

Following a lengthy period of investigations and lying in ambush that brought no results, Detective Fred Isard apprehended three seemed youths on Saturday after investigating the theft of a car radio aerial cap. Previous to this investigation, however, police were watching the old Robinson mansion on Highland avenue, that is now occupied by the Albert College. In this building persons had removed the entire house and placed all movable portable articles in it, no one knew where they were discovered by Albert College officials. Although a strict look-out was kept for the return of the robbers, to pick up their ransacked goods, no sign of the would-be robbers was in evidence. It was during the questioning of three local school boys on Saturday that Detective Fred Isard solved the Robinson building mystery. The three boys admitted they were the guilty culprits and had apparently eluded police authorities around the building and did not return to the scene of their crime. They admitted the theft of two radiator caps also. Their cases will be heard in a local juvenile court at a later date.

RELIGIOUS ASPECT IN CROWNING RITE

Rev. Dr. Semple Conducts Pre-Coronation Service at Bridge St.

Impressive pre-coronation services were held in Bridge Street United Church on Sunday. In the morning Rev. Dr. James Semple conducted the special service arranged by the General Council, and delivered an address on the meaning of the coronation. At the front of the church were coronation colors, emblems of the event a beautiful large crown and symbols of the royal office.

During the service the adult and junior choirs sang the hymns, singing Sir Edward Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance", and the adult choir sang "The King Shall Rejoice."

Dr. Semple referring to the solemn and splendid pageantry of the ritual of the crowning, said the ceremony of the coronation of a British sovereign is the most impressive of its kind still performed in the world. Strikingly the service takes place in the House of God at the hands of a duly ordained high minister of God, and not only does anything but the spiritual and the moral into this ceremony we are introducing something which is not in it," said the preacher stressing the religious significance of the ceremony.

Dr. Semple dealt in brief with the significance of the symbols of the royal office, pointing out that the Bible contains a record of coronations. In the New Testament is mentioned not of the crowning of earthly kings but of crowning of the Lord Jesus Christ, - to whom all kings shall bow.

"If it is necessary for the King's people to prepare for an event of this kind, what shall we do as subjects of so great a King?" Dr. Semple asked. "If it is necessary on his behalf, how much more so on ours?"

"Our Empire is like no other in all history," it was pointed out. He is the very King of Kings and Lord of Lords. His burdens will be great, and sometimes more than he can bear. Think of the blogg that flows in his veins—that of his great grandmother Queen Victoria, his grandfather, Edward the Seventh, "Peacemaker" and his father King George Fifth, undoubtedly the greatest King in modern days. He is our duty to support our King with regular prayer.

"No King ever had need the problems King George Sixth has to face. But he is a good King. On his accession to the throne he said: 'With my wife by my side, I take up the heavy task which is to be ours' me. In ti I look for the support of all my people,' So we look for support and upward help that he be known in history as the Peace King.

MRS. ROBERT ALLEN (Madoc Township)

Madoc, May 11 (Special)—Mrs. Robert Allen, well known and highly respected resident of Madoc Township for many years died suddenly at her home on Saturday afternoon from a heart attack. Although Mrs. Allen had been in poor health for some time her demise was unexpected and cast a gloom over the community. She was born in Belleville 62 years ago and after residing at Rose' Corners for some time moved to Madoc Township where she has continuously resided. She was an active member of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, her husband, who survives being an elder for many years. The couple a short time ago celebrated the 35th anniversary of their wedding. Left to mourn are her husband, four sons, David, New Crescent, California, John of Canada, Belleford, Field of Madoc Township and Malcolm on the homestead, one daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) W. Brown of New Hamburg, N.Y., and one brother in Spokane, Wash. The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon.

Madoc, May 10 (Special)—John Herrington, aged 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Herrington of Madoc lost a finger and part of another when he was burned by an electric current near the Community Hall on Sunday afternoon. The young boy was climbing through a skylight behind the community hall where there is situated a number of transformers and somehow he came in contact with a live wire. The foreigner was burned off and part of the second finger of the left hand, while a large burn was also sustained on the left thigh where the current left the body. The boy was attended by Dr. E. S. Redmond of Madoc and is now resting at home. He will recover.

GARRISON PARADE TO ST. THOMAS'

Large Congregation Attends Pre-Coronation Service

At the old parish church of St. Thomas Sunday morning the form of service used was that commanded by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York for use on the Sunday preceding the coronation of their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, and the parishioners were favoured with a beautiful and impressive service by the Argyll Light Infantry (Militia) and pipe band, the 34th Battery and a representation of officers, men and full band of the R.C.A.F. The beautiful interior of this old church with its many memorial windows and tablets and the colors of regiments which had seen active service for King and Country suspended on the north and south walls of the chancel rendered an ideal setting for this pre-coronation service which was truly in all parts of the British Empire upon the same day.

The lessons from the old and new testament appointed for the service were read by the commanding officer of the Argyll Light Infantry, Lt. Col. A. B. Gribbin.

The address, bidding the people make ready for the coming of their King, was delivered by the Vicar of the parish, the Chaplain of the Argyll Infantry, Major the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne. His address was based upon part of the 24th verse of the 10th chapter of the First Book of Samuel. "And all the people shouted, and said, God save the King." The Vicar's address was eloquent and powerful. He emphasized the religious side of the coronation—the acknowledging of God as Supreme Ruler, without which recognition the hallowing and consecrating of our earthly King would be an empty occasion. Without God's civilization would descend into chaos. The traditions of the Great British Empire are cherished and will be exemplified in the magnificent spectacle on Wednesday next when King George VI will be anointed with holy oil and consecrated to the sacred office to serve God and the subjects of his vast realm.

The garrison presented a very smart appearance as they marched to the church headed by Lt. Col. A. B. Gribbin who is in command of the Argyll Light Infantry, with Major W. F. Van Steenburgh was in command of the 34th Battery (Canadian Field Artillery, and the detachment from the Royal Canadian Air Force was in command of Flight Lieut. Waite.

On the return march to the armouries Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, D.S.O., V.D., a former commanding officer of the Argyll Light Infantry, took the salute at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets. Col. W. N. Fenton and Lieut. Col. R. A. Ponton, M.C., former commanding officers of the Argylls were also on the Saluting Base.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT S. A. CITADEL

Coronation And Mother's Day Sermons Given by Adjt. Alderman

Coronation Services were held in the Salvation Army Citadel on Sunday, with a good attendance at all three services. Adjutant Alderman, the Commanding Officer took the addresses at both meetings. Each service opened with the singing of the National Anthem, and special reference was made to the crowning of the King and Queen. The Citadel was fittingly decorated for the occasion.

The Afternoon Service

The afternoon service took the form of a Young People's Mother's Day Service, with all the mothers and friends of the young people attending. All young persons attending this service presented their mother with flowers. Various items were rendered by the young folk, and every one going their part in excellent manner.

The Night's Service

Sunday night's service was one of a very interesting nature, as at this service once again the theme of Coronation was exemplified, and the address was along the theme of Mother. During the service Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Brown and three children farewelled as on Wednesday they leave for England where they will take up their residence. The oldest mother attending service was Mrs. Stevens and she was presented with a beautiful plant. Special music and song was rendered by the Citadel Band and Songster Brigade. Arthur Wynne sang a solo "The Holy City."

Band to Take Part Wednesday

Among the many other organizations represented on the Wednesday morning in the Coronation Services will be those of the Salvation Army and it will be the first both in the parade and will accompany the singing at the Divine Service to be held by the city. At night the band will give a special Coronation Service of music in the Citadel.

DEMOCRACY OF EMPIRE TRACED

Rev. W. J. Walker of Presbyterian Church Speaks on History

"God brought kingship into being and it is as old as civilization" said Rev. W. J. Walker, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, when the congregation honored the order of service for "the Coronation." His subject "God Save The King" traced the democracy of the English throne and its trials to obtain that democracy through the years. The pastor prayed for the guidance of God to be given George VI and Queen Elizabeth and the hope they would rule wisely and well for all the people of the vast empire. The choir under the direction of J. M. Hodgins, offered the anthem "Coronation Jubilee" by Woodward and an organ postlude "Pomp and Circumstance" by Elgar concluded the service. Hymns befitting the occasion were sung. In the evening Rev. Walker delivered a Mother's Day sermon and this was followed by a Sacred Festival of Coronation music.

Rev. Mr. Walker took his text from Psalm 89, verses verse and showed, that morality of the state in the ancient times by in its strength of the King. He stated the oriental Kings were autocrats and subject to every whim and passion of a physical king and God was lightly regarded. He stated that Kings were born by right and he opined the youth of Germany to-day were being taught the same lesson as those of ancient times with Lodendorff as the chief teacher. Following down through history, the pastor explained, that the struggle was always born where the King's oldest son followed on the throne but there was no assurance to the people of a King's physical strength. "Rule by Divine right" came into being when the people rose up and in King John's reign the Magna Carta was formed so as to limited in his or her desire and had to meet all classes under all circumstances. "In this regard," Rev. Walker said the speaker, "because he failed to measure up to the standard set by Victoria and carried out by her sons. The present king has a great task and leads only by choice and Divine call and all peopel will say 'God Save the King'."

LOVE AND LOYALTY ARE EXPRESSED

Christian Scientists Hold Pre-Coronation Service

At the Christian Science service on Sunday the following statement was read by Mr. Fleming Hector in observance of Coronation Sunday.

"This Sunday has been set apart by churches as a day of observance for holding special services of dedication, intercession and thanksgiving in connection with the Coronation of their Majesties, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

"Christian Scientists rejoice in the opportunity this affords them to unite with other Christian churches in the British Commonwealth of Nations in an expression of love and loyalty to King George and Queen Elizabeth on this occasion of their Coronation.

"Their Majesties have already endeared themselves at home and abroad by their devotion to duty, public life and by their happy family associations.

"May our beloved Sovereign and his Queen be crowned with the diadem of joy and peace, and may the blessing of God rest upon each and every home in the realm and their homes and in all their undertakings.

"On this occasion in the spirit of love and loyalty we unite with all Christian churches in our prayer for the welfare of our Sovereign. What better assurance of this welfare can there be than the promise contained in our Lord's Scriptures? 'Great deliverance giveth he to his King; and sheweth mercy to his anointed' (Psalms 18:50).

"May the reign of their Majesties be long, prosperous, and truly blest.

"God Save the King."

This was followed by a solo and reading of the lesson sermon, the service closed with singing of "God Save the King."

POLICE BLOTTER

Sneak thieves were again active in Belleville over the week end, when a local resident was robbed of the small change left in a milk bottle. David Cory, 243 Coleman Street, reported such a theft to the authorities early today. "But our only loss the 54c left out for our milk, but stole the milk bottle also" lamented Mr. Cory.

A Mrs. Gardiner, who gave 14 1-2 West Bridge Street as her address, complained to police she had been bitten by a large police dog on cases being the most serious on the Station Street Saturday. The canpolice blotter.

Coronation Rehearsal With All Guests Placed Is A Colorful Spectacle

King and Queen Only Absentees as Procession Moves to Abbey

STATE DINNER

Mounted Police Attract Attention in Brilliant Uniforms

London, May 10 (CP)—A final, full rehearsal of the Coronation was held today with Westminster Abbey thronged with practically everyone who will be there Wednesday—except the King and Queen.

The Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal in charge of the ceremony, invited all Peers, Peeresses, Empire Prime Ministers, representatives of the Dominions and other countries of the world, and all other guests to be in their allotted seats for a formal review of the ceremony that will crown George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

Last of a series of rehearsals, today's was to place the final touch of absolute timing on the great ceremony, making all seat holders familiar with their places and ushers thoroughly acquainted with their tasks.

Tonight the King will hold the first of two magnificent state banquets. Princes and princesses, foreign dignitaries and diplomats, the Dominion Prime Ministers, nobility and distinguished visitors will sit down under the great crystal chandeliers of Buckingham Palace and be served on gold plate, with huge gold bowls and cups decorating the tables.

Coronation enthusiasm reached a new high during one week end with gay celebrations all over the city Saturday night. An enormous throng—fully 500,000—defied yesterday's storm to watch the procession from Buckingham Palace to the Abbey reviewed again.

A Special Thrill

The hundreds of Canadians in the capital had a special thrill when they saw 46 representatives of the Dominion's armed forces take over the duty of sentry-go outside Buckingham Palace and St. James's Palace.

Khaki clad, with "Canada" in brass letters on the shoulders of their greatcoats, the picked Canadians excited keen interest among a crowd so dense the soldiers had difficulty pacing a straight line in front of the gates.

Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie was on hand to watch the Canadians take over from the Welsh Guards at Buckingham Palace. Owing to the short notice, the Canadians did not perform the colorful ceremony of changing of the guard but mounted guard from noon to 6 p.m.

In the procession rehearsal the Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment of four attracted particular attention as they escorted the Landau in which on Wednesday Prime Minister Mackenzie King will ride to the Abbey. The Prime Minister returned to London yesterday from Glasgow where he spent the week end as guest of Prime Minister Baldwin.

Former Prime Minister Bennett, a frequent visitor to London for many years, described London's decorations as "wonderful" and mod's extension "than I have ever seen here before."

It was a colorful sight, that London had prepared for the great day. Fall Mall, the Street of Clans, and Piccadilly Circus offered color schemes of incredible variety.

Banners and towers piled along balconies supplied the dominant effect in Regent Street while on Oxford Street and in Hyde Park the decorations blended with the trees and green lawns.

Trafalgar Square was strikingly decorated, Whitehall, along which the procession will wind, was literally lined with Union Jacks, other flags and red, yellow and blue garlands.

A Colorful Sight

As the procession moved through chill rain yesterday it was still a colorful sight despite gloomy skies with the scarlet of the Mounties, the white-plumed hats of the Australians and paper streamers everywhere, all lit by powerful projectors.

Sandwich sellers pushed dexterously through the street, doing a roaring business. The crowd ate and drank, sang songs of the various parts of the Empire and maintained a leisurely pace throughout while overworked "bobbies" tried to hurry them along.

Urchins climbed on the lions around the Nelson column, on the gates of the National Gallery and on the lampposts along the procession route.

Dignitaries flocked into London from all over the world. Among Their Majesties' house guests at Buckingham Palace for the Coronation were the King's first cousin, Crown Prince Olaf of Norway and Crown Princess Martha; Princess Juliana and Prince Bernard of Holland and the Count of Flanders, brother of the King of the Belgians.

Crown Prince Frederick and Princess Ingrid of Denmark were staying with the Princess' grandfather, the Duke of Connaught, at Clarence House. The aged duke, recently ill, returned from Bournemouth yesterday.

4,000 Correspondents

The Dowager Marchioness of Milford Haven was entertaining her daughter and son-in-law, the Crown Prince and Princess of Sweden, at Kensington Palace. Prince and Princess Chichibu of Japan were in a hotel overlooking Hyde Park.

Unparalleled arrangements have been made to handle press, film and radio reporting of the Coronation. Nearly 4,000 British and foreign correspondents are "mobilized" for the occasion, with relays of men everywhere in view of the impossibility for individual newspapermen to move from point to point during the procession and ceremony, due to enormous crowds.

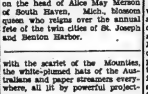
Hundreds of apartments with windows overlooking the scenes have been leased by newspapermen with special telephonic installations for hasty direct transmission of news. In the Abbey telephone booths having direct international connections have been installed.

In the Abbey six cameramen will picture the entire ceremony from specially constructed booths. Special camera stands have also been built along the procession route and suitably marked motorcycles will rush films to a central point for development and distribution.

A dozen planes will be waiting at Hendon Airport to take them to the provinces and ports while other airplanes will fly films direct to the continent.

James Mollison, transatlantic air ace, will deliver pictures to Glasgow two hours after they have been taken.

BLOSSOM QUEEN



It's coronation time in Michigan, too. A garlanded crown is placed on the head of Alice May Mernal of South Haven, Mich., blossom queen who reigns over the annual fete of the twin cities of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor.

KNIGHT TEMPLARS AT CHRIST CHURCH

Rector Stresses "Service of Kingship" in Coronation Service

Special Coronation services, commended by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, were celebrated at Christ church during both services on Sunday, with the members of King Baldwin Preceptory, No. 6, Knight Templars holding their annual Ascentiontide church parade at this evening service.

Both services were conducted by the rector, Rev. C. G. Wright, who brought messages of special significance, speaking on that particular subject and stressing the "service of kingship". The entire services were uniform, and especially prepared for service throughout the Empire in the Church of England for this unique Sunday-before-Coronation Divine Service.

"We are gathered here on the Sunday after Ascension and the Sunday before the Coronation. We have, therefore, two thoughts uppermost in our minds—thanksgiving for the Coronation of Jesus Christ and a sense of obligation to the Coronation of King George VI now so near at hand," stressed Rev. Wright as he welcomed the Knight Templars and asked them to join with the keeping of this two-fold view before them. The speaker referred to the consciousness of Jesus Christ in his high calling as the Son of God and the ideals of service to mankind.

"Amidst all the pomp and display which marks the Coronation of either of the ceremony is fact, that one George VI is being set apart and anointing to serve the British Empire. He is not a potentate nor a dictator, but a servant of his people. This is the wonder of the British Monarchy which the world finds so hard to understand," added Rev. Wright as he asked that the British Empire has a special mission in the world, "it is to show how true liberty may be experienced under the observance of law," the speaker suggested.

Preserve Ideals

"We have our share in the Coronation, insofar as it is a consecration of the King to the service of God on behalf of the Nations, we must never forget him or the Queen in our prayers," concluded the speaker as he urged the congregation to preserve that ideal of British liberty lived under law and expressing itself in service. The members of King Baldwin Preceptory, Knight Templars, under H. J. Andrews, Presiding Preceptor, presented an impressive atmosphere as they paraded into the church in full regalia of the ancient Crusaders.

At the morning service Rev. Wright also reviewed the forthcoming Coronation and its magnitude. "The Coronation is a religious service that sees the King consecrated as part of the Church and a representative of the laymen. The Coronation service will be held in Westminster Abbey for the first time in 800 years," announced the speaker as he reviewed the actual service of the Coronation ceremony.

In closing Rev. Wright spoke of the fine family man our King has been and his closeness to the feelings of others. "Our Empire must be built morally and religiously. England's greatness is not in her material wealth, but the ideals and willingness to serve, which also characterizes the consecration and Coronation of our King," ended the speaker.

Special Coronation anthems were rendered by the Christ Church choir under the direction of Organist George E. Mayhew during the service Rev. Wright announced the presentation of a Coronation Choir Festival in Christ Church, by the combined choirs of St. Simon Church, Toronto and Christ Church choirs on Friday evening. One hundred and twenty trained choir voices will take part in this unique musical presentation.

DUCE MAY EXPEL A CORRESPONDENT

Rome, May 10 (AP)—Informed quarters today said a British newspaper correspondent has been designated for expulsion from Italy as part of Premier Mussolini's campaign against the British Press. The identity of the newspaperman was not divulged.

All Italian newspapermen were en route home from Great Britain upon orders from Rome and all but three of Britain's newspapers were banned from the country.

British newspapermen in Italy, however, did not show an inclination to retaliate when Rome all attended the parade yesterday marking the first anniversary of the Ethiopian conquest.

A parade of 45,000 troops ended in Venezia square where Mussolini speaking to 50,000 cheering Italians, sounded a warning to those who might oppose the African "civilizing mission of Italy."

"The first anniversary of the new Empire is celebrated under a triple sign—Glory, Force, Peace," Mussolini declared. "Peace for us and for all—for all, that is, if they want it and will submit to the warning that comes from mine deep conscience and soul of this people — for us, who want to carry to completion in Africa the thousand-of-years-old civilizing mission."

Buckingham Palace Is Guarded by Canadians

Soldiers Mount Guard From Noon Until Six O'clock, Relieving Welsh Guard. First Time in History That Troops Outside United Kingdom Have Been Privileged to Trod Sentry Path.

London, May 10—(CP)—Canadian soldiers paced back and forth along the age-old sentry path in front of Buckingham Palace Sunday when, for the first time in Great Britain's history, troops from outside the kingdom guarded the very heart of Empire—the residence of the King.

Today the event was widely discussed in London. It was a symbol to the man-in-the-street of the change that has taken place—the equality of the Dominions with Great Britain and the fact that the King belongs equally to all parts. It will be re-emphasized in Westminster Abbey Wednesday when the King will swear to govern according to the laws of the Dominions equally with the laws of the United Kingdom.

The Canadian soldiers paraded from Wellington Barracks to the Palace gates and relieved the Welsh Guards on the stroke of noon. For six hours, under the eyes of thousands of excited Londoners, and with hundreds of Canadians receiving a special thrill at sight of the familiar uniforms, the Canadians guarded the gates of the Palace and those of nearby St. James's Palace.

Today Australian mounted guard. New Zealanders will take their turn tomorrow and South Africans Thursday.

The squad that took part in the ceremony numbered 46. They had drilled hard Friday and Saturday at Pirbright Camp where the Canadian militia representatives to the coronation went after debarking.

The hoolarious culmination of a fast and furious feud, "Walk Up and Live" features Walter Winchell and Ben Bernie, wife, Allen Faye and Patsy Kelly. The year's top comedy triumph with music by Gordon and Revel, Hollywood's ace tunesmith's is announced as the grand Coronation show at the Belle com mencing Wednesday, matinee daily.

CANADIANS ON GUARD

Canadian troops mounted guard Buckingham Palace for the first time on Sunday for six hours, replacing the Coldstream Guards.

The British people like precedent as their devotion to the ceremonial of the coronation proves. But they are not averse to setting new precedents at the fitting time.

No time was more fitting for such a change from the traditions of the British army.

It is one more proof of the actuality of an Empire of nations whose tie is devotion to the Crown and the spirit of freedom.

Canadians will remember this as one of the events of the coronation season.

British people know Canadians well from their part in the war, the prominence of their public men in British public life, the Vimy Pilgrimage in July last and from all the ties which bind Canada and the Motherland.

CORONATION PREPARATION

Throughout the Empire on Sunday there was preparation of the people for the coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth on Wednesday. The significance of the crowning of the monarch was marked in the prayer and in hymn and in sermon. The religious significance of the event was unforgettably impressed.

It was a fine preparation of the people for Wednesday, for in churches prayers were offered up for the reign of the ruler who has come to the throne with the finest qualifications for the office. Members of congregations were urged to pray for the King and his reign not only at this season but all through his reign.

The place of the national anthem was stressed in many a sermon and it was stressed in the very earnestness with which the people sang it as they realized it was indeed a prayer.

THE RED ROSS

The American Red Cross has donated ten thousand dollars to the Canadian Red Cross, for relief of the Western Ontario flood sufferers, a symbol and a proof of the sympathy of this society in all its national branches. Canadians showed their sympathy not so long ago at the time of the American floods, which sympathy took a practical form as this does and which was deeply appreciated.

The Red Cross Society is doing one of the noblest of peacetime works. Known for its great work in times when nations battled, it knew no difference of race and no difference of combatant, and when peace came it used its organization to serve the people in every way. It has shown its value.

It is a happy event to see this demonstration of sympathy. It speaks well for the work of the Red Cross and the kindliness of peoples across international boundaries.

THE DANDELION

The dandelions are in bloom again. It will not by most people be regarded as a good piece of news, remarks Port Arthur News-Chronicle. It suggests a nuisance and a pest in garden and in lawn, a weed which interferes with all horticultural efforts, makes almost impossible the preparation of a patch of fine grass and which is equally obnoxious where the effort is to produce a field of good hay.

"Previous to the blooming season the plant has been growing with its customary vigor and, while most people have resented its appearance, others have welcomed it because it affords the opportunity to prepare what is regarded by some as an acceptable beverage, dandelion wine. Others place it on the dining tables, after the manner of prepared spinach. The children and other members of the family are told it is a good spring tonic and blood purifier.

"It is because it insists upon making itself at home in so many places, defying all efforts at destruction, that the dandelion is deemed a public nuisance. The verdict is against it. It would stand condemned if condemnation made any difference, which Did you ever pick up a dandelion bloom and examine it as an aesthete? Those who are willing to look upon without prejudice, seeking only the beautiful would admit quickly and willingly that it is deserving a ranking among the special preferred. The coloring, texture, arrangement of petals and general qualities are worthy of the descriptive superlatives. If it were a rare flower, delicate and difficult of cultivation rather than a plant, strong, robust, virile, vigorous and unbiquitous, it would be prized, valued and sought as a thing of floral pulchritude."

SPRING SONG

To sing of aught but Spring in Spring were folly
When people jest, tis just, to then be jolly:
So now I tell of birds and flowering trees
And laughing breezes soft caressing these.

Yes, I must write about the earth again
Of its sweet scent that follows April rain
And of the first pale valiant daffodil
That peeps up suddenly upon you hill.

Rich emerald green of grass reborn once more
And laughing wavelets running for the shore
After a winter trapped by Frost King's chill
Into a house so gloomy, white and still.

A thousand sights are here to greet the eye
Twixt steaming earth and song resounding sky,
I may not compass every little thing—
Yet may I shout these happy words, 'tis Spring.

MRS. (DR.) EDWARD McGANNON OF BROCKVILLE is to be presented at court during Coronation Week. Mrs. McGannon was formerly Miss Cora Walsh, daughter of Major Walsh, of the Northwest Mounted Police, famous for many daring deeds when the Great West was young and for driving crooks out of the Yukon during the great Gold Rush.

x x

Major Walsh's greatest exploit was in walking single handed into "Sitting Bull's" camp when that wily Sioux brought his tribe into Canada after the famous "Massacre", and the mass military drive against the Sioux nation. Sitting Bull was truculent and thought he could bluff the Canadian police but Major Walsh's feat in entering his camp single handed and showing no fear whatever led him to change his tactics. Ever after that he was a close friend of the Major's and gave no trouble whatever.

x x x

In the course of time arrangements were made for the tribe to return to reservations in the United States prepared for them, and Sitting Bull consented, acting upon the advice of his friend Major Walsh. The old chief had little respect for the white men sent out by Washington to deal with him, saying they had "forked tongues" every one, and were only anxious to rob the red man of his best land and ponies.

x x

Sitting Bull has long since passed to the Happy Hunting Grounds, and it is hoped has foregathered ere this with "Buffalo Bill" Cody and Major Walsh, three friends who understood each other.

x x

"Sitting Bull" always wondered why any battle won by the Indians was called a "massacre" while battles won by the whites (Long Knives) against the Indians were "glorious victories."

MARK TWAIN'S JUMPING FROG OF CALVERAS STORY attained great circulation and popularity. Now another frog story has been hatched which will strain credulity but should gain wide circulation, attested as it is by such a reputable newspaper as the Woodstock Sentinel-Review. Here's the story as published by the aforesaid newspaper which hitherto has maintained a very staid reputation for veracity, and we earnestly hope it has not departed therefrom:

Whoever heard of a frog hatching out of a goose egg? Well, that's the story and it is vouched for by William Batten, well known West Oxford farmer, who has a live, full grown frog in a glass jar to prove it. Mr. Batten states that some settlings of goose eggs are now hatching out at his farm and as is the custom sometimes, eggs are chipped to help the goslings out or to see if the egg is going to hatch. He states that Mrs. Batten was in the act of chipping one particular egg which looked just like all the rest, when suddenly it broke and out jumped a full grown frog. It gave her quite a start and she called her husband, who caught the frog and put it in a glass jar.

OTTAWA PARADE

Back Stage in the Dominion Capital

WILFRID EGGLESTON

Political gossip around the capital this week has centered around Bracken, one of the leading topics.....there is still a good deal of doubt as to Mr. Bennet's intentions.....those who know him best are convinced that he would not have raised the question in the caucus if he did not plan to retire.....the rumor that he might succeed Dr. Morgan as principal of McGill gained not the slightest credence in well-informed circles either at Ottawa or Montreal .....in the first place he hasn't been invited, in the second (they say) there's not the slightest chance of him accepting it.....he has his eye on something even more impressive.

When he does retire who will get the leadership of the Conservative party? I was talking to one man across Canada whose Conservative party right across Canada is exceptionally intimate, and he believed that the man with the best chance at the moment was Dr. Manion, especially if the Prime Minister of Railways could get Denton Massey as his first lieutenant. This authority pointed out that Dr. Manion ranked very high because of his popularity, his fluency, and his fighting spirit. What the Conservative Party needs is an enthusiastic organizer. Denton Massey's enthusiasm over young Conservatives would be an invaluable aid to the leader. Denton himself, this authority said, was a little young and inexperienced yet, but he had the makings of a leader and was worth watching for the long pull .....even more serious than the need of finding a leader, however, is the need of pulling the Conservative party together. Until recently organization has been allowed to go to pieces, and its morale got a rude jolt last election.....the same observer could not see Hon. W. D. Herridge as a serious contender for the job, and added that all of the qualifications of the mild "boom" for Hon. Gordon Harrington of Nova Scotia.

When leaders are being discussed the question of an understudy for Premier King is often raised, and while his health is still very good he begins to show the effects of the strenuous life he has led during the recent years.....only the fact that the Conservatives have certain seats in every opportunity to live out in the open at Kingsmere has pulled him through the past few years. Failing health, rather oddly, Conservatives talk of Hon. Ian Mackenzie as the most probable successor, in case Mr. King should find the next election would be his last.....Liberals I talk to usually mention Hon. Chas. Dunning.....there appears to be a feeling that the prime minister, in Hon. Angus MacDonald, who has made a big impression on political circles here.

When talk swings around to the future of parties, one hears surprisingly often, the suggestion that we are drifting toward a coalition of middle and right wing Liberals with the more progressive Conservatives in the National Government. I never paid any attention to the "National Government" rumors which were prevalent during the last election, because I could never find signs of coalition talk before and inexperienced yet, but he had the makings of a leader and was worth watching for the long pull .....even more serious than the need of finding a leader, however, is the need of pulling the Conservative party together. Until recently organization has been allowed to go to pieces, and its morale got a rude jolt last election.....the same observer could not see Hon. W. D. Herridge as a serious contender for the job, and added that all of the qualifications of the mild "boom" for Hon. Gordon Harrington of Nova Scotia.

Monkey Business of Weighing

Madison Square Garden in New York City was the scene of a recent demonstration of how the famous modus operandi included a box filled with sand, a rope, a pulley, a monkey and a clever trainer. Others have a habit of theorizing and sometimes proceeding without a basis of definite proof; but on this occasion a disputed theory underwent actual demonstration before dozens of onlookers.

What happens when a monkey climbs a rope, threaded through an overhead pulley, with a box of sand of the same weight as the animal attached to the rope's other end? The conductor of a radio program had presented this problem to a contestant who had answered that the box would rise as the monkey climbed upward. Unfortunately, it was this reply which kept the man from winning the first prize.

Physicists and mathematicians throughout the United States vehemently protested the decision, and still other experts upheld the judgment originally delivered. Now when appeal fail to agree, what should be done to arrive at the truth? Said the professor who had done the weighing on the air-wave show: "We'll find a monkey and a box of sand, and let the animal give us the answer.

At the appointed time professors from many universities gathered, but most of them were shy about expressing a definite opinion. Following the afternoon performance the box of sand and monkey were added show without additional comment. "That was the word for the monkey business.

Sam, the climber, came perilously near to making a monkey out of the men watching him. For some reason he disregarded his instructions from his amazing trainer and perversely climbed every handy thing but the rope provided for him. And the sand out of the box, which had to be replaced after each attempt. Two attempts were declared false starts when a reshooting of the sand box revealed a hole in the bottom of the monkey. The animal had been provided with a collar, taken off later on.

On the third effort Sam climbed the rope, and the box of sand rose to meet him. Thereupon the professor announced his error in believing that the weight would move neither up or down while the monkey climbed, and the rope. He announced that the disputed question of the animal would receive a belated award equivalent to the first prize given on the night of the broadcast. Sam was the real expert over this reversal!

Himself, he remarked as his thoughts turned toward a great English scientist, Isaac Newton, who was born almost 300 years ago, "I'm glad that Sir Isaac Newton's third law of motion is not complicated at all."

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 10th, 1917

Sergt. Naphan of the city police arrived home today from Welland.

Last night shortly after ten o'clock an alarm of fire was sounded, the cause for the alarm being the overheating of an incubator at Dr. Caldwell's premises on east Bridge street. The services of the brigade were fortunately not required.

A few of the friends of the Rev. Tobias Meyers and Mrs. Meyers met at their home on Church street, last evening, to welcome them back after being absent from the city for several months.

Miss L. Bowerman, Miss M. Brock of McKeown's Drug Store, are attending a convention of Rexall druggists in Toronto.

May 10th, 1907

The housing problem in Belleville has reached a serious stage when, we are told on reliable authority, people who would make first-class citizens have to go right away because they cannot find houses to live in. It is time for private capitalists to build their purse strings and help along the city by building houses. By doing so they would create gilt-edged investments for themselves.

Mr. D. Derbyshire, of Brockville, was a visitor in the city today.

Mr. J. C. Morgan, School Inspector, Deseronto, was in town today.

Mrs. J. W. Johnson of this city is visiting friends in Brockville, Mrs. A. S. Carson, Talbot Street, Picton.

What does the government propose to do—put a new surface on Front Street, or just run something into over it and let it go? It is time we were finding out.

May 10th, 1897

At the annual meeting of the Belleville Bowling Club the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Thomas Ritchie; Vice President, B. Robertson; Sec.-Treas., Jamie Carvey; Lawn Committee, Arthur McClinnis, Alfred Gillen and J. Lawn Lynch. The following skips were appointed: Messrs. Thomas Ritchie, D. B. Robertson, W. H. Logan, Charles Lawrie, F. J. Anderson, W. J. McCamon. Mr. David Miller of Toronto, was elected honorary member.

Mr. R. J. Graham addressed the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon.

The saw-log drive reached Foxboro on Sunday last, and is coming rapid progress towards the city.

Mr. H. Corby, M.P., has purchased a tally-ho coach, and it arrived here from Montreal on Saturday. It will carry about twenty people.

50 YEARS AGO

May 10th, 1887

The steamer Nellie Cuthbert will make Conway's wharf on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock for the excursion and will leave on the return trip at 5 o'clock. Return fare 15 cents.

Mr. Joseph C. Clarke has received a handsome silver medal emblematic of the championship of Ontario won by the players of the Belleville Curling Club which he won last winter. The medal was donated by Mr. Thomas Thomson and is suitably inscribed.

Mr. Fred E. Cluff of the Rossin House, Toronto, is a visitor here to is here charge of the Bridge Street Methodist Church organ during the opening of the new church, arrived here today.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bennett of this city will leave shortly to spend three months in the Old Country.

The barge Montreal, will arrive here from Montreal.

Stray Bits

In the list of fearless pioneers of this city who braved the perils of early motoring over the rutted roads of this district so long ago must be included the name of ex-Mayor G. A. Bennett one-time proprietor of the city's first four-cylinder machine which snorted and rumbled its way through residential streets within the limits of a light over the gravelly places of the district immediately surrounding. A little research has revealed, that in 1906, it was the highest car so far observed in Belleville, although by then the little "one-lungers" which spluttered back and forth were becoming something which residents were fast taking for granted in a speedier age. The late Dr. Gibson, it will be recalled, was one of the first in this section to own one of these liliee-likeest machinehouls, but others of one and two-cylinder make quickly followed. With the advent of the four-cylinder automobiles, however, the zenith of the motor car manufacturers art appeared to have been reached.

Mr. Mayor Bennett's car was purchased in Toronto when salesrooms were few and far between. The art of selling in those days had not been developed to the point of the present chromium-sleek salesrooms and carnation-wearing attendants of to-day. It was from the manufacturer boosted his sales appeal through the columns of papers in the mails and occasional advertisements in newspapers of the larger centres—periodicals were then in the embryonic state; the car merely arrived at the depot "perfectly" faithfully and efficiently upon the receipt of a minimum of trouble and stoppages".

"It was back in the year about 1906 that I got that first car, a four-cylinder Ford," said Mr. Bennett in reminiscence. "I just drove up to Trenton, saw it there it, then got in and drove it home after the salesman showed me how to work it. He told me that, however, I had studied the manner of handling one pretty thoroughly. The memory of that early trip from Toronto to Belleville does it still fresh in the ex-Mayor's mind. He left there early in the afternoon and after a somewhat uneventful trip which was unmarred by engine failure or mechanical trouble, but was characterized by several forced stops to let anything but a team by, arrived in Belleville at some time about eleven o'clock at night. It was a slow, tiresome, nerve-racking trip that left both driver and car passing with exertion at its end.

Much can be said by the early drivers of the difficulty experienced with horses in the first few years of motoring. Troubles, on the whole, accepted their appearance with most part philosophically, and with a certain amount of horse sense which even their drivers did not evince at times. The car did have any actual trouble with horses", reveals Mr. Bennett, "their owners or drivers appeared at times more afraid than the animals. I remember numerous times when drivers got down off their wagon, and, with a long, hungry, sad look to meet the car and waved for me to stop, and then stood in silence while they passed. The horse in the meantime would be calmly grazing by the roadside even thought the pounding of the motor could be heard above the shouting of the worried driver. Horses became used to those things very rapidly and it was only the athletic calls or teams from further back, we had to watch."

Belleville was one of the first of the cities of the Province to become motor-minded, and according to population had just as many of the machines as larger cities could number. Local shops and blacksmith shops added new wrenches and tools to their former equipments in the business of repairing commenced by leaps and bounds. The Greenleaf Company, still in business in the manufacture of parts and repairs for shop or farm, was recognized as one of the best equipped and first garages this side of Toronto. Gasoline was delivered in barrels and drums. It was a high test fluid, which if used in present day motors would explode above the cylinder head through the hook. Oil came in cans. But it was not long until the first few road in the old days was that the second driver should slow up, stop and enquire if he could be of assistance when the first motorist was discovered with a stalled machine along the road. Towing cables then were standard equipment of the old box which has half the length of the running board, directly under the carbide lamps which sputtered so fitfully, casting their feeble rays but scant yards ahead, and the tools that jingled and clanked noisily in tool box and running board. The machines coupled over the unpaved highways, were many and varied.

There was a standard procedure in those days when the car gave up the ghost and pulled to a halt on the road miles from town or on the nearest farm. It was the simple act of getting out and under—hands filled with tools—and of disconnecting the line "to see if she's getting the gas". If the gas tank was full, then the trouble was with the carburetor, which furnished the necessary spark, and with a weary hour spent coupling and uncoupling these hidden away electricity producers in hopes of coaxing the engine back into life. If neither of these alternatives did, then side repair were productive of action, then it was generally beyond the ken of the ordinary Belleville man to do more.

"They were great days", soliloquizes ex-Mayor Bennett.

Radio Commentator Observes At First Hand Manufacture Of Belleville Cheddar Cheese

Miss Claire Wallace Will Describe Workings of Industry Over Air

INSPECTS FACTORY

Also Visits Belleville Board Where Cheese is Sold For Consumption

A miasma of fog drifted upward in swirling vapoury spirals from the pasture fields of Thurlow as the car of J. L. Irwin, local Dominion dairy grader, hummed over the Foxboro Road.

"Over there," motioned Mr. L. A. Zufelt, former superintendent of the Eastern Ontario Dairying School, through the opened car window at the lush green of the steaming fields, "grows the grass that makes the milk from which the finest cheese in the world is produced—Belleville cheddar cheese —known wherever cheese is sold."

It's the cheese that made not only this central district, but the Province, of Ontario famous. Scores of tons of cheeselets right through here, born and brought up in the industry, and all of them "good as well."

With the true reporter's insatiable curiosity of things in general, Miss Claire Wallace, nationally prominent Toronto radio commentator on Belleville district for the specific purpose of obtaining first-hand information on this, one of the province's most important industries, asked questions and dutifully entered copious notes in a scratch pad with the softness of a fine hunter's knack.

"The cheese industry in this Province is not dead yet. It has been slipping—we know that," added Mr. Zufelt in the back seat of the machine, as an afterthought. "We're still able to hold up our own even if we have lost some of the market. We've slipped from something like a total export of some 340,000,000 pounds of cheese twenty-five years ago to about 70,000,000 last year. But they can't get around their protected overseas for Ontario cheddar cheese."

Visits Foxboro Factory

In the "make room" of the Foxboro cheese factory steam hissed softly through the maze of pipes which run around the vats and the glistening tin-lined tank running the length of the room a "cheesemaker" bubbled under the wooden rakes or helpers, and from time to time, churning the yellowish mass into momentary activity.

"Making cheese is a business," agreed John Hall, proprietor of the trim, neat factory, whose walls and concrete floors, tanks and tanks and cans gleamed with a glimmer of cleanliness and scrubbing. "The best of them are brought up with it. It often runs in the family for generations that sons of building with John Hall you get some insight of the real feel of cheese with which important job of making cheese is carried on. There is the taste, the look, the smell of dairy. The matter of measures and weights and tests by the gallon and the wall play a more important part than in many another regulated industry. You can't take any chances." he will tell the visitor.

Step by step you are taken through the various stages necessary in making good cheese, from the time the milk is received, weighed, tested, registered and treated. You are shown from vat to vat, where the simmering mass is taken in the proper salinity, to the curd and the press and the cheese cloth bandages in the curing room, then finally swath the finished product ready for export across the water, or the nearby corner grocery store. Yellow and white colored cheese sit on the planks which run lengthwise in the cold room, cheese of 10 and 20 and 40 and 100 pounds weight. Days must elapse before they may be shipped to the local board for sale—nine days, to be exact.

Two Types Made

Two types are made in this factory typical of 120 other cheese factories in this Central Ontario district, and numbered among the 700 of the Province. Most Canadians demand a colored cheese for their table; export cheese is generally uncolored, or yellow. Restaurants and especially those managed by Chinese proprietors also demand the uncolored variety; it blends better in sandwiches and other dishes.

"But, Canadians are a most eating race of people. Cheese consumption in this country is woefully under that of other countries, Great Britain, for example, where the demand for genuine Canadian cheddar cannot be kept filled," explained Mr. L. A. Zufelt, retired since a lifetime spent teaching scientific butter makers throughout Ontario to become the country's best. "In spite of this the industry goes on, maintaining its lead in demand by overseas importers, battling in competition for a supply of milk with dairies condenseries, ice cream manufacturing plants, other industries, from the making of chocolate to baby food. The farmer will sell, where he may get the best price for his milk. But so important is this cheese making industry of the country, that the price of the product regulates the price of the milk for all other industries of the country. It is a known fact, that only seven per cent of the milk produced is used in Canada for the making of cheese."

"Canadian cheese totalled only seventeen per cent of the export from Canada to the United Kingdom last year," supplied J. L. Irwin, district grader. "You can readily see we could still have that market we made twenty-five years ago if we went after the business."

Belleville The Hub

It was later Saturday morning at the Belleville Cheese Board when the final sale of the season was being held that Miss Wallace, the interesting description of the cheese industry in this section will be broadcast by radio from station CFRB, Toronto. Further details of Central Ontario's dairying, which is carried on quietly without benefit of advertising or splurge.

"Belleville" the visitor was told by President of the Board, W. C. Bowen, is the hub of the whole industry for practically the whole of Dominion. This city weekly so some twenty-five telegrams to all parts of Canada quoting prices on the product.

"Belleville Board has a record of some fifty million cheese trading, for about seven months out of every year. During this period prices have ranged from as low as six cents the pound to 20 cents. In an average seven month year approximately 6,000,000 pounds of cheese are sold at Belleville. The rest of the make of the Province is handled through twenty-five other boards. But Belleville Board is the 'daddy' of them all."

How important is this central district in the industry? Belleville cheese prices influence prices in Canada, it was stated by secretary-treasurer of the Board, Fred Mallory.

A revival in cheese making will be experienced in Canada and Ontario within the present year, it is confidently predicted by those closely connected with the industry. Higher prices now will spur makers to greater effort. But perhaps the make factor in providing added impetus next year will be the Canadian-wide cheese exhibit scheduled to be held in this city next December in connection with the Canadian Convention of the National Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, at which exhibits of cheese factories from coast to coast in Canada will be on show. It will be the first time in the Dominion that such an exhibit has been arranged. Belleville, it is hoped,

Weddings

McCREARY—THOMPSON

Plainfield—A quiet wedding ceremony was performed on Saturday by the Rev. J. F. Bronson of Plainfield, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rollins when Mrs. Margaret Alice Thompson became the bride of Mr. James Haight McCreary. About twenty-five guests were present. The bride looked very becoming in a gown of blue crepe velvet. After the service a buffet luncheon was served by Mrs. Robert Rollins, Miss Gladys Yorke and Mrs. C. Thompson. Mr. and Mrs. McCreary will reside in the seventh of Thurlow.

CHAMBERS—PARKS

St. John's United Church, Campbellford, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, May 8th, when Beatrice Marguerite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Parks became the bride of Mr. Harold M. Chambers, of Toronto, son of Mr. E. M. Chambers of Orangeville, the Rev. Harold B. Neal officiating, amidst a setting of ferns and spring flowers. Mr. Albert Heard played the wedding march, followed by soft music throughout the service.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of pale blue georgette sheer over taffeta and small blue felt hat. She carried Briarcliff roses and bouvardia. Miss Maude Parks, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid, looked charming in a gown of pink moss crepe with pink crepe hat. Her bouquet was of pink and white carnations and fern.

The groom was attended by Mr. J. M. Court of Toronto with Mr. Kenneth Parks, brother of the bride, as usher.

After the ceremony a small reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Front Street, where Mrs. Parks received, wearing a gown of navy sheer crepe. Later in the evening the happy couple left on a motor trip to Toronto, the bride travelling in a Coronation blue taffeta bolero dress with hat and shoes to match. On their return they will reside on Sunnyside Avenue in Toronto.

The following were out-of-town guests: Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Parkin and family, Mr. Charles Wright, Mrs. Monna Wright and Miss Helen Wright, of Stirling; Mr. Leslie Wilson, Mrs. J. P. Charlton, Mrs. James Bray and Miss Irene Charlton, of Belleville.

ALLIN—GARTLEY

Amidst a bank of Spring flowers, Mary Evelyn, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Edward Gartley, 183 George Street, was united in marriage to Mr. Vincent Wm. Allin, son of Rev. and Mrs. S. J. Allin, Toronto. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. S. J. Allin, father of the groom, in the presence of immediate relatives.

CAPT. HAWKS' Time Ray

CAPTIVES OF GENGHIS KHAN

BACK 737 YEARS

Capt. Frank Hawks has landed in the past with the aid of his Time Ray which turns time backward or forward. Today he and his young friends Tim and Patsy, charter members of his New Sky Patrol, have gone back more than 700 years to the land of Genghis Khan, the great Tartar conqueror. Landing the plane, they set out to explore and were captured by the fierce Tartar soldiers and brought before the great Khan himself!

Womens Meetings

W.I.

Wallaceburg W. Institute held its annual meeting at the home of Mrs. S. Nicolson with the president Mrs. J. Chisholm in charge. After the usual opening the roll Call was answered by each member paying her fee. Currents Events were asked from each member. A Question Box was conducted by the Secretary which proved interesting as well as amusing. Mrs. J. White conducted the election of officers for the coming year. Mrs. Chisholm asked that a new president be appointed since the rule is a two-year term. All members are grateful to Mrs. Chisholm for her five years efficient service to the community.

President—Mrs. Jas. Sine,
1st Vice President—Mrs. Henry Jeffery.
2nd Vice President—Mrs. Frank Shorey.
Sec.-Treasurer—Mrs. W. Wickson.
District Director—Mrs. S. Lloyd.

After closing with the National Anthem lunch was served and all enjoyed a social half hour.

WALLBRIDGE W.A.

The May meeting of the W.M.S. and W.A., was held at the home of Mrs. E. Lane with an attendance of twenty-five.

After the noon lunch was served by the hostess and Group 3, Mrs. B. Nicholson took charge of the W.M.S. service. Quiet music was played by Mrs. Lane, followed by hymn prayer and the 23rd Psalm. Bible lesson from 10th of Mark was read by Mrs. L. Badgley. Prayers were given by Mrs. (Rev.) Johnston, Mrs. B. Hinchcliffe and Mrs. W. Sine and for "Words of Today". Minutes were read and treasurer's report given. Correspondence readings were given by Mrs. W. Sine and Mrs. J. White and Mrs. Jas. Hinchcliffe. A sketch of the life of Rev. Geo. E. Simmons, who recently died in China, was given by Mrs. G. A. Ketcheson. This proved interesting to all especially to those who had known him when he lived in Frankford. Mrs. L. Ketcheson assisted by Mrs. Jas. Sine and Mrs. H. Ketcheson had charge of the Study Book. A memory poem for Mrs. C. Bowers was read by the President, while Mrs. Lane played softly "Nearer My God to Thee". The "Good Cheer Missionary Basket" has started on its trip to visit each home.

Mrs. Hilton Shorey took charge of the W.A. with Mrs. R. Noyes as secretary. Treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Fred Phillips. The delegates to the convention in Demorestville are Mrs. Cecil Sine and Mrs. E. Lane with Mrs. L. Badgley and Mrs. J. Sine as alternate delegates. Hymn 388 and prayer by the President closed the meeting.

BRIDGE ST. CHURCH W.M.S.

The regular May meeting of the W.M.S. of Bridge Street Church was held in the ladies' parlours with an attendance of twenty-five. Mrs. Semple, president, opened the meeting with prayer and then called for the minutes by Mrs. A. May. The president announced that Miss Elsie Hunt, Reg. N. of Bayside, had attended the School for Leaders at Whitby last year and became so enthused that she has offered herself for the Home Mission field and has been accepted.

Reports were given by the different secretaries. Miss Symons, the supply secretary, showed children's dresses, quilts and underwear already given, for the bale to be packed in the fall. The treasurer, Mrs. W. W. Fields said the Easter thankoffering amounted to $139.45.

Mrs. Baker took charge of the program. Questions were asked, such as, "If you had $10,000 to spend in mission work you build a hospital or send four missionaries into the interior?" "If you were head of a Normal School in India, what would you teach?" "If you were head of a nurses' class in India, what would you consider most necessary to teach?" "What are some of the duties of patients in Africa, in China?" "Should the church be an institution interested in the material as well as the spiritual welfare of the people?" and "In how much is true of the United Church in its work in rural areas of Canada?" These questions were answered by Mrs. A. Maguire, Mrs. R. Clare, Mrs. R. D. Adams, Mrs. (Dr.) Hall and Mrs. L. Hamilton, Miss L. Brown, Mrs. Price and Mrs. O. Cole and interesting discussions followed.

Mrs. Hunting sang "Teach Me How To Live" and Mrs. Baker closed with prayer. A social half-hour was enjoyed.

"Silent Barriers" Sets a New High Mark

Ranking as one of the most magnificent achievements in motion picture history, "Silent Barriers," Dominion's film of empire, depicting with the majestic sweep of an epic the story of the building of the transcontinental railroad in the pioneering days of the 1880's, was presented Saturday to three enthusiastic audiences.

Co-starring Richard Arlen and Lilli Palmer, "Silent Barriers" is a vigorous and impressive film which ties for its story the thrilling drama, the pulsating color, the bold adventure and the romantic love which were part and parcel of the building of the Canadian Pacific Railroad.

Based on the novel by Alan Sullivan and directed by Milton Rosmer with the heroic sureness and masterly craftsmanships demanded by a saga, the story is set against a realistic background of actual scenery, of avalanche and flood, of treacherous and treacherous mucking in the very heart of the towering Rockies. Giant locomotives plunging into bottomless gorges on free-for-all in a gaudy liquor-house, the blasting of cement walls of rock, an impressive shot of canoes and their occupants swirling to death in boiling rapids are among the many thrilling scenes depicted in this notable picture.

Richard Arlen as the swaggering gambler who turns from the dance saloon to become a national hero turns in one of the most impressive and dramatic portrayals of his career. Lilli Palmer, supplying the siren atmosphere as the flashy lady of the drinking den, plays her role with conviction, charm and sincerity. Lovely Antoinette Cellier is the heroine of the story and the heart interest of Richard Arlen. Smaller parts are handled with superb attention to detail and impressive race by such excellent players as J. Farrell MacDonald, Roy Fowerton and Ben Weldon.

Milton Rosmer's direction of the picture deserves special tribute.... especially for the fine tempo he maintained throughout and for the striking manner in which he handled both the large and small scenes.

The adaptation for the screen was capably written by Milton Rosmer and Michael Hogan, and the gay freshness and simplicity of the dialogue adds another important item to a first-rank motion picture.

"Silent Barriers" which will be repeated again tonight and Tuesday, matinee and evening is one of the season's pictures which most be chalked up as memorable and magnificent entertainment.

Grand Federation

Three grand featurettes varied in style to enhance the entertainment value precede the feature attraction and include a very funny musical comedy, "No Place Like Home", the Bella News of the Day, and a very funny Walt Disney color symphony, "Three Mouskteers". We suggest that you see this highly entertaining program. The first actual scenes of the Hindenburg disaster will be exhibited on Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee daily.

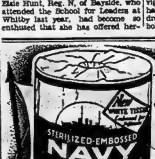
"Wake Up and Live"

The year's top comedy triumph, with nine melodious song hits by Hollywood's ace tunesmiths, Cordon and Revel, and with Walter Winchell and Ben Bernie lending face to face, aided and abetted by Alice Faye, Patsy Kelly, Ned Sparks, Jack Haley, Grace Bradley, Walter Catlett and Leah Ray, is announced as the grand Coronation show of presentation at the Bella, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, matinee daily. "Wake Up and Live" tops all musicals, and is the ideal vehicle for such a happy occasion. Our suggestion is, break out! Celebrate! by seeing this splendid attraction.

ONE OF THESE DAYS HE'LL BE LOOKING FOR A JOB

HE'S stretching up, that young man of yours. One of these days he'll be into his first pair of long trousers. Before you know it, he'll be one of the group of young Canadians who must be provided with jobs. And won't you be proud and happy the day he brings home his first week's earnings!

It's fortunate for our young men that industry is fast expanding in Canada, for growing industries mean more jobs and opportunities. Canadian Automobile Manufacturers at the present time employ over 18,000 men and women, and in the hundreds of other Canadian industries from whom they purchase raw materials, parts and supplies, an even greater number are earning their livelihood.



Increased employment means increased Canadian payrolls — more money to be spent for food, clothing, furniture, for the needs and comforts of life. And the production of these motor cars and trucks provides still more employment, and a greater demand for the products of farm and factory, forest, sea and mine.

The continued growth of the automotive industry will promote prosperity throughout Canada, and provide more wealth for Canadians in all walks of life.

In 1936, Canadian Automobile Manufacturers spent over sixty million dollars in Canada in payment for purchases of materials and parts — and for services, including transportation. When you purchase a motor car or motor truck that is manufactured in Canada you are contributing directly to the employment of Canadians, and to the revenues of Canadian transportation systems.

For statistical and further information about this industry, write to Automotive Industries, 1006 Lumsden Building, Toronto.

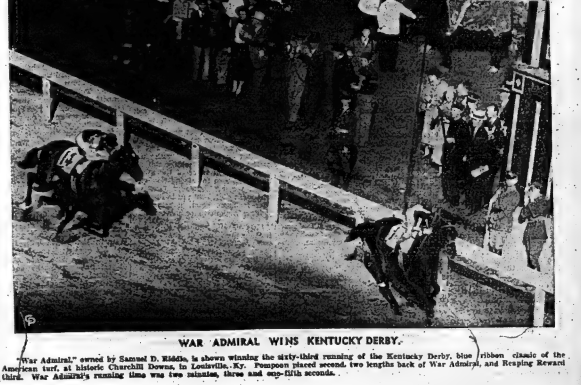
PRAYERS OFFERED FOR KING, QUEEN

Emmanuel Church Follows Service Set by Primus of Free Church

Divine worship, as authorized by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, and adopted for the Free Church of England by the Primus, was celebrated by the Emmanuel church yesterday, Bishop George Marshall being the preacher at both services. During the afternoon session, however, a special Mother's Day service was featured.

In special prayer offered up by Bishop Marshall for the forthcoming Coronation and for Their Majesties, the King and Queen, the Bishop said,—"Let us now lift up our hearts in prayer to God that He may bless our King and Queen, that they may ever be a blessing to their people and, likewise righteousness exalteth a nation, let us humbly pledge ourselves anew to the service of God and of our country in the days that are to come, so that we may establish our nation and empire on the sure foundation of God and of His kingdom of justice, righteousness and peace."

Special Coronation hymns and anthems were also featured by the congregation of Emmanuel Church during this pre-Coronation service that was impressive throughout, being especially prepared in England for service throughout the Empire on the Sunday before the Coronation of Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. At both services Bishop Marshall spoke on the forthcoming Coronation and its magnitude to the British empire in general. The speaker also reviewed the lives of our dear sovereigns leading up to their accession to the throne.



AMBERS OUTPOINTS CANZONERI

In a fame and unrevenful fifteen-round fight in New York City, Lou Ambers, lightweight champion of the world, retained his crown despite the comeback aspirations of Tony Canzoneri, twice holder of the title. Canzoneri gave a magnificent exhibition of timed punching and dashing, but refused to mix it with his younger opponent. A fair-sized crowd booed the last decision of the judges.

Athletics 100-1 Shots at Opening of Season on Top in American

TWENTY FOR HUBBELL

Dizzy Dean Marks up Fifth Straight Victory of Season

Anything can happen now—in the major league baseball wars—probably will. Figure it out for yourself from these dizzy developments of the week-end:

Philadelphia Athletics, 100-1 shots, are tied for first place in the American League; the Yankees, world champions, are in the second division.

Cincinnati Reds, who previously hadn't been hitting their collective weight and are in the National League cellar, stretched their winning streak to four straight with the heaviest hitting and smartest attack this season.

For the first time in a quarter-century, there's a pitcher with 20 straight victories—Carl Hubbell.

In winning his first five pitching starts of the season, Dizzy Dean has compiled the incredible earned run average of 0.40 per nine-inning game.

Hustlin Starts Well.

Willis Hudlin, the Cleveland right hander who didn't win a game in 1936 until next to the last day of the season, pitched a four-hitter for his first time out this year.

Most astonishing in these doings are Connie Mack's once-apathetic Athletics. The wily man's young pitchers won the fourth victory in five starts on their western invasion yesterday by coming from behind with a nine-run surge in the last three frames and defeating the Tigers 9-5. This streak kicked them right upstairs to a first-place tie with the Indians, who cashed in on Hudlin's hurling for their fourth straight victory, a 3-1 triumph over Boston Red Sox.

Still last week, the Reds in general and Alex Kampouris in particular had been hitting just a shade over the size of their collar bands. Yesterday, however, they completed a week of effort by testing off against the Phillies for 24 hits and a 21-10 win, leading the parade was Kampouris with three homers and eight runs batted in.

Hubbell Equals Record.

Hubbell equalled the 25-year-old performance of Rube Marquard by pitching Giants to a 4-1 win over the Cubs for his fourth victory of the year and twentieth straight in league competition—a streak that dates back to last July 17. His record, so far this season, however, falls short of Dean's. Dizzy the great fanned seven in stopping the Brooklyn Dodgers 5-3 for his fifth straight victory this year, giving the Dodgers only the second run earned off him in 46 innings of pitching.

Spurgeon Chandler made his big league starting debut for the Yankees, but although he pitched five-hit ball, he and the champions lost to Chicago Negro Stars 2-1.

Pittsburg Pirates maintained the National League lead by defeating Boston Bees 6-3 behind Dutch Brandt's effective hurling, and Johnny Desharing netted a four-for-four as the Senators sank the St. Louis Browns 7-1.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press

Alex Kampouris—Reds—Hit three homers and singles, driving in eight runs, in 21-10 win over Phillies.

Dizzy Dean, Cardinals—Fanned seven and allowed five hits in 5-3 win over 3 Dgers.

Dick Bartell and Carl Hubbell, Giants—Former hit homer with mate on base to clinch Hubbell's 4-1, seventh victory over Cubs.

Willis Hudlin, Indians—Beat Red Sox 3-1 with four-hit pitching.

Zeke Bonura and Thornton Lee White Sox—Former hit homer and drove in both of Sox's runs as Lee muffled Yanks with four hits for 2-1 win.

Jimmy Deshong, Senators — Pitched four-hit ball to down Browns 7-1.

Jack Rothrock, Athletics—Hit two-run single in ninth defeated Tigers 9-8.

BOWLING LEAGUE HOLDS BANQUET

Prizes Distributed And A Variety Program is Enjoyed

The Bay of Quinte Bowling League composed of two teams from Belleville and the same number from Trenton, came to a close at the Recreation Alleys here over the week end, when prizes were distributed and a general social evening enjoyed.

The initial part of the evening's program was spent in bestowing prizes with Harry Robinson, Belleville and Sgt. Shakespeare, R.C.A.F. taking prizes, while in the absence Pat Drumm and Corp. Roy were the successful winners. The league was composed of R.C.A.F. and Collins of Trenton, Christie Cakes and Canada Bud teams of Belleville.

Following the friendly bowling competitions, Sergt. Shakespeare was assumed the responsibilities as chairman for the banquet that followed. Every bowler present took part in the proceedings, adding much to the general amusement and entertainments of the gathering. Mr. Mackenzie of the Trenton Bowling Alleys and Lee Barrett of the Recreation Alleys, thanked the league for cooperation and suggested it be resumed next season. President Charlie Allore and his able staff of officers came in for their share of recognition as well.

Prizes for the high single in the league went to Harry Robinson, Belleville, who received his colored award. The evening was voted a success from every angle and the result of which will doubtless see a more elaborate interlown league operated in 1937-38.

On Saturday a special game was played on the Recreation Alleys between a sextette of Belleville and Peterborough bowlers, with the local team winning three points. The results of the games were:

TORONTO LEAFS DEFEAT SYRACUSE TO HEAD LEAGUE

Win Doubleheader By Good Relief Hurling by Meola

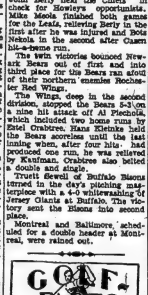
WINGS MOVE UP

Bisons in Second Place by Winning Over Jersey Giants

(By The Associated Press)

Toronto Maple Leafs, who have been operating on an "season on youth" basis in their drive for the International League pennant, turned to older Adam Creighton in the clutch and Adam came through.

Convocably, a 32-year-old veteran plugged a single with the bases loaded to give the Leafs a 2-1 victory in the second game of a double header at Syracuse yesterday, after the Leafs had won the opener 5-3. The victory put the Leafs in first place.



Five Syracuse errors in the first innings figured in all the Toronto runs in the first game and John Berly had the Chiefs at his mercy for Bowlers opportunists, Meola finished both games for the Leafs, relieving Berly in the first after he was injured and Rod Nekola in the second after Casey blew some runs.

The victories bounced New York Bears out of first and into third place for the Bears ran afoul of their northern enemies Rochester Red Wings.

The Wings, deep in the second division, stopped the Bears 8-3 on a nine hit attack of Al Piechotta which included two home runs by Ed Kaufman. Two of the runs off the Bears' scoreless until the last inning were after four hits had produced one run, he was relieved by Kaufman. Crabtree also belted a double and single.

Truett Sewell of Buffalo Bisons romped in for Ray Starling and interfered with a 4-0 whitewashing of Jersey Giants at Buffalo. The victory sent the Bisons into second place.

Montreal and Baltimore, scheduled for a double header at Montreal, were rained out.

Whatever is strange must be wrong. We miss many a boat by letting our feelings make decisions like that. Golf is the best game, a lot of things but especially for the correct positions and movements in golf.

The first time a player gets into the correct position he immediately complains about a lack of comfort. He doesn't stop to reason that it should be uncomfortable. From the point of being entirely new, Alex knows it favors the muscles in the weak side when he has been accustomed to having the strong side take charge.

In short, the correct positions and movements favor muscles that the player is not familiar with and confuses unfamiliarity with uncomfortable. Your feelings will always decide in favor of the habitment that uses the strong side with which you are already familiar. The main object then is to discount your feelings when it comes to judging a position or movement.

First of all, find out if it's a fundamental part of the expert's swing. If it is, then try to push down your feeling of discomfort. In time the new position will become the natural one.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken L. Colling

Just how long this lacrosse enthusiasm will last will be interesting to note. Rising from a state of dormancy to a fever pitch of interest in lacrosse locally is nothing short of phenomenal. All over the city one can see school kids tossing a lacrosse ball around or handling a stick as they proceed on their various missions. The suggestion of introducing the game into the schools is a splendid one and the seed should bear fruit in good fruit. This manner of introducing the game is the correct one, we would imagine, but where the local intermediate lacrosse club is going to garner sufficient material to field a team for competition versus clubs from Cobourg, Peterboro or the R.C.A.F. is really mystifying to us. President Gord Delaney seems to be quite optimistic, however, and informs us there are players all over the district. "Well Gord you may be right, but there is a matter of absence of proven gutted-stick artists inside the limit of Belleville, you can't deny that."

When addressing the team aged school boys at the "Y" on Friday night and explaining the purpose of the proposed school-soco lacrosse league, President Delaney in turn stressed the need of learning to handle a lacrosse stick. "Keep your stick close to your body and whenever possible while going to and from school and during recreation and whenever you can handle it. Keep wearing it around. That's the only way you will ever become proficient at the art of stick-handling," declared Percy Laughlin, who learned his lacrosse there and then in Belleville, assuming new in Belleville, just how it will be received will be interesting to observe. On several occasions some years ago efforts to revive lacrosse in Belleville failed miserably, but at that time they were spasmodic solely as an intermediate team. This idea of introducing the game among the school aged boys seems to be the proper method to employ if the game is to succeed in Belleville.

Harry Moore, coach and guiding mentore of the Belleville intermediate lacrosse team is very anxious to have every aspiring player out to practice tonight and every succeeding night until the season opens on Victoria Day. "We will workout at the Collegiate Campus until our new field box is completed at the Fair Grounds" stated Coach Moore today.

George Campbell, Oshawa's dean sport scribe thinks it was a mighty fine gesture to have Belleville send George Pepper to compete in the Isle of Man races. "Yes George is a very right fine sporting chap that man behind the gun business, as a matter of fact it was a one-man battery."

Two weeks from today King Baseball comes on the sport horizon to take its rightful place in that realm for the summer months. Although the Bay of Quinte is going a junior team this year, the fans should realize the significance of the proposition and support it and present, and support these clubs. In 1937 Belleville was out of the O.B.A. picture, but returned with a bang to win the league and continues on in greater splendor to win a provincial championship in the intermediate ranks. Trenton in 1932 holds just as bright a future, but until that time the fans should encourage local clubs. Of course the time aged players throughout the district must possess the hard and often if they entertain the idea of ever playing senior ball.

It looked like 'old home week' Tuesday evening when a contingent of town over the week end. Dean Ford, Thomas Polster and Cliff "Pug" Bennett returned to their old haunts and were renewing acquaintances up and down the main stem Saturday. The boys inform that Manager Connie Mack is planning an exhibition game for Wednesday afternoon and may use his Belleville contingent in order to give Leader of the Napanee squad. Let's see what kind of a team Mack could line-up of former Belleville and Napanee players. Alex Weir and "Speedy" St. Louis are with Napanee there would be Pointer and St. Louis at battery, with young Walt and the older Walt Weir plus Dean Ford and Alex Weir in the infield with Bennett and Art Scarlett traversing the outer garden. With some of these players lined up locally and adding additional three or four more, Belleville could have a senior club of her own, but alas, tain't so.

Champions are born, not made. War Admiral's rise to triumph in winning the 63rd running of the Kentucky Derby proved that when the favorite went out in front and led from the barrier to the wire, finishing in the prevailing style, War Admiral is the second son of the great Man o' War to win the Kentucky Derby.

SINGLES CHAMP

New singles champion of the American Bowling Congress, just ended in New York, is Gene Gagliardi, of Mount Vernon, N.Y., who is taking an ABOVE 200-game completed 266-277-306 for a 749 total to cop first prize in that event.

EARL ROBERTSON SOLD TO AMERKS

Franchise of Americans Will be Operated by N.H.L. Next Year

Detroit, May 10 (CP)—Because he is playing a major league game it would be selfish to keep him in the minor leagues, Manager Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings, Earl Robertson, the rookie netminder who became a sensation during the 1937 Stanley Cup series, will guard the New York Americans' nets next season. "Kid Robbie" was sold to the Amerks for $7,500 and defenceman Red Doran as an aftermath to a dull, annual National Hockey League meeting here Sunday.

Robertson, who played with the Detroit farm team, Pittsburg Hornets of the International-American League, most of the season just before the playoffs, will report to the Amerks' training camp next season. "Kid Robbie" was sold to the Amerks because of his impressive work, which included two shutouts in succession against New York Rangers in the final games of the Stanley Cup series, caused Adams to put a $10,000 price tag on him besides the admonition "he can't be kept out of the majors."

Took First Offer.

Adams said in announcing the sale the Wings "could have got much more for him but James Norris, Sr., took the first offer managers Red Dutton made. Robertson became the property of the Detroit club when the Windsor team stepped from the International League at the end of the 1935-36 season.

Doran, property of the Amerks, played with Detroit the first of the season and was then loaned to Pittsburg where he finished out the year with an impression of another

FIRST INSTALLMENT

It was past three o'clock, and Kerrin Kingsbury was sitting at her living-room window looking down into the half-city street. It was snowing—April, and snowing again! Nor was it a cheerful snow, such as might fall lightly, like a passing benediction, upon green fields in the spring; rather it was a heavy snow, falling darkly, for dusk was already gathering under the sky as some great, grey bird might hover and its dull feathers fall brooding upon a city already overweighted with woes. A street car passed in the dismal grayness, and store windows along the street four floors below the watching woman flickered into lights that made of the daylight gloom the more resentful.

Had Kerrin lifted her eyes from the street she could have seen, over the tops of the tawdry shops and their cheap flats, the grave outlines of gray buildings looming vaguely through the snow, their unimaginative solidity better fitted to the business of the metropolis as visioned by hardfisted farmer-legislators of the wheat- and corn-belt than to the dreams of idealism in the youth they served. But Kerrin had no wish to lift her eyes; she was as used to those huge piles as one of white bar-anointed ungulance of law as she was to the boundlessness of Sir Hoag's Grocery and Delicatessen at its leap on and off in the street below her. She had no need to look at any of these things; she had no least thought of them.

On the contrary her eyes were fixed upon the sidewalk below with an intensity of gaze and mental flight. Anticipation, happy anticipation, as in every life, is seldom body-contacted though it was under the cheap outlines of a purplish-blue serge dress and a cheap felt hat in no other way, betrayed its age by the fashion of the last season but one. Below the let-down hem her too-bright shoes, bought from a bargain-counter, fitted her feet like heat eyes beneath her soft brown hair were fixed in watchfulness upon the street, and happiness was so written upon her face and especially in her slender straight body that had she been more dispassionate a shabby the world would have paused a breath to look at her and smile. But she was alone, and so, often, softly, bringing to life a faint dimple beside her chin.

Suddenly the smile broke from her eyes and mouth, and with a quick little cry of pleasure she turned and picked up her hat and crowded it on, ignoring a mirror or a powder puff or any such unnecessary concession for such indulgence can come to have no importance to a woman who has never been told she is beautiful. At the risk of clattering feet on carpetless stairs she dashed out of her room to the little boy who climbed them so noisily. Eight years old he was with the handsome frame of his father and the warm, eager, expressive face of his mother under the blond curling hair.

"Are you home! Gee, that's swell," He squeezed by his mother, and his boots shed cakes of melting snow on the worn rug that led by the door. "Look, mother, I sat-by Tommy Avery. Was that all right? He'd heard about my birthday party and wanted to come. That makes eleven. Is that too many, mother?"

"Too many!" Of course not! I'll tell you. We'll get a coem of everything. I'll ask in case some one else pops up."

"Oh, mother—let's—let's hurry." An anxious expression had overspread the little boy's face.

"Of course—yes." Kerrin pulled on, with the innocent conception that a bit of fur always dressed one up, a moth-worn fox scarf, and the two hastened down the stairs. At the door Donald, and even Kerrin unconsciously, peered for a flash up the street as if to assure themselves that the way was clear; and then, regardless of falling snow and slippery pavement, they ran to catch a street car and boarded it breathlessly. In their seat at last they turned to each other and laughed. The adventure had begun. They were going to buy—riotously, though with an eye to decent economy—all the things for Donald's birthday party tomorrow.

"You're sure He's going, mother?" A quick spasm of hurt flitted across Kerrin's eyes. She saw no that Donald always spoke of his father, with just the slight emphasis that capitalized the He. She never dared call the boy's attenuon to it, for fear it would bring into the open this attitude, still covert, perhaps still unrecognized, of hatred of antagonism.

"You mean dad? Oh, yes. I've been packing his bag."

"Did you put in his pajamas?"

"Oh, no!" Kerrin tried to laugh in the little boy's anxious face, a light mischievous, indulgent laugh as befitted a little boy's fears. "I won't put those in till tomorrow."

"But you won't forget, mother?" The boy's raised eyes were mature, anxious.

Kerrin turned her head to the snowy street. The storm was deepening lights, and was dusted by a feather bed. "No. I won't forget," she said gently. She had forgotten last time, and it was that that Donald remembered. A pity. Of course Carl was noisy and blusterous; too often, perhaps, in a storm over trifles; but it meant nothing, really. Only it always seemed to frighten the boy, to drive him away from his father.

"Look, Dear," she said, and her face lighted up, "there's Pickleyer's. We'll go there, first. They have such lovely things! Remember, many, France, Switzerland—Don't silly on the cheese."

"Oh, mum, they'll cost too much!" breathed the boy as the car stopped behind them.

"What does it matter? We'll pretend they don't. And they are much fun to look at."

Pickleyer's was a fairy's grocery, color flew in a flag of exotic fruits, and their cheeks, animation quickened her step and lifted her chin. At such a moment she looked the child that in her twenty-six years—and it is of those she died—she had not yet outgrown.

"Toys!" Kerrin's eyes were shining. "You know, Donny, mother always loved toys. Re and I went all over Europe together. You know, you've never heard of, Donny,—and there was hardly a day in Paris that we didn't have a cheap little toy or trinket." She laughed and spread her hands. "Sometimes they would be hundreds, Donny! Just toys! And when I die I'm going to go to one place—Oh, Donny!—my father used to put them all into a great, great room, and they filled it full. There was a funny Pinocchio with a nose quite as long as mine, that always stuck out of the top. Children—and even old people—used to put their hands and call him—well they meant Santa Claus. I remember once I was there a very long trip to Vienna—do you know, Donny, when we go there the toys are empty? He had given every one of them away—all but the Pinocchio. And there he fixed me, sitting again a faraway happiness. "Oh, I forgot! I forgot to go to Switzerland. Listen. "Look, mother! Look!" He was halted before a big window, filled with fine, pleasant, old knotted people with gay pink cheeks and dancing feet.

"Oh, lovely!" Kerrin touched them with wonder, loving beauty. "Oh, dear—oh, dear—how they take me back! See, Donny,—this woman is carrying a basket of flowers, fresh from Brittany. Why, on market mornings the whole Square would be filled with carts full of vegetables and flowers, and people running around, and all minded by these lovely old market women, dressed in black with white starched caps. And such red cheeks, and such a shining bow ses in back of them! So poor everybody was, Don, but so gay. The markets women had a little song they used to sing. Listen."

"Mother!" Donald's eyes, full of eager light like his mother's, to her. Forgetful, in the almost empty of possible onlookers, she began singing softly, and indicating with her free shiny, rhythmic gestures the gay dance step of the old ladies with the cheeks.

"Oh, mesdames avez le bon fromage!
Voila de bon fromage au-lait!
Il est du pays—"

SECOND INSTALLMENT

"Kerin Kingsbury—as I live!" Kerrin dropped her skirt with a little shriek and turned.

"Oh, Susan! It's you! How you startled me!"

"Well, I should." Susan's Irish blue eyes were shining with laughter. "You—a Kingsbury, a professional wife, dancing a jig in Pickingers'a!"

"Oh, dear!" Kerrin's voice was full of dismay. "I forgot. Did any one see me? Her hasel eyes scanned the deserted street anxiously.

"No. Only me and that dumb clerk over there. No one else seems to feel the need of tops in the middle of an April blizzard. I came down to buy a present for my Janet to bring to Donald's birthday party tomorrow. What's here." She wriggled a bundle under her arm and the paper rustled suggestively.

"Oh, you shouldn't have!" Kerrin was immediately reprachful, but Susan caught the eyes of the boy fixed upon the package, and smiled. Susan McCloy understood children, and she never saw little Donald Kingsbury without a sense of pity mixed with sense of the futility of that pity. A sensitive, unemphasized child, an only child he was caught by the accident of birth in a situation that continually suppressed him. Looking now at his eager eye, a wave of rage swept over the headlong Irish temper of Susan, a rage that Carl Kingsbury, so magnificent of body, so powerful of mind, could yet make nothing more of his relationship to a woman and child than to bully them. Then the thought of her own husband Alan, his gentleness and love, rose round her like a warm tide, wiping out her little spasm of rage. Alan! only that morning, reading a news report of the spectacular Carl Kingsbury in the University Daily, Alan had asked her if she wouldn't ask Kerrin and Carl to dinner; and with what, what spicy, caustic, impersonal wit, what clever repartee, Alan had written, upon the handsome blonde head of the absent Carl Kingsbury—and refused! And yet here was Kerrin his wife, of all persons she knew the sweetest and best, and the dearest to her Susan's tongue, always too ready to outrun her intelligence, overreached her.

"Kerrin, darling. You and Carl couldn't come to dinner with us tonight, could you?" Instantly she regretted saying it, and she made a hasty calculation: pot roast, better get steak, the pumpkin pie will cut for six—"Lovely—I'm so glad. Alan and I were speaking of it this morning. This going away—is it to-morrow?"

"Yes—to-morrow morning, early." Kerrin's voice was warm and eager. "Carl has to get back to Chicago. He's defending the strikers. Maybe you know?"

"No, I know?" Susan raised slender black eyebrows over mischievous blue eyes. Kerrin, at the new moment, too solemn to be honest. "No I know? With Carl making the headlines regularly as the most brilliant member of the law faculty? Our own Carl Kingsbury, champion, the defender of lost causes in the name of the American Right? Why, he's the most talked-of professor on the campus—I—I know!"

Kerrin blushed and her eyes glowed at this unwonted praise from Susan. "Mercy, Susan! Is he all that? But of course he is. And we've love coming! Ecologic"—a word the words her voice ran into a sudden radiance. She looked eagerly past Donald, who had wandered on. "Listen, Susan." In Kerrin's voice was a new, Donny, mother loved toys. Re and I wept all over Europe together. You know, you've never heard of, Donny,—and there was hardly a day in Paris that we didn't have a cheap little toy or trinket." She laughed and spread her hands. "Sometimes they would be hundreds, Donny! Just toys! And when I die I'm going to go to one place—Oh, Donny!—my father used to put them all into a great, great room, and they filled it full. There was a funny Pinocchio with a nose quite as long as mine, that always stuck out of the top. Children—and even old people—used to put their hands and call him—well they meant Santa Claus. I remember once I was there a very long trip to Vienna—do you know, Donny, when we go there the toys are empty? He had given every one of them away—all but the Pinocchio. And there he fixed me, sitting again a faraway happiness. "Oh, I forgot! I forgot to go to Switzerland. Listen. "Look, mother! Look!" He was halted before a big window, filled with fine, pleasant, old knotted people with gay pink cheeks and dancing feet.

"Oh, lovely!" Kerrin touched them with wonder, loving beauty. "Oh, dear—oh, dear—how they take me back! See, Donny,—this woman is carrying a basket of flowers, fresh from Brittany. Why, on market, mornings the whole Square would be filled with carts full of vegetables and flowers, and people running around, — and all minded by these lovely old market women, dressed in black with white starched caps. And such red cheeks, and such a shining bow ses in back of them! So poor everybody was, Don, but so gay. The markets women had a little song they used to sing. Listen."

"Mother!" Donald's eyes, full of eager light like his mother's, to her. Forgetful, in the almost empty of possible onlookers, she began singing softly, and indicating with her free shiny, rhythmic gestures the gay dance step of the old ladies with the cheeks.

"Oh, mesdames avez le bon fromage!
Voila de bon fromage au-lait!
Il est du pays—"

SECOND INSTALLMENT

"Kerin Kingsbury—as I live!" Kerrin dropped her skirt with a little shriek and turned.

"Oh, Susan! It's you! How you startled me!"

"Well, I should." Susan's Irish blue eyes were shining with laughter. "You—a Kingsbury, a professional wife, dancing a jig in Pickingers'a!"

"Oh, dear!" Kerrin's voice was full of dismay. "I forgot. Did any one see me? Her hasel eyes scanned the deserted street anxiously.

"No. Only me and that dumb clerk over there. No one else seems to feel the need of tops in the middle of an April blizzard. I came down to buy a present for my Janet to bring to Donald's birthday party tomorrow. What's here." She wriggled a bundle under her arm and the paper rustled suggestively.

"Oh, you shouldn't have!" Kerrin was immediately reprachful, but Susan caught the eyes of the boy fixed upon the package, and smiled. Susan McCloy understood children, and she never saw little Donald Kingsbury without a sense of pity mixed with sense of the futility of that pity. A sensitive, unemphasized child, an only child he was caught by the accident of birth in a situation that continually suppressed him. Looking now at his eager eye, a wave of rage swept over the headlong Irish temper of Susan, a rage that Carl Kingsbury, so magnificent of body, so powerful of mind, could yet make nothing more of his relationship to a woman and child than to bully them. Then the thought of her own husband Alan, his gentleness and love, rose round her like a warm tide, wiping out her little spasm of rage. Alan! only that morning, reading a news report of the spectacular Carl lot of safe, well-trained, sleepy housekeen lap dogs."

"Housebroken!" Susan leapt from her husband's arms and drew sparks from his air. "Is that such a mistake to be? Certainly Carl Kingsbury's not housebroken! That's all poor Kerrin's house is—a kennel. When he comes in how she'll make he do? He takes his coat off and sits in his shirt, sleeves ill and Newfoundland, and says 'we women' like to 'live in a hothouse.' You know, Alan, we're not 'we women,' honestly I—I could throw my best plate at him, especially if he had mashed potato on it."

She smiled suddenly, thinking that the analogy of Carl Kingsbury to an unbroken Newfoundland was apt, and with good humor. Alan was now surprised Carl would look through mashed potato.

THIRD INSTALLMENT

As for Kerrin in Flinkinger's, she went on, after Susan left her, buying the things for Donald's party in a happy dream. A dozen oranges, and to-morrow Donald's party, What a very gay one—and what could the mothers were to stop in in time for the ice cream and cake, MAYBE. —Yes, she would, even one of those delectable marrons at Patten's. The shopkeeper then had them when they served teas.

It was late when, laden with bundles, the two got on the street car in the darkness and the dreadened snow, and Donald—of course—could not resist looking at every gun—looking up to see if there was a light in their apartment. There was none. How terrible, Kerrin thought, suddenly, to feel such a surge of relief. "It does mean that Mrs. Kingsbury," Donald's voice was panting from the stairs.

"In the top of my closet."

"You're sure He won't find them?" The boy, his little face with electric light of their hallway, looked up at his mother. Her face didn't sank a little, and now the bright pleasure of the afternoon had already fallen from it. But—

She stopped for a moment, and brought her face near to the boy's eyes. She pulled off her hat and her brown curling hair gleamed bright under the light. "Listen, dear," she said earnestly. "Father doesn't mind parties, or any fun. He's very busy, and he's tired, and he's worried, because—he's so busy with work. To me they're—But Carl—"

"No," said Susan, "certainly I won't tell him." The old spoil-sport, and only to herself. She turned along then and telephone Helga, the housekeeper.

"Oh—and Susan!" Kerrin ran after her friend and caught her by the arm. "Thank you formal" Her eyes were anxious.

"Sorry! Just ourselves. In fact,—it's pot roast, if you want to know. Alan's in one of his pot roast moods, so steaks for Carl Kingsbury.

"Oh—I love pot roast,' Kerrin replied, quite unsatisfied, and then she touched Susan's arm again tenderly. "Susan, I've forgotten to—" she suggested apologetically.

"Oh—I remember!" Susan said emphatically. Murder was thought, as she remembered a previous dinner when the pot roast had been, instead, is too good for that man. I believe I'd rather have a steak myself for dinner. And yet Kerrin—married to Carl!—can dance a jig in Pickingers'a! Oh, well, you know things!

And she went on home Susan's lips moved in a long imaginary conversation with Carl, where to she told exactly what she thought of him. She grew so cheerful that as a concession she bought mushrooms to go with the pot roast. Almost blithely she shed her snowy hat and coat and ran up the stairs of her home to her husband's study and his bride.

"Hello, Alan old thing. Carl and Kerrin are coming for supper."

Alan lifted his head from sandy head from his papers and smiled at his wife, as every one must always smile at that diminutive, dynamic figure. He dropped his pen and drew her down on the arm of his chair. "That was nice of you, Susan. I appreciate it, and I really am delighted."

Susan ran her fingers through the rough hair that was so dear to her. "Are you? Because I'm no. You know well enough that every time I have Carl to dinner I am in such a foment of rage for a week that both the children get temper tantrums and you get indigestion. Is it worth it? I ask you."

"Certainly it is. It's worth a paid admission." Alan smiled up into the face of this wife of his enjoying her nearness the fine white-ness of her skin, the blue eyes so quick to change from tenderness to mischief, the humorous mouth so once so trim and unruly. "You know you like fighting with Carl, Sue. He make a first-rate target for you."

"Waddlyum," said Sue. "Yes and no. Yes, because yes, and no, because at the bottom of all my rages at him is a nasty little residue of reality. There is Alan. Something in me knows that I feel about Carl in early in the morning. Thought I'd give it to you now, dear, before the thing nice to think of." He poked the boy a friendly elbow in the ribs, from which the boy flinched by only the merest flicker of an eyelid. He put a cigarette between his lips and lighted it. "Open it up. Open it up. See if you like it as well as you—that?"

The boy opened it up. He was still breathless, both from his father's handling and from the inevitable dread which overwhelmed always took possession of him when his father was near.

It was a wrist watch. It was not a cheap affair, but a jeweler's watch, and it evidently surprised the boy. There was a moment of pause. "Why —thank you, father. Thank you so much." The boy, looking down at the watch, did not lift his eyes.

Carl Kingsbury waited, evidently expecting more. "Well? Is that all you can say? 'Thank you, father,' " he mimicked. "Look, boy, it's gold. Gold!"

He took the watch from his son and removed it from its leather sheath to show him. "Some of your cheap kid's watches. Mind you take good care of it, too."

"I will, father. I—I like it very much, I—Thank you—"

"Well, that's cheap silver ing with his initials on it. All the boys have them. I had my mother for prizes at Christmas time selling Christmas seals for a company in Pennsylvania. And I remember that it's gave him money to buy toys with. It was just one penny and forty cents—a waste of money, his father said. But his father had no objection willing to spend the money—that much and more. Of course the watch was good, considering the ring. It was nice of father, 'one boy, standing there silent, felt the struggle to say something adequate.

"Ban!" Carl Kingsbury turned on his heel and went on into his living-room. "The boy takes after you," he said to Kerrin. "No fun to give either of you a present. When I was a kid I'd have whopped and hollered at a present of a gold watch."

FOURTH INSTALLMENT

"Carl, dear." Kerrin's voice held its usual gentle mildness. "We are going to dinner at the Kingsburys."

"What—to-night?"

"Susan met me downtown"—she stopped, and then hurried on, "and asked us. So I didn't have time to ask you."

"Well, you ought to have known I couldn't manage it. I've got a night's work piled ahead of me. You women don't seem to realize that man has to work!"

"I know." Kerrin's voice had fallen to a soft apologetic note. "I ought to have asked you. I didn't think."

"Think! I guess not. And I sometimes think you don't. I'm on the limit; you have to do you might not think, once in a while."

He was pulling up her hair and carefully pinning in the ends. She stood quiet, her head bent. "Shall I then up? Though I hate to—it's already late, and I want to warm up a little stew for Donald—"

"Stew! Warmed-up stew!, Good lord! Haven't you had it for lunch now? No, don't call them up. Why should you? I'll—I'll get a bite, I'm—I'm fussing now, at the last moment, when I had nothing to do all day. Good evening, Donald." That's just like a woman. Gets into a fuss about nothing. Good evening, I'll bear the brunt of getting out of it." He went out into the hall, down to the floor, and crossed into the bathroom, whence his raised voice presently said cheerfully, "I'll have to get any soggy tonight." His voice was lowered, and Kerrin heard him say, "Another time, for God's sake, stop and think, Lovell" Kerrin stopped on the word "downtown". "I will, dear, Donald's party is all right. I'm going on a brown lace dress, and she sure-ly enough, and I'm very happy with a pleased little catch of her lower lip. In her little mirror she looked very pretty in her brown lace dress, which was short in front in the fashion of the moment, and very long behind. She had always liked this dress. She hummed softly, and began to wash her face splashing and blowing like a porpoise in the bathroom. Donald materialized beside her. "Mother, you look very gay tonight." Kerrin heated up the stew and some spinach and set out a glass of milk, and Donald sat down obediently to each other. "To-morrow."

"Yes, dear," said Donald, "you don't need to tell Mrs. Anderson that you are going to a party. She's very nice. I'll be nine to-morrow."

To-morrow! They giggled at each other over their solemn happiness.

"And listen, Don, dear. To-morrow morning early, dear, you get up and climb in bed with your father and tell him how much you do like that watch. He'll appreciate it if he was the least bit—"

"Oh, yes, I promise. "Sure. You bet," said Donald.

"Bye, dear. I must run."

"Bye—you look pretty, mums. That's a pretty dress."

"I like it, too. I always feel like a party in it. "Night, dear." She kissed him lightly on the lips, and went out, the song in her throat echoing the song in her heart. She got on the car, and then down town, her blue hat, and between the outstretched arms of the clasp a sweet-ly sailor dress dimpled and flushed with excitement.

They struggled, she and Carl against the wind and snow, After the blizzard, the blizzard of April. Carl's great bulk breathless. She lifted her face to his, her hazel eyes eyelashes powdered with snow, and laughed. "Remember, Carl, the last time we had the big snowstorm —when we were at the Settlement?" Her voice was shrill, for they were shining. "You had to hold both my hands because I didn't have any gloves. You put your arms around me and made me walk backwards, you with the gonestep. People laughed."

Carl Kingsbury laughed, remembering those gay hearts laughing with hers; and clinging to her in his arms and laughing, she slid on the places children's gigs had worn in the ice on the path. Carl who had forgotten how to be young.

"Lord!" said Carl, as they gained the shelter of the McClay porch. "Do you think we'll live this?"

"What's what a place to live in, Carl?" Alan McClay, watching for them, had the door open. "Don't you think it's a little early in the day of God's country? Come in. Kerrin, my child, Blizzard or no blizzard, you look as though you'd carry with you the spirit of spring."

Kerrin's face, already ruddy with the wind and snow, glowed with deeper color and the dimple in the side of her chin became almost pronounced. Alan was the only one who ever said such things to her. But then Susan and Alan were her only real friends in the circle of her life, a meagre circle for all it was lived in the wide and busy cir-

Board Room Gossip

MARKET COMMENT

The market last week acted well when consideration is given to the considerable unsettlement of the period immediately previous. The confidence of many traders and investors was shaken perceptibly and it will require a little more time before they regain their equilibrium. An indecisive market is therefore anticipated for the next couple of weeks.

Canadian business continues on a fairly high scale. Wholesale trade in the country in March was 39 per cent. ahead of the same month of last year, and was the biggest increase since statistics have been kept by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Another interesting point in connection with wholesale trade is that the volume in Canada has increased consistently without interruption in the past eighteen months.

The consumer has a way of quietly going into a all-down strike when retail prices get beyond his reach and he finds that he can easily do without many of the things to which he has been accustomed. If increased costs cannot be passed along to the consumer, then the manufacturer must take the loss. Labour is steadily becoming better organized, and it is not surprising that it should adopt the tactics which men have made into capitalistic system so successful for the capitalistic class.

The shrewd investor will waste no time in sympathizing with either the bears or the bulls. He is merely figuring out just what effect the present trend is apt to have on future earnings and dividends. Many people lose money because they let their sympathies run away with their judgment.

Good buying has been noted in several stocks on all setbacks in recent months. While the demand was sufficient to take care of offerings. The one with surplus funds to invest can find a number which an opportunity of acquiring some of the better grade issues at attractive levels, as the opinion prevails that higher prices will develop over the next few months.

International Nickel

Some time next week the shareholders of the International Nickel Company of Canada Limited will receive the statement of earnings for the first quarter of 1937. This report will, in all probability, make excellent reading as the showing will be the best in the company's history and the balance sheet the strongest ever. For the half year ending on June 30th, next, the company will pay out in dividends the impressive sum of $14,584,095.

A.F.L. PRESIDENT AFFEARS BEFORE COMMITTEE

Testifying with gestures, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is pictured before the emergency board appointed by President Roosevelt to investigate the underlying causes of the threatened strike of 25,000 railroad employees at New York. The dispute involves the Brotherhood of Railroad men, 11 railroads and 4 longshoremen's unions.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, May 10—(CP)—Recovery hopes were swamped in quite active selling in some of the golds and base metals at price concessions today on the Toronto Market while the Industrials displayed more weakness than strength. Volume was about 150,000 shares greater than the average last week. Losses were held to fractions in the base metals until the last hour when they were wider. International Nickle dropped below the 60 mark for a new low level at 1 2-4 while Noranda and Hudson Bay dropped fractions and recessions of 10 to 20 cents were boarded by Coast Copper Pend Orellie, Waite-Amulet, Bidbury Bank, Sherritt and Aldermac.

Weakness in the golds affected seniors and juniors. McIntyre at 25, Lake Shore at 53 3-4 and Dome at 40 were all off about a point and losses of 15 to 20 cents were boarded for Pickle Crow, Macassa, Wright Hargreaves, O'Brien and Read-Authier were down about 40 cents each.

Losses stood out in the oils, steels and foods. The Canadian Car and Foundry Preferred was off 2 to 3 points each. Dominion Steel and Coal was off about a point and fractional losses were posted for Steel of Canada Common, United Steel and Dominion Bridge.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 10—(AP)—Stocks generally were on the sliding end of today's market. While dealings dragged from the start, sellers made concessions in virtually all categories as the day wore on. The list was feeble at best and, near the final hour, transactions orders were off fractions to 3 or more points. Transfers were at the rate of about 750,000 shares.

TREASURY SHOWS DEBT REDUCTION IN STATEMENT

Ontario Treasury Sets Precedent With Publication

SHOW LARGER SURPLUS

Toronto, May 10 (Special)—The balance sheet of a business in which every person in Ontario is interested, in which a substantial surplus and a substantial debt reduction are indicated was brought to the attention of the Province on Saturday with the publication of the Government's financial statement for the fiscal year just closed.

Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn, Prime Minister and Provincial Treasurer, presented his budget in the Legislature and pointed out an estimated surplus of $7,000,000 after paying a relief bill of $12,500,000. The picture, as revealed in the figures of the published statement shows the actual surplus to be much more than Mr. Hepburn indicated, namely $13,252,000 and this after taking care of a relief bill not of $12,500,000 only, but of $13,270,000. Addition of the Treasury Department in publishing the statement in the press is a departure in government procedure and one which is designed to give promptly all the facts of the Pay-As-You-Go policy to the persons most interested—the taxpayers.

The statement shows that the surplus is twelve times the surplus budgeted for a year ago. This is the largest surplus recorded by any Canadian province since Confederation it is claimed. It is also noted that in addition to showing a surplus, the funded debt of the Province has been reduced by $10,000,000 as the gross debt by $33,000,000. It is the first reduction in the gross debt of the Province of Ontario that has been made in the present century, it is pointed out.

It is pointed out that in the fiscal year ending in 1934, 42.82 cents out of every dollar of revenue was required to meet the interest account. Now the statement says less than 26 cents out of the revenue dollar is required for this purpose, which means that instead of 57 cents remaining for the benefit of the people, there is available a sum of 74 cents.

Attention is directed to the mention that the Treasury Bill debt has been lowered by $12,000,000 and that the average rate of interest is half that standing on the books in July, 1934.

It is pointed out also that, in addition to absorbing the unemployment tax, representing a sacrifice in revenue of $1,000,000 a year, there have been other drastic cuts in taxation which have been greeted with enthusiasm on every hand. In the case of licenses for farmers' trucks and automobiles, for which there was a reduction in cost of 25 percent, which means a saving of over $1,000,000 a year to some 80,- 000 of these commercial operators, and a corresponding loss in revenue to the government.

At the same time, there has been relief to rural municipalities in the reduction from 5 to 4 percents in the interest rate charged under the Municipal Drainage Act and the Tile Drainage Act, and the lowering of service charges for Hydro to farmers.

Sound Public Finance

During the coming year, it was intimated, there will be capital expenditures totalling $25,000,000 to provide employment. $14,587,000 going into highway extensions and $2,650,000 for public buildings. At the same time the Government is budgeting for a surplus of $2,282,000 after allowing $11,000,000 for relief.

Concert Association Drive Closes Tonight

To-night at nine o'clock the membership campaign for the Canadian Drama Association will close for the coming year. It is only possible to attend the concerts presented during the season by becoming a member of the association, the outstanding merit of attractions including pianists, string instrumentalists, and singers will be featured. Everyone in Belleville is invited to avail themselves of this opportunity to hear the greatest artists in the country. Everyone's individual support also contributes to the enjoyment of their friends, as the larger membership the wider choice of artists. The High School students will again be given a free concert on the afternoon of the evening performance, and for this reason alone, it is a project worthy of support. The objective for this year is the erection of the campaign chairman, Miss Leona Riggs. Mr. Claude Cameron is the newly-elected President. A large increase in membership is expected this year by reason of the mally renewals of the executive, together with the new memberships secured by the secretary at headquarters. Such a remarkable undertone is the inability of the Duke of Connaught to attend Tuesday's ceremonies. The Duke returned to London Sunday from Bournemouth aboard a special train.

Baldwin Arrives At Abbey.

Prime Minister Baldwin arrived at the Abbey rehearsal in morning dress around the appointed hour. Some observers believe he will be elevated to the peerage in tomorrow's coronation honors. But reliable sources say the peerage will come later when he has given up the premiership May 28.

Sunday's lineups outside restaurants impressed on the minds of all the necessity of taking along food on coronation day. The authorities beg that no baskets—just little packages, please. Popular sandwiches include a Mackintosh (raincoat), chocolate, meat extract, aspirin, writing paper, sweet or plain biscuits, fruit, canned sausages cheese, containers of cold tea, whisky flask and a camera—for there is no restriction against either of these latter hobbies.

Describes Coronation a Symbol Of Unity in the British Empire

Rev. A. G. Sinclair States King George Upholds Best of British Traditions

RESEMBLES HIS FATHER

Special services were held at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday. Coronation was the trend of the morning service. Sunday School and the evening service were of a dedicatory nature in honor of Motherhood throughout the world.

Special hymns and anthems were rendered by the congregation in the morning fitting in with the Coronation theme. "God Save Our Gracious King" was sung by the choir while the congregation stood at rapt attention. Anthem "Lead Kindly Light" was given by the choir with Miss Phyllis May taking the solo part. The Coronation hymn was also sung by the choir during the service.

"At the foot of the pulpit" draped by the Union Jack stood a portrait of Mary, Queen of England, King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth. Directly in front was a bronze bust of King George V.

Rev. A. G. Sinclair delivered a sermon on the "The Significance of the Coronation". It is the symbol of unity in the British Empire. With a Sovereign like his Majesty King George V representing all that is best in British tradition, the throne is more than a political symbol, it becomes a pattern of life to every subject.

The principal duties of the King were described briefly by Rev. Sinclair. As one to whose duty, whose love of home, whose deep interest in the welfare of his subjects he resembles his late father King George V closely.

Following the service during the afternoon was an open session of all classes. The regular printed program in use in most of the city churches for Mother's Day was used.

The entire evening service was in dedication of Motherhood. Rev. Sinclair spoke on "Mother and Home", dealing similarly with a mother's faith, unselfishness, hope and solicitude. A male quartette composed of Messrs. Bray, H. Crossman, L. Crossman and Moyniss sang "Faith of Our Mothers". A duet "My Mother's Prayers" was rendered by Mrs. (Dr.) Wellbanks and Mr. H. Crossman at the close of the service.

Obituary

EDWARD TURNBULL ANDERSON

After a lengthy illness, Edward Turnbull Anderson died at his home on the seventh concession of Thurlow township today. He was born 72 years ago on the farm on which he died, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Anderson. For fifteen years he operated a grocery store at Belleby but returned to the farm some years ago. He was a member of Ebenezer United Church and fraternally was identified with Ebenezer Lodge L.O.L. No. 976. Left to mourn his loss are his widow, formerly Margaret Cockins, one son W. H. Anderson at home, two daughters, Mrs. J. E. Edgar, Warkworth; Mrs. Murray Scott, Sharpe's Corners and one sister Miss Elizabeth Anderson also at home. The funeral notice will appear later.

MRS. ROSE O'NELL

Mrs. Rose O'Neill, widow of George O'Neill, passed away at her late residence, 40 Bettes Street, on Monday, May 8th.

The late Mrs. O'Neill who was in her 67th year, was born in Ireland, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Scullin. For the past 58 years she had been a resident of this city and by all whom knew her she was well esteemed. In religion she was a member of St. Michael's Church.

Surviving her are one daughter, Mrs. W. J. Dunning, Belleville; two sons, Frank O'Neill and James O'Neil, both of Belleville; one granddaughter, Doris Dunning, Belleville and two grandsons, Douglas Dunning and Frank O'Neill, Jr., both of Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE HENRY BRENNAN (Lonsdale)

The funeral of Henry Brennan took place Sunday afternoon, May 9th, from the residence of his son, Mr. Joseph Brennan in the 4th concession of Tyendinaga Township, to St. Mary's Church at Marysville, where the Libera was sung by the Rev. Father C. O'Gorman.

Interment was made in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery, Marysville.

The bearers were Messrs. William Ralph, Frank Brennan, John McCullough, Joseph Williams, Martin Hart and John Brennan.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Gas

By Alfred Welch

More than one of Curt Brazwell's friends have probably wondered what it was that turned him from a dashing lady killer into a perfectly good husband. How it came about is kind of funny.

I was kind of surprised the first time she went out with Curt. I'd never been able to persuade her to go on a date. We both worked at the Biltmore hotel dining room. Nancy was hostess and I wrestled plates.

I can't see any harm, myself, in letting a good looking customer date you. But Nancy was different. What say to a little party, Kid? I'll suggest. "Handsome Harry or the Kenedge Cutlery is in town with a pal."

She refused till I got sort of impatient. She wasn't a prude; but she'd sooner go home and read or to a movie alone.

Curt Brazwell dived like a load of bricks the minute he saw her. He kept after her for a date till he got it. Curt was tall, blond and handsome, and he had an air, blarney or was little on the curly black hair and blue eyes. They made a good looking couple.

Far as I could see Curt was all right. But he was what they called a drummer when I was a kid. Nowadays they're sales engineers or sales representatives, but that don't keep them from being worse than the sailors for having a girl in every town. I tried to make Nancy see it.

"You should talk!" she laughs.

Nancy in love was like a bud unfolding. She was standing in front of the mirror one morning, slim and cute, fixing her hair and singing like a lark.

"Somebody leave you money, Kid?" I asked, pretending to be dumb.

She gives a little gurgling laugh. Better than that! He'll be here tonight!" Her voice had a singing note and her eyes were shining. But I wasn't at 5:30 o'clock that night when she went off daily and Curt hadn't shown up.

Did you ever watch a flower die? Two weeks passed without Nancy hearing from Curt. I couldn't say much. I didn't either. It was what I had been expecting. You wouldn't have known Nancy was the same girl. All the light was gone out of her.

It happened on a Saturday morning. The day Curt used to reach town. I'd taken the cover off the two-burner we charged as a radio and lit the gas before I found we were out of eggs. Nancy was still sleeping. There were dark circles under her eyes and even asleep she looked like the little girl who'd been told there wasn't a Santa Claus.

"Darn Curt Brazwell!" I thought. And slammed the door.

I got the eggs at the corner store and when I do I run into as I come out but the devil himself!

"Hi, Handsome!" said Curt.

"Hello yourself!" I said shortly. "Where you been?"

"All hard labor!" he grins. "The company's transferred me to another territory. Going to miss me? I was going around to say good-by to Nancy."

"Yeah," I said bitterly. "You bums are best at saying good-by. Aren't there enough girls like me who don't take you clowns seriously, without picking on Nancy's kind?"

"What do you mean?" he asks, surprised.

"Come along." I said, "and see if you ain't too much."

I smelled the gas before I opened the door. It was thick as fog in the room, and on the bed lay Nancy, white and still.

We got her into Mrs. Sewell's next door. In the course of time an ambulance clanged up with a pulmotor and pretty soon Nancy stopped being sick and smiled at me.

I said, "Curt's outside," and that quick the light came back into her face. I went out in the hall. He was walking up and down twisting his hands.

"How is she?" he asked hoarsely. I told him Nancy was all right. "I been an idiot, Jennie!" he bursts out. "I was going away. I wanted to be free. I never dreamed Nancy cared so much. And I didn't realize how much I loved her till I saw her lying there—do you suppose she'll forgive me?"

"How do I know, goof?" I demanded. "Why don't you ask her?"

"Course I knew what had happened. The punk got over his getting would hardly hurt. When I slammed the door the light went out. Curt thought Nancy'd done it for his sake.

BUS STRIKE END IS IMMINENT

Definite Formula For Solution Seen in London Deadlock

LONDON, May 8.—(CP Cable)—Settlement of London's week-old bus strike was believed imminent today.

It was believed negotiators had reached a definite formula for solution of the deadlock and the hopes of London's foot-sore millions were raised with announcement that Ernest Bevin and members of the Central Bus Committee would receive proposals from the Ministry of Labor at a late afternoon meeting.

Strike leaders were in conference throughout the morning and a full conference of delegates of the transport and general workers union was called for 2 p.m. These developments led to belief a second basis for discussion had been found.

Meanwhile there was a break in the ranks of striking busmen in the provinces. Many returned to work in Maidstone and district this morning on the understanding there would be no "victimization" and that negotiations would be re-opened ship to ban three miles of grievances.

In Dover several buses operated under police protection. Strikers attempted to stop them by blocking the roads, emptying gas tanks and throwing rocks. Cars were sent through the town displaying notices reading: "Crosser busmen still out: only backings working".

DRESSMAKERS ALMOST DISTRACT

Some Fearesses' Delay in Orderly Robes Causes Late Orders

London, May 8—(AP)—London dressmakers were driven to the verge of a nervous breakdown today by a writer of last-minute coronation orders.

Some Fearesses had delayed ordering their robes until almost the "zero hour," while others, exercising woman's age-old perogative, changed their minds three or four times concerning details—piling up extra labor on workrooms already jammed.

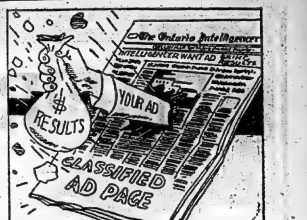
The crush is so great one firm is working its 300 girls in two 10-hour shifts.

Fearesses bring jewels to last-minute fittings in order to try them with their robes. They visit coiffeurs carrying their coronets for coronation coiffure dress rehearsals. Some have decided to avoid the early-morning hair-dressing problem by wearing wigs.

THREE MEMBERS OF FAMILY BURN

Father Loses Life Trying to Rescue His Two Children

Big Ridge (N.S., May 8 (CP)).—Charred bodies of three members of the family of David J. Walker were removed today from ruins of their little home, swept by fire late last night.



Walker, 33-year-old farmer of this district 36 miles from Sydney died in the flames making an unsuccessful attempt to rescue his seven year-old daughter Mary, and three-year-old son, John.

Mrs. Walker was in the condition described as serious, suffering from shock.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Walker after she and her husband and two children had retired to bed, all four of them in the bedroom off the kitchen of the tiny house. Mrs. Walker was awakened by smell of smoke and with her husband rushed to the kitchen where flames were leaping up near a small stove.

Unable to stamp out the fire, the couple went outside for water. By the time they returned the entire one-storey building was in flames.

Mr. Walker plunged through to the bedroom to rescue the two children.

EMPIRE-MADE WEEK at the C.D.S.

JAMAICA | BERMUDA | N.IRELAND | S.AFRICA | CANADA | AUSTRALIA | NEW ZEALAND | INDIA | Br.HONDURAS | Fed.MalayStates

C. D. S. Dedicates this week to a glorification of its vast stocks of Empire-made merchandise.

The ties that bind the unity of Empire are more than just heart strings. There is a practical bond ... the mutual benefits of trade. Outside of the British Isles (perhaps including them) Eaton's is the largest distributor of Empire-made merchandise in the British Empire.

We maintain this exalted position through the first-hand knowledge of markets obtained by our buyers on periodic trips to the "hubs" of the Empire, plus the establishment of our own buying offices in four busy centres of the British Isles.

Empire-made merchandise, domestic and imported, highlighted this week at the C. D. S. in both display and in advertising.

KING'S INTEREST IN ACTIVITIES

Life And Character of King George VI Theme of Rev. I. B. Naylor

A large congregation gathered in Tabernacle United Church on Sunday morning for the special Coronation service when the order of service issued by the United Church was observed. Rev. I. B. Naylor in the course of his sermon paid tribute to the sterling qualities of the King as an officer in the Navy and later as a pilot in the R.A.F.

"As a student in Cambridge University he specialized in the study of psychology, economics and sociology. The love of learning has remained with His Majesty ever since. It was Plato's view that the best recipe for human happiness was that Kings should be philosophers, and philosophers Kings. The new sovereign has fitted himself to give practical effect to this Utopian ideal.

Interest in Actualities

His philosophic leanings however are not toward metaphysics, but to practical psychology, and his interest in sociology is more in the realm of actualities than of political theory, said the minister. The subject nearest his heart has been that of industrial welfare, for which he has labored hard. Continuing Mr. Naylor said "Something like fame has attached itself to him over a scheme known as the Duke of York's Camps, where public school boys and the boys of the Council schools live together cheek-by-jowl under informal conditions.

"What of the King himself?" asked the speaker. Ideally married to a lady of charming personality, and Christian character, devoted to his wife and daughters, his happiest moments are those spent in the family circle. To him family life is life at its best and sweetest. Tradition and value of it are dear to him.

The King is eminently fitted for the role of kingly leadership, because he knows what good leadership should be. He once defined democracy as a gift of vision, with a desire to make the world better, and we believe King George VI will carry his people along nobly toward this ideal. The choir rendered the following music:

Anthem "The King shall rejoice", James H. Fears; Male Chorus, "A Coronation Ode" Healey Willan; Solo and Chorus and Chorus, Mrs. J. F. Bradley taking the solo.

The church was decorated with Union Jacks and coronation colors. The flowers on the altar were white roses given in memory of the late Mrs. W. F. Ashley by her daughter, Mrs. Clement and carnations by the Women's Association in honor of the mothers of the congregation.

A special Mother's Day program was obsequed in the Church school in the afternoon.

Transplanting Tomato Plants A Big Task

Fifteen millions of tomato plants will be transplanted from hotbeds to flats next week according to Mr. H. G. Clemlinson prominent Prince Edward County grower. "We are working overtime" he said and have put on additional help in effort to get plants out. The crop this year is approximately double that of a year ago, and if the frost stays away, this year will produce a bumper crop."

Fine Display of Gay Colored Decorations Beautifies the City

With the Coronation but two days away the city in general is gradually undergoing a red, white and blue transformation. Merchants are busily engaged decorating windows and other display spots with attractive merchandising and coronation colors. Many varied and original exhibits are on display with novel and unique designs standing out in some places in a riot of color. While the photographs of Their Majesties are the predominating feature in the majority of cases, many other patriotic emblems and insignia are adding to the general coronation motif. Many public buildings are now in the process of attractive arrangement, large crown tops the flag and bunting decorations on the Bell Telephone building. The city hall proudly flouts streamers of colored bunting and Union Jacks. Citizens in many parts of the city have placed flags and bunting in prominent places on residences. By tomorrow the city will be gay with color, a fitting tribute to Their Majesties, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

Moderate southwest winds; fair and warmer tonight and Wednesday; fresh southerly winds; partly cloudy and comparatively warm with thundershowers in Western districts extending over Eastern districts Wednesday evening.

"TODAY I STAND ON THE THRESHOLD OF A NEW LIFE," SAYS KING GEORGE THANKING PRIME MINISTERS, AS ALLEGIANCE OF 400 MILLION SUBJECTS IS PLEDGED

Empire Representatives Pledge Allegiance on Eve of the Coronation

"Standing on Threshold of New Life" Says King George in Speaking to Representatives From Every Corner of British Empire. "I Will Try to Carry Out Wishes of My Late Illustrious Father."

CROWDS GATHER EARLY TO SEE PARADE

"Overcast Skies And Chilly Weather" Predicted When Their Majesties Proceed to Westminster Abbey For Official Ceremony on Wednesday.

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, May 11 (CP Cable)—The Prime Ministers of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, and the representatives of India and Southern Rhodesia, presented loyal addresses to the King at Buckingham Palace today.

These spokesmen from the Empire's outpost came to the palace through a driving rain. The weather forecast for tomorrow was "chilly, overcast skies". Yet the enthusiasm of the thousands milling through the streets, viewing notables and anticipating tomorrow's Coronation and procession, remained undampened.

The address presented to his Majesty by Prime Minister Mackenzie King was that adopted by the Parliament of Canada. Each address was read in turn. Then his Majesty, in moving words, to which the Queen listened intently, replied:

"It is with sincere pleasure that the Queen and myself welcome you all this morning and I sincerely thank the Prime Ministers of the Dominions for the addresses I shall always remember with gratitude the kind words in which you have conveyed to me the loyalty and devotion of the peoples in many parts of the world. I am happy to think that you who speak for them will be with me at the solemn service in Westminster Abbey tomorrow.

Stand on Threshold of New Life.

"Only two years ago, as a gathering like this, my dear father received his Prime Ministers and others representing the overseas Empire and India. That was the Silver Jubilee—a time when the people of our Empire united to acknowledge gratefully the achievements of his great reign. In moving words my father spoke, 'welcoming you home'. He has since gone from us and it has pleased God to call me to be the head of this great family.

"Today I stand on the threshold of a new life. Heavy are the responsibilities that so suddenly have come upon me, but it gives me courage to know that I can count on your unfailing help and sympathy.

"For my part, I shall do my utmost to carry on my father's work for the welfare of our great Empire. The Queen and I are not strangers to His overseas. To cherish the memory of the many ties that bind united the Dominions on the other side of the world. We shall indeed be happy if in the years to come we may find the opportunity to extend these personal knowledge.

"Today the world is harassed by perplexity and fear. In this family of nations, linked by ties alike flexible and firm. We have inherited from our fathers a great tradition of liberty and service. I am confident that whatever life may bring to us, we shall continue to work together to preserve this noble heritage so that we may hand it on unimpaired to those that come after.

His Majesty wore morning dress. The delegations were received in the State apartments.

Whilst the ceremony was in progress, the Australian contingent, which yesterday took over the guard at Buckingham Palace, was relieved with full ceremonial by the Coldstream Guards.

Keep Ceaseless Vigil.

Beyond, despite the drenching rain, crowds kept a ceaseless vigil. The queue was thickest at the constitution Hill. There hundreds pressed their faces against the rails in the hope of getting a glimpse of the two little princesses in the windows of their nursery. A disappointed nurse could be seen burying herself behind the curtains at the palace windows. A crystal chandelier flickered vaguely in the west wing. But the queue remained and waited.

Hyde Park will remain open all night. Wet or fine it will be the common camping ground. Alternations were budging the west end, affecting hundreds of chairs, for £3,000 damage was done to park chairs at the silver jubilee. Many were being stored in the powder magazine where runs under the serpentine. Soldiers guard them. At the Park Cafe heavy chains secured chairs to tables.

The garden party, which was to have been given at 10 Downing street this afternoon, was cancelled on account of rain.

Along the procession route hundreds of enthusiasts have already taken up favorable positions, some with seats, cushions, food, drink, umbrellas and blankets.

There were rumors a lightning strike of waiters was planned for tonight.

Crossing Watchman Found Drunk on Duty

Toronto, May 1—(CP)—A railway watchman who was drunk on duty, James Rifford, was sentenced to two months in jail and fined $200 or an additional two months, in police court here today.

A truck driver, Arnold Beatty, testified he was driving across the crossing with the gates up when an engine shot across in front of him.

He parked his truck, walked into the watchmans shack and "could'n't get any sense out of" Rifford, so phoned police. An officer also testified Rifford was under the influence of liquor.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thomson
Science Service Meteorologist

Radio reels! The feasibility of radio reception around the world is due to a condition of the atmosphere not known to exist more than a few days over 1926-1927. The fact that radio signals travel around the world distances which precluded their getting in touch with each other, went through the earth, called for a revision of the theory. Now, we know the correct and concomitant a condition of the atmosphere which returns them to earth — a radio reel. Many radio reels are known, but the reels are besined layers. The means that the air forms the free electrons in it. An electron is the smallest charge of electricity known.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, May 11 (CP)—Except in higher parts of the Eastern States, and in the Eastern provinces and northwest Ontario, fair and comparatively warm weather is centred over the Gulf of St. Lawrence. DUKE OF KENT LEADS SERVICE OF INTERCESSION

'Tomorrow Happy Day, But Also a Holy Day' Says Kent

REMEMBERS MOTHER

General Ian Hamilton Makes Plea For Peace

London, May 11—(CP Cable)—The Duke and Duchess of Kent today led an audience of 3,000 in Queen's Hall in the opening of a service of intercession for the King and Queen.

"We can all see how the hand of God guided the King and Queen from 1911," the Duke said. "I hope the same God will guide and protect our new King and Queen and that some of us may gather again in the years to come to celebrate a happy Silver Jubilee."

The National Life

"Tomorrow, I hope, will be a happy day's holiday, but we must not forget it is also a Holy day. We are here this morning to think of this aspect of our National Life."

The Duke will be thinking of my mother. As a boy I can remember the Coronation of my father. She will have deeper and more personal memories of that day."

General Sir Ian Hamilton, in an appeal for peace, said his experiences as Governor General of Overseas Forces from 1910 to 1912 had impressed upon him that if the crown were not poised "on that pyramid, the Empire would be a lighthouse without a light."

STRICTEST SECLUSION FOR DUKE OF WINDSOR UNTIL AFTER MAY 12

Monte, France, May 11—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor, who would have been crowned King tomorrow had he not abdicated, withdrew into strictest seclusion today.

Palace correspondents were informed by their London offices the Duke had appealed to them to omit his name as much as possible from reports of the coronation events. At the Chateau du Cande, near here, where he is staying with Mrs. Wallis Warfield, he declined to pose for photographers.

The Duke spent some time last night, it was reported, composing a special coronation message of good wishes and loyalty to King George, since his abdication as Sovereign.

Announcement of the Duke's wedding plans is being withheld until May 17, when it is generally expected he will make them known.

Changes Her Name

Mrs. Simpson, 41 was announced yesterday, has changed her name to Mrs. Warfield, her maiden name. The change was sanctioned by the London Court of Law, it was stated, which she will marry the former British Monarch. Mrs. Ernest Wallis Warfield," Herman L. Rogers of New York said. He explained that it was "Mrs.," not "Miss." The "Mrs." was retained at her own request, he added. Mrs. Rogers said he could not say why.

Applications for the change, dropping the name of Simpson, was made to a London Court five days ago and her solicitor declared that today the change had been legalized, Rogers said.

The Duke's butler made a tour of the Chateau de Cande cautioning the servants not to speak of the impending audience, the broadcasters estimate it will be record-making, surpassing the countless throng that eavesdropped on Edward VIII's dramatic farewell to his people. The radio statisticians are inclined to believe at least six hundred million persons will listen in on the Coronation, being a part of the widespread broadcasting in many nations, such as the United States.

Those familiar with the layout of Westminster Abbey estimate that probably only one out of six inside the edifice will actually see the event and few will hear it as clearly as those at radio sets throughout the world, unless loud-speakers are utilized in the historic Abbey.

And those televiewers who watch the procession by television in London, although they may be twenty-five miles away, are likely to catch a better glimpse of the golden coach and royalty than thousands on the jammed crowded streets.

The major networks of the United States and Canada will participate in the broadcasting, the former announcing a complete suspension of advertising and commercial activities, will present Coronation programs for fourteen consecutive hours through the NBC facilities. CKAC will offer a description of the actual ceremonies, while CBC will give a resume in French of the proceedings. CFRB will give a French translation of his Majesty's address at 2 p.m.

CBC Programmes.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation will put on a program a portion of the broadcasting, from 5 a.m. Wednesday to 4 a.m. Thursday, including programs from London, New York, Montreal, Fort William, Vancouver, and the Canadian Rockies.

Particularly outstanding will be "A Tribute to Radio Party" to be broadcast direct from the stage of Radio City Music Hall, New York, at 8 p.m.

The program, to be produced by H. Rooney-Pelletier, of the Montreal organization, will bring to the microphone such international broadcasters as Graham McNamee, Lillie, Reginald Gardiner, Muriel Dickson, Peggy Ashcroft, Dr. Wilfrid Pelletier and Dr. C. Terhune Noble.

Among other important features to be heard throughout the day will be messages from His Excellency Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, who will speak briefly at 2:10 p.m. and a radio "Party" in

The Royal Standard

THE HISTORY OF THE KING'S PERSONAL FLAG AND THE CEREMONY OBSERVED AT THE UNFURLING OF THE ROYAL STANDARD

Contributed by Major The Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, Chaplain Argyll Light Infantry (Tanks)

During the coming Coronation ceremonies the citizens of Belleville will be given an opportunity of witnessing a ceremonial of rare value. In fact for many here it will be unique inasmuch as there are many citizens who have never seen the Royal Standard which is the personal flag of the Sovereign. This flag, which has been secured for the occasion by the Commanding Officer of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tanks) will be used during the Royal Salute in Wednesday's ceremony. It will be of interest to the citizens to have a foreword concerning this unusual occasion when the Royal Standard will be displayed.

The term Royal Standard is the popular name for the King's banner of arms. It bears the full blazonry of His Majesty's royal arms. Its history is of interest at this time. In Richard II's time it bore only three lions passant. In 1340 these arms were quartered with those of France when Edward III claimed the French crown. These were afterwards removed and those of Ireland introduced in 1603. The Lion rampant within a treasure represents Scotland. From the time of George I until the accession of Victoria the Royal Standard also bore the arms of Hanover. Since that time it has remained in its present form and will be seen on Wednesday.

Its use symbolises the presence of the Sovereign, and his loyal subjects will so honor him in this Royal Salute upon the happy occasion of his Coronation.

The Trumpets will be formed up in line and the command given "Royal Salute, Fixed Bayonets, Present Arms"—Immediately the Royal Standard will break at the mast head of the flag staff. The band will play the whole of the National Anthem. Those of the King's Army on parade and the male members of the citizenry should respectfully uncover their heads. Then follows the salute of 21 guns and the feu-de-joie. The Artillery then fires seven rounds, the Infantry fires a feu-de-joie and the band will play the first bar of the National Anthem. A second round of seven guns and another feu-de-joie, followed by the second half of the National Anthem. The last round of seven guns, the last feu-de-joie and the band will play the whole of the National Anthem. Once again the command will ring out "Fixed Bayonets Royal Salute". The National Anthem will be played—we shall all salute our gracious King and the Royal Standard will be lowered.

This will be an unique ceremony and will leave a lasting impression upon the minds of those who have assembled to do honor to our beloved King in this the beginning of his reign. "Long live the King."

Especial authority was obtained from England by National Defense Headquarters for the Royal Standard to be flown during the Royal Salute at any authorized saluting station).

Broadcast of Coronation Ceremonies Begins at 4 a. m. Standard Time, Wednesday

LIBERAL PARTY READY FOR TEST

Nominate 48 Candidates or One For Every Seat in Legislature

Victoria, May 11—(CP)—It was nomination day in British Columbia today when 48 candidates were officially named to fight for the 48 seats in the legislature at the June 1 election.

The Liberal Government of Premier Hon. Patullo will face 48 candidates in the field. Conservatives have named 46, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation 41, the British Columbia Constructives 13, Social Credit 2, and Social Credit League 19.

Independents, Independent Liberals, and a Labor Representative make up the list which totals 179 so far. Two more days remain when more may be named today.

Considering the standing in the Legislature was: Liberals 33, Conservatives 4, C. C. F. 7, Independent Non-Partisan 2, Independent 2, Unionist 1, Labor 1, in a House of 48. Two seats which had been held by Liberals were vacant.

The C. C. F. gave the Liberals the closest run in 1933 and elected seven members to become the official opposition. Their standard bearer was their House Leader, Rev. Robert Connell. Of the seven C. C. F. members, broke away because of what they considered over-whelming thanks in a newly-adopted platform.

The four formed the Constructive group to become the official opposition. The effect upon this split upon the C. C. F. fortunes and the support Mr. Connell has won are problems to be answered by the electors.

London's Streets Packed And Transportation Problem Rises

SEAT PRICES RISE

London Newspapers Publish Advice on Routes

London, May 11 (CP.-Havas)—All available seats were erected along the route of tomorrow's Coronation procession were expected by various concessionaires to be sold out by midnight.

Satisfaction reigned among officials of the agencies selling seats. Prices rose rapidly. Seats which sold at 4 pounds ($20) were quoted at 10 pounds ($50).

The window of a large hotel, offered for rent as a result of the death of the man who first hired it, was promptly re-rented to the last of 200 vacant rooms.

Streets were packed, restaurants were packed, trams were packed and as for subways, they were jammed, delayed and stifling. Each hour brought the Coronation closer, and 26,000 more persons to the nation's capital, which looked like a great bazaar.

Street sellers of colored cake, buttons, will have red-and-gold emblems did a tremendous business.

Getting to Route of Procession

The question for individuals was resolved into one of getting to the procession route. Planning and all anticipatory agents were by-gone and it was simply a case of the fittest getting the prizes. All morning newspaper printed detailed instructions telling how and how to get there and get away. The greatest lunch box business in history was underway.

The heavy morning rain, which drove hundreds temporarily from their seats outside the Palace and on tomorrow's Coronation route, forced Prime Minister Baldwin to cancel a garden party for overseas visitors and the tea party he was to give at 10 Downing Street this afternoon. Mrs. Baldwin, however, did not determined to catch a glimpse of their Majesties on the way to Majesty Westminster Abbey for the Coronation ceremony, sadly returned home after sticking out the downpour for hours wrapped in sodden blankets.

The London Times' Coronation was "chilly, overcast sides."

Two Hundred Canadians Receive Cards to Attend Scenes in Ancient Abbey

Prime Minister King And Hon. Vincent Massey in Procession

SEATS IN GALLERIES

List of Those Who Will Represent Canada at Crowning

London, May 11 (CP)—Fortunate among the nearly 4,000 Canadians who flocked to London for the Coronation, about 200 from the Dominion have received command cards to attend the Coronation in Westminster Abbey.

They will represent cities and towns from coast to coast and will be headed by a group of cabinet officers and others high in the governments of Canada and the provinces, and leading churchmen.

The Canadians will have the honor of walking in the spectacular entrance procession that precedes the arrival of Queen Mary and the Abbey. Prime Minister Mackenzie King will walk just behind Prime Minister Baldwin while High Commissioner Vincent Massey will carry the standard of Canada. Mr. King will take his seat to the right, side by side with Mr. Baldwin, while Mr. Massey will sit with Mrs. Massey in close proximity to the theatre.

Other Canadians in the Abbey will be placed in the galleries to the right and left of the sanctuary and on the long facing tiers that occupy the north body of the church behind the organ screen. Canadian newspapermen have been seat just behind members of the British House of Commons at the side of the sanctuary.

Cabinet Ministers

Canadians in the Abbey will include:

Hon. T. A. Crerar, Mines and Resources. Mrs. Crerar and Miss Dorothy Crerar; Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Justice, Mme. Lapointe, Mlle. Odette Lapointe and Robert Lapointe; Hon. Norman Rogers, Labour, Mrs. Dunning, and Miss Katherine Dunning; Hon. Ian Mackenzie, National Defence.

Provincial Governors:

Hon. H. A. Bruce, Ontario, and Mrs. Bruce; Hon. E. R. Patenaude, Mrs. and Miss Patenaude; Hon. Murray MacLaren, New Brunswick, and Miss Margaret MacLaren; Hon. E. W. Hamber, British Columbia, and Mrs. Hamber; Hon. G. D. Pelletier, Prince Edward Island, Mrs. DeBlois and Miss Helen DeBlois.

Hon. R. A. B. Bennett, leader of the Opposition, and his sister, Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Ottawa.

The Speaker of the Senate and Mrs. Walter Fisher, Saint John.

The Speaker of the House of Commons, Hon. Pierre Casgrain, and Mlle. Helene Casgrain, Montreal.

CARS TELESCOPED IN DERAILMENT

17 C.N.R. Freight Cars Near Stratford Damaged By Broken Rail

Stratford, Ont., May 11—(CP)—Extensive damage resulted early today when 17 cars of a London-Stratford Canadian National Railway freight train were derailed one mile west of St. Mary's. Several of the loaded cars were smashed to splinters as they piled one on top of each other.

Members of the train crew, in charge of Engineer S. Wittaker, and Conductor T. Northcost, of Stratford, escaped injury.

Cause of the wreck was not known but it was believed a broken rail or a damaged truck on one of the cars started the pile-up which ended in a tangle of debris, practically blocking the "Blue" cut.

The engine and two cars escaped damage, apparently passing over the derailment safely. Repair of the damage to the following cars was estimated at several thousands of dollars.

Five of the foremost telescoped on each other and piled five deep against the bank. tank car loaded with nearly 7,000 gallons of gasoline spilled its contents on the tracks. The liquid was more than a foot deep in places. "Flames" until drains were cut to carry it off. Fear of an explosive was first and foremost and caution was taken to guard against it.

Coronation Smatterings

Kronau, Sask., May 11 (CP)—C. R. Painton of this town 20 miles southeast of Regina has the policeman's billy, issued to his great grandfather, member of the Essex grain, England, force, at the coronation of William IV, 107 years ago.

The billy resembles a small baseball bat, hand painted with a picture of the crown and cipher of the reigning monarch.

Dublin, May 11 (CP)—Anti-coronation demonstrations spotted both the Free State and Northern Ireland today. In Dublin, some writers of coronation emblems were accosted on the streets and the emblems torn from their hands. A Dublin Catholic Nationalist girl workers objected to the painting of Union Jacks on machines in mills. They walked out. This was regarded as a minor incident, however, as plans for a many sided observance of the coronation throughout the north neared completion.

Buffalo, N.Y., May 11 (AP) — Americans may be in view of the coronation pageant will not get "the best possible idea of the British people," and will suffer some inconvenience, a British peer said today.

Here to address a Jewish group on foreign affairs, Lord Marley, chairman of the British Parliamentary council, said Americans who want to see the British Isles at their best "should see them in their simple, week-end garb."

London, May 11 (CP) — Long queues lined up in post offices today to buy the new George VI postage stamps. It was estimated that yesterday 35,000,000 stamps were sold as compared with an average of 36,000,000 sold on the first day of previous new issues. Last night many women in evening dress could be seen in the lines of people waiting to purchase the stamps.

ALBINO LUNGE NETTED

Lunge spawn, taken from Pigeon Creek in the Peterborough district are being received at the local Government Hatchery while quantities of pickerel spawn are also being received from Bice and similar lakes in the district for hatching locally. One albino lunge taken while in the act of securing spawn by department of Game and Fisheries employees, considered a decided novelty for the district, has so far not been released after being stripped.

NORTHERN ROADS ARE SOFT IN PLACES

Motorists tackling the road and side roads at the present time are well advised to equip their cars with tire chains and carry a spare shovel as well, it is said in a talk based by reports of local residents who journeyed to the back districts over the week end. Though roads north from Millbridge to Murphy's Corners are fairly passable, trouble may be encountered further north. It is reported. In the vicinity of Ormsby, according to the statement of one local salesman, a sturdy pair of oxen are being used to haul their stranded cars from deep mudholes in that section.

DANGER OF FROST NOT OVER

Temperatures hovering close to frost levels—just six points above freezing to be exact—late last evening and early this morning were a concern among farmers of the district, but only a slightly frosty condition and light at that, to damage was reported. In some cases tender parts of early growing produce were protected with coverings of paper.

"It's a curious fact, but in this district farmers can usually expect frost of some kind from about the tenth to the fifteenth of May each year. I have handled this for a year yet," stated a prominent Sidney resident this morning.

TEN CASES ENTERED FOR NON-JURY SITTING OF SUPREME COURT

Ten cases were entered for trial at the non-jury sitting of the Supreme Court of Ontario which started Monday at 10 o'clock before the Hon. Mr. Justice McKay in the County Court buildings. The docket includes cases from Board of Agricultural loans vs. Wilson; Connell vs. McCaig; Lang vs. Lang and Thulle; Shaw vs. Shaw; Capital Trust vs Public Trusts et al; Bawn et al vs. Bawn et al; Preston, Augar vs Augar, Moore vs Moore Phillips vs White; Robertson vs Robertson. Two motions, Capital Trust vs Public Trust and Leonard vs Leonard will also be heard during the course of the session.

CANDIES AND FLOWERS IN BIG DEMAND SATUR.

The arrival of better times and the increased interest in the Mother's Day resulted in approximately double the business, being transacted over the local stores according to leading florists and druggists. Work in the florists' shops were at a premium while the popular chocolates were also in heavy demand.

OLD FLAG OWNED BY E. H. TICKELL

Mr. E. H. Tickell talking of old flags today, said he possessed the original flag which was flown on when the St. George's Society was organized and instituted in Belleville. Despite the long years of wearing the century mark, it is a good state of preservation, though it has had to be repaired in a few places.

Dr. Tennent possesses another old flag, the original flag of the St. Andrew's Society.

Mr. Tickell believes he has the largest old flag collection in the city. It dates from about 1871 and is about 24 foot long and 13 feet wide.

CANINES IN VILLAGE NOT TAKING CHANCES

A traveller arriving from the northern part of the county tells a strange story, he says, to the effect that in a certain village the dogs of the community were leaving in a steady stream, one group, all canine in their ones, and irregular ones were making the long trek out of town.

"I inquired," he said, "but no one seemed inclined to talk."

Today, however, the mystery was cleared up. In the village paper appeared a notice, signed by the mayor, said in part "If all tenants who have not paid their dog tax by May 1st do so by a certain date ALL dogs will be destroyed".

DELEGATES TO DISTRICT CONVENTION

Delegates from Belleville Rotary Club to the District Convention at Erie, Pennsylvania, held over the week-end, were Paul President, Bill Bermstein, President-Elect Fred Douglas, Secretary Max Ehlig.

NO PARKED CARS ON PARADE ROUTE

Mayor R. D. Arnold conversed with Chief Ketcheson today following which it was decided that the police station should be suitably decorated for the Coronation Parade and all members of the Fire Department were invited this afternoon for completing these decorations, after having demolished the City Hall for the occasion. Chief Kidd and Inspector Gardner, of the Provincial Police, also met and completed arrangements to marshal and police the route of the Coronation Parade in Belleville tomorrow. "We hope the citizens will assist in keeping the route of parade clear of all vehicular congestion by not parking their vehicles on the streets over which the parade will pass," urged Chief Kidd.

BANCROFT YOUTHS HELD IN CUSTODY

Archie Boomhour and Robert Lake, two Bancroft youths, appeared before H. B. Wilson, Justice of the Peace, charged with the operating a still, suitable for the manufacture of illicit liquor, yesterday and were remanded in custody until Thursday.

Boomhour and Lake were arrested after the week-end by the R.C.M.P. who confiscated a still of some three gallons capacity and allegedly in operation. The pair will appear before Magistrate Lloyd at Bancroft.

ROYAL OAK ACORNS PLANTED AT SCHOOL

Two Royal Oak acorns received from the "Men of the Trees" from the Royal Forest of Windsor were planted in St. Michael's Separate School this afternoon by teachers and pupils of King George School.

Planted in commemoration of the Coronation of their Majesties the King and Queen, the young oaks will occupy a prominent place in the grounds of the school.

CIVIL SERVANTS TO RECEIVE INCREASE

Local employees of the Civil Service of Ontario are wearing broad smiles these days, following the announcement that an increase in salaries would be forthcoming in the near future. "We have known about it for some time," one stated yesterday, "but did not think it would materialize so soon. We all have applications in for the increase and hope it won't be too long before it gets here."

OFFICE HOURS FOR CORONATION DAY

Wednesday being "Coronation Day", and a statutory holiday the following hours will be observed at the Post Office. The public lobby will be open from 8.30 to 10.00 a.m. while the general delivery, registration and postage stamp wicket will be open from 8.00 to 10.00 a.m.

The money order and savings bank wickets will be closed all day. One letter-carrier delivery will be made in the morning and letter-box collections will be made once in the morning and once in the evening.

All mail posted at the office up to twelve o'clock noon will be despatched as usual; and full service will be given on all rural routes served out of Belleville.

FEW BETS TAKEN ON CORONATION WEATHER

"Any time you get a chance to bet that it will rain in London on any important date, take it—even if you have to give six-to-one odds", stated a local resident today, who, in spite of his well known patriotism to his country, stated about a week ago he was willing to accept bets that Coronation Day in Old London would be a rainy one.

It was raining there today.

Today the local resident was consulting over the few ducats he might stake, (no wind as yet) and a few small bets placed if rain continues.

I told them over a week ago it was going to rain on Coronation Day, but even at that there was only the odd one who wanted to take a chance and bet."

R.C.A.F. PLANE FORCED DOWN

En route to the R. C. A. F. camp at Trenton yesterday from Camp Borden, a Canadian Air Force plane with lone pilot made a successful landing on a pasture field of J. Smith, near Lindsay, when forced down by a sudden snow storm. A telephone call from the farm house resulted in a mechanic being despatched from Camp Borden in a second plane, carrying a few repairs to the landing gear, both machines made a smooth take off.

Obituary

LATE MISS HANNAH THOMPSON

The funeral of Miss Hannah Thompson took place from her late residence, Cannifton Road, Monday afternoon. The service in the home and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by Rev. Gordon Morden of Emmanuel Church.

The bearers were Messrs T. R. Dolan; Clarence Thompson; Harry Thompson; Chancey Ashley; John Dromgool and A. Tucker.

Late Jacob Wannamaker (Consecon)

The funeral of Jacob Wannamaker, who passed away at Kingston, Ont., on Friday, May 7th, took place from the residence of his son, Mr. Morley Wannamaker, Consecon, on Day Saturday, Consecon, Ont., on Monday afternoon, May 10th.

The service in the home at 2 p.m. was conducted by the Rev. H. Pearce of Friends Church, Wellington, Ont. Interment took place in the family plot in Hillier Cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs Calvin Way, Stephen Way, Carl Alexander, Horace Thompson, Herman Hepdgorn, W. Ferguson.

The funeral was largely attended and there were many floral tributes.

TRIBUTE PAID TO THEIR MAJESTIES

On Sunday High Mass was celebrated at St. Michael's Church at 11 o'clock by Rev. C. E. Baker. Previous to the sermon proper to the day, Father Baker made a fitting reference to the coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth. The speaker said in part: "On this day we pay respectful homage of fealty and love to King George VI and Majesty George VI and to his consort, Queen Elizabeth. The happy day of their election is a source of joy to all those who have the privilege of being members of the British Commonwealth of Nations. In an age when political upheaval, distrust, and sorrow appear to be the lot of those who live in many favored nations, it is indeed a privilege to pay a tribute of loyalty to the undisputed ruler who will wear the crown which is so symbolic of liberty, freedom and peace. The Catholic Church is committed to no particular form of government. It is quite immaterial whether her children are governed through a monarchial system or a republic but she teaches obedience and respect to the flag under which her subjects may happen to live and she reminds all of the words of St. Paul to the Romans "When the great apostle admonished his converts that they were to be subject to higher power because there was no power which had not come from God and those who wielded the sceptre did so through the ordinance of God and that resistance to lawful, established authority would mean the loss of the everlasting Kingdom in the other life.

It is no wonder that the solemn hymn of the Catholic Church composed by St. Ambrose in the early centuries of faith should be sung at the end of Mass that God might bless and consecrate King George and Queen Elizabeth in the noble task of directing the destinies of the great empire of which we form an integral part."

At the end of Mass the congregation stood while the choir chanted the "Te Deum" which was followed by the National Anthem.

NATURAL CAUSES SAYS DR. WILSON

Frank Walker, Kaladar Twp. Found Dead Alongside Road

Stricken with a sudden heart attack Frank Walker, 58 year old native of Kaladar Township, was found dead lying alongside of what is known as Perry's Road near Kaladar late last night. Chief Hayes of Tweed and Chief Coroner Dr. J. C. Wilson, of Napanee, examined the body and announced that no inquest was necessary as death had apparently been the result of natural causes.

While driving his car along highway No. 7, west of Kaladar last night, J. F. Parks, of Kaladar, noticed the form of a body lying up a side road about 500 yards. Investigations revealed the form to be that of a man. Chief Hayes was immediately summoned and after identifying the body as that of Mr. Walker, deceased death had apparently been from natural causes. It having been known that Mr. Walker suffered from heart trouble.

"There were no marks of violence on the body nor were there signs of disturbance on the road that would indicate the deceased man had been struck by a motor vehicle," Chief Hayes informed the Ontario Intelligencer today. The body was later released for burial after it was announced an inquest was unnecessary.

POLICE BLOTTER

Horace Bowler, Belleville, was arrested in this city yesterday on a charge of the theft of a quantity of rail and steel plates, the property of the Canadian National Railways.

Bowler's apprehension came after complaints had been received by local police from Fred Chapman, in charge of C. N. R. special police, regarding the missing metal. Detective Ward and Mr. Chapman later located the missing metal in a railway box car and ready for shipment, they reported today. It was following the recovery of the rail and plates, valued at $160.00 and weighing over 500 pounds, that Bowler was arrested. He appeared before H. B. Wilson, Justice of the Peace, and was remanded in custody until Friday. An alleged accomplice is still missing, police revealed however.

Rural School Pupils May Attend Ceremonies Held in Belleville

Pupils of rural schools in this immediate district will probably join as unofficial delegates with those of Belleville in observance of the Coronation day tomorrow, it was indicated in reports from the outside district today. Whether planned coronation exercises will be held in the schools remains to be seen, it was stated today in answer to telephoned inquiries through the various school sections.

Avondale school on the Front Road in Sidney Township is the first visitation from officials in Trenton to be reported, the pupils there are being held there in the morning.

Smaller communities have not been heard from but the usual decorations in honor of the day, including flags and bunting have been used profusely in Cannifton, Shannonville, Tweed and Madoc, where public schools and town halls have also been given a free rein through the use of emblems, flags and shields.

Concert Association Campaign is Success

The Canadian Concert Association in launching the 1937-38 fourth annual membership campaign on Monday met with success from the response by music lovers of Belleville and district. The success of the past series of concerts has been so marked that the committee working on the campaign found ready response.

Total figures are not compiled as yet, it is believed that more than five hundred members have joined for the season 1937-38, it was stated today.

Tuesday Market

EMPIRE

The early arrivals last night built up their positions just as the brilliant assembly that participated for the state banquet at the palace was slowly filling up to the Houses of Parliament to attend the reception the empire statesmen gives by the premier and the House of Commons, Captain R. A. Pilarcy.

Hosts at Dinners

The King and queen were hosts to more than 400 guests that included royalty and other representatives from many countries, empire dignitaries and scores of prominent British men and women of Great Britain. The guests sat at tables in two rooms, with the King host in one and the queen presiding at the other.

Transportation problems still beset the ; retropolis as a strike of 26,000 bus workers, tying up most of London's familiar red conveyances, threatened to spread to subways and streetcars. It was hoped this danger would not materialize until after the pageant's brilliant spectacle.

The Atlantic Coast Meeting Executive Transport Workers called a special meeting to determine whether they will on this week-end seen to aid the striking bus drivers and conductors, who are engaged in a half hour-reduction in their workday, to 7½ hours. The train and subway workers will await the decision, should they go out.

After the ceremonies this morning the King and Queen entertained the leaders of empire at the state residence from which they will depart for Ha, Abbey tomorrow to be admitted King and Queen. Tonight the Duke of Gloucester will give a dinner.

Outside and along the processional route, the long tap of ceremonial hammers pulsed the roar of the crowds with a staccato rhythm as they put the nails in the last of the twisting turning wilderness of grand stand seats that only a day before they are torn down.

Maypole at Charing Cross

Decorators clambered over tall ladders, perched on roofs seeming to the glittering maze of masts, banners and flags that once were the glories of old London.

Garlands and streamers and flowers bound the crowns of the illuminated royal ciphers formed in almost incredible, perfection.

Charing Cross sported a high Maypole, festooned with banners. Oxford Street underwent a change. It mastic draped and swathed in red: The Mall became a parapharnalia corridor of tall white masts topped with heraldic lions. Piccadilly was transformed in blue; Marble Arch was white and gold.

Streets Blocked Off

In the Strand, where poverty stalks, a mile of white and crimson and flags concealed the grim walls of rows of bleak tenements. Shop windows were plastered with portraits of the King and Queen and Streets were blocked off for the parties and dancing.

In the hotels, cabarets, restaurants, night clubs and bars, whose normal trade was unbelievable of thousands of dollars in preparation, added last minute touches for celebrations that will last throughout night.

Far beyond the outskirts of the metropolis in quaint old villages and lovely countryside 12,000 celebrations spread the spirit of festivity but on Coronation Day they will hold sold and then will pour into their way into the Capital. Two hundred special trains are scheduled to start pouring into London at 4 o'clock tonight.

Subways Open All Night

London's underground railways were ordered to run all night long for the first time in history, more than 10,000,000 "passenger journeys" were expected to be made in the 24-hour period by underground and surface lines.

Some 28,000 police and 35,000 soldiers were assigned positions along the 12-mile route to control the vast crowd of 3,000,000 persons expected to see the royal coaches ride to and from their Coronation.

Thousands of buses, taxicabs and ambulances will be stationed every five yards along the 8 1-2 mile route for the state procession.

Order Book Prepared Early

Peers, peeresses and their guests who will be forced to stay in the streets all night after the return of the King and Queen leave made light plans for today.

Most of ordered their beds prepared early tonight and left word to be called at 3 a.m. to be dressed and in their places in the vaulted confines of Westminster at 8 a.m.

The Queen herself planned to be up and busy for her hairdresser at the crack, the elaborate coiffure necessary for her ponderous crown at 7 a.m.

A small indication of the tumult that will grip the largest city in the world tomorrow was seen last night when crowds estimated at more than 1,000,000 persons massed in the streets during the stag, dinner.

The people roared "We want the King" by the hour during the hours which was the greatest state function since the Coronation of King George V in 1911. Guests ate from the famous Gentry china service, served by liveried footmen while the crowd shouted their hoarse outcries.

Difficult to Move

Later 2,000 overseas guests jammed the Houses of Parliament at its Speaker's reception.

It was almost impossible for the distinguished visitors to thread their way either backward or forward. Only strident shouts of "Make way for Royal Highness" cleared a path for the Prince Regent.

The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester literally had to force their way through the mass of humanity that the Duke and Duchess of Kent.

Princess Juliana of the Netherlands at one time became separated from her husband in a crush near the entrance to the Speaker's house, while Winston Churchill was overheard to ask a policeman to find him a quick way out.

Frank Wilie, Dr. Sheaffery Russell, of Toronto, will speak on the Coronation from 7:45 p.m. and at 8 p.m. the Montreal studios will present "Countess Maritan", an operetta.

Beverley Baxter, Canadian journalist now living in London and who is a member of the British House of Commons, will broadcast an address at 8 p.m., and this will be followed at 8:15 p.m. by a musical program from Halifax entitled "Coronation Scenes". From 11 to 11:30 p.m. there will be a broadcast by the Winnipeg Boys' Choir, and from 11:30 to 11:45 p.m. "Dancing at the Ritz", a musical program, will be broadcast from Montreal.

Rebroadcast at 2:30 p.m.

Canadian listeners will have two chances to hear the Coronation ceremonies. The Corporation announces that it will blatterspherize the proceedings from 2:30 to 5:45 p.m. It will rebroadcast the Coronation Service, and from 10 to 10:50 will repeat the "Empire Honors Us" address by his Majesty. There will be two Canadian Press broadcasts from the CBC facilities, the first at 1:30 p.m. and the second at 2:30 p.m.

The American networks plan to follow the timetable arranged and announced by the British Broadcasting Corporation (all time is Eastern Daylight Saving):

5:00 a.m.—Dowager Queen Mary arrives at Westminster Abbey.

5:15 p.m.—Ringing of Big Ben; commentaries.

6:00 a.m.—Departure of King George and Queen Elizabeth from Buckingham Palace.

6:00 a.m.—Arrival of King and Queen at Westminster Abbey.

6:15 a.m.—Commentaries (approximately two hours), Bishop of Canterbury administers the Coronation; the entrance; the recognition; the oath; beginning of the communion service; the anointing; prayer; blessing of the Spura and Sword, and the investiture per annulum et baculum; putting on of the Crown; enthronement; homage of the lords; benediction; the Inthronisation; the benediction; the Queen receives the communion; Te Deum Laudamus; the recess. (The Epistle: I St. Peter ii. 13-17; the Gospel: St. Matthew xxii. 15-22.)

10:00 a.m.—Bride and Queen depart from Westminster Abbey and begin their procession.

9 a.m.—Military band.

10:10 a.m.—Return of King and Queen to Buckingham Palace.

10:20 a.m.—Appearance of King and Queen on balcony, inaugurating Palace to respond to cheers of throng.

1:30 p.m.—Beginning of "Forty-minute Radio Tour of World" entitled "Empire Broadcast", including addresses by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Secretary of India and the Prime Ministers of the Dominions answering to radio call. (Or at 2 p.m. E.S.T.)

3:00-3:15 p.m.—King George VI broadcasts to the Empire from the Throne Room (Speech from Buckingham Palace.

6:45 p.m.—Coronation officially concluded with address by Poet Laureate John Masefield, reading his latest poem, "A Prayer for the King's Day".

It is expected that not only the oath of the new King, Emperor and Queen but the Lord's Prayer, the entire ceremonial dialogue between King George VI and the Archbishop of Canterbury will be heard in American homes exactly as it is spoken in Westminster Abbey.

In addition to the above timetable, list interludes throughout the day descriptions and comments on the Coronation ceremonies will be broadcast by British and American commentators.

Shortwave listeners will find the entire program on the following stations: WGEA, WGEO, WGEA, WGEO, 15.31, and GSD, 11.78. During the evening these London transmitters will repeat highlights of the Coronation from recordings so that those who missed the actual event on the air may hear it as electrically transcribed.

First Coronation Broadcast

This is the first time in the history of English Kingship that a coronation has been broadcast. In the reign of Victoria wireless was invented, but it remained for Edward VII, crowned in 1902, to be the first British monarch to exchange transatlantic wireless greetings with the President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt. This was in 1903, when Cape Cod flashed the message of friendship to which the pioneer station at Poldhu sent the historic reply.

The telephone was but a dream in 1911, although optimists among scientists were beginning to show that it was within the realm of possibility in that year George V was crowned. It was the wireless distaster, a year later and then the World War, that brought wireless into the public eye more than ever before and started new developments of the vacuum tube, the short wave and the radio telephone.

It is likely that Administer Abbey will be placed thirty-three microphones, including one that will one of the entire broadcast — the microphone which will pick up the voice of the Archbishop microphone according to experts from American broadcasting studios has been carefully concealed in order to preserve traditional dignity of the occasion.

Nine of the microphones will be placed in the Throne Room where His Majesties will be enthroned on the Chair of Estate, another will be in the Chapel of Edward the Confessor, three in the choir stalls, two for commentators in the Sacrarium, two in the annex and five along the nave leading from west door.

Quite as complex is the placement of microphones along the twisting mile-and-a-half route of the procession from Buckingham Palace to the Abbey, in order to keep the head of the mile-long parade constantly in view of one microphone. The same practice will be followed in keeping in view the van of the return procession.

In addition to the United States, twelve countries have made arrangements for special broadcasting facilities. Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Germany, Holland, Hungary, Italy, Japan Norway, Sweden and Yugoslavia. Through the facilities of the British Broadcasting Corporation the ceremonies will be heard in Great Britain and Ireland, and all the British Dominions, crown colonies and protectorates.

The foreign commentators will go on the air from a special control room in the Middlesex Guildhall, overlooking the Abbey, in the room, fourteen by twelve feet, there will be five tons of equipment, including batteries weighing about six tons and pounds.

The broadcast is the electrification of one of the world's great rituals that still links directly with the ages long gone within Orrin D. Dunlap, Jr., in The New York Times. Only the Archbishop comes closer to the Coronation than ever before. Only when King George V was crowned, although he lived to see the day when his voice encircled the globe, was there a microphone to never sets. It was in January, 1910, that the Archbishop spoke into the microphone and "round the world.

Had there been an eagle-eyed Richard Coeur de Lion, an instant Richard Coeur de Lion, in an instant he could have seen the sun's rays at bat flying out of the roof; and had this sidelight been electrified and had he looked closely he could have way in the manner of modern announcements, he would have been treated generally as an omen of ill-will. But in those days the story of the Holy Grail was the way around the Empire and in sloweats it had a far greater glory than the wireless radio, at the speed of sunlight, ends the world's first radio hook up of eye, treating it as a mere incident among many sidelights.

Marconi made the air waves on Wednesday, for the British Ion will be broadcast to the world, from dawn to dusk in what the broadcasters consider to be the most elaborate broadcast ever undertaken.

Recording To Be Permitted.

King George VI has given permission for the recording of organizations to record his speech on May 12 for the purpose of subsequent broadcasting.

The Earl Marshal rakes no objection to Broadcasting Corporation organizations recording for subsequent broadcasting the coronation service in Westminister Abbey on May 12 the British Broadcasting Corporation has been given the right to control the overseas broadcasting organizations, however, and must undertake the responsibility for correcting any copyright existing in the music performed at the coronation service."

Coronation Ceremonies For Belleville Outlined

Parade Forms Near Upper Bridge And Marches Direct to Agricultural Grounds

LEAVES AT 9.30 A.M.

Final arrangements completed today by the Chairmen of the various committees in charge of the Coronation ceremony and parade need only favorable weather to ensure the complete success of Belleville's observance of the Coronation of Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

The final program and route of march released by General Chairman Joseph Shortt indicates that no effort has been spared to make the ceremony and parade one of the outstanding events of the year.

With the corner of Station and Pinnacle Streets selected as the central meeting point of the various units of the parade, school children and others in the parade are requested to leave their places of organization in time to be at this place at 9.10 a.m.

The parade proper will leave the corner of Station and Pinnacle Sts. at 9.30 sharp.

The route of parade will be from Station and Pinnacle Streets down Front Street to West Bridge, along West Bridge to the Agricultural Grounds.

The general public is specially requested to abstain from leaving automobiles and other vehicles along the line of march, thus in keeping with the safety program as adopted by the General Committee.

The bleachers and grandstand at the Park will be occupied by school children taking part in the parade and by invited dignitaries. There will be ample room for the general public.

Speakers' stands have been erected directly in front of the grandstand. Following is the order of parade:

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF FOXBORO LODGE IS CELEBRATED

Many Prominent Speakers Attend Unique Event Held Recently

Fifty years of active participation in the life of a community is an unique event but for a lodge it is a very distinguished one and recently Foxboro L.O.L. No. 3 celebrated their anniversary with a banquet held in the United Church in that village in which more than 200 guests were present from as far west as Alberta and east as Perth, Ont. Rev. Thomas Sullivan, who was present at the initiation fifty years ago, was also present on the occasion of the banquet. The toastmaster was William Reynolds, Past Grand Master of the Royal Black Knights of Eastern Ontario, and the toasts were proposed and the one to the King was replied to by R. Bell, past County Master and Bro. Harold Irvin, M.P.P., and that to the Queen to Canada was proposed by Bro. C. D. McCullough and responded to by Bro. Dr. Ketcheson, Deputy Past Grand Master of Alberta.

Bari Bird proposed the toast to the Orange Sentinel and this was replied to by Rt. Wor. Bro. George Sanders, Madison, editor of the paper. The Grand Lodge of Ontario East was also present, this toast being proposed by Bro. M. C. Reynolds and responded to by Rt. Wor. Bro. E. M. Mitchell, Grand Master of Ontario East and Rt. Wor. Bro. Henry Graham, Past Grand Master of Ontario East. The Grand Lodge of Ontario West, Rt. Wor. Bro. R. Christie and responded to by Rt. Wor. Bro. Fred Reid, Past Grand Master of Ontario West. Chairman of the evening was Rt. Wor. Bro. George F. Reid, and Treasurer of the Lodge. The ladies were not forgotten in the toast to the L.O.B.A. which was proposed by Bro. J. M. Carl and responded to by Rt Wor. Sis. A. Cole, Grand Mistress of Ontario East. Rev. Bro. F. Hoxton proposed the toast to the guests and Rev. Bro. Beazer, Rev. Bro. McGoogan and Bro. Gourley, County Master of South Hastings responded. Fine selections were rendered by the wonderful orchestra and this was proposed by Rt. Wor. Bro. E. M. Mitchell and Rt. Wor. Bro. Dr. Walker Wickett. A splendid musical program was also rendered by several toasts. The banquet room was most tastefully decorated for the occasion.

13 PEERAGES IN HONORS LIST

Rare Honors Conferred on Queen Elizabeth And Queen Mary

(By GEORGE HAMBLETON)

London, May 11—(CP)—Thirteen peerages, thirteen Privy Councillors, seven baronetcies and a host of knighthoods, promotions of promotions and appointments to the orders of chivalry make the long list of those whom the King honors on the occasion of his Coronation.

Again, among the Dominions, no title go to Canada, Australia, New Zealand or the Irish Free State. General Hertzog, Union Premier—General, and Ernest Lapointe, Canadian Minister of Justice, however, are made "Privy Councillors" by appointment to the Privy Council. The Earl of Athlone, Governor-General of Canada, 1930-35, who holds an Irish peerage, is created an Earl in the peerage of United Kingdom.

As never before perhaps the, Coronation honors cut a cross-section of life in the United Kingdom. Members of the Royal Family, statesmen, business men, writers, artists, musicians, all appear in the list.

Honors for Queens

The rare honor of the Royal Victorian Chain is conferred upon the Queen and Queen Mary. Queen Elizabeth was also named a lady of the Garter. For the first time in the first time women are admitted to the Order of Merit—they are the Queen of Norway, the Princess Victoria, Dowager Marquis of Milford Haven and the Countess of Athlone are made Grand Crosses of the Royal Victorian Order. Princess Arthur of Connaught and the Countess of Athlone are made Grand Crosses of the Order of the British Empire. The Duke of Kent is made a Privy Councillor.

Peerages in the United Kingdom are conferred on the following:

The Earl of Beaubrough, now in the Irish peerage.

The Earl of Strathmore, the Queen's father, who is now a Scottish representative peer.

Sir Robert Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer 1921-22.

Sir Herbert Samuel, former Liberal Leader.

Viscounts of Garter.

The Duke of Beaufort, the Earl of Strathmore, the Marquess of Exeter and, the Duke of Norfolk are made Knights of the Garter. Of the Archbishops and the Earl of Stair become Knights of the Order of the Thistle.

Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scouts, received the coveted Order of Merit.

The medal of the Order of the British Empire goes, among others, to Lord Nuffield, the car driver, a London bus conductor, the head gardener of the Imperial War Graves in France, the "bonus of a New Zealand dairy, and a constable clerk in Ethiopia.

DEPLORES CUTTING CHRISTMAS TREES

Speaker at Horticultural Soc. Meeting Says Practice Should be Stopped

Painting with Nature's own lavish colors, charming vistas of gardens and flowers, will be seen in many parts throughout the Province, with the help of Ontario Government Photographer, John F. Clark, lecturer-expert of the Department of Agriculture for Ontario, enthralled flower lovers of the city and district with the sheer beauty of his colored films at the Y.M.C.A. last evening.

Under the auspices of the Belleville Horticultural Society, the lecture was given through the permission of the Ontario Government.

Introduced by W. H. Dilnutt, president of the Belleville Society, Mr. Clark expressed his pleasure at the opportunity to meet again old friends gained through previous visits to that city some time ago. He reminded of the increasing interest that had been manifested among flower lovers throughout the province, and commented upon the really the particular interest that had been taken in the matter of reforestation. Many parks and woodlots territory within Ontario, he said, were under the control of the Ontario Horticultural Society will be developed in such a way as to make and worth for residents of the Province through the fact that a larger scale for this work will be appropriated.

Many fine redwood forests of southern California to the timber lovers were shown, the colored photo slides moved in ever changing colors; from the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls, through the ever sweeping parks which have been developed through many of the towns and cities, the lecturer took the audience through the extremely easy style, advising, warning and recommending various plants and flowers suitable for the different locations and areas mentioned.

Mr. Clark's excellent, inspiration which grows upon this earth; pointed out that the colored films would end. By trees and plant life we regulate the very seasons and climate of the country, he declared the expert, citing disastrous floods, the Mississippi valley, and the drought of whole counties out of existence, as the result of cutting of trees which has followed man's ruthless cutting or the forests and draining of the swamps.

"Not least of these is the annual Christmas tree slaughter," he said. "Millions chopped down ruthlessly every year to cut down trees which are then being carted to the city dumps, unsold or used for only a day or two in the homes of the city to decorate the strange paradox of shipping Christmas trees from the United States where laws there prohibit the cutting of their own trees."

Efforts of members of the local Civic Beautification Society to provide a beach for the city should be encouraged, declared Mr. Clark, who painted a glowing picture of Belleville's future as a city of beauty and tired.

Many stunning flowers use Nature's own flowing curves. Do not plot in geometrical design. Flowers are for the eye, and the eye loves curves. Make your garden of any home; by judicious trees and shrubs, so that a Nature's paint brush can be securing the year around. Plant in long extended shrubs, hedges and perennials the humblest cottage can be made "pride" of the city. In the fairyland of color, permanent flowers are the best, they are less trouble, need for less cost than any other known commodity upon which man is dependent, declared Mr. Clark.

Shipmates for ever!

A man and a boot once joined together are not to be parted. There's something about a wet, slanting deck : : : the flash of the sun on the taut, trim-bellied sail : : : the kick and pull of the tiller—that settles in a man's heart, and he can't forget. The scudding white caps, the fresh breeze in his face and the satisfaction of a freshly-filled pipe of Old Chum—smells and fragrant, Virginia Flake. It's something to remember! "There is no other tobacco just like Old Chum"!

If your preference is for a mild yet rich tobacco; and if fragrance means anything to you, just try Old Chum—you'll get what you want.

There is no other tobacco just like Old Chum.

Beacon to Blaze on Zwick's Is. As Scouts Join Chain of Light

Fire Will be Lighted at 8.15 on Wednesday Night

Arrangements to complete their link in the Dominion-wide chain, for the coronation celebrations of Boy Scouts to Canada's Coronation celebrations, were made by the 3rd and 6th troops of the Belleville Boy Scouts today when they announced that a fire in the beacon on light chain would be lighted on Zwick's Island at 8.15 p.m. Wednesday night.

The first of these oldtime beacons will flare a nightfall on the Atlantic coastal headlands, and will be followed by others across the Dominion skirting the St. Lawrence Valley and river, across Ontario to the Manitoba prairies and over the mountains to the Pacific coast.

Similar ceremonies will precede the lighting of the Boy Scout beacon, scout troops contemplating the firing of a royal salute of 21 rockets in special Boy Scout ceremonies.

The mammoth beacon to be lighted on Zwick's Island next Wednesday night will be erected by the members of the 3rd and 6th Belleville troops, under the leadership of Nature's paint brush can be securing the year around. Planted in long extended shrubs, hedges and perennials the humblest cottage can be made "pride" of the city. In the fairyland of color, permanent flowers are the best, they are less trouble, need for less cost than any other known commodity upon which man is dependent, declared Mr. Clark.

THE CORONATION

On the eve of Coronation the British world is astir as never before in its history. Things have happened in the world of great moment; a war is sinking into history but is still making history and remaking nations; what seemed like crises which might not be surmounted have also passed into history and the British monarchy and the British Empire stand. Tomorrow will show such a demonstration of the march of British civilization as the world has never before witnessed.

King George Sixth has come to the eve of his coronation as ruler of the far-flung Empire of free nations. At such a moment on every lip are the words of the prayer the first heard in the East and first reported in the Bible, "God Save the King"; for events have combined to make the present crowning of the greatest importance.

Today the British kingship is more than ever part and parcel of the British tradition. No small share of this love and reverence which attaches to the monarchy were earned by His late Majesty King George Fifth, whose devotion to his imperial tasks has given him a name which will endure for many ages. His second son, George Sixth, resembles the royal parent who for over a quarter of a century guided the Empire and saw the Dominions reach a new status under the Statute of Westminster. The present king is of a type which is the joy of the British people, trained to see in him all that was so admired in his father and which is so admired in his mother. He carries on the tradition of the British race.

Today the British throne stands stronger than ever in its history. There are two natural phenomena which seem to describe it, the Rock of Gibraltar and the citadel of Quebec. Look where one may in the world of today one sees no such outstanding champion of liberty and freedom, the unbroken line of which from the earliest ages stands open to all mankind. This torch of liberty which it has lighted it shares with younger nations, that galaxy of Dominions reaching nationhood under the noblest inspiration of the peculiar British quality of "slowly broadening down from precedent to precedent."

In a world no small part of which seems to have thrown off much of the value of the past, Britain stands with its limited and constitutional monarchy the bulwark of the great heritage of the past and the mark of progress of the present. The constitution and the kingship are living forms of democracy which develop from age to age. To some it may seem strange that the most democratic of countries or groups of nations and that the largest and most powerful group in the world will stand so loyally by the pageantry and symbolism of ritual and ceremony which have come down from the far-distant past. There are many lessons but one of them is this—that the past has a value that time cannot destroy, though some may look upon it as of long-lost value. There is also value in its symbolism.

It is a tower of strength to constitutional development to see a mighty Empire loyal to its best in past and present. It is a mark of strength in the world to find the highest temporal office in the world acknowledge its dependence upon Heaven as the source of its strength and judgment.

In the coronation is summed up in epitome the history of the development of the constitutional monarchy and the growth of democracy, strange as it may seem to some. To the British people it signifies the pageant of the hopes and ideals of a group of many peoples, all inspired and bound together by the sovereignty of the crown.

Coronations have developed through the ages and upon King George Sixth the burden of the mighty office descends officially as he is crowned. The monarch cannot but be impressed with the magnitude of the task and the holiness of the royal office which has come to his hands. It is a duty calling for supreme wisdom and tact, for unselfish devotion to duty.

As he is crowned in his millions of subjects of many races will cry, "God Save the King" and will link with that prayer his Queen, Her Gracious Majesty Queen Elizabeth. May they rule us long!

The past which is so presumptuously brought forward as a precedent for the present, was itself founded on some past that went before it.—Mad. de Stael.

No better name can a father bequeath to his children than a good name; nor is there in a family any richer heirloom than the memory of a noble ancestor.—Hamilton.

"CORONATION DAY, MAY 12, 1937"

Oh, George 6th, our Sovereign dear,
To you our hearts we raise,
And with your Queen, Elizabeth
The world your deeds shall praise.

We pledge ourselves with might and main
To our New King and Queen;
And pray that God will spare them long
To rule, our land Supreme.

O'er ocean, land, O'er sea and air,
Your Majesties shall reign,
And with the pride of yeoman days
Our firm faith shall maintain.

God Bless our Country, King and Queen
As the Royal Seat they fill,
And Britain ever shall be "Land of Lands'
With most determined will.

We remember how in days of yore
Old Britain's Standard stood
The best in soldiers, sailors, lands
To defend our Empire true.

To-day, Your Coronation,
We hail thee; Our King; Our Queen
This Britain shall go on and on,
Each victory to win.

God spare your lives,
To rule our Nation well.
Then far and wide the cry shall ring
Your victories to tell.

ARTHUR BRISBANE, CHIEF EDITOR OF THE HEARST CHAIN OF NEWSPAPERS in the United States, died recently, and his will is being probated. Brisbane was perhaps the best known newspaper man in the world, and sat in the seats of the mighty alongside of the money baron William Randolph Hearst, who carried him onward and upward on a golden elevator. Brisbane never wrote anything that lived beyond the day of its creation, for he was essentially a commentator upon the news of the day, and any editorials he wrote, while pungent, were not long-lived. Brisbane as a young reporter followed sports very closely and was a personal friend of the great John L. Sullivan, who licked all comers until decisively defeated by John Barleycorn. The great John L. finished his days as temperance lecturer. What a laugh to the old-timers who used to follow John L. from saloon to saloon to see the fun. Brisbane left a sizeable fortune, how much is not fully disclosed. Brisbane left no money to charity or institutions. He left it all to his wife and family and fixed it in such a way that the money would last a long time. Phoebe Cary Brisbane, the widow, specifically received $20,000 annually from a trust fund, and other beneficiaries $1,000 a year from a trust fund. A bequest of $20,000 annually is made to a sister, and others of $6,000, $5,000 and lesser amounts a year to other close relatives. Provision is made for the maintenance of the three Brisbane residences, one in Florida, one in New Jersey, and one in New York. Each beneficiary in another section of the will is to receive $2,500 each year before marriage and $5,000 a year after marriage. The will contains twenty-four pages and the estate is to be administered under two trust funds.

IS A BULL WORTH MORE THAN A BOY? asked P. J. Mulqueen, at the hockey banquet in replying to criticisms that public money was being squandered on sports, vide the boys athletic camp at Lake Couchiching, sponsored by the Ontario Government. Mr. Mulqueen cited the large amount of money spent to encourage better live stock, which he approved, but said he, is the bull more important than the boy? Better boys, better men.

Tomorrow will be dedication day at the new Bridge Street Methodist Church. For the benefit of those interested, and the number is large, the official programme is given here. Those who would attend the services are requested to be in their places at 2 p. m., when "Praise God from whom all blessings Flow", will be sung, followed by prayer by the Rev. John Lovejoy of the pastor. Mr. Fred Cluff of Boston, Mass., will give an organ recital after which will follow the presentation of the new bell by the 100 ladies of the Young Ladies' Bible Class. At 3 P. M. the Rev. John Potts, D. D. of Toronto will preach. After the sermon the dedication service will be performed by the Rev. Albert Carman, L. L. D., General Superintendent of the Methodist Church. In the evening there will be a sacred organ recital under the management of Mr. H. Canfield, in which Mr. Fred K. Cluff, the church choir, Miss May Clarke, Miss Ida Richardson, Miss Richardson, Miss May Donnelly, Mrs. Ingram, Miss Canfield, and Messrs. Wemyss Anderson, Lewis and Cluff will take part. On Sunday, May 16th., Rev. Dr. Sutherland, Missionary Secretary of Toronto, will preach in the morning; the Rev. M. W. Maclean of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, Belleville, will preach at 3 P. M. and at the evening service a former pastor, the Rev. William Briggs, D. D., of Toronto will preach.

Stray Bits

FISH TAKE A LOOK AT BAIT—

Again with the trout season in full swing the controversy rages among local devotees of the singing reel and fragile casting rod—dry flies or wet ones....artificial baits, or the natural ones generally dug from a soft spot in the back garden or garnered from the front lawn on a dewy evening. The discussion will eventually arrive at the inevitable point—do fish see, or are they color blind, unable to appreciate the glittering, rainbow-hued lures so tempting to cast before their very nose in some quiet pool?

Major R. C. Simpson is an expert angler, and there are many hints in his new book, "Fish and Find Out", based on many years' experience of salmon and trout fishing. He records many exciting incidents of catches—and failures—of meetings with fellow anglers, of his trials with dry and wet, live and artificial bait. They they have all found favor in turn, and no hard and fast rules are laid down by the expert for the guidance of the tyro or the jurried business man who must fish as he can, rapidly or hut. As regards sight with which fish are said to be endowed in keen measure; Major Simpson writes: "There still appears to be an enormous variety and enormous diversity of opinions amongst those who make it their business to study fish and their studies. One really does not know what to make out of it all.

As to whether or not the general structure of the eye of a fish resembles that of a human I will not argue, but I believe that fish have two powers of vision—one for each eyeand that each eye can and does focus separately. For instance, one eye looking out into a dark, shaded view beneath a bank will have a totally different seeing power from the other eye, should that eye at the same time be gazing into highly lighted water. I believe that salmon trout and their like are more light-seeing than day seeing. If trout are not night-seeing creatures, then how do they pick out tiny, scarcely to-scale, flies resting waters at night?

I have frequently tested this theory by casting a fly at evening first one side of a trout and then the other; I have witnessed a dry fly pass unheeded the eye facing sunset-lighted water, to be taken immediately on presentation to the shady side. I am sure, too, that fish have a "window" that is a circle of prescribed, ill-up zone into which they can see with varying clarity in counter-proportion to the brilliancy of refracted light present during the distance from the eye to the object under surveillance. To my mind it is the angle of the sun's light which affects more than anything the feeding habits of the fish. How else can one account or the evening rise of trout and other fish? For several years I used to fish for trout on the Kennet at Hungerford. There, every evening as punctual as clock work, occurred two quite distinct rises at evening; the first just about sunset, setting earlier by some five minutes every two or three days. The sun would drop, and then plop-plop, the fish would appear. If the evening was grey and dull, the rise would suffer in its intensity.

"I do not believe the fish notice the differences in color value as we humans notice them; I aver that the subaqueous world translates color values not by the pigmentary estimate but by the affect on their vision produced by the color as seen from the surface. It is my contention that when we fly how we them, and as the trout know them are two very different things."

CORRECT FLYING OF FLAGS

Belleville, Ontario,
May 9th.

The Daily Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Editor—

May I be permitted, through your columns, to draw attention to something which, if not corrected, will go far to spoil or at least to mar, our Coronation festivities?

Driving about Belleville yesterday I noticed several Union Jacks floating upside down. I am quite well aware that times are "hard" and distress is evident, but need we fly "distress signals"? Perhaps some one who is an authority would be kind enough to publish instructions re the proper use of our flag.

Any school child knows when a Union Jack is incorrectly flown and most of them know that the flag may not be used as bunting and yet either through ignorance or carelessness they, mistakes are being made. Let Belleville lead the way by seeing to it that our flags are flown correctly.

GEORGE PEPPER LEAVES FOR ENG.

Financial Support Given by Belleville Citizens Permit Him to Motorcycle Race

DANGEROUS COURSE

Representing Canada in general and Belleville in particular, George Pepper, Belleville's premier motorcycle rider and Canadian champion, sailed out of Montreal Saturday aboard the ocean liner, the Duchess of Bedford bound for England and subsequently the world's championship motorcycle races at the Isle of Man next month. George's trip was made possible through the generous cash contributions of local interested citizens, service clubs and others who materially assisted in financing the trip to the international meet. Prior to leaving for overseas Mr. Pepper wished to thank all those who helped in assisting him and left with the well-wishes of his donors.

Normally speaking foreign and colonial riders are held in low esteem by the British motorcycle authorities, despite the fact three Canadians have previously won major honors during the Isle of Man races some years ago. The 37 3-4 mile course, that has to be lapped seven times during any individual race, is one of the most dangerous courses in the world with numerous treacherous turns, that have tried to the limit imagination, but demand expert riding.

30 M.P.H. Average Speed

On a dry day the course must be covered, over an average of 90 m.p.h. if victory is to be secured. Three factors are essential to accomplish this feat, first, is a motorcycle capable of the technical achievement, second the rider must be full-well acquainted with the dangerous course sufficiently well enough to let the machine "do its stuff" and thirdly is the knack or intimacy of being able to round curves at break-neck speed and continually attain a speed average of, over 90 miles an hour. Indeed —such riders are born as seldom as super-champions in any other branch of sport. It is these obstacles that George Pepper must hurdle if he is to rise to the pinnacle of his chosen profession.

Entered in Three Races

Generally speaking any rider, and more especially a colonial rider, to finish inside of the first six in any one event is considered to be among the best motorcycle riders in the world. George Pepper has entered in all three major-events of the Isle of Man races, the 250, 350 and 500 C.C. classes, already having machines for the latter two events and negotiating for a lightweight machine in England.

The following are the voluntary subscriptions tendered Mr. Pepper to assist him in competing in the world's championship motorcycle races on June 14th, 15th and 18th.

The complete subscription list acknowledged:—City of Belleville 50.00; Army and Navy Veterans, Unit 201, Belleville 25.00; Houston Lumber Company, Belleville 5.00; Dr. J. R. Gubbels, Belleville 5.00; I.O.O.F. No. 81, Belleville, 5.00; Quaker Hotel, Belleville 5.00; Chas. Dolan, Belleville 1.00; Bennett and Davison, Insurance, Belleville, 5.00; Mackenzie Sanderson, Belleville 5.00; Mayor R. Arnott, Belleville 5.00; W. M. Morton, Belleville, 5.00; Jas. Thompson, Belleville 1.00; Kinsmen's Club, Belleville 10.00; Quinte Athletic Club, Belleville, 50.00; Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn, Belleville 2.00; Ernie Cook, Belleville, 1.00; M. L. Reynolds, Belleville 5.00; F. Belleville 5.00; Well-wishers, Belleville 4.00.

The amount credited to the Quinte Motorcycle Club was the result of a canvas for donations made by the members of the club and resulting in a collection of $21.00 which was augmented by a cheque for $29.00 drawn from the funds of the club to bring the total of that organization to $50.00.

Seven Confirmed At Huff's Island By Bishop Lyons

The close relationship of the Coronation and Confirmation services were pointed out in a stirring address given by the Right Rev. John Lyons, Bishop of Ontario, before a well-attended Confirmation service held at Huff's Island Sunday afternoon when seven candidates were presented for the "laying on of hands" ceremony of the Church of England by the Rev. J. M. Brownlie, rector of St. Andrew's Church, Wellington.

"The Coronation is the dedication of the King to God," said His Lordship, "while the Confirmation is the dedication of these young people to God and a fuller service in His church. There is a close relationship between the two. The Confirmation service has behind it a long history and a historical and Scriptural background."

Addressing the candidates, Bishop Lyons stated that "in Confirmation you are making public acknowledgement that you are giving yourselves to the Church. We all feel the need of help but we have it in so many ways. Baptism, the strength of prayer, the calm of meditation and the Sacrament. Do not think for a moment that your work is done now. God's work is a man or woman's life-long job and in the end there is the compensation nothing else can give. Make use of all the help and strength given you and employ it to carry on. It will help you today and on through the years to look forward with the unflinching persistence which every true Christian has at heart."

HOME IMPROVEMENT PLAN HIP

And How to Improve It

A Series of Articles on Suggested Home Improvements Advisability, Value, Cost, Etc.

This is the first of a series of articles relating to the Home Improvement Plan, seeking to give information required to those who are interested. Inasmuch as there are misconceptions concerning the scope of the plan and its advantages, owing to which misleading statements have been made and wrong ideas formed, the effort will be made in this column daily to reply to any questions and to give correct information as to the various features of the plan, and just what it will cost the home improver by the month for three years or a shorter period, if desired to make improvements from fifty dollars to two thousand.

x x x

Belleville bank managers report growing interest and many enquiries as to the Home Improvement Plan, and the number of loans negotiated is increasing.

x

Mr. J. O. Herity is Chairman of the local Home Improvement Plan Committee, with headquarters at the Chamber of Commerce, where any information in regard to the plan can be obtained.

x x x

With the growing interest manifested in home improvements Belleville citizens are looking forward to a busy summer, and the effect upon the local unemployment situation can not help but be favorable. Every dollar invested in home improvement will benefit a number of people and contribute to the general prosperity of the city.

Here's a story from Kansas City of what the women did there in rejuvenating old homes, turning liabilities into assets. Read it, it's interesting and inspiring:

WOMEN AND REJUVENATION

Rejuvenating the home may be much more a woman's job than a man's. Of peculiar interest to Canadians in view of the success of the Home Improvement Plan, is the story of a unique contest conducted in Kansas City, Mo. when the modernization scheme of the United States was being promoted.

The ability of women to do a better job than men in rejuvenating the house was demonstrated in the outcome of this contest. It was run by Kansas City's Prosperity Improvement Committee. Women walked off with three of the four first prizes.

OLD HOUSES MADE NEW

To stimulate interest in home repair and modernization, the Prosperity Improvement Committee selected four old houses in different parts of the city and offered prizes for the best suggestion for bringing them up-to-date. A limit of cost of $1,200 was set in each instance and the awards were to go to persons who suggested work that was considered the most necessary and practical.

The winners received $500 worth of labour and material each for the improvement of their own homes.

The women did not confine their modernization to what might have been expected of them, the beautification of rooms and the addition of facilities, such as in the kitchen and bath. They specified radical changes in the exteriors as well, converting the houses from drab, out-of-date affairs to dwellings attractive and new in design

DOUBLED VALUE

One house modernized had heavy, old-fashioned, over-hanging eaves. These were cut off and the brown walnut paint was changed to white. That cost not quite half the appropriation. Inside improvements were almost equally drastic. Old mantels, plate rails and other features, such as beams, were removed, and all the rooms were decorated. The work that was done is believed to have doubled the value of the property.

Another house modernized received a new roof and a new coat of paint, but the most important changes were in the interior which included new wiring to permit the use of electric features. Improvements were made virtually all the rooms. In dollars the results are considered worth far more than the outlay.

DERELICT TO DESIRABLE

A contestant had an exceedingly difficult job. The house had an antiquated front porch, which was removed and one added at the side. A new entrance and a new room for the family were specified. A hot water heating system was installed, and new wiring. The kitchen went modern as well as the other rooms. The house had been considered of no value; now it is worth several thousands of dollars.

SUBMIT PLANS OF BEACH TO D. A. C.

Notification of This Procedure Received From Hon. Dr. Faulkner

In a letter received from the Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, M.P.P., by Mr. Reg. Moncrieff, president of the local civic Beaches Commission, today, advancement is made that complete plans of the beach along the city waterfront have been submitted to the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, for approval or further suggestions. The plans are the result of the recent visit of J. P. Clarke, expert horticulturist of the Department of Agriculture, Toronto, to Belleville, in which a full investigation of the beach was made.

Mr. Marshall is most optimistic regarding your efforts, and the possibilities of a wonderful project, will begun", it was added by Dr. Faulkner in the communication. "I feel this beach will be a wonderful asset to our city not only as a means of beautifying that particular section, but also as a perpetual inducement for our own people to enjoy the breeze of the Bay of Quinte, as well as a very desirable and restful place for those tourists who wish to remain off in Belleville for a day or so."

MOTHER'S DAY SERVICE HELD

Scott's Church Scene of Impressive Service

The Superintendent and officers of Scott's Church felt gratified at the capacity attendance of adults and children who assembled Sunday afternoon for the annual Mother's Day program. The theme of the service was "Ready to Share", and the spirit of goodwill and friendship set forth in song and story was well exemplified in the carrying out of the various features of the service. Among the many floral contributions was a beautiful and fragrant memorial bouquet presented by Mrs. W. Scott and Mrs. Jay Campbell in memory of a loving husband and father. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Hall, spoke appropriately on Mother's Day service the Sacrament of Baptism was conducted for the following:—Cameron Ray Sine, child of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Sine; and Allan Roy Dafoe, child of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dafoe.

The Mothers' Day Service was followed by the pre-Coronation worship program prepared by the United Church of Canada for use in all its churches yesterday. At the conclusion of this solemn consecration ceremony the pastor, Rev H. B. Johnston and his session received into church membership, the following young people—Clarence Paul, Geo. Watt, Leslie Hall, Myrtle Walker, Geo. Ritson Sinn, Carl Sine, Allie Pringle, and Dorothy Carr. These had been trained in a church membership class conducted by the pastor.

LITTLE CONCERN OVER PETITION

Opening of Road Will Not Effect Tourist Traffic in This City

Little concern is felt by Belleville Chamber of Commerce officials over the announced intention of the towns of Picton, Napanee, and Desoronto in petitioning the Ontario Government to take over the road which runs from Picton to Greenpoint along the High Shore road of Prince Edward County, connecting with Desoronto and Napanee.

Little if any loss of tourists traffic through Belleville is expected, even in the event of the decision of the Ontario Government to act upon this petition, it is stated.

At a meeting held in Desoronto on Friday evening last, this scheme was endorsed by the attendance. Guest speaker of the evening was T. G. Bowerman, M.P.P. who will present the petition.

"Tourists these days travel by map, and for the most part stick to the main travelled roads, unless they have a certain destination in mind when they start out. They will naturally follow Number Two Highway which runs the length of the Province, and will not be inclined to branch off on some other road, no matter how many signs they may see. Most tourists when they wish to get off the beaten track seek the north country. Prince Edward County, they will find, is marked south on the maps" they carry. We of the Chamber are not too pessimistic over the possibilit" of this petition being entertained", stated Manager J. O. Herity today.

Rules for Flying The Union Jack

"A large percentage of flags now decorating stores and business places along Front Street are hung upside down", commented Fire Chief Wm. Lynch this morning after a survey of the street preliminary to work on the city hall.

When hanging Union Jacks, it is pointed out by an authority, a simple rule to remember is that when the flag is suspended vertically over a street running north and south, it should be in the act of any other flags, with is top to the east. When hung over an east and west street, it should be to the north, with the top to the west. To find the top of the flag, first find the "hoist" or halliard side, then the corner next to the upper white Cross of St. Andrews is uppermost and display it that way. The jack should never be caught up in the centre, or used in the manner of bunting.

"I DON'T CARE" IS SUBJECT OF TALK

Commercial Traveller Talks to Rotarians on Neighborliness

"I Don't Care" was the subject of the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Belleville Rotary Club Monday, Harold Thurston, of Toronto, well known commercial traveller in the dry goods line, was the speaker, and his talk was a plea for more old fashioned neighborliness. "What will the neighbors think?" "I don't care" should be "I do care" for folks can not live to themselves alone with any degree of happiness and the grand - castle on the hill is cold and lonely compared to the house by the side of Ken Dyson.

Howard Clarke of the Citizens Dairy, a former member, returned to the Rotary fold as the baby member and was introduced to the club by the President.

A splendid representation of the King and Queen and Princess Elizabeth in a setting of flags gave a Coronation note to the meeting. The display was arranged by Rotarian Ken Dyson.

An interesting meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in St. Michael's Academy on Wednesday evening with the president, Miss Margaret Hall, in the chair. After the business discussion a musical program by Academy students was enjoyed, a feature being a Spring Chorus by junior girls, whose beautiful singing showed careful training by the Sister in charge of music in the school. The other numbers, all splendidly presented were: Piano solo, Katherine Harris; vocal solo, Mary Dolan; piano duet, Ruth Kelly and Katherine Harris, and piano solo, Anna Mohler. The National Anthem concluded the meeting.

Mr. Harry Woodley has returned to Toronto after visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Woodley, for a few days.

Information was received this morning by Fire Chief William Lynch, that the death had occurred yesterday in Watertown, N.Y., of Mrs. James Lynch, a sister-in-law. The late Mrs. Lynch who died following an illness of four days, was a former Belleville resident and was Miss Maud Priest prior to her marriage. Fire Chief and Mrs. Lynch left immediately for Watertown where they attended the obsequies of the late Mrs. Lynch.

Journeys Third of Distance Around Earth And is Reunited with Sister in Belleville Whom She Has Not Seen in Fifty - One Years

On Saturday of last week shortly after the palatial ocean liner "Duchess of Richmond" had eased her way into her berth in Montreal, a tall distinguished looking lady made her way slowly down the gangplank.

She scanned the crowd of people waiting on the dock with a keen eye. A young man touched her on the arm. "Aren't you Mrs. A. Pennyy?" he asked. "I am" she smiled in reply. "Well" the young man said "I am your nephew Frank Bateman. Dad is over here". A few minutes later Mr. Henry Bateman Sr., of 171 Station Street, Belleville was shaking the hand of a sister-in-law to whom he said goodbye just fifty-one years ago in Nottingham, England. Nearby stood Mrs. Frank Parnell, Mrs. Bateman's daughter, who accompanied her father to Montreal.

"Why, Henry, you haven't changed a bit" Mrs. Penny smiled in response to his greeting.

A Touching Reunion

Yet more touching was the meeting of the two sisters a few hours later, Mrs. Bateman who was content to her home with illness was unable to meet her sister upon her arrival in Montreal.

"I wouldn't have known her", Mrs. Bateman said, "I felt so funny all over when you first met. It's fifty-one years since we saw each other and much has happened in that time."

Mr. and Mrs. Bateman came to Canada shortly after their marriage in 1886 and have lived here ever since. Mrs. Penny was the sister with whom they then bade a tearful goodbye has travelled thousands of miles and seen much of the world since that day.

Journeyings About World

In a soft voice with the quaint South African accent sounding strange amid Canadian surroundings, this fine English woman told of her journeying in various parts of the world, prior to her decision to visit the sister she has not seen for over half a century.

Nine days after spent eight years in Merico, she came to Durban, the port of the province of Natal, South Africa as her home. And I think Canada is lovely, that is, what I have seen of it, she smiled. "I have only been here a few days you know. The people all seem so nice, and they all seem to have such an hospitable air. It is so different from South Africa. It is refreshing and cool, for I have just come from the place which I experienced the hottest heat I have in 63 years".

Mrs. Penny's Career as Nurse

Mrs. Penny left England for South Africa, as a graduate from Greys Hospital as a student nurse and graduating from there four years later. It was here that she saw war service during the Boer War. Later she met Godfrey Penny, a member of the Natal Mounted Police whom she married.

Leaving for Aira Libra, Mexico, some years later, her husband contracted a fever and died three three weeks after their entry into the country. Here she was met by to Mrs. Penny. Later she went to Mexico City staying there for a period of eight years. Then homeland and the sunny clime of her native South Africa called to her and she went back to the place she loves so well. In March of this year she once more left for England and took passage on the Duchess of Richmond for Canada lady made her way slowly down the gangplank.

She scanned the crowd of people waiting on the dock with a keen eye. A young man touched her on the arm. "Aren't you Mrs. A. Penny?" he asked. "I am" she smiled in reply. FRED STODDARD DOUGLAS

President-Elect of Belleville Rotary Club, who will assume office July 1, with the following officers:

Vice President—Joe Shortt, Past President.

Executive—Archie Cameron, Ivr. Hefkey, Fred Deacon, Perc. McGuire.

Secretary—Mac Haig.

Treasurer—Steele Pryal.

Fred Stoddard Douglas, who will preside over the activities of Belleville Rotary Club for the ensuing year, is a very popular young business man, and has been connected for the past six years with the Garage Supply Company, of Toronto, Hamilton and Belleville. He was born in Glenwood, Wisconsin, of Scotch parents, his father having been born in Caithness. He is married to Florence Knowles, and has attained to the Scottish Rite in Masonry. During the three years he resided in Toronto he was active in business and social circles, and there is no doubt but that under his leadership the Rotary Club will go on to even higher levels of usefulness in community service.

Mr. Douglas served overseas in the Great War as Lieutenant in the 1st Battalion, was wounded, gassed and passed through the many phases of army life with the usual vicissitudes, but never losing his genial cheerful nature.

tial liner "Duchess of Bedford". Crowds of people milled on the dock as they to passengers already on board. Securing permission from the authorities to inspect the vessel, Mrs. Parnell, Mr. Bateman and party boarded the liner.

Suddenly the grasped her father by the arm. "Look", she exclaimed, "Dad is over by the rail. And that someone we know?"

Standing by the rail of the deck above them, gazing at the lively scene being enacted before him was George Pepper, the Canadian Motor Cycle champion, who was enroute to the International races being held shortly in the Isle of Man.

"Hey, George". Mrs. Parnell called. Turning quickly the youngster recognized the Bateman party and a brilliant smile transfigured his face.

"Gee," he breathed. "You folks didn't come all the way from Belleville to see me off, did you? "No, George, but we are awfully glad to see you just the same."

"The boy was delighted". Mr. Bateman stated afterward. "He had a sort of lonely look on his face as he stood at the rail gazing at the crowd but changed his expression when he recognized us. It seemed to do him a lot of good to see someone from home."

HORTICULTURIST PRAISES PROJECT

J. F. Clark of The Dept. of Agriculture Speaks to Large Gathering

Lauding the Belleville Beaches project as "A monument on the landscape" Belleville for which her citizens will be justifiably proud in years to come," Mr. J. F. Clark, official representative of the Department of Agricultural and Horticultural Societies of the Ontario Government, urged the members of the local Y's Men's Club to lend their support to the project as he appeared at that club as guest speaker last evening to speak on "Trees and Their Value." With delegations from the City Council, Chamber of Commerce, the Beaches Committee and the Y's Men as hosts Mr. Clark delivered a highly educational, illustrated lecture, using beautiful colored slides to assist in his address on trees.

"Trees are the oldest living things on earth. As an illustration I give you the General Sherman tree in California, known to be 4,000 years old. This is the most gigantic plant life we have, however in no unbelievable heights in some parts of this universe. Nature is naturally ornamental and in every climate trees are supplied with outstanding ornamentals," explained Mr. Clark. "Trees are referred to as appalling use trees are put to in providing food, rubber, dyes, drugs, manufactured goods and for the numerable uses for which man is so expensive today.

Showed Many Scenes

In his illustrated lecture Mr. Clark showed scenes from many parts of the universe, where trees predominated in supplying tree needs, beautifications and other features of man. "There are two ways in which the trees are rapidly disappearing first—through the magnitude of our timber business accordy by forest fires," explained the speaker as he urged reforestation and also the discontinuance of unnecessary trees at Christmas time. "Last Christmas 6,000 fir trees were cut down in this province alone," revealed the speaker.

"You have an ideal location for your proposed project in Belleville and I urge your committee to add dignity to your beautification plan by the planting of different kinds of trees. The cost is small, but the reward is beyond comprehension. Following the lightning address on behalf of the club members, President Jack Wilson was in the chair.

Re-Elect Officers

Following the address the Y's Men's Club of Belleville held their annual meeting at which they elected the coming semester with the entire slate of officers, who have carried on so efficiently during the past year, being returned to office almost by acclamation.

The officers of the Belleville Y's Men's Club for 1937-38 will be: President—Jack Wilson; Vice-President—Alex Weir; Secretary—Lorne McDougall; Treasurer—Ted Powell's Directors—Herb Muir, Harold Vanallen, R. Lee Worden, Dawson Boyd and J. Z. Shortt.

Canadian Garden Service 1937

By Gordon Lindsay Smith

When an abundance of flowers for bouquets are wanted, experienced gardeners often grow these in a special place. Usually a portion of the vegetable garden or even at the back may be reserved for this purpose. Some well designed beds of mixed annuals are spoiled if too many flowers are picked and then there are unsightly gaps. Cutting sweet peas, for instance, that have little stalks leaves only a few useful blooms. These might as well be grown behind the regular beds.

Suitable flowers for cutting are as follows:

Dwarf — Pansies, Nasturtiums, Marigolds, Calendula, Calliopsis.

Medium — Cosmos, Zinnias, Asters, Scabious, Sweet Peas, Aster, Coreopsis, Dianthus, Gaillardia, Mignonette, Shasta Daisies.

Very long stemmed — Gladiolus, Larkspur, Snapdragon, Dahlia, Delphiniola, Baby's Breath, Sunflowers, Chrysanthemums, Lupins, Vines

Climbing plants or vines play an important part in any scheme of landscape gardening, adding a finishing touch to wall, fence or verandah that is not possible by any other means. There is a misfalsen idea that such plants may be harmful to trick or stone work but we have buildings in the old lands which have been supporting vines for centuries and the walls under these green mantles are said to be in excellent state of preservation. Aside from the fact that climbers add a little treasure to the job of painting the woodwork around doors and windows, authorities claim that there are no harmful effects whatever but on the other hand there are several substantial advantages.

A house with the walls well screened with Boston Ivy in the colder sections of Canada the barrier to insects and heat is very great. Creeper, is much cooler in the hot summer days than without and the sun does not reach heat absorbing brick or stone. As for verandahs the advantages of shade, coolness and privacy of such natural screens for outdoor living are detailed explanation.

Rather a host of permanent material at the disposal of the gardener. In the warmer districts the list of vines and Clematis Jackmanii Ivy with its glossy green foliage in summer which bears a brilliant red after the first frost is an ideal climber for walls of buildings. Like the Virginia Creeper which is hardier and comes in both red and yellow-tinged leaves it is a quicker grower when once established and will cover a wall up to 50 to 60 feet high. Dutchman's Pipe, Trumpet Vine and Clematis are suitable for verandahs. These should be grown on trellises or wires. The yield of blue and white flowers and effective foliage. Honeysuckle, the first two in the group

Productive Vegetables

Vegetables grown should be very productive affairs and from a fraction of an acre of ground, ten rows, the yield of which at one time would result from a similar area under ordinary conditions. Where space is limited it is possible to grow these crops among the borders of Canada where the summer season is inclined to be short. This will be used and out of the way.

MR. AND MRS. VIVIAN BIDDEN FAREWELL

On Monday evening, April 26th, friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Vivian, Shannonville, to bid them farewell before their departure to Toronto where they intend to reside. Mr. Vivian having bought a home there.

The early part of the evening was spent at cards and later the gathering was called to order and the following address was read by Mrs. Harry Murphy and Mrs. R. Elliott made the presentation to them of a beautiful Gindreed lighting floor lamp.

To Mr. and Mrs. Earl Vivian and Tommy:

It is with thoughts of deep regret that we, your friends and neighbors have learned of your intended departure from our midst and we have taken this opportunity of invading your home tonight to spend another social evening with you.

You have always been willing to render every service in your community and all requests made of you have met with a hearty response. We are sorry to have you go from us and we are going to miss your neighborly kindness and genial friendship.

As anytime we shall be pleased to have you with us whenever occasion permits with the assurance of a warm welcome awaiting you.

We will always be glad to hear good reports of your success and prosperity and now as a slight token of our esteem we ask you to accept this small gift, and as the rays of light brighten your pathway may it ever remind you of your Shannonville friends.

Our best wishes follow you to your new home. May you be spared to enjoy long years of health and prosperity.

Signed, on behalf of your friends, Mrs. G. Elliott and Mrs. H. Murphy.

SHANNONVILLE W. M. S.

The Monthly Meeting of the W. M. S. of the United Church of Shannonville met at the home of Mrs. Harry Sheffer on Thursday afternoon, May 6th with Mrs. Orval Stration, Group Leader, in charge of Mrs. H. Sheffer presiding at the piano. After the opening hymn all joined in repeating the Lord's Prayer. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Orval Stration. The devotional period entitled Jesus and Youth was read by the President, Mrs. (Rev.) Clark who also led in prayer and took charge of the business part of the meeting. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary and adopted. Mrs. Sam Elliott and Mrs. Frank Doxtator were appointed to buy material to be made up for the bale while the supply work each member being asked to please contribute ten cents for these purposes at the June meeting. Roll was called and response to it was given in verse containing the word "Mother." Mrs. L. E. Mills sent her thanks by the Clerk for the card of sympathy she received from the Society at the time of her recent bereavement in the loss of her sister. A beautiful "Mother's Day" reading was given by Mrs. Orval Stration. Readings prepared from the Study Book by Mrs. W. G. Ketcheson and Mrs. Charles Bolstridge, Mrs. George Pringle and Mrs. Sam Elliott and Mrs. Frank Doxtator. Three verses of "God Save the King" and the benediction closed the meeting. Collection was $3.10 and for Mission fund 40 cents. Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and a happy social time spent over the tea-cups.

TENDERS FOR COAL AND COKE

SEALED Tenders addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tenders for Coal" will be received until 12 o'clock noon (daylight saving), Tuesday, June 1, 1937, for the supply of coal and coke for the following institutions throughout the Province of Ontario.

Forms of tender with specifications and conditions attached can be obtained from the Purchasing Agent, Department of Public Works, Ottawa; and the Supervising Architect, 36 Adelaide St. East, Toronto, Ont.

Tenders should be made on the forms supplied by the Department and in accordance with departmental specifications and conditions attached thereto.

In the case of tenderers quoting for one or more places or buildings and when the total of their offer exceeds the sum of $2,000.00, they must attach to their tender a certified cheque, or a Dominion Government in Canada, made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to 10 per cent of the amount of the tender, or Bearer Bonds of the Dominion of Canada or of the Canadian National Railway Company and the constituent companies, unconditionally guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Dominion of Canada, or the aforementioned bonds and a certified cheque if required, to make up an odd amount.

The Department also reserves the right to demand from any successful tenderer a security deposit, in the form of a certified cheque or bond as above, equal to 10 per cent of the amount of his tender, to guarantee the proper fulfilment of the contract.

By order,
J. M. SOMERVILLE,

Hamilton, Ont., May 11 (CP)—When 15-year-old Jack Thompkinson got off his bicycle to pick up a copper he dropped, he did not find the cent—but picked up a wallet containing $27 instead. He took it home and told his mother then notified the police. They found it a banker's delivery boy had dropped it.

IN MEMORIAM

WESTOVER—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Loretta Westover, who departed this life May 11, 1931. We offer tribute by lining the last stanza of her favorite hymn:

Our beautiful home beyond,
That blissful moment when aside
These earthly robes we cast,
And rise to know as we have reached
Our better home at last.
—Reverently remembered by her Family.

DEATHS

ANDERSON—At the family residence, 7th Concession Tyendinaga Township, on Monday, May 10th, 1937, Rhoda Ann Anderson, in his 72nd year.
The funeral will take place from the above address on Wednesday, May 12th. Service in the home at 2 p.m. Interment Riverview cemetery, Napanee. m11-1i

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair after supper. Life is short and time is fleeting and getting faster every day. If I could manage to get myself out of bed an hour earlier every morning I'd have a whole extra working day every week to be alive instead of asleep in. But perhaps you've heard me mention something like that before, he said.

Many a time and oft, hee hee, ma said.

Morning pop is always tawking about getting up earlier and never doing it, and he said, by golly I'm going to always up brite and early and they dont seem any the werse for it.

That's rite, they're among the happiest of men, ma said, and pop said, I wonder if they're happy cuz they get up early or cuz it's on account of whether they get up early because they're happy? I'm going to experiment because if you dont get up in a cheery mood you're sure to get cheerful as the rest of the day, so in that case it would be better to get to be played by, and I'd get up at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning if I was sure I'd feel like it, he said.

For heaven sakes dont try it if you're going to try to sing like a berd, ma said. I mean, after all, I said, the 6 o'clock alarm clock, so supposing I take it to bed and set it at 6 and then come down to your room and wake you up nice and easy by whispering hay pop pay pop in one ear till you open one eye? I said, and pop said, but could I wake up cheerfully, knowing that you had interrupted your good 8 hours sleep for me and thanks just the same.

Pepie that dont want to get up are always ready with a ready excuse, ma said.

Pop kept on and being the end of the subject.

Chicago, May 11 (AP)—James Igoe, 6-year-old Jack Thompkinson Thornton Farrel Prowers, is a true lover of nature.

His mother robin made her nest in the frame of an idle county road grading machine in the suburb and began laying eggs. Grading was about to begin, but Igoe ordered the crew to let the machine stand until the young robins are hatched and able to leave their nest.

Making it Easy to "Live With" Your Car

Do you still feel that an automobile is "a rich man's plaything?" You'd be surprised at how little it costs to own and operate a car if you have a real car and give it a real chance to perform at its best.

Most car owners expect always to have a car—have come so to depend on it that the car is as much a part of life as home and food. They "live with" their cars.

And those who buy cars and the things a car needs here find that we make it easy to "live with" a car. A good car plus good supplies, accessories and service make for economical, happy motoring.

Come in and see the new Pontiac, Mc-Laughlin-Buick and the kind of a place where cars are sold and serviced so as to render constant and lasting satisfaction in ownership.

AT THE BELLE
"Wake Up And Live"

In "Wake Up And Live" the Coronation show at the Belle theatre starting tomorrow (Wednesday) matinee daily, with Walter Winchell, Ben Bernie and Alice Faye in the featured roles. Twentieth Century-Fox believes that it has the sweetest, hottest, most glamorous and glorious musical ever turned out by that studio.

Eclipsing even such sweigaway musicals as "On the Avenue," "Coming In a Million" and "Sing, Baby, Sing" this new filmusical brings the famed Winchell-Bernie feud to the screen in an eyefilling production that lays strong claim to being the hotcha-tones of them all.

"Wake Up and Live" offers not only the intriguing spectacle of Winchell and Bernie feuding face-to-face, but also the singing, dancing and emoting of Alice Faye, lovelier and more affecting than ever; the laugh provoking antics of Patsy Kelly, Ned Sparks and Jack Haley; and nine smash song hits by those kings of songwriting, Gordon and Revel.

The riotous intrigue involving Winchell and Bernie is the background of "Wake Up and Live," which tells the story of a small time vaudeville team in which Jack Haley who mulls his big radio opportunity, and Alice Faye, who besets "mike fright" and fakes away. Grace Bradley, the vampire, deserts him for Walter Catlett, a booking agent who gets her a night club job.

Haley's sister, Patsy Kelly, is Walter Winchell's "Girl Friday," and through her he gets a look as a uniformed guide at Radio Center. There he meets and pesters Ben Bernie, selling him an occasional "gag," but there also he meets the "Wake Up and Live Girl" of radio, Alice Faye, who sets out to help him overcome his mike fright.

While listening to the Bernie radio program one night, Haley is inspired by the music to step up boldly to a microphone in a deserted control room. He sings alone with the orchestra, unaware that he is on the air, and the station is deluged with a flood of fan mail from widely enthusiastic listeners.

Unfortunately, however, no one knows the identity of the "Phantom Troubadour" and Haley eventually sets the search himself. The Old Maestro attempts to pass off the unknown singer as a little protege of his own, and uses an impersonator on his next program, but the hoax is quickly exposed by Winchell. As each attempts to get the jump on the other, the station is deluged with a flood of fan mail from widely enthusiastic listeners.

By accident, Alice Faye discovers Haley's part in the commotion. But Catlett and Grace Bradley have also suspected, and they kidnap the comprehending Phantom. There ensues a hilarious chase ending up in a gale floor-show finale at Winchell's night club, where Winchell, in a rapid-fire news broadcast, flashes the hectic developments in his situation to his radio audience as fast as they occur.

"Wake Up and Live" owes a lot to swingsong hits turned out by Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, who contributed "Never in a Million Years," "It's Been Nice to You," "I'm Bubbling Over," "There's a Lull in My Life," "Wake Up and Live," "Ooh, But I'm Happy," "I Feel Like a Feather in the Breeze," "Muchacha," "Red Seal Mail," and "Bernie's Love Song."

Lyan Ray, Joan Davis, Douglas Fowley and Ralph Mander also are featured in this lively musical.

A clever M.G.M. Miniature "What Do You Think," "Blood of the Danube" a refreshing Revue, and "Saratoga Summers" revealing sport events with Bill Corum as commentator completes the program. The feature attraction begins at 7.40 and 9.46 p.m.

A player doesn't exactly turn a deaf ear to the teachers' advice, but it would be mighty hard to find just where he is paying any attention to some instructions.

A wise instructor will tell his pupils not to stand over the ball too long before swinging. Yes, he'll tell them, but they'll stand there just the same. Why? Certainly not to ignore the teacher, but in effect they do. They figure that they must get set, be fully prepared before starting the club back from the ball.

Invariably this preparation takes quite a time. The other players—particularly my pro—can see that the pupil becomes more tense, the longer he stands over the ball. Out of consideration for others on the course, as well as yourself, you should cut down the time taken to address the ball to the very minimum.

Beyond a certain time you are bound to lose by delaying your backswing. Furthermore, you can never feel fully prepared to make a perfect shot. Start the club back, take off while your mid-section is free and comfortable. This is the best preparation you can have.

Next: Proper Use of Muscles.

A's are Deadlocked for First Defeating Tigers as Indians Keep Pace by Taking Boston

Monte Pearson Throws One-Hitter in Defeating White Sox

PIRATES STILL LEAD

Van Mungo Also Chalks up Fourth Straight in Taming Cards

(By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer)

All but one of their winning pitchers are strangers to the Major Baseball Leagues. In only three of their 14 games has a starting pitcher finished. Yet today Philadelphia Athletics, frequently lambasted this season as ragged-trousered urchins clinging to Connie Mack's hand, remain deadlocked with the Cleveland Indians at the head of the American League parade.

While the Indians were winning their fifth straight yesterday, 6-5, because Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox heard a double play ball wild in the 11th inning, the A's kept step by turning back Detroit Tigers, 4-3.

Victory was the second for Lubber Pearson. Two victories each also are credited to Al Williams, Custer and Harry Kelley. Yet, of the foursome, only Kelley has big league background. He won 15 games for Milwaukee in the 30-year-old "Rookie" who is a minor league veteran.

Defeat for the Tigers, their third in a row, ended Gerald Walker's extended hit hitting streak to 12 games, combined with the Yank's 7-0 shutout of the White Sox as Monte Pearson hurled the first one-hit game of the season brought the two into a tie for third place.

Dilleagin Helps

Pearson got able assistance from Joe Dilleagin, with his first two homers of the year; George Selkirk, with his fifth, and himself. By the victory Pearson helped win his third straight by getting three hits and driving in two runs. The only disturbing note to the Yankee cause was an injury to catcher Bill Dickey. Hit in the arm by a pitched ball, the hard-hitting receiver may be out for two weeks.

In the other American League game, Julio Bonetti shut out the Senators with two hits for eight innings, was relieved by Hildebrand and as many runs in the ninth, bro lasted to lift the Browns out of the cellar with a 6-3 triumph, his first of the year.

National League

The Pirates kept up their terrific pace in the National League. Swift's eight-hit, six-strikeout, no-base-on-balls pitching set back the Bees, 4-1, made it three straight for the Bucs and four successive whalings for Casey.

Handsome pitching also marked two other Nationals league battles. Van Mungo stopped the Cardinals with four hits and so inspired his Dodger mates, that they played their best ball for the first time this season, to down the bees to win 8-2. Bucky Walters also tamed the Reds with four hits as the Phillies came out of a four-game losing streak with a 10-3 triumph over Cincinnati and Clyde Shoun, with home run assistance from Augie Galan and Ripper Collins, pitched the Cubs to a 4-3 decision over the Giants.

New York, May 11.—(AP)—Lou Ambers wants Pedro Montanez and will cancel that European jaunt if they can get Pedro for an outdoor shot here.

MONTREAL CLUB DEFEATS ORIOLES

Baltimore Picked to Win Pennant Picked Deep in Cellar

(By the Associated Press)

Lo, the poor Orioles!

Baltimore, the experts' choice to win the International baseball league pennant, sink lower and lower into the circuit's cellar, their hitting muffled and their pitching baffling while a bunch of upstarts, principally the Toronto Maple Leafs, take turns at leading the league.

The Orioles latest indignity was suffered at the hands of the Montreal Royals yesterday. Baltimore dropped a 2-1 decision to Leart Mytkanicz and Bill Beckmann as the Royals won easily, 3-1.

Mytkanicz limited the Orioles to a three-way tie with Syracuse and Rochester for fourth place. It was the only game in the league. Games at Rochester, between the Wings and Newark Bears, and at Buffalo, between the Bisons and Jersey City, were postponed because of cold weather.

Yesterday's Stars

Between the Lines

with
Ken J. Colling

Coach "Twig" Woodley, of the local junior ball squad is between the devil and the deep blue sea, he thinks. Skipper Woodley unearthed a cracking good short-stop last night, one of those kids who can field on both sides and possesses a rare feature in juniors, a good throwing arm. Woodley was patting himself on the back and gloating over his good fortune when suddenly his dream-child or bubble broke wide open when Manager Bill Cook informed him, that the rookie in question was under the thumb of the Pinkies club for the past two seasons, but is still of junior age. It is almost a certainty that Manager Dr. Harry Blakely will not want to cut loose his star short stop and break up his champion infield of 1936, but there's one consolation for Skipper Woodley, he may be able to use Guay during the junior O.B.A.A. play-downs, even if they is virtually the mythical property of Foxboro, "I'd sure like to this Guay up for the regular season, though," lamented Coach, Woodley after being disillusioned.

The present weather conditions are anything but favorable to baseball practice, but should be ideal for lacrosse work outs. Just when the local gutted-stick artists expect to get in their training period before opening the season revives the seasoned 47ers on Victoria Day, we can't seem to ascertain. There was no evidence of lacrosse practice at the Collegiate campus last evening, although for two hours after school closed the grounds was dotted with youthful manipulators of the gutted-stick. There was a large delegation of Collegiate students looking at the display last night when "Red" Townsend had his Asimos Club juniors in one corner of the lot. Skipper Bawden was coaching his Corbins crew against Reg Hardwick's Percival Store in another corner so after all is said and done it looks like the game of softball, that was first introduced by the girls, is to be the leading sporting attraction in Belleville this summer. To finish it would ever come to that.

Art Ogle informs us he has 30 entries for the Coronation Day tennis tournament up at the Bay or Quinte Country Club. This tournament will get under way immediately after lunch and is a handicap play. The regular district schedule will commence on Victoria Day, however.

Local golfers have been availing themselves of whatever fine weather has been available this season. Wally Waldorf informing us he played a round of golf on the Belleville links every month this year. Incidentally one of the sports features of the early part of the golf season in Ontario will be the third annual Hiram Walker Invitation Tournament, to be conducted by Jackson Walton, who has successfully supervised these events since their inception in 1935. The tournament attracts the largest entry of any golf event in Canada. Simply because links are open or entrance fees charged. This year it will be necessary to utilize two courses, St. Andrew's golf club and the Lakeview Golf and Country Club, both of Toronto. Golfers throughout the district are urged to read the printed conditions that have been posted on all club bulletin boards for further information. The first round opens on Thursday, May 20th. If no entry forms are available locally, we have one that is available to any local golfer desirous of competing in this major event.

As is the authenticity of the following story we cannot vouch, but it was told to us at the trials and doubtless is partially so. It seems George Pepper rode down to Montreal in a transport, with his Norton motorcycle in a transport following and Gord Hay's new 2 seater fog along the St. Lawrence last Friday afternoon, the latter carrying Geoney's machine was held up for a number of hours, being many hours behind the others, and in which George was riding. At any rate George arrived at the Montreal docks and prepared to embark on the Duchess of Bedford, but no motorcycle was in sight, so he had waited not as long as he could and boarded the Duchess-Duke depressed owing to the absence of his machine. As a matter of fact the anxiety became so acute, that George was in a hurry view, as the crew had, long before sounded... "All ashore that's goin' ashore"... and the gangplank was drawn in. George had visions of leaving his machine behind, as the crew cast-off, when suddenly the transport appeared on the dock. Deckhands... lowered the vessel's steam boiler hooked on the machine and swung it aboard and as the boat was ready to push off, the doubtedly George slept more peacefully Saturday night than he did Friday night, while worrying about his machine. But he got here no matter how you look at it, but it is second-handed.

Secretary Harry Knott released the draft, yesterday of the Belleville Senior Softball Association today. The schedule calls for 45 games in all, commencing on Coronation Day with a triple-header and terminating on July 30th, to be followed by the league playoffs. The new district, Coleman Plan is supposed to be ready for opening day, the softballers hope.

"Duke" Smith and Harry Whalen launched the Joks over the week end and they are the "pride of the bay" is in splendid shape and should be a tough competitor this previous years. Skipper Callaghan's After You, Harry Semark's Alaska and Gord Hay's new 2 seater will all be in the swim and out to beat the Joks this year, incidentally the Belleville Yacht Club will hold impromptu races off Victoria Park on Wednesday to usher in the season.

A hit by Rosenthal, White Sox centre fielder, Sunday helped Monte Pearson of a "no-hitter" at the Yankee Stadium—yesterday when Rupert's Rifles mashed the Sox 7-6. The Athletics and Indians still top the American League, however, as the Pirates widened the breach in the senior loop to lead their pursuers

"Just as good as VEEDOL"

Every day throughout Canada, motorists are offered substitutes—"just as good as VEEDOL". Dealers who make this claim merely emphasize the fact that VEEDOL is the standard of comparison by which other oils are judged. VEEDOL'S 10-Day Trial offers you an opportunity to know VEEDOL quality, without risking a cent.

VEEDOL'S MAKE-GOOD OFFER! Have any Veedol dealer drain and refill your crankcase with correct grade VEEDOL Motor Oil. Ask for correctly filled-out signed sales slip. Drive your car 10 days, then, if you don't say VEEDOL is the finest motor oil you ever used . . . we'll make good. Simply mail your sales slip to us with request for crankcase filling of any kind you choose. We will promptly fill your crankcase with that oil, without it costing you a cent. "Russia!" Carl picked up three cards and counted them. He made his soup with a consah of his hands. "How there's a country for you. Honestly Georgeanne, I envy your the ideas. Every man should have work. Every woman should work. Every child should work. What do we put our chaps know about work? And as for the women, to be honest, Susan, did you have breakfast in bed?"

"Not this morning," said Susan. "But to-morrow I will."

"Sure. And why? The little housework our women do—lord! a man could get it done in an hour a day. He raised his hand to silence Susan who was beginning to throw sparks. "Oh yes, Susan, I know you are going to tell me that a woman's work is never done, and all like that of that poppycock. And lord, that's true enough. Why? Because the women don't use their heads. They don't organize their day, they don't use their minds. Women are essentially clutter-brained. If they can't find anything to do, they make work. Look at this table. Now, Susan, look honestly at it. Isn't most of dishes you don't need. What's that for? My butter. Why not have butter on a separate plate? What's the maid for? To bring in food in one dish. Then she takes it out again. Not a holler dish. Just a different dish. Another dish to wash. Useless work. What do you think I caught Alais here doing the other night? He paused, but nobody answered. "A hooked rug! To add all over the food and anyway, you can buy a better one for half a dollar."

"What do I do?" Susan's voice was thin and tense. "I do all I can. I refuse to believe that I could have married a man who has no use for her mind. Thank you, Susan. Don't wait. I've finished my soup. I'm not much for gossip, you know."

"About Russia—" said Alan McCleig.

"How Russia!" Carl Kingsbury's voice rose and his blue eyes deepened and intensified, "No foothalcsem of how Russia is run. Sit down there. Why, McCleig, if I had my druthers I'd go to Russia myself. I'd go in a minute. A great— a tremendous—experiment there, and what has the world been doing? Haggling into its soft bed and pulling the sheet over its head for fear it might see something."

"So dost not think Russia has just another great 'free' country like ours," said Susan. "Full of graft, and people needing charity and all people, I can live without Russia in my life." Her face curtains.

Carl turned and favored Susan with a tolerant smile. Then he turned back to Alan. He jerked his head backward to indicate the two women. "You see, Alan? What's our world coming to when our women are like that? A reputation is there bigger than ours, trying the great experiment of modern times —and what's our women do? Talk about it".

"Kerin, I thought you'd been to Russia—several times , in fact." Susan's voice was cold.

"With my father, yes. But that was ten—twelve years ago." Kerin's quick voice was full of apology. "I don't know anything about Russia, really."

"Oh, you don't?" said Susan. "Anyway, not as much as Carl does."

Carl refused baited squash with a wave of his hand. "Come, come, all you. Stats? Or was it sixteen? Anyway, a baby in the cradle, I've no doubt. Sue, with a head worried by the social and economic conditions of the country."

"Russia—" began Alan McCleig.

"No—I don't want to discuss it. I've been wanting to ask you, Carl; how are your sisters coming on?"

"My sisters? Mine? Why not yours, Susan? Why throw on me the responsibility for a condition like theirs on my shoulders?"

"They are broad enough—"

"And hot enough. Excuse me, will you, I'll take off my coat. I'll make you a proposition, Alan. You give me ten per cent. of your profits to heat bill for my sister's families. Why, it might up to keep a family of ten in luxury. Well, now, by luxury I don't mean lace curtains and cretonnes or mean plush tables in bags, a little meat once in a while. Not you toast—and not always those little things, Susan? Do you mind telling me?"

"Mushrooms," said Susan sweetly, "and I hope not against your principles of economy."

"Not in the least, my dear Susan. I don't bring them into intelligent use of money on my friends." He grinned broadly, anticipating her retort.

THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

Their Majesties Enjoy a Formal Evening Party

With the many demands upon his time augmented at present by last-minute preparations for the May 12 pageant, there doubtless is not a busier man in London than Sir Percy Loraine, British Ambassador to Italy. Public appearances of the royal couple since their accession to the throne have been few and far between, as the great press of work that descended like an avalanche upon them when they became the King and Queen took their attention. Time for purely pleasure outfits there has been none.

Though as the Duke and Duchess of York they acquired a reputation of a home-loving couple, to say that this popular pair shun public appearancy keeps on formal occasions, is far from the fact. Called upon often even after very varying demands for his presence, the Duke long ago learned to wait well defined schedule that enabled him to discharge fittingly his royal duties and still find time to enjoy his home life and his family. His success in this respect is evidenced by the busy executive who has not learned to unwind.

The King has never been a lover of the "night lights", but on the other hand he is far from the retiring and self-effacing personality that he was pictured. In the old days when 145 Piccadilly was the address and not Buckingham Palace, the Duke and Duchess were often seen enjoying the theatre or a concert or attending a dinner party of some close friend. To-day's picture catches them in one of their less formal moments on such an occasion.

Queen took not as well known on the dance floor as his brothers, his majesty enjoys dancing; he likes music and prefers good but light programs. He is interested in art and science and has a well-known bent for mechanical study often keeps him up evening.

But if the after work hours are few and no notable attraction draws their majesties enjoy the quiet of their own fireside with their children or a radio program as entertainment. The King, according to London report, fell a few years ago under the crossword puzzle spell and spend many an hour in the pastime. His varied experience in almost every conceivable branch of his profession, and life, with opportunity he has had to meet people varying people, must have given him a healthy vocabulary from which to draw.

The interest in public apart from the formal engagements that they cannot hope to evade, will of course be even more limited in the future by the widening and broadening of the esteem that they have won or shirking the responsibilities that they have assumed. In addition, the charming couple have long ago disproved any possible feeling that they are not good "miners".

Next: Seeing England.

three indifferent meals and making three beds and doing a few dishes a day? Say, don't you get a laugh. Any woman ought to do that—yes, with a child, I can see 'child in your eye, Susan—in an hour—two hours a day. Come now, Susan—be sensible. I work for that money. Do you stop to realize how hard we men in the university faculty do work? You ought in. On the nights when I come by here at midnight Alan's light here is still burning. What are you doing? Aren't you in bed reading a magazine? Be honest, Sue. Do Alan and I have time to run around to tea and dinner parties afternoon? Do you realize that I'm taxed to work till ten o'clock tonight because men have got to humor their women-folks once in a while?" He turned to Alan, who was shifting his coffee and not looking up. "Don't we, Alan? Married men, aren't we? I should say so." He turned back to Susan. "No, my dear Susan, Kerin cannot afford a few thousand dollars a year that easy."

"Carl!" asked Susan sweetly. "You call it easy? Living with you?"

Carl wagged a loose finger at Susan. "Now, now, Susan. Mustn't get personal. That's the trouble with you women, you can't argue without getting personal."

Susan flashed a glance at her husband, and recanted. "I mean, Carl. Kerin's doing all her own work."

"Why shouldn't she do her own work? Susan, you women make me sick. Are you so weak you can't stay at your post of womanhood without bolstering? Answer me honestly."

"Carl—it isn't that—"

"Oh, it isn't that? Well then, what is it? Come now, Susan, be fair. All the unconquerable dominance of the man poured without stint on the meal that graced the table, riding them down, robbing them of reply. At the same moment, Susan once, he slammed down his hand. "Kerin's work is there because you women been hollering about for ten —twenty—thirty years? The right to work, and you've got it. Here's a career, the right to earn, the right to be equal with men. Well, that's my stand. I'm a modern-minded man. If Kerin has an earning capacity, in her use it. That's all I ask. With Donald in school all day and Alais for almost a day that I've got. If all the job Kerin can do is to keep house, work a day—that's all the money she's earning. Just about her speed, and keep, it's easy. But," he flashed a slow smile about the table at Alan and Susan, "I don't expect a little something else out of my women-folk. Nothing that's worth more than just their board and keep—eh, Alan?" He winked at Alan.

Alan pushed back his chair. "Well—"

Susan pushed back hers with such vigor that it fell over. "By all means—"

In the other room, Carl lit a cigar and sat on one end of the davenport, inviting immediately an absorbed exposition by Alan of his theories on Russia, at battle in Chicago. Plainly the consciousness of Susan and Kerin had left the room together.

Kerin and Susan gravitated to a bench. Susan sat down and began to patter Kerin's. "Don't mind me, Kerin, my dear. I'm in a state. A stormy attitude softening her voice. "You know I'm a glutton for fighting—and I'm not. I'm afraid of anything, really."

Kerin's voice rushed to meet her friend in happy, grateful response. "Carl so loves to argue, you know how it is. It's Carl's principles, really, that make him—and he's wonderful to me. He wants to have people—least of all you—understand that. He's not just loving me, Susan, to anything. I live things to be his way. After all, that's a wife's business, Susan, isn't it? And it's the thing that makes Carl wonderful. He's so strong. You wouldn't have things a little bit his way, Susan, sometimes—" Her voice stopped, tears then rushed on impulsively, "if I only knew what is best for Carl? Carl wanted! But I'm not clever enough, Susan. Sometimes I think I make so many mistakes."

Mistakes. Susan looked at Carl. He was leaning forward, flushed and emphatic; there was something tremendously exciting in the animal magnificence of him, in his fine shoulders, in the line of his throat and muscular moving hands, something compelling in his very size. Susan felt herself shrinking, collapsing of his super-abundant energy, timid, listening to him, fascinated, engrossed. It was always so. Every man Sue knew was a child and needed the tribute of enthusiastic encomium. Sometimes someone would say that Susan was a man's woman. Why shouldn't I be the one to decide, Susan asked, and change my ways. What could be fairer than that?

Susan rose to the challenge. "Well—for one thing: Certainly if Kerin doesn't have a maid she cares —earns, Carl—just as you did, the right to have the money".

Carl threw back his head and shouted in sudden and boisterous amusement.

"Oh, that's good! That's good, that, girl." He rocked his face at Susan. "Eight thousand is my offer, Kerin. Can't you see the smiling that Stats here earns four, cooking

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT

"You'll come to Donald's party, won't you, Susan?" Kerin was saying. "I'm going to make a big chocolate coffee and there'll be plenty of ice cream and cake. Beth said she'd come, and Mrs. Herrick—"

"Oh, no—not Mrs. Herrick! Susan exclaimed absolutely.

"Not Mrs. Herrick? Why, I think she's very nice. Of course I don't know her very well, but—apologetically, I mean, she doesn't seem to have much to say to me—invited me to tea, that time, you remember, and I thought—Don't you think she's rather sweet?"

"Oh—she'll come all right," said Susan, but her heart cried out against it. No, Mrs. Herrick, she wanted to say. Not Mrs. Herrick! Of course she'll come, though Susan's wearily, and talks and gossip and laugh about Mrs. Herrick's party at Kris Kingsbury's, and the terrible flat in the terrible tenements she lived in. Susan's heart cried out.

"Wouldn't have missed it for worlds," she said aloud.

Again, and yet again, thought Susan confusedly, how prudent Kerin is! Why protect Kerin? Why? Because Kerin was her friend: generous, loving, good Kerin.

As abruptly as if, even in the midst of this bewildering with Alan, he had had it all the time in the background of his mind, Carl was on his feet, one hand on the door, looking at her quizzically. She looked up at him. Through the depths of her fatigue, looking up at him, she felt compelled, as by falling pull of those blue eyes awakening her, warning her. It was this man she had married, she recalled, the fact that if Carl chose to exert his will on her he had no power against him. He did it now, and as instinctively as a child Susan felt herself stiffening against him, a stiffening not from fury but against fear.

"Mad at me, Susan? Carl's voice, lowered, had the challenging quality to her. Carl's eyes, looking at one, excluded Kerin, excluded Alan.

"Not mad at you," Susan tried to make her voice sound natural, "but I'm tired. I've had a terribly heavy, prophetic, as if full of unspoken meanings, day. Good-night," she went on, his honesty compelling her. "You exhaust me so. Carl. Good-night, Alan. It just is the logic that converts us. We glib us to bed, Kerin. I'll see you." She seems to me essentially on unfair terms with everything in life—in vitality, such strength, you use it to beat the rest of us down. Just that. Not mad at you, but I wish you use it to beat Kerin down."

Carl's face was thunderous in the room. The simple finality of Susan's words was somehow intensely final. Alan looked uncomfortable and her on flitted from him to Alan with a helpless, appealing glance.

With an abrupt swing Carl turned his back on Susan and began facing her. His look compelled her, his shoulders dominated her; she felt herself being contracted by shadows.

"Look at me, Sue." And looking, she wondered why those blue eyes of Carl's could, at times, look so poor, seemed lonely, and a little pathetic. "I suppose it's true—I am a bully."

"I didn't mean that, Carl,—"

"I mean it, Susan. Sue," Carl interrupted, and Sue felt with a sense of unexpressed irritation that he ward him that killed the half-pity before it was born. "I mean—it's my nature to be a bully. I'm poor by my standards, Sue, I'm a—a rene-gade, living a life of luxury and comfort. Look at me."

She looked, and again the room receded, and she saw Carl's face shaken through his eyes the things he knew.

"Sue, there were eight of us children. I was the eighth. My father was a school teacher in Berea, Kentucky. Eight children—and two thousand dollars a year. That seemed wealth to my family, and my father thought of course we would all go to college. Not to be educated—just automatically. Well, just before it was born his health broke down, and they thought he would be better off on a farm. Poor father! A farm in West Virginia—sold him by mail. There's wonderful farm land in West Virginia, Sue, but not in the part of West Virginia where my father bought his land. The land was there, you had killed and blighted by coal gas, fumes, dust—Well, my father went into the mines, and my two oldest brothers, just kids, they into the mines, too. We lived in a hovel, Sue, you would call it, and my brothers and sisters, and my mother—I was born there, conceived somewhere with coal dust. You think well-bred people can't fall like that, don't you, Sue? My mother was a college girl—but she washed and sewed and cooked and watched her men-folk come back from the mines all black with coal. She never had a slept in the floor, in brothers and I, in blankets that were washed a hundred times and left to grow grayer."

The room was gone. Sue, sitting beside Kerin and with Alan across the room from her, was in the past. Looking into those terribly blue eyes, she saw the dingy smoky town, the dirty grass and stunted trees, and a woman with coal streaks on her face and a child's hand that patted her in love and faith.

"Well, my father got pneumonia, and—we went on the Charities' Do you know what that phrase means? Dad even got a job in the 'Charities'. In Cincinnati. But he got a 'case', Sue, a man of education, poor dead like himself. He needed just a little help to tide him over, my father gave it and didn't make a 'record' of it—didn't mark down on a little white card for the Charity to have a record of, forever, that Carl Kingsbury and his wife had fired. Well, he died, mercifully for him. But my mother lived. My old sister brother married the daughter of the saloon keeper on the corner. That's the only time I ever saw my mother cry, except once when I was a quarter down the street on the way to buy our supper at the grocery, I remember how the wax paper peeled off from the damp plaster in long sheets—we didn't thought it was fun to pull it off. The bigger the sheet that came off, the better. Then I remember a good dog, mush tastes, with molasses on it. Sometimes we have never forgot—how good a whole glass of milk is. I remember a Christmas we kids made all trimmings up mother's ironing board. Fun it was, Sue, but I suffer, because mother and father must have suffered. I'm quiet that way—suffering carelessly, unintelligently. I never step in a bed all alone till I went away to school". Carl paused, and rubbed his hand together before the fire. "Well, I'm a bully, Sue, because I'm determined that spending money for rugs and curtains and a maid is important."

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT

Sue drew a long breath. She came back suddenly and saw the pretty, warm room, the fire, the drawn curtains drawn against the snow, Alan's pipe smoke, the comforting pipe.

Carl, what—what became of them all?"

Carl drew back, and was suddenly human in his fine, strong face. The light back to his blue eyes. "You'd like to know, Susan? Naturally. You want a happy ending Sure you do! You want to know that they all married and lived happily ever after? Well, my mother rode in her on limousine to the cemetery in Berea.

But almost as suddenly as it came, the shocking mood left him. He fell to his feet and found a leather folder, and while they all watched intently he took out a photograph and handed it which was mounted a shiny photograph of a girl, fair, young, aged. He gave it into Sue's hand.

Sue looked at it. A pretty, young girl looked back at her. She looked toward her. The dark eyes looked at her; over the half-bare shoulders two dark curls hung with coquetting curve. Sue pressed her hands to her lips, seeing suddenly across the face a smear of coal dust.

She looked at Carl, and Carl handed the bit of shiny cardboard back to Carl.

SCREEN ACTORS GUILD VOTES FOR STRIKE

James Cagney

Robert Montgomery

Threat of a strike among 5,000 motion picture actors and actresses at Hollywood unless the demand for the minor points of union recognition and better pay were not granted, was made by the Screen Actors' Guild after a strike vote had been circulated among its members. The actors are unsatisfied for better pay for the extras, some of whom are said to receive as low as $3.20 a day. The Guild is asking for a minimum of $25 a day for all players whether they speak a hundred lines or only one. The voting took place at the homes of such famous screen stars as James Cagney, Fredric March and others. Robert Montgomery, Guild president, and James Cagney, first Vice-president, and leading actors on the guild movement, are said to have voted in favor of a closed shop

Kerin squeezed his arm in return. The simple shrewd and free eyes shone. Running beside Carl to keep up with his swinging pace she skipped a little happily.

It was three o'clock in the afternoon, and Kerin Kingsbury, humming tightly, was putting the finishing touches on the party table. It was too small for seven children even with the kitchen table added, and it crowded the little dining-room to its capacity, especially as every part of Donald had been pressed into service, even a surreptitious box for Donald; but it was a pretty table as evidenced by all Kerin's efforts. Covering all discrepancies was a paper cloth, gay and suitable. Candles, stuck on tiny squares of tin Donald had found somewhere, were all lit, replaced the glaring overhead bulbs that Carl insisted upon, and despite their shining points the crude red-papered walls retreated to forgetfulness. Beside each plate an engaging animal had been made of gumdrops: the green caterpillar, guarding his licorice eye and humping his long green length to show an endless number of toothpick legs, was delightfully fearsome; a red lobster was a work of art.

In the centre was a pile of eleven thrilling, white-wrapping packages. Yes, it is was a lovely table, Kerin, flitting about it in her brown dress, felt that it was absolutely perfect, and knew that Donald would think so.

The bell rang, and Kerin's eyes flew to the clock. The children were not due until three, Miss Hall had said, from school. And indeed it was only half past, and stormed with feet; the front room was on the moment a bedlam; the front door was open and children were in the room, and so little did he know of birthday parties that this unexpected shower filled him with consternation and a strange trembling.

Then he saw with that essential of all parties, prizes for everyone, Percy-thirty through Susan and Elizabeth, and at five Mrs. Her-ick came, perfumed and furred and white gay in fashionable clothes, coiled under her tiny tilted hat, her face with rouge and powder and a small, mischievous pleasure. She brushed over Kerin's head, saying something chair, and lit a cigarette, letting her bright eyes roam inquisitively. Then the noisy, shrieking party of eight the next day. "And when they played 'going to Jerusalem' the janitor came up from downstairs, my dear, and said—Kerin, I'm sorry, but to stop'. Oh, my dears, it was priceless."

MARKET COMMENT

The market is not doing much on either side, and the current lethargy may continue for a little time yet. The public has not yet forgotten the sharp break of the past few weeks and a quiet market for a little time may help considerably to dissipate this nervousness.

Weakness yesterday in those local stocks that are listed in London as well can be explained by announcement from the other side that both Canadian subsidiaries had negotiated without failures although thin markets prevailed through a critical point. Many accounts are being carried over and these will be liquidated as opportunities arise. Consequently an immediate resumption of forward movement in London is not at all probable and it is to be more responsible for some of the disappointed selling.

If one thing more than another contributed to the market's collapse it was going on that suddenly across concerning the United States buying power. There, doubts even now have not been entirely removed, and it is scarcely surprising that determined efforts are being made by those chiefly concerned to bring about a revival in countries adhering to the tripartite exchange agreement the need for early international monetary stabilization, a gold basis, is cannot be said that the statement of the Canadian Chief of the Exchequer last week was entirely helpful. Nevertheless, it made a favorable impression as showing stability in the exchanges, as that gold is regarded officially as highly desirable, and as showing that close cooperation still is being maintained with the United States Treasury.

Effect on foreign activities in Wall Street has been astonishing. While one or two issues have been in receipt of a modest daily volume, the investment buying, with those most closely identified with European speculative operations in the United States have had a famine of orders. One of the best-known firms, noted for the size and despatch with which it conducts transactions according from overseas, did not have a single buy or sell order of any description on Thursday and Friday.

The local market today is paying more attention to the trend in London than it is to New York.

Brazilian Traction

Bankers who are well-informed on business conditions in Brazil express the opinion that this country is in for a period of expansion. Closely-quoted are so confident that the proceeds will aid exchange to such an extent that the line may work up around 7 cents. Construction is booming in such centres, as Rio de Janiro and San Paulo. The political situation is the one disturbing factor and it will probably remain this way until the election is over. This is scheduled for next January 1st. Of which is very interesting to the shareholders of the Brazilian Traction, Heat & Power Co. the electrical and gas end of the business is doing excellent and the management is well satisfied with the progress that they are making, and the rate of exchange improving it will be easier for the company to transfer funds to Canada for dividends and interest. While on this subject, altered observers believe that a semi-annual dividend of 50 cents a share will be declared shortly on Brazilian Traction.

On the Street

It is not generally realized that the Dominion of Canada will be 70 years old on July 1st next. ....Spectators are expected at Asbury Park "rights" the last few days in the week of May 17 will advance before the payment for the new shares is due on June 15th.....Several Stock Exchange houses have been approached to let out some of their temporary staff. This is considered a good indication that a quiet market is to be expected. There is a strong opinion that a better feeling will exist for an upward swing in August, but that it will depend on some unforeseen development happening in the interval. Some last $500,000,000 gold has been bought in London for United States account.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, May 11 (AP)— After a quick drop at the opening, stock market leaders righted themselves today and retrieved losses of fractions to 2 or more points in many instances.

Rails and specialties attracted quick-turn traders who apparently decided moderate profits might be available because of the sharpness of yesterday's decline. No material stimulation was found in this action, however.

Bidding was diffident throughout and many issues were behind minus signs near the close of trading.

The ticker tape frequently motionless, trailing at times at the rate of about 800,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, May 11—(CP)—Toronto Exchange listings struggled slowly upward this afternoon, showing an uncertain display in the early trading. Golds rose from one to two points, base metals moderately strong and industrials irregular. Gains predominated in the steels, utilities and oils and foods and the miscellaneous issues showed more losses than gains. There was no inclination to follow prices up and trading tapered down to a dribble of sales in the last hour.

In the close manner net gains were showing for Macassa, O'Brien, Buffalo-Ankerite, Read-Authier, Canadian Malartic, MacLeod-Cockshutt, East Malartic, Stadacona, Moneta, Kirkland Lake, and McKenzie. Wright Hargreaves closed around 6.30 for a net loss of 10 cents.

Among the Utilities gains were posted for Brazilian, Bell Telephone Beauharnois and Winnipeg Electric. B. Power Corporation stood out on the down side with a loss of 1 3-4. Dominion Steel and Coal B and J. Steel had fractions to the good. Massey-Harris Commons and Cockshutt Plow slipped back minor fractions.

SEATS IN STANDS

One of the abiding features of London's great crowds must be their manner of sightseeing. They follow where crowds are slightest and then submerge themselves in the mass drift to gaze around at the decorated streets and at themselves.

Crowds Good Natured

All are good humored, yet the pastime is most fatiguing. Last night Oxford Street, in the vicinity of Selfridge's great decoration scheme, was packed one to the square foot. It was impossible to go against the stream. It took 25 minutes to walk two blocks. And that was fast compared to taxis which were moping along the centre of the street at half a mile an hour.

Rain today slightly eased the pressure in the streets, but doubled it in the subways. Everyone was saying "What a tragedy it will be if it is like this tomorrow." Yes indeed—and going to the procession anyway.

Meanwhile, the general work of the city was slacking. Stores along the coronation route were given over to seat making and the remainder found no buyers, except, of course, night clubs and theatres, while were dizzy and busy.

Police Use Loud Speakers

And the police were testing out their elaborate control schemes, including cars equipped with loudspeakers to warn drivers. Many busy corners, sometimes embarrassingly: "Come along ladies. Don't stand in the middle of the road in groups."

Orders for Wednesday might be summarized as use your feet, head and humor. Everybody there will be some grief and much disappointment, but there has been no lack of warnings of the great crowds which will necessitate early rising.

Indeed many were planning not to sleep tonight and theirs may be the last laugh.

Today's rain played havoc with clothing and other decorations besides streets and on private houses.

Brantford, Ont., May 11 (CP)— Odore of the "Mad Fourth," Sublieutenon G.E.F. will head the Coronation Day parade here tomorrow. President Lieut. G. H. Haig today issued a call for all "Mad Fourth" men to parade at the Dufferin and Halidmand Armories here at 9 a.m. and to act for the Battalion colors.

Parry Sound, Ont., May 11 (CP)— The October-born 1014st Mrs. Hardway will provide, Mrs. Thomas Newburn with double cause for celebration when she gives birth to a baby party is not likely to be as large as the varied interests that draw their Majesties' attention.

We have seen them in the last Empire Day celebrations, the annual development pageant of the Dominion Government, are blissfully unaware of the festivities about to take place in London tomorrow.

The Empire Day celebrations in Elsire Dionne will be three years old May 28 but plans for commemorating the anniversary have not been formulated.

London, May 11—(CP) Havas)— Preparations for the Coronation for the Coronation ceremony was interrupted by the Communist Daily Worker today as an expression of real hunger for comradeship, for a "united front, for better living for a little joy in life."

The appeal was made to sell the Daily Worker along the route of the Coronation procession.

Ottawa, May 11—(CP-Havas)—

(CP-Havas)—Bearing 1,500 pounds of fresh strawberries to be served at Coronation banquets, the first airplane took off here today for London.

London, May 11—(CP-Havas)—A temporary embargo on the influx of private cars—exceeding all ordinary precautions—was imposed here to London authorities as they hastened preparations for tomorrow's Coronation.

The stream of private cars, carrying visitors from country counties who wished to avoid hotel charges by arriving in the capital at the last moment, was causing confusion in the northern section of the city.

London, May 11—(AP)— The crown jewels were in the personal charge of the archbishop behind the drawn shades of a motorcar and under a heavy guard of police.

The Imperial Crown, the queen's ring and the royal scepter were taken to the Abbey from the crown jewelers, where they had been temporarily stored. In the Abbey the jewels were taken from their cases and placed in the dimly-lighted Jerusalem Chamber, where a detachment of Yeomen of the Guard, with tall halberds and wearing tudor uniforms, took up sentry posts.

Toronto, May 11—(CP)— Toronto school children today indulged in patriotic songs and heard special speakers to mark the Coronation of King George VI. Books dealing with the reign of the monarch were distributed to every public school

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Winnipeg, May 11 (CP)— Winnipeg boasts a money-hoarding sparrow with a flair for collecting new cents and dimes.

The sparrow, roaming caves of a house owned by Joseph Bell, Fort Rouge, settled in 1839, among the twigs and nests of the sparrow colony. The coin was marked with the Imperial Russian Eagles and grew tarnished by days. The coins were attached to a chain.

Guelph, Ont., May 11 (CP)— A young duck of unusual build added to the year's growing history was tell the other night. On the Guelph-Preston highway near the Rockwood a Guelph motorist was startled to see the bird fly over a fence and "freeze" in the stare of the headlights in the middle of the road. The motorist managed to stop his car, but the bird, after picking a strikingly-bound plant.

Buffalo, N.Y., May 11 (AP)—A diver donned his underwater gear again today and descended 48 feet into an old rock quarry swimming hole, 30 miles across the Canadian border, searching for a lost railroad.

He hoped to find two locomotives, 100 dump cars, a big water tank and about 15 miles of railroad track, all covered by water for almost 12 years.

Salvage prices for scrap iron caused the salvage attempt. The pump was shut off and water allowed to fill the quarry when steel freight rates rose so much during the Great War that close salvage operations became unprofitable.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Famine

By Albert P. Terhune

When Forrest's new and badly built house began to settle the mammoth steel door of his new and well built steel storeroom developed a tendency to swing shut unless it was propped wide.

So, when Forrest ran back indoors after his last trip for the railroad station he rammed his folded gloves in the crack of the storeroom door to keep it from shutting behind him and imprisoning him.

His family had taken an early train for the steamship, leaving him to lock the house. The servants had been paid off and dismissed the night before. Halfway to the train Forrest remembered he had not taken the silver basket from under the bed when it should have been transferred to the storeroom safe.

Back he ran with some time to spare. He yanked the basket from the linen closet shelf where Lucy carried it to the safe. There spinning the combination he opened the door stuffed his gloves in the hinge crack stepped in and got the silver basket on a shelf.

He turned just in time to see the inscrutable steel gloves tumble to the floor and the great door begin to swing. He leaped to push it back in. His shoe sole slipped on the glassy smooth floor. He fell prone. His outflung right hand hit futilely against the steel portal yet hard enough to smash its wrist watch. In an instant he was on his feet again. But in less than an instant the safe door had clanged shut. (

Forrest was a prisoner in a six by eight steel sheathed storeroom whose door's combination lock could be opened only from the outside.

Except for himself the house was empty. In another hour the maids and cook and children were to board the Gothia for a ten weeks' cruise of the Mediterranean. He himself had been heading west on a long business trip. Nobody knew where he was and no one was likely to enter his house again for at least two months.

Forrest sat down on a shelf edge and took mental account of stock. Here he was in a soundproof steel room with a combination lock on its door; with no morsel of food nor drop of water. Here apparently he must stay until he should die of hunger and thirst. This if the logic of the place should not become so vitiated as to asphyxiate him.

Reaction and realization set in. Calamity Forrest battled against a crazy yearning to hammer the unyielding steel door and to fill the soundproof place with his yells for help. That way madness lay and he must keep his head. He dozed.

At last after what seemed a week of fitful slumber there on the shelf edge Forrest awoke with a jump. Then he remembered that above him hung the electric light he had switched on as he came into the storeroom with the basket. In his pocket was a letter he had planned to mail on his way to the station—a letter asking the light company to shut off the electricity during his absence. Well he would not die in the dark, anyhow. . . . That was some slight comfort.

And now came the first gnawings of hunger. His breakfast had been light. The hour would be long past noon. He craved food. He glanced around him at the shelves with their neat burden of household valuables. There were silver and brica-brac and clothing and the like; but nothing in the way of any edible. This discovery by itself turned Forrest's hunger into a raging famine.

He endured the growing torment as long as he could. Then he began to explore. Nothing in the place could serve primarily as food. But there was a half-length candle lying at the foot of a shelf where it had been left when the electrician installed the light. Another was still there. Forrest picked up the candle. Acrid explorers had kept him on tallow. He chewed perhaps a third of the greasy and tasteless taper. His hunger momentarily subsided. He sank into another and briefer delusory of sleep.

From this he waked famishing and weak. Wolfishly he devoured the rest of the candle. Starvation was now to be added to the list of things he had been a prisoner. Step by calculation, he felt it could not have been less than two days—perhaps three. For despite his gobbling of the pallid candle, he found himself noticeably weaker. Once more the stupor of despair overcame him.

He was roused from the coma by the sudden opening of the safe door. His wife stood on the threshold. On her way to the city she, too, had remembered the basket of silver and, taking it from its guarded beneath her bed. She had left the light in the nearest station, and tasted home. To her horror she discovered and lugged figure lurched weakly from the floor at her feet and staggered out into the hallway.

Before Forrest could answer any of his wife's collayed questions, his eye fell on the ball clock. From his hunger-and-thirst parched lips creaked the babbling words: "Good Lord! . . . was in there just—just fifty-five minutes!"

FRANKFORD

Live Wire Group Meets

Frankford—The Live Wire Group of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. J. M. Dafoe on Monday evening with Mrs. Percy Mills in charge of the short business discussion. The program included readings by Mrs. W. R. Landon, Mrs. Floyd Ketcheson and Mrs. Walter Morrow. Several contests were held the winners being Mrs. G. W. Sine, Mrs. H. J. Madill and Miss Phyllis Foster and Mrs. Floyd Ketcheson. At the close of the meeting dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mission Band Tea

The Helping Hand Mission Band under the direction of Mrs. W. R. Landon held a successful afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. George Spencer on Friday afternoon. The rooms were decorated with bunting and flags and the tea table was pretty with its lace cloth, blue candles and in the centre was a large coronation crown. Mrs. C. D. Powell and Mrs. C. W. Dickson poured tea while girls of the Mission Band assisted at the tables. Ronald Ketcheson and Buddy Hadley were in charge of the wood working sale table while Phyllis Slingerland and Jean Reid sold home made candy. During the tea hour piano music was played by Jean Reid Phyllis Slingerland and Jean Morrow.

Mr. J. A. Slickis spent Monday in Belleville on business.

Mr. Stanley Johnson was a visitor in town Friday last.

Commanded Squadron in Channel, Raising Smoke Screen at Zeebrugge; Rev. E. Smith Tells Romantic Story

Minister Who Now Preaches at Milford, P. E. County, Stepped From Presbyterian Pulpit to Quarterdeck of Destroyer, Serving in North Sea During Momentous Scenes in Navy in Great War.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM SHELL

Presented With 18 Reels of War Films at Close of Warby British Admiralty in Recognition of His Services —Mr. Smith Preached Before Royalty at Famous Balmoral in 1910

One would not think to look at the sturdy well-knit frame, the shock of dark hair as yet unsilvered by Time and the strong face unblemished by the faintest trace of a wrinkle, that here is a man who has seen the rays of sixty-eight suns, strong, agile and with the spirit and physical characteristics of a man half his age, this amazing personality who stepped practically overnight from the pulpit of a Presbyterian Church to the quarter-deck of a British destroyer in the foaming spume of North Sea waves; who was the master of a square-rigged sailing vessel before he cast his first vote, gave one of his rare interviews to a representative of the Ontario Intelligencer on Saturday night.

In the comparative quiet of his study, in a true nautical atmosphere with the photographic proofs of service, and the smiling faces of officers of the Royal Navy smiling down at him from their positions high on the walls, the Rev. Edwin Smith, M.N.R., F.R.A.S., Rector of the Milford circuit gave a glowing description of a life as colorful as the sea he loves so well.

Flavor of the Sea

He exudes an atmosphere of the sea. One can see it in his quick nervous pacing. There is in the strong cut of his jaw, and in his short but powerful physique, the characteristics of the Scottish forbears. Scion of sturdy Nova Scotian pioneering stock, he was born within reach of the salt tang of ocean breezes. A true "Bluenose" he exemplifies in his very manner-isms that splendid breed of sailormen whose exploits and courage are the toast of every seaport.

Born in Margaretville, N.S., in 1870, he was destined for the ministry. He attended Pine Hill College later in life and was graduated also from Dalhousie University, Halifax. But the call of the sea proved too strong for young Smith and at the age of twelve he shipped before the mast under an old sailor by the name of O'Brien, who he avers was one of the most religious men he ever met.

He pleased the "raging main" for many years and at he tender age of twenty was given his Master's papers. "There were no captains in those days", he smiled. Then back to college and to degrees, well the young master mariner.

Goes on Destroyer

Wardouds hung over Europe, and young Smith volunteered for service in the Navy. Twice his applications were ignored by the British Admiralty but the third letter in which he stated his willingness to "run a mile, box five rounds or sail a square-rigged ship with any officer in the British Navy" brought results. He was accepted, but Naval officials doubted his ability to take command of a ship.

He was sent out on a destroyer he commanded on other officers' recommends a test. Their reports later were to the effect that Edwin Smith was 100 per cent. perfect in all his examinations." Accordingly he was given command of a destroyer and in 1916 patrolled the east coast of England.

Commands Channel Squadron

The next year so efficient was he in the discharge of his duties that he was promoted and put in command of a channel squadron with headquarters at Dover. It was Smith's squadron that raised the smoke screen which covered the vindictive and her gallant escorts in their memorable attack on the Mole at Zeebrugge. He operated from the famous Dunkirk Roads near Ostend, where he harbored his ships. Aboard the Monitor Terror he daily directed the speedy stream of projectiles that fell on ill-fated Zeebrugge.

It was here that he nearly met death.

While standing on the quarter-deck of my ship", he related with a watching the bombardment of the Roads, a heavy shell roared over my head. I was spun about as if a huge hand had reached out of nowhere and grasped me. A second later the roar of an explosion sounded in my ears. Debris fell by about me. The shell had passed over my head and exploded in the vitals of a destroyer lying with 4,000 tons of coal, which lay close to us."

Finest Flying Seen

"And it was here", he continued, "that I saw one of the finest pieces of flying I ever saw in my life. Colonel Barker, the famous Canadian ace was on duty around these parts. High in the air he flew on this particular day. German anti-air craft guns peppered at him, the white puffs of their shells encircling his plane. Suddenly he dived for the earth at a terrific rate of speed. Close observance elicited the information that Barker was flying with only one hand. He came close to the sea and a crash seemed inevitable. Expert manoeuvering however, brought him to a safe landing on the water in what I think was one of the coolest exhibitions of flying I ever saw."

Emerging unscathed from the battle of Zeebrugge, he returned to England and was given six weeks leave of absence. Upon his return to England, and discovering the Mother Country in the throes of a food famine, he volunteered to take a fishing fleet to the Dogger Bank in the North Sea. His offer was accepted and over a long period of time he ran the gauntlet of harassing German submarines. The venture was entirely successful and he returned with cargoes of hard-dock and other fish valued at $2,000,000. The story of his pluck and heroism was on every sailor's tongue, and eventually he received the thanks of King George V. His Majesty expressed a desire to meet the daring Canadian and later when he inspected the fleet at Grimsby, personally complimented Lieut. Smith on his heroism.

Appetite for Sea Unwhetted

But his insatiable appetite for the life of the sea was yet unwhetted. In October he volunteered to go to Taranto, Italy, in command of a train of 960 men. Arriving there he assumed command but before he got his plans under way, the war bugles sounded the "Cease Fire" on all fronts. The following weeks he spent in command of a flotilla of ships plying between the Mediterranean Sea ports, and on the last day of December he sailed into the harbor of Malta. There he remained until March 1919, sailing homeward on the Devonia, on which he had been made navigating officer. Transferred to the battle cruiser Hindmiran, when the Devonia was pronounced unseaworthy, he arrived in Chatham and sailed for Halifax and home.

Mr. Smith enjoys the unique distinction of being a friend of the Royal Family. On the wall of a room in his house hangs a picture of the late Queen Victoria in her regal robes done in beautiful colors on a background of white satin, and which was a personal gift of the late queen. He met the present King several times in the course of his naval career when His Majesty held the same rank as the Rev. Mr. Smith.

King George VI

"His Majesty is a very sober-minded, sensible and sympathetic man," he said "and one who takes a tremendous interest in the well-being of his fellow man. He is very approachable and never allowed his ship-mates to address him as "Your Highness". He never claimed and never received any special privileges. He served his time and was subject to the same disciplins as his fellow officers. He is a 'prince of fellows and a king among men". He is one of the very few Canadians who came in close contact with the members of the Royal Family. In his early years he acted and received permission of Queen Victoria to inspect the palaces at Kensington, where she was born. The Queen Victoria was a German lady-in-waiting to show him through the palace.

He stood beside Queen Victoria when she made her second last public speech to the members of the Household Cavalry prior to their departure for the seat of war in South Africa. He once met and talked wit the late King Edward and the former Prince Kaiser Wilhelm while they were pheasant hunting in the Great Park of London.

Preached at Balmoral

In 1910 he had the honor of preaching at the Crealderrie Presbyterian Church in Balmoral, Scotland, when the Royal Family was present. "The King was a lad of ten years of age then," he said.

At the close of the war the British admiralty, in recognition of his distinguished services with the Royal Navy presented Mr. Smith with eighteen reels of motion pictures, official records of the mighty part played in the war by the Navy. The reels are the only set in Canada over presented to a Canadian, and Mr. Smith utilizes them in the educational advantage of the Canadian public. A few weeks ago they were destroyed, being of no further use for service.

The Rev. Dr. Smith is a scholar and a free-lance writer. He has written two books and several articles which have been published by Canadian, American and English periodicals. In 1919 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society of London, England, in recognition of his attainments as an astronomer. The National Geographic Society of Washington, D.C. conferred an honorary fellowship on him in 1934. He is a Doctor of Philosophy as well as a Bachelor of Arts and a Master of Arts.

Despite all this he never seeks nor has he ever sought a church in the large cities, preferring to carry on his work in town or country churches where as he says: "A man has the time and the room to think his own thoughts".

47 Years in Pulpit

Next year at the completion of 47 years in the pulpit Dr. Smith will be superannuated. But that does not necessarily mean his retirement from active service. He will again take up the lecture work he long has followed and bring to the general public the high lights and colorful sequences of a life full of adventure and work in the interests of his fellow human being.

A Teetotaler

He has never taken alcohol or tobacco in any form. "That may sound funny" he said, "especially in view of the fact that I served in the Navy. In those tense moments of action, and especially in that period of relaxation from mental and physical strain, I never felt the need of these things as stimulants.

Once I had occasion to purchase a box of matches. I inquired the price and the attendant of the canteen in which I bought the matches looked at me in a peculiar manner. He thought that I was "pulling his leg 'until I told him that I never used them."

Asked regarding his splendid physical condition, Dr. Smith pointed out that it was partly hereditary. "I come from a breed of strong men," he said. "My ancestors were noted for their physical strength and accomplishments, and this in conjunction with a clean life, lived for the most part in the outdoors, is the answer."

Still pointing to an ever so slight bulge in the region of his waistline "is the only sign I have of advancing age. I think I could go five rounds with you", he laughed "but not any more. My wind is not as good as it used to be."

The Rev. Edwin Smith, M.N.R., F.R.A.S., of Milford, lecturer, journalist and former officer in the Royal Navy, a friend of Royalty, who had a colorful career during the great war. Dr. Smith completes 47 years in the pulpit next year, and will be superannuated by the United Church of Canada.

HEPBURN WARNS SWEATSHOPS TO BE DRIVEN OUT

Renewal Threat Against John L. Lewis And C. I. O.

FAIR PLAY POLICY

States There Will be No Pussyfooting in His Dealings

St. Thomas, Ont., May 11—(CP)—Operators of wrest shops in Ontario faced a threat from Premier Stephens they would be driven from the province if investigation showed exorbitant profits are being made at the expense of labor.

Speaking before the anniversary meeting of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen local last night the premier declared the planned Industry and Labor Board would conduct the investigation. At the same time he renewed his threat that John L. Lewis, chairman of the committee for industrial organization would be arrested if he entered Ontario and advocated "Communist Bolshevism."

"With the return of prosperity," declared the Premier, "everyone must realize that labor is entitled to a fair share in the increase of profits. There are sweatshops in Ontario. I want to see the Labor and Industry Board investigate these shops and see if they are making exorbitant profits. The Board will determine whether they are able to increase wages.

"But, all companies cannot afford to increase wages. During the depression some were operating at a loss in order to keep their employees from walking the streets. To them an increase in wages would wreck some companies."

Fair Play Policy

In a phrase, Premier Hepburn described his government's policy as "fair play to the working man and fair play to industry." He reiterated his determination to stop the spread of C. I. O. influence in Ontario and, referring to the recent General Motors strike, declared:

"Had the Lewis forces been successful at Oshawa they would next have turned to the lumber camps of the north. But we negotiated a successful agreement with the men in the lumber district and everything has been settled quickly."

He had no antagonism toward the American Federation of Labor nor any other international organization, which was law abiding in purpose, said Mr. Hepburn. While he would welcome Williams Green, president of the Federation, to Ontario, the premier said he would be the first to order the arrest of Lewis if he had charges enough to come into this province and advocate lawlessness and bloodshed.

"He (Lewis) will get that which he deserved from a Canadian court. That is the way we are going to deal with these C.I.O. men. We are not going to pussyfoot.

Have no Dictator

"I will not tolerate the invasion of lawlessness. We will not have a dictator sitting in Washington and thereby exercising control of Canadian organizations. Nor will I stand by and watch men exploit the pay envelopes of Canadian workmen. Nor will I have Canadian industry paralyzed by C.I.O. men. We are not going to pussyfoot.

Leave no Doubt

"I will not tolerate the invasion of lawlessness. We will not have a dictator sitting in Washington and thereby exercising control of Canadian organizations. Nor will I stand by and watch men exploit the pay envelopes of Canadian workmen. Nor will I have Canadian industry paralyzed by C.I.O. men. We are not going to pussyfoot. Let no doubt exist in anyone's mind that I am not going to deal with these C.I.O. men under the guise of C. I. O. or Communism."

Premier Hepburn said he regretted Hon. Earl Rowe, Ontario Conservative leader, was in the fence at first, then fell into the yard of the C.I.O." He wrote: "You had better get back on the fence and hang on pretty tight, Mr. Rowe, because the next thing to blow and blow pretty embarrassing."

A. W. Kelly, London, Dominion representative of the Brotherhood, spoke at the conclusion of the Premier's address and said he believed the union would will subscribe to the policies Mr. Hepburn outlined.

PLEDGE LOYALTY TO KING, QUEEN

A. B. Collins, K.C., as President of Association Presents Petition

An impressive expression of loyalty to the Crown in recognition of the forthcoming Coronation, featured the opening of the Non Jury sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario, upon its inception before the Honorable Mr. Justice MacKay in the Court House this morning.

In reply His Lordship thanked the members of the Bar for their cordial reception and heartily endorsed the expression of loyalty on such an auspicious occasion. "We are legatees of a great heritage and it is up to up to see that privileges is passed on to our children. As lawyers we are the administrators of Justice, which is paramount in that heritage alon. I am confident our new Monarch will measure up to his predecessors and I would like to associate myself with this splendid suggestion of expression of loyalty," stated His Lordship as he also stood up with the members of the Bar in the expression of loyalty to the Crown, while the body of the court remained seated. "We must always preserve our dignity and grace in our thoughts, as well as our prayers" concluded His Lordship.

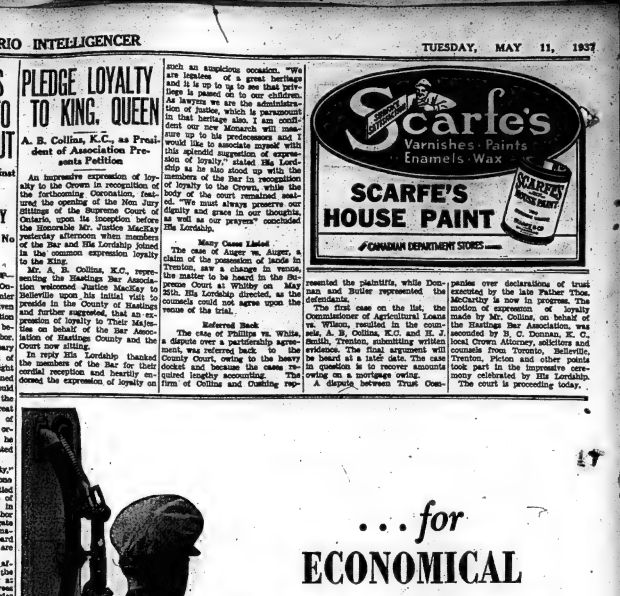
Many Cases Listed

The case of Augee vs. Augee, a claim of the possession of lands in Trenton, saw a change in venue, the matter to be heard in the Supreme Court at Whitby on May 31st. His Lordship directed, as the counsels could not agree upon the venue of the trial.

Referred Back

The case of Phillips vs. White, a dispute over a partnership agreement, was referred back to the County Court, owing to the heavy docket and because the cases required lengthy accounting. The firm of Collins and Cushing represented the plaintiffs, while Donnan and Butler represented the defendants.

The first case on the list, the Commissioner of Agricultural Loans vs. Wilson, resulted in the counsels, A. B. Collins, K.C. and H. J. Smith, Trenton, submitting written evidence. The final argument will be heard at a later date. The case in question is to recover amounts owing on a mortgage owing.



A dispute between Trust Companies over declarations of trust executed by the late Father Thos. McCarthy is now in progress. The motion of expression of loyalty made by Mr. Collins, on behalf of the Hastings Bar Association, was seconded by R. C. Donnan, K. C., local Crown Attorney, solicitors and counsels from Toronto, Belleville, Trenton, Picton and other points took part in the impressive ceremony celebrated by His Lordship.

The court is proceeding today.

GEORGE SIXTH CROWNED AND CONSECRATED

MONARCH AND QUEEN CHEERED BY MILLIONS IN STREETS; ABBEY SERVICES MOST IMPRESSIVE IN THOUSAND YEARS

Cannon of Tower Boom And Millions Acclaim As St. Edward's Crown Rests on King's Head

Traditional Service With Origins in Far Distant Past Marks Dedication, Crowning And Enthronement of George Sixth

RESPLENDENT SCENES IN ABBEY

No Such Street Scenes Witnessed Before in London's History—Pageantry in Procession And at Religious Service Most Imposing Ever Seen

London, May 12—(AP)—England and Empire crowned George VI King today, Sovereign of a quarter of the globe.

Upon his head in Westminster Abbey, the Archbishop of Canterbury placed the priceless crown of St. Edward.

Guns crashed from London Tower; tumult burst from multitudes in Abbey and streets. The whole world heard the span of Britain's greatest pageant in 1,000 years.

In ritual of solemn beauty, the King—and then Elizabeth, his Scottish Queen—was recognized, anointed, pledged to rule with mercy and with justice and consecrated to govern 400,000,000 persons.

With sceptre, sword and orb, in rich raiments of church and state, seated in the ancient oaken coronation chair above the hallowed Stone of Scone, he received the crown on bowed head and heard the joyous shouts of millions:

"God save the King!"

The resplendent congregation of 7,700 within the walls that now have seen the crowning of 36 English Kings, became a dazzling, living thing.

Crowning Tensest Moment

For the tensest moment of the service, the putting on of the crown, the moment for which the whole world had been waiting, the Archbishop again ascended to the high altar. Taking St. Edward's crown into his hands, and laying it again before him upon the altar, he said:

"O God, the crown of the faithful; bless, we beseech thee and sanctify this thy servant George our King; as thou dost this day set a crown of pure gold upon his head, so enrich his royal heart with thine abundant grace and crown him with all princely virtues, through the king eternal Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen."

Then the King, still sitting in King Edward's chair, the Archbishop, assisted with other Bishops, came from the altar. The Dean of Westminster brought the crown, and the Archbishop took it, reverently placing it upon the King's head

Coronation Sidelights

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 12 (CP Cable)—London today was a strange picture of mighty crowds and deserted streets, frenzied cheering and silence. The Coronation area was densely packed. But the greater London beyond was as silent as on a Sunday.

On Lodrate Hill, in front of St. Paul's Cathedral, an old woman stood by a fruit barrow offering bananas in the empty street. Eight flapped city over silent Ludgate Hill. A girl stood along in Fleet Street trying to sell bedside Coronation emblems. At the entrance of one of the city underground stations a porter stood, hands in pockets, waiting for the return rush to come.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada took a lively interest in everything, leaning forward in his carriage, smiling and waving during the procession from Buckingham Palace to the Abbey. His escort of "Mounties" made a fine impression on the cheering throng. As they reached Westminster Abbey the sun peeped through the clouds.

Disappointment was expressed on all sides at the closed car proceedings of representatives of foreign powers. It was impossible in many cases to see who the occupants were, but they drew cheers just the same.

The sounding of an ordinary electric bell gave the signal for all the magnificence of the Coronation procession to start off from Buckingham Palace. An officer of the Life Guards raised a crimson baton high above his head and at the signal the band of the Household Cavalry began to move down the Mall towards the Abbey.

As the great pageant began, Canadian Blue-jackets on the Victoria Memorial stage formed a human pyramid to enable one of their number to film the scene.

Queen Mary, accompanied by the Queen of Norway, was visibly affected at the warmth of her reception along the route. Roars of welcome again greeted the Queen Mother in Parliament Square. Smiling but dignified, she occasionally raised her hand to wave back to thousands of fluttering handkerchiefs.

First Coronation Day baby, born shortly after midnight at Croydon, will be named George.... A girl born two hours later will bear the name of Elizabeth.

In the East End of London, where getting food is a daily concern of the poor, the words "God Save the King" were formed by strings of sausages hung across the street by a local butcher.

Amazon Leader, the only survivor of the eight cream horses which drew King George V to his Coronation, died in his stable on the eve of the Coronation.

Crowds Shout "God Save King" And "Bless Queen"

London, May 13—(AP)—King George VI rode forth today to his coronation in a matchless show of splendor.

His Scottish Queen Elizabeth at his side, he left the gates of Buckingham Palace in a coach of gold behind prancing Windsor greys, smiling, saluting — to a million cries of: "God save the king! ... the king! ... the king! "And the queen — God bless her!"

Greatest Show in 1,000 Years

Ahead — medieval Westminster Abbey and the beauty and solemnity of Coronation, oath and consecration. Behind, 1-3 mile of ravishment, the homage and the pomp and circumstance of the greatest show in 1,000 years.

Grey skies greeted the spectacle but there was no rain as the regal panorama unfolded.

Formed in the palace courtyard, the elaborate coronation procession, headed by automobiles bearing the ambassadors of the foreign powers, moved through the gates, flanked the Queen Victoria Memorial and proceeded down the Mall.

It passed Queen Mary's home, Marlborough House, went through the Admiralty Arch and turned into Whitehall, proceeding thence to the Abbey, where members of the procession were shown to their seats for the ceremony.

Foreign Powers Represented

The Roy Son and these foreign powers were represented: Afghanistan, Belgium, Austria, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Chili, China, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iran, Iraq, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Liberia, Paraguay, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, Salvador, San Marino, Saudis Arabia, Siam, South United, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, the United States,

DUKE TELEPHONES HIS GOOD WISHES

Spoke to His Mother And Announced His Engagement to Mrs. Warfield

Monte, France, May 12 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor secluded himself today with the woman he chose as his wife while the throne he abdicated went to his brother.

The Duke announced the engagement of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield at their Chateau De Cande retreat yesterday gave an added example of the Duke's steadfast execution of his decision.

Still a loyal member of the Royal Family and a faithful subject of the new King, Edward coupled his telephone call for success to George last night with congratulations to Queen Elizabeth. Finally, he spoke to his mother, Queen Mary, his mother, Queen Mary.

Today, while King George received the acclaim of the Empire in London, Edward remained alone with Mrs. Warfield and their close friends, Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Rogers.

The Duke listened to a broadcast of the Coronation. They were reported to have been ordered especially for him.

The 6,000 feet of film—six times the length of a normal news reel—were expected to be rushed to Monte by airplane as soon as the ceremony ended.

BULGARS TO ATTEND

Sofia—(CP Reuters)—Prince Cyril of Bulgaria represented his brother, King Boris at the Coronation of King George. M. Dimitri Stanichoff, former Bulgarian minister in London and General Thanaroff, aide-de-camp to the King were the other members of the official delegation. M. Stanichoff represented Bulgaria at the Coronation of George V.

London, May 13 (CP)—Crowned at Westminster Abbey in the solemn ritual of the ages, the King and Queen drove back to Buckingham Palace this afternoon through a driving rain that could not diminish the enthusiasm of their subjects.

The hundreds of thousands choking the four-mile route, paid cheering homage that never died down, and once back in Buckingham Palace their Majesties were repeatedly called to a balcony by spectators who broke police lines around the Victoria Monument and surged forward to press against the palace rails.

Tired but happy, the King and Queen waved to the crowds and later were joined by Queen Mary, the Princess Elizabeth and Marg-

London, May 12 (CP)—A King came to his crown, his church, his peers and his people today in all the ageless glory of his realm.

From Buckingham Palace, in a coach of gold and a blaze of pearl and present splendor, and to the tumult of a multitude, King George and Queen Elizabeth rode to the portal of Westminster Abbey.

The King wore the crimson and velvet cap of State, both sides turned up with ermine. About his shoulders was a crimson and gold robe, heavily trimmed with ermine.

The Queen was barebacked. She wore drop pearl earrings and a diamond and white ermine cloak. Beneath the cloak the Queen wore a gown of ivory lame cloth embroidered with gold lace, sequins and diamonds.

Before her, the little princess drew every eye as, her sister up her forefinger and smiled impishly when she saw someone she knew.

As their grandmother, Queen Mary, entered, her regal figure blazing with diamonds, the little princesses stood erect beside their chairs and then, at a nod from the Princess Royal, flipped their little trains over their arms and hurried up the steps to the box where the Queen Mother took her seat.

Elizabeth, as heir presumptive to the throne, sat next to her grandmother while Margaret Rose was on the other side of Elizabeth.

Within the Abbey, nearly 8,000 blue and gold seats rising tier on tier to the highest arches of the ancient church flashed their rainbow colors on the uniforms and gowns of peers and peeresses.

Wax candles, such as have glowed here on occasions for 1,000 years lit the glamorous scene. Golden spotlights played on the Coronation Theatre with its three chairs.

Great Stillness

As the cheering in the streets, birds grew silent. Silence assembled through the wide-open arches and sank into a mere rumble of noise, a profound stillness—the stillness of interest, expectancy—felt upon the vast congregation.

The Venerable Archbishop of Canterbury, other exalted officers of the Church of England, the Earl Marshal and other great officers of State, had all performed around the high altar and the purlieus thereof, the momentous details of the preparation. The provisions of the ruric governing this initial act had been duly fulfilled.

CROWDS SING WHILE WAITING

200,00 Gather About Historic Abbey to See Arrivals

London, May 12 (C.P.-Havas) — Coronation Day dawned cold and foggy but in spite of predictions of rain, big mobs broke from the East End in the alleys, bringing new hopes of fair weather for the coronation parade.

At four a.m. trees in the parks and the waters of the Thames were hardly visible through the blanket of fog which, however, lifted slowly.

More than 50,000 persons were already massed along The Mall, as streams of traffics, tramcars and other vehicles poured into the city from outlying suburbs.

Those who spent the night in parks chatted in small groups and busied themselves with breakfast preparations.

Food vendors did a brisk business.

MISTS OF MEMORY DIMMED EYES OF BELOVED MARY

Past as Well as Future Paraded Before as Son is Crowned

ROLE OF ONLOOKER

Little Clue to Her Thoughts as Pageantry of Coronation Unfolded

By ELMER W. PETERSON
Associated Press Foreign Staff

London, May 13—(AP)—Mists of memory momentarily dimmed the eyes of 68-year-old Queen Mary today for the coronation of her second oldest son in the splendor of Westminster Abbey.

No one denied the proud and stately queen the right to yield to emotion. For the Coronation of George VI was to Queen Mary, magnificently robed, with a $500,000 diadem agleam on her head, a time of pride and sorrof, happiness and pain.

It was the past as well as the future which paraded before her. In the solemnity and majesty of the occasion, the polishing mosaic, the amorous intonation of familiar words, the ringing of bells and the echo of guns, she watched and listened in the role of onlooker — where once she had participated and experienced.

"Receive the crown of glory, honor and joy...."

Glorified Memory

There was memory enough in that, the memory of the day 37 years ago when she moved through the nave of the Abbey to the Throne; of the day when she rode through the densely-packed streets of London as a Queen herself-crowned, in the golden state coach with King George V by her side.

"...A crown of pure gold upon your head...."

Today she was little more than a spectator, with destiny in reminiscence rather than a railway to the throne. A grey-haired woman, watching history repeated itself unchanged.

Britain and the Empire cheered her.

It was her third coronation; each time in a different role; Each time with a different viewpoint.

Little Girl in Crimson

In her regal bearing, spectators found little clue to her thoughts. A stretching back, as they must have, to the day, Thursday and Saturday nights throughout summer season, filled with dazzling surroundings. Good floor. Bud Haines and his Commodores. E mi-10-12

Pageant Unfolds In Coronation Like Fairy Tale

Empire Shows to World Faith in Hereditary Rulers

Twenty-Deep Crowds Stand on Sidewalks as Pageant Passes By

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, May 13 (by transatlantic telephone) (AP)—Like the greatest of all mediaeval fairy tales come suddenly to life, with more than 1,000,000 persons cheering, the pageant of the Coronation of King George VI, and his Queen unrolled in fantastic glory today.

It carried the 41 year old King, his smiling dark-haired Scottish wife at his side, to his destiny in Westminster Abbey.

And as completely as they had shown regret over the abdication of Edward VIII, so did the British people today take his younger brother to their hearts.

Crowds Gather in Streets

All over London the greatest pageant on earth warmed to its climax. All night there was dancing in the street, rollicking throngs packing the downtown area and then with a foggy dawn went one enormous crowd of humanity to the 4½ mile processional route through the west-end from Buckingham Palace to the Abbey, and back.

In the Abbey 7,700 nobles and noble-tables, clothed in armine and jewels, saw the Coronation.

Overhead with them, 70 uncounted spectators in the dawn, grabbing their seats, and in the dark, stumbling around with the tide of humanity through The Mall and Regent Street, winding up in Parliament Square, I found a perch high in a tree that shared the bronze protecting arms of Abraham Lincoln, who stands almost opposite the Abbey entrance.

Faith in Monarchy Shown.

Below us in Parliament Square, as Big Ben to one side boomed every quarter of an hour, the faith and hope of an empire in its hereditary rulers was set forth for the world to see.

Through the cold dirty hours the crowd amused itself as best it could, awaiting the start of the procession. Street vendors sneaked past watchful bobbies, to play and gather

THE KING

LONDON, May 12 (AP)—A quiet, serious-minded man, whose youthful face bears the lines of years, was the focal figure of the Coronation today.

Studious, reserved, soft-spoken, George VI seemed destined to follow closely in the footsteps of his father, George V, ever obedient to tradition and the austere duty of the ruler of a quarter of the earth.

Stripped of his Royal robes, the Monarch stands at May 31, 1936—a man who gained the respect and admiration of both sailors and brother officers.

He came to the throne well versed in the problems of Britain and the Empire through a knowledge gained from practice. He knows British industry from personal contact with its operation and social problems by seeing first-hand what is to be remedied.

TEN YEAR OLD FOUND IN BUSH

Ernest Peterson, Tweed, Tells Tale of Being Kidnapped

After searching all night a posse of 50 residents of Tweed, headed by Chief Clare Hayes, found ten year old Ernest Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Peterson of Tweed, lying in a bush about one mile north-east of the village early today after having been missing from his home all night. When first found by the posse, the lad was searched for the missing lad all night, but boy related to the searchers a fictitious tale of having been kidnapped by a man in an automobile and held prisoner. Later after continuous questioning, however, the lad broke down and admitted he had stayed away from home all night because he had been afraid to return after playing too late with playmates. He said he being kidnapped was manufactured and fictitious, he admitted.

Late last night Mrs. Peterson, who became alarmed owing to the non-appearance of her son, who had been sent out to mail a letter, aroused neighbors and later notified police of the disappearance of her son, Mr. Peterson being absent from home on business at the time.

Belleville Citizens Pay Homage to Their Majesties In Coronation Procession

Big Turn-out of Veterans And Children in Mile-Long Parade

A BRILLIANT SCENE

Gaily Decorated Buildings And Streets Add Color to The Scene

In kaleidoscopic parade of color, through crowds of admiring citizens who lined flag-bedecked streets, to the tune of martial music and the sound of tramping feet, the residents of Belleville and the surrounding districts, in a demonstration which for sheer patriotism and a display of loyalty of country and Empire has never been equalled in the city, and which culminated in a religious ceremony at the Agricultural Grounds, affirmed their loyalty and affection for Their Gracious Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth. The early today while cheering thousands lined packed streets in honor of the Coronation of the King and Queen.

A brilliant "Coronation" sun streamed down from a vault of blue, reflecting shafts of dazzling fire from the wings of a squadron of airplanes from the R.C.A.F. station at Trenton, which manoeuvred over the colorful scene in various formations.

People lined streets, windows, verandas and in some cases the roof-tops as the mile and a quarter long procession moved from the starting point, a glittering parade of color featured the orderliness of the long formation as it passed prior to moving off from the corner of Dundas and Pinnacle streets. Early in the morning, in fact hours before the appointed time, people crowded in to get a place of vantage near the Upper Bridge on Front Street. The city was at its best for the occasion. Red, white and blue decorations of all descriptions, flags of all sizes were in evidence fluttering from the rooftops of buildings and the hoods of parked and moving automobiles. People wore their Coronation colors on or in their persons. Tiny pieces of bunting fluttered from the lapels of men and boys. Women and girls wore berets of the gaily colored ribbons in their coats and their hair. Three shaggy Shetland ponies which crossed the road near the Upper Bridge proudly displayed colored ribbons in their manes and tails. The small boys' bicycles were also decorated with gaudy colors. It was an occasion for the display of appreciation of affection for the King and Queen and Belleville's young and old in no uncertain manner reflected the love and pride they have for their people now risen to majesty.

Shortly after nine o'clock the blare of martial music from various centres of the city heralded the approach of the procession, led by the bands of the city, school children and other marching organizations, which formed on the starting point. Led by a Mounted constable from police officers, units took their appointed places in an orderly manner, the order in which in the organization proceeded. Five minutes after the appointed time, the parade moved off to be exact, the leading car in which were Acting Mayor W. C. Morgan, His Worship Mayor R. D. Arnold, and Chairman of the Reception Committee, Joseph Sherry, gave the signal to move off. A bugle was raised in the morning air. Then the music of the Belleville Municipal band and drum corps, in their brand new uniforms of blue and red rang out. Following the band, the tramp of feet, the rhythmic swing

SPECIAL SERVICES HELD AT FOXBORO

Coronation And Mother's Day Sermons Are Given

Large congregations attended the Coronation and Mother's Day Services on Sunday last at Foxboro, quite appropriately Mother Horton, spoke on the Coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth, in the church in the evening service when the subject was announced as "Jesus the Ideal as The Real Home Maker. The real home was more than a building, but love and union. It was a Divine institution, established by God. He emphasized it was not merely an interdependence, or cold aggregation. There must be the interpenetration of love, thoughts, sympathy, faith, hope and purity. The Sunday rush, he said, was not the worst calamity which could come to a home. Selfishness was even more to be dreaded. Mother he said was the most beautiful word in the English language, and in quick succession one of the most beautiful English word Home. They are closely associated, the one implies personality, the other conditions. He urged the Mothers to make the home attractive for the young. In a melancholy owl should ever be allowed to perch. Religion should be the most important factor in the home. Not our institutions of Christianity, but the Christ in Us blesses the home of Queen Elizabeth, and of His will bless, brighten and sanctify the homes of all. The National Anthem was sung with fervor, Rev. Mr. Ann, T. Allred offered a fine solo, and Mrs. Davis presided at the organ. The church was beautifully decorated with the Union Jack, and with plants and flowers. Two children were baptized at the morning service.

PILFER FLAGS FROM 2 HOMES

Coronation Decorations Taken on Eve of The Celebration

Pilfering of Coronation decorations was quite in evidence as the greatest day in modern British history broke in Belleville. Two local residences were stripped of the colorful decorations overnight last night, much to the chagrin of the property owners.

Mrs. J. T. Clarke, 113 College Street, reported the theft of her entire decorations including her large Union Jacks, four medium-sized flags and one large silken flags, that were being used as Coronation decorations. The decorations were stolen sometime Monday night.

Yesterday afternoon, however, Detective Fred Izard investigated and was successful in recovering part of the missing decorations. The officer apprehended four local teen-aged lads, who after being questioned, admitted they had taken some of the flags. Two were large flags, two medium-sized ones and four of the smaller decorations were recovered. The boys were instructed to report to the Chief Constable this morning following today's Coronation parade. Upon being informed of the occurrence Mrs. Clarke was enabled to partially decorate her home with the flags recovered.

Mrs. Craigheed, 38 Catherine St., also reported the theft of four medium-sized flags, taken from her residence some time Monday night. They had not been accounted for at noon, however.

Local and Provincial Police reported all quiet in their respective departments today with particular their attention to be marshalling and policing of the civic Coronation parad. Tweed police requested assistance in the search for the missing ten-year-old lad, who left his home in Tweed last night. The lad's father is employed to be Ernest Peterson, aged 10. The boy has a noticable limp. He left home directly following his evening repast and has not been heard of since.

The eight hikers who sought shelter at the police station last night received permission from the police to remain in Belleville sufficiently long to attend the Belleville's Coronation parade this morning.

MAY 12 CELEBRATED AS RED CROSS DAY

May 12th, is celebrated in every part of the British Empire as "Red Cross Day", the date having been chosen because it was the birthday of Florence Nightingale. Each year the day falls on a most significant date in the annals of Coronation Day.

The founder of the Red Cross, Henri Dunant, acknowledged that his inspiration had come from Florence Nightingale, the great and wonderful woman in the history of the English race, whose whole life is familiar to all, her early interest in suffering humanity, her services in nursing soldiers which was finally found in Germany and Paris, her literary achievement, the organization of a group of nurses to minister to the soldiers in the Crimea, and in the Crimean War and to fight against typhus, filth and disease.

Henri Dunant, a public spirited citizen of Geneva, inspired by her work began the great organization known throughout the world as "The Red Cross", the first meeting that the birthday of the famous Englishwoman was to be commemorated as "British Empire Red Cross Day."

Tells Why He Avoided Today's Pageantry at Coronation

London, May 12—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw announced he was staying away from the Coronation and accompanying processions today and gave "Waiting for Godot" as reason against the illusions and idolatries which such ceremonies are intended to create."

"As I am by profession a greater of Idealistic illusions," the author-critic said in a statement to the Communist organ, The Daily Worker, "These amateur pageants only bore me."

"To me all this blocking of traffic and disfiguring of London in my neighborhood with bands and police orderly bunting of crude red, white and blue is so inconvenient that, though I do not share the people who like it their fun, I flee to the remotest country I can be as far as possible out of it all."

JUSTICE MACKAY VOICES LOYALTY

Welcomed on First Visit to City as Presiding Justice

At the opening of the Non Jury Sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario on Monday, Mr. A. B. Collins, K.C., representing the Hastings Bar Association, welcomed Mr. Justice J. K. MacKay upon his initial visit to Belleville and as presiding judge for the session.

Mr. Collins suggested an expression of Allegiance be voiced by the members of the Bar present and His Lordship on the auspicious occasion of the Coronation of Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

In reply His Lordship, Mr. Justice MacKay said:

"It is with much gratitude and gratification, that I accept the very kind and generous words, which have just fallen from the lips of my friends, Mr. Collins.

"We lawyers, whether at the bar or on the bench, have a very real obligation to the Crown. You have just said, sir, in admirable terms, that we are legatees of a great heritage, and it is for us to see that that heritage is handed on to our children unimpaired. You have, sir, laid special emphasis on the administration of justice. You administration of justice under the British flag is in a peculiar way, for we lawyers, at once our responsibility and our pride.

"When you were speaking a moment ago it just occurred to me that in the midst of the national rejoicing on the occasion of Coronation we should do well to remember that when His Majesty and his Consort pass into Westminster Abbey they are not on consecrated ground. On their journey from the west door to the altar they pass the grave of the unknown soldier, that symbolizing the quality of courage, service and willing sacrifice, that are in no way empty or meaningless terms but vital truths by which we live.

Confidence Expressed

We feel confident, that the new Monarch will strive to live up to the ideals of our empire, which are so splendidly symbolized by the moral heart of the Abbey, and therefore lying in Westminster Abbey.

"I thank you from the bottom of my heart for the kindly greetings and for your very cordial observance of the Bar. I am not a personal word it is this: that it is my earnest desire to lose neither that presence, from which comes cleanness, nor that faith from which comes consecration and that in the discharge of my duties I may, as I know I shall, have the hearty cooperation of the gentlemen of the bar. There are in this court room Counsel from Toronto and other parts of the province, and I wish to convey to them and to you gentlemen of the bar my gratitude for the splendid loyalty which I have received during the two years I have been on the bench.

"Now, sir, you have moved that an expression of loyalty should be conveyed to His Majesty on behalf of the bar of the County of Hastings. I very heartily associate myself with you and the gentlemen of the guished counsel, who are here from other parts of the County of Hastings in that expression of our loyalty.

It is a very fitting and proper tribute to be paid at this time to the throne of our Empire, towards the centre and heart of the empire. Our thoughts and I know our prayers to the throne of sad mercy and grace are that He by whom kings reign and princes decree judgment shall pour down His richest blessing upon our Monarch and upon our nation."

The motion was seconded by K. C. Penman, K.C., Crown Attorney for Hastings County.

BRITISH EMPIRE AN ENDURING ONE SAYS MR. JAMES

Addresses Kiwanis Club on Subject 'All Roads Lead to London'.

REPORTS GIVEN

Envisioning a greater empire with Canada playing a leading part and with New York or Washington as the centre of that empire, C. B. James, lecturer and traveller, addressed the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon on Tuesday on the subject "All Roads Lead to London", a most fitting subject, when the thoughts of all members of the British Empire are turned towards London in anticipation with the Coronation procession culminating the symbol, power, might and religion of our nation, the British Monarch, sovereign, who was crowned amid splendor in Westminster Abbey, the heart of the Empire. Mr. James' interesting heard by the members in and time as it was given, by one who has made a close study of history, both ancient and modern, and who can speak with authority. Introduction of the principal speaker was made by R. J. MacGrath, fellow teacher for many years and Kiwanian. Introduction was expressed by Eddie Shapiro.

President Presides

Eddie Lapp, presided in his usual capable manner with Ivan Scott as sergeant at arms and Eddie Shapiro as chaplain. Fred Pennington, a former member of the club, assisted by acting as pianist in the absence of Leo B. Riggs. Gordon Wills gave a detailed account of the cost of the Baby, Welfare Clinic, stating the total cost was $212.45. The thanks of the club was extended to Mrs. Holland, president of the Belleville Women's Institute, and Mrs. Logan for their interests, also Mrs. R. J. Flynn, chairman of welfare, for his work. Bill Anderson, reported for the Kiwanis Queens, stating that $140.00 was realized on the bridge sponsored by the ladies which will be used to help the Clinic Fund. George Griffin moved a vote of thanks to the Kiwanis Queens and her able assistants. A letter of thanks was received from Gerald A. Morton, Secretary of the Ontario Pepper Fund, thanking the club for their generous contribution. Wilf P. C. MacLaurin moved that a cable be sent to their fellow Kiwanians of Kingstone and loyalty to the Crown from the Kiwanis Club. This was unanimously adopted.

Describes Two Empires

In presenting his address "All Roads Lead to London," Mr. James described the fall of two great empires, Greece and Rome. The Grecian Empire was founded at Athens, which became the centre or roads of the world about 500 B.C. Rome, the Eternal City, was founded, the speaker, "and they founded colonies that will never be forgotten as trade routes as the Grecians were and are great leaders. They extended not to extend their Empire from Gibraltar on the west to Babylon and to the east, but as far south as Sicily on the west and Asia Minor on the east, and the Roman law is influenced by Athens." He showed pictures of the ruins of the great men that ever lived there was really the father of democracy. The fall of Athens and Rome followed. Sparta, a purely military state, which for years had been accomplished in many hard years of fighting, but was overrun by the mailed first, telling her colonies that they must abide by the rules of Sparta or suffer the consequences and "for this reason Athens lived and Mr. James.

Moving on to the banks of the Tiber River, the City of Rome was founded about 753 B.C. and really was important from 509 B.C. to 400 B.C. That was the time of the Empire yet seen by the world. They too had colonies like Britain and Athens, they governed the colonies for the benefit of Rome. Rome became one of colonies about 56 B.C. and when the Romans left, the people were helpless because they had not been allowed to think for themselves in matters of government. had been vastly improved, yet the Romans left a wonderful heritage, but they left a wonderful heritage, the most important being law and order. Rome fell after the passing of our law' today being founded on the Roman Empire. Mr. James explained the processions held in Rome when the Caesar returned triumphal and when a member of the Roman Empire was given a triumph march. It was the highest honor that could be paid to that individual. The Roman Empire was a System Had Faults

"The Roman system had its faults," continued the speaker, because the rich got richer and the poor got poorer. Corruption reared its ugly head from the people disintegrated and fell apart simply because they had left their colonies to govern themselves. Great Britain and the Empire was founded on the crossroads of the world and the Empire was formed upon which the sun never set. He said that when a maritime empire with the same ideals and principles as the Roman but instead of using the mailed fist Britain used the pound first from within kindness, found that the different peoples that composed the Empire were given the privilege to learn to govern themselves. In 1931 the Statute of Westminster gave to Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa equal rights with England and they became equal nations within the Empire and Canada at the Coronation was represented as a nation by Premier Mackenzie King and not as a colony of the British Isles.

The speaker in closing his fine discourse praised the home life of the King and Queen and Queen Elizabeth, stating they were a symbol of all that was good and pure. He said that they represented the military, religious and home life of the Empire and were worthy occupants of the throne.

Appreciation of the splendid address was voiced by Eddie Shapiro and after the business end of the members congratulated the speaker on his fine exposition of the growth of the Empire and the reasons as to why it has endured for so many years.

Frankford Joins Trenton Parade

Frankford Citizen's Band, ex-service men and the Public School children joined in with Trenton in the Coronation Day parade and loyal celebration. Boys dressed as sailors drew a large float representing the quarter deck or H.M.S. "Golden Hind" on which stood Queen Elizabeth in the act of knighting Sir Francis Drake. The Queen was attended by a lady-in-waiting and a lord-in-waiting, bearers, two guards with battle axes, stood at attention, while two sailors were at the helm of the vessel. All were in costume depicting the dress of that period.

Queen Elizabeth was portrayed by Betty Learvit; Joan Munn took the part of lady-in-waiting; Jack Lawer was lord-in-waiting; train-bearers were Betty Dickson and Lucy Green, Billy Madill and Jack Lawer took the part of guards or halberdiers and Sir Francis Drake was portrayed by Harry Carr, Douglas Mikel and Leo Murphy were the sailors on the tableau.

School children followed, marching in orderly manner, dressed smartly in red pill box shaped hats wearing as part of their uniform a blue cape and all carrying flags and swagger sticks.

Tweed and District

Tweed, May 12—Tweed Tennis Club held its reorganization meeting when officers for the current year were elected and the question of the season's activities was discussed. The club has functioned successfully for a number of years and prospects are very bright for another successful season. The following are the officers for 1937: President, Raphael Rashotte; vice-president; A. B. Allen; secretary-treasurer, Reuel Gordon, B.A.; games committee, T. E. Moffat, B.A.; convener, Ross Maguire, Frank Trumper, Miss Dorothy Bowers, Miss Frances Graham; social committee, Mrs. A. B. Allen, Convener Mrs. T. E. Moffat, B.A., Miss Marjorie Quinn, Miss Elizabeth Smart, B.A., Miss Connie Martindale, Miss Isabel Sills, Mrs. Malcolm Arsenau, Mrs. (Dr.) Maurice O'Connor; property committee, A. B. Allen, Miss Quinn, Carl D. Wilson, M. Ardenne, Mrs. Gordon Arthur Leman.

Tweed Army and Navy Veterans held a special meeting at their club rooms on Friday evening when final plans were made for the grand concert and ball to be held on Wednesday evening, Dominion Day, observed as a previous meeting are sparing no effort to insure the success of the affair.

Bert Huyck was awarded a prize for amateur photography in a contest recently held by Liberty Magazine.

The Forestry Department reports that ready mixed paint for sale locally from Wednesday until Friday.

The heavy rainfall of Thursday and Friday caused a postponement of Arbour Day scheduled to be held on Friday, May 14, in the municipality dated and Separate schools.

Tweed High school field day was rained out on Friday and will be held on Tuesday afternoon, weather permitting. Winners of the various events will compete at Marmora on Friday, May 21. The successful contestants will compete later at Napanee.

An amateur play, "Here Comes Charlie" was produced by the young people of Bethany at Tweed Auditorium under the auspices of the local chapter of the Eastern Star. The play was very well done and the cast was heartily applauded by those in attendance. During intermission selections were given by the Maple Leaf Tanners Orchestra from Bethany. Lunch was served in the east and club has functioned successfully for Bethany ladies. Proceeds were in aid of the Eastern Star.

Special Mass was conducted at St. Carthagh's Church on Thursday morning by Rev. Fr. Shannon to commemorate his first Mass.

Special Ascension Thursday services were held at St. James's Anglican Church on Thursday evening by the Rector, Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne.

Eaton—Marsh.

On Wednesday morning at St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hor Marsh of Tweed was united in marriage to Russell Rutlan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Rutlan of Tweed. Miss Madeline Courneyea and Mr. James Courneyea attended the young couple. Following a short honeymoon will reside in Tweed on Meiraid street.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin LePain of Detroit are visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hall.

Mr. C. D. Wilson, local druggist, attended the Drug Trading convention in Toronto last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Leverty of Trenton spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Loffman.

Mrs. Leonard F. Young of Flint, Mich., has returned home after visiting a short time as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Courtney.

The little community of Cloyne is nothing if not up-to-date. Recently a badminton club was organized in that village and a postponement of Arbour Day scheduled to be held on Friday, May 14, in the municipality dated and Separate schools.

Tweed High school was represented by Misses T. E. Moffat, B.A. and T. J. Caisan, B.A., at the district meeting of the C.O.S.S.A. held in Belleville on Tuesday evening. The district field day will be held in Napanee this year and in Tweed in 1938.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Caskey of Mitchell, Ont., were recent guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Mairs of Eldorado.

The Bird Box contest held annually by Tweed Horticultural Society has become a major project with the local organization and each year an increasing number of boys have been constructing nesting boxes for their feathered friends — the wren, the robin, the purple martin, the bluebird and the tree swallow. The contest held on Friday far surpassed all others in the number of boys who constructed boxes, the number of boxes entered in the competition and in the excellence of workmanship and design. With the exception of the martin houses all the boxes are rustic, being covered chiefly with cedar bark and many of them denote marked degree of skill on the part of the young workmen who receive instruction in manual training at the Tweed Consolidated School.

Sixty-nine boxes in all were entered in the competition, the following forty-seven boys: Elmer Holmes, Edwin Badgley, Vincent Sinclair, Bert Reynolds, Fred Hayes, John Locke, Robert Tuffs, Grant Locke, Jack Shaw, Howard Way, Glenn Jones, Ross Grier, Douglas Connor, Scott Skinner, Lorne Vance, Grant Baker, Donald Patterson, Kenneth Fisher, Charles McCaw, Milton Elliott, Richard Palmateer, Garnet Thompson, Vincent Frost, Robert Sandercock, Jack Brady, Raymond Holmes, Harry Aussin, Richard Wilson, Murray Tuttle, Richard Jones, Allen Robinson, J. Beatty, Everett Bolderick, Glenn Connor, Archie Kilmartin, Francis Baldwin, Roy Cornell, George Hall, Lloyd Lowery, Grant Elliott, Stewart Elliott, Carl Bateman, Ernest Peterson, Charles Sedore, Lorne Countryman, George Barry and Heath Jones.

The judges were Rev. R. R. Nicholson, a recognized authority on birds and bird boxes and Mr. C. H. Kerr, local merchant. The number of entries, especially in the wren and tree swallow sections, made the task of the judges a very difficult one. The following were the prize winners:

Senior (open to fourth classes):—Wren—Douglas Connor, Donald Palmateer. Elmer Holmes, Fred Hayes.

Martin — Douglas Connor, Bert Reynolds.

Blue bird or tree swallow—Douglas Connor, Vincent Sinclair, Donald Palmateer, Bert Reynolds. (Seven entries).

Robin shelf—Lorne Vance, Howard Lynch and Fred Hayes. (Seven entries).

Junior (open to classes below the fourth):

Martin—Glenn Connor. (One entry).

Wren — Glenn Connor, Charles McCaw, Clenn Connor, Forrest Bell, Robinson. (Twenty-five entries).

Blue bird or tree swallow—Charles McCaw, Glenn Connor, Forrest Bolderick. (Four entries).

Robin shelf—Charles McCaw, Everett Boldrick, Ray Cornell. (Six entries).

In the evening the boys with their parents and friends gathered at the Collegiate Institutional School where Rev. Nicholson gave an interesting address on "Our Bird Friends and How to Study Them." The address was illustrated by slides. Their songs were reproduced by means of a stereopticon. This excellent and interesting feature of the evening was greatly appreciated by all.

Each boy exhibitor contributed towards the prize money: Dr. W. A. Paul, C. H. Kerr, Tweed Hardware, S. R. Weir & Co., Tweed Drug Co., Dr. Harrison, James L. McGowan, S. B. McCaw, Tweed Co-operative, Reuel Gordon, Richardson, Miss Isabelle Campbell, Miss Dorothy Bowers, Tweed School, A. B. Allen, Miss Grace Morse, Miss Catherine McGuarrie, S. H. Connor, C. D. Wilson, Mrs. Allen.

HIS BACKACHE WAS UNBEARABLE

Kruschen Brought Him Relief From Pain

This man of 31 was prematurely aged by backache, when he should have been enjoying the best years of his life. Here he tells how Kruschen helped to restore him to health, after months of pain:—

"I was in hospital for six weeks, owing to kidney trouble. When I was discharged I felt such an old man, although I am only 31. If I stooped to do anything it was agony to straighten up again. Several people advised me to try Kruschen Salts. I tried them and found they gave me relief from pain and I felt better in every way. I cycle 32 miles a day to and from work and shall keep up the daily dose of Kruschen because I can now do the journey to and from work and not feel any the worse for it."—S.V.C.

When the internal organs cease to do their work properly the kidneys begin to accumulate in the system, and cause troublesome symptoms. Kruschen Salts help to stimulate the liver and emunctory organs to healthy, regular activity, and thus assist them to rid the system of harmful impurities.

Meanest Man 'Borrows' Pet Dog Of Palsied Hawker

Toronto, May 13—(CP)—The "meanest man" award changed hands again yesterday. By unanimous choice it went to an unknown who "borrowed" a paralyzed street pencil-hawker's pet dog "to help show his wife" and then failed to return it.

Wesley Nesserdieau, who sits on Yonge Street selling pencils because he has only one leg and is partly paralyzed, said he paid only 50 cents for "Slippers," the dog's constant companion, but he wouldn't have sold it for any price.

At the bus terminal a stranger said his wife wanted to see the dog. Nesserdieau agreed. The stranger — and waited, all evening. But the stranger did not return.

GOD BLESS THEIR MAJESTIES

Today a quarter of the world joined in acclaim to King George Sixth and his consort Queen Elizabeth. In the words of the Coronation service, all subjects of His Majesty pray

"God Save King George.
"Long Live King George.
"May the King Reign Forever," and say as the people shouted in the streets "God Bless Queen Elizabeth."

THE KING IS CROWNED

With the fullest expression of devotion and joy and with every emotion that is British, four hundred millions of the subjects of His Majesty King George Sixth living in every corner of the earth have acclaimed the crowned and consecrated ruler. With the ancient pageantry so dear to the British heart, and the solemn rites of religion Britain's monarch was dedicated to the supreme task of governing his Empire according to the laws. Ritual and scenes which had their sources some of them before the time of the Crusades, the millions who thronged the streets of London and cheered as they watched the royal cavalcade pass by, the multitude of foreign representatives of foreign countries and of the Holy See attending the Coronation, the untold millions of British subjects who in their homes afar from the scenes in the centre of the Realm and Empire listened to the broadcast service in Westminster Abbey and those millions in other lands who followed the service and the descriptions of the scenes by broadcast, make the Coronation the most modern and greatest in history. The coronation comes at a time when the solidarity of the Empire has been demonstrated and the strength of the crown marked in every part of the Empire. It is a sign of unity in an era of transition and distinegration when many institutions and time-honored traditions seem to be crumbling in other parts of the world. Britain and her nations present a wholesome view for the world in this respect with their solidarity and peace.

If ever a monarch felt the solemn duty resting upon him, it was King George today as he was pledged and dedicated to the mightiest task which has ever fallen to man. His Empire puts to shame and even the greatest empires of old, most of which were ruled with an iron hand. Ancient Rome in her imperial day knew no such breadth of dominion and she was the greatest of past empires. This young ruler, King George, in his first forties has come upon the world scene with a sway which differs vastly from any other rule as the relations of the Dominions and Motherland indicate, they being free nations bound by the sacred tie. This is the task and it is a gentle sway which he is to make glorious for his race and beneficial to the world.

CANADA IN THE EMPIRE

Canadians have always been proud of their place in the British Empire, but today they felt as much as ever in their lives the greatness of the privilege which is theirs to carry the torch of freedom which was lighted in the British Isles so many centuries ago and has through reign after reign increased the light it has shed on the institutions of mankind.

During the Great War Canada proved her right to a place in the Empire by her willingness to bear the burden of civilization in behalf of security. Today she feels again her great debt to British institutions which have given her so great liberty, which she and other Dominions and colonies share equally with the Motherland.

Canadians justly are proud of their heritage in this living constitution which is not static but continues to develop.

If they require something to prove the invaluable character and the permanence of British institutions they have but to look abroad and see here a land deluged in fraternal blood, striving blindly seemingly to work out its destiny. In other lands are other forms of government, like which there is nothing in British rule.

THE FLAG

Today the British flag stands as ever the symbol of a nation's and an empire's history like the priceless jewelled regalia brought from the Tower of London for the oronation, pointing back to the dim historic past. The flag like the regalia used in the great religious service of Coronation heightens the sense of respect for the foundations of British liberty. The flag like the emblems of heraldry and pageantry is an emblem of courtesy and chivalry and power.

METAMORPHOSIS

Bare and lifeless were the trees up till yesterday
Then a hand unseen by man touched their branches grey,
In a twinkling overnight, came a wondrous change,
For the morn that greeted earth found them over-strange.

Decked in silver were the birches, catkins over all
While the maples proud and gay wore a crimson shawl,
Emerald were the lilacs glowing, while an ochre hue
Shone upon the poplar branches 'gainst
the sky of blue.

Evergreens in richer lustre caught each wandering eye
And tall stately weeping elms, stopped the passer-by,
With their lacework tapestry soft and brilliant green
That until this hour of wonder never there had been.

All the world of Winter's bareness ice and snowy mud
Blotted out by Nature's handiwork with each leaf and bud;
Friendly rustling in the winds tell this wondrous story
Of this time when Spring awoke in her newest glory.

FOR THOSE WHO SIT IN DARKNESS

our sympathy must always go out. The Blind. Should we not with grateful hearts and thankful spirits express our gratitude to the Almighty for all his favors in doing all we can to help those unfortunate enough to be blind. Of all the many calls upon the generosity of Canadians none is as imperative as the call to help the blind and the campaign in aid of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind which opens in Belleville next week should receive the heartiest of support.

HELIUM FOR HITLER

HELIUM IS THE SAFEST GAS FOR DIRIGIBLES, and United States controls the helium gas supply. Germany after the Hindenburg disaster, now turns to the United States for helium gas, but there is a strong feeling over there against supplying Germany with the gas, caused no doubt by a lively recollection of the wartime exploits of Germany's dirigibles, spreading terrorism and death among noncombatants, bombing unfortified communities, etc. Judith Robinson, a forceful writer on current subjects, having the honor to command the first column in the Front Page of the Globe and Mail, has some thought-provoking words to offer on the subject. Says Judith: "A nation with less notable list of fractured pledges to its credit might conceivably be trusted to use in commercial aviation any helium gas supplied it for use in commercial aviation. But could Germany? Germany wars are prepared in advance and thus far in history Germany has never hesitated to misuse peaceful commercial relations to help along the preparations. The only way yet found to keep Germany's rulers from collecting in peace what they think they may need to make a successful war is not to let them have what they think they may need.... The helium question as it affects the government of the United States concerns the wisdom of supplying the most dangerous lunatic at large in Europe with an aerial safe-conduct to the shores of this continent. GIVEN APPOINTMENTS IN KING'S HONORS LIST

LORD TWEEDSMUIR

HON. ERNEST LAPOINTE

EARL OF BESSBOROUGH

EARL OF STRATHMORE

The King's honors list, on the occasion of his coronation, figures the appointment of 13 peerages, 19 baronetcies, seven baronetcies and almost 100 knights. Lord Tweedsmuir and Hon. Ernest Lapointe were created Imperial privy councillors which will allow them the prefix of "Right Honorable" for life. The Earl of Bessborough, former Governor General of Canada, who holds an Irish peerage, was created an earl in the peerage of the United Kingdom. The Earl of Strathmore, father of Queen Elizabeth, who holds a Scottish representative peerage was also conferred a peerage in the United Kingdom. No titles went to Canada, South Africa or the Irish Free State.

Belleville Jewry Honor King

(Contributed by J. J. Berger)

The spiritualizing influences of this modern age which have transfused with higher beauty so many of the hoary traditions of British institutions have shed their rosiest glow of tender emotions upon the most important day of the year. The Coronation ceremony of our Sovereign Lord, King George and our Gracious Queen Elizabeth in whose golden diadems glitter the sparkling jewels of freedom, right-eousness and humanity has been commemorated in fitting manner by the Belleville Jews in the Synagogue.

Indeed this sacred occasion was radiant with joy and gratification because it tokens the devotion of the Royal family to the highest ideals of life. When today the Jews gave thanks to God for the rich harvest of spiritual blessings bestowed and prayed that He had permitted them to witness this day of rejoicing their celebration took on a wider significance. It is not merely an evidence of their faithfulness and devotion to the Crown in the past but it becomes an earnest and significant evidence of their loyalty and devotion to the Crown in the future. Therefore, they re-dedicate their unabated loyalty and devotion to the King and his family Queen.

Theme of Sacred Hour

This was the theme of this sacred hour, all its message was a joy and gladness, all the lifting look of light and inspiration of hope and courage of the humble heart.

Throughout the devotional period that Majestic Reading George and Queen Elizabeth and all the Royal family were emblazoned with the grandest dignity and humanity and at the conclusion of the service Rabbi Gertzel delivered the sermon in Hebrew, the text of which is translated as follows:

Almighty God,

By the King's reign and Prince rule Thou establishest their Throne, and in Thy hand is their glory and majesty. Thou didst set Thy servant King George upon the Throne of his fathers, high among the monarchs of the earth. Many peoples, from sea to sea and from the riding of the sun unto the going down of the same, hast Thou placed under his sceptre a sceptre of freedom, righteousness and humanity.

And this day by faith been anointed King, and the Crown of Sovereignty hath been placed on his head. This day he hath lifted up his hand to Heaven and hath taken the oath, that he would rule over his peoples according to the statutes of Israel.

Songs of Rejoicing

Songs of rejoicing and loyal homage resound from his loving subjects throughout the world, and happy are we, the children of Israel who dwell in safety under his shadow, that we share in his acclamation, our hearts overflow with gratitude unto Thee, who hast cast our lot in these lands, and hast kept us in life, preserved us, and enabled us to reach this day of rejoicing.

Therefore we are come to Thy house with psalm and thanksgiving, and fervently do we pray, O God, save the King! Prolong his days in happiness, and his years in well-being, and even as Thou has set a diadem of gold upon his head, so crow him with glory, and anoint him with Thy grace. Send forth Thy light and Thy truth, let them lead him, and Thine arm strengthen him to bear the heavy yoke of governance. Fulfil in him Thy secret counsels, that from him all-eth upon Me, I will answer him. I will be with him in trouble, I will deliver him and honor him, with length of days will I satisfy him, and I will let him see My salvation."

Pour out the riches of Thy Heavenly goodness upon Queen Elizabeth, the standeth at the right hand of the King in gracious majesty, and bestow Thy choicest blessings upon the Queen Mother, the Princess Elizabeth, and upon all the Royal House of the Royal House, grant unto the counsellors of our Government and the representatives of the nation a spirit of wisdom and understanding, prosperity and success in their labors, lead to lasting and beneficient results. Let Thy peace reign under the King's dominion in Thy keeping and withhold pestilence, sword and famine from their borders. Remove envy, strife, and causeless hatred from the hearts of their inhabitants and all flesh shall see that Thou, O Lord, art God. Unite brethren to dwell together in unity.

Oh, hasten the day when the children of men understand that they have one Father, that one created us, that one hath the right of universal justice flood the world, and the Knowledge of God cover the earth, as the waters cover the sea. Amen.

CANADA AND EMPIRE ACCLAIM KING AT CORONATION

Queen Grips Confidence of Subjects

Active and Simple Tastes of Elizabeth Has Ideas of Her Own.

By MOLLIE McGEE

From Madame Tussaud's Wax Works in London who consider themselves authorities on royalty and are predicting "the little Duchess" will be every bit as great a queen as the late Elizabeth, "Our Queen Mum" as we know her, she wants."

Queen Elizabeth has already made known her definite ideas, her likes and dislikes.

Queens Contrasted.

The "queen to the Queen's taste" has taken on real meaning in London during arrangements for the Coronation. Yet no greater contrast in the sex of Queen Elizabeth can be found than the sensible young footwoman who, surrounded by pomp and, pageantry, on Coronation Day, enters the great door of Westminster Abbey for the crowning by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Elizabeth, daughter of Mary VIII, Queen in her own right and might, 1558-1608, was tall, wore wigs of bright red, and had a temper. But Elizabeth, daughter of a Scottish Earl, Queen consort of England, is small, and has what is termed "an average figure." She has a fairly trim hair and uses remarkably little make-up; she has a good complexion of her own.

From these close to her, it can be learned the Queen's taste in colors is climatic, are diametrically opposed to those of her predecessor Elizabeth. In contrast also are her knowledge of and sympathy for the poorer classes, her sensible outlook and her love of Scotland — with which her namesake had scarcely but forbears relations.

As for the Queen's personal preferences in clothes it has been found she chooses simple feminine styles. Dresses with soft, flowing lines, fabrics and touches of embroidery, ornamentation, with small hat trimmings. Yet she does not carry her simple tastes into spectacular public life. Here everything must be as gorgeous and ultra-modern as her daughter's.

Palace Like Home.

She is fond of blues and rose-pink, with beige, almond-green and navy for straw; wear, in house furnishings she leans towards the baroque. Before leaving her rented home at 145 Piccadilly, she is said to have told her present home is to be made making Buckingham Palace every bit as homelike.

Music is one of the Queen's real hobbies. Brought up in a musical family, Lord Strathmore, her father, organized a glee chorus in his household—she be such an exceptionally talented musician, but, she likes to play for her husband and children. She has also shown keen interest in artistic theatrical productions and in the ballet. She and Princess Margaret Rose, incidentally, often take their own movies at home, and several times show them to a select little audience.

The Queen is happiest in the midst of her family, during their week-ends at Windsor Castle, their Scottish home in Windsor Great Park, where they are unattended and really enjoy family life. Her closest interest is, of course, her children, with whom she spends time every day she can. She chooses their clothes and supervises their diet, under the watchful governesses' care.

The Queen's circle has many friends, and among her closest group is the attractive young Canadian-born Countess of Haddington, who was the former Sarah Cook of Montreal. Another of her best friends and closest confidantes is Hon. Mrs. Ronald Greville, the rich widow whose new devoting her life to the furtherance of good causes in England.

As far as cooking is concerned, Elizabeth prefers plain food and is a strict housekeeper. Her favorite meal is said to be afternoon tea, en famille.

Keeps Busy Life.

The Queen's hobbies are needlework and gardening. With the King she has worked a set of petit-point seats and has made a garden in every home they have had since their marriage.

The Queen's charities are numerous. She is patroness of dozens of worthy causes, and has sat as the Duchess of York on many committees with working girls from department stores and offices. Her strongest interest is in work connected with welfare of women and girls, and she has been particularly active in the League of Women Helpers, which is part of Toc H, the servicemen's organization.

After the Queen returns from her afternoon engagements she devotes herself to her family, and the children's particular time with their mother is after their tea in the nursery, about five o'clock. Queen Elizabeth is very firm about there being no public engagements for her children, although they are permitted, like other children, to go to children's concerts and to military tournaments and displays.

Since her girlhood Queen Elizabeth has been an animated person, a nationalist, a good tennis player, and fond of dancing. With her marriage to the Duke of York she indicated a studied desire to fit into the picture of a popular reigning house, mindful of the welfare of her subjects. Now she is loved alike by the older generation who see the queenly virtue in her character, and by the younger ones who detect a conformity to the fashions of the day.

George as Midshipman in Canada Left Reputation for Ready Humor

Canada's recollections of King George VI are of a gilt, 15-year-old youth with a ready smile and an abundant sense of humor who, as Prince Albert, visited Halifax and Charlottetown in May, 1913.

"A genuine boy" was history of medium height with a frank, open countenance and light complexion, a Halifax paper of May 26, 1913, described him. The article went on to say the young Prince had "the eye and expression of his father, the features of his mother."

Danced at Tea.

Because Prince Albert was a midshipman aboard H.M.S. Cumberland when he visited Halifax, no official reception was given him—at the express wish of King George V. Instead, the afternoon tea-dance had been held at Government House, with 200 guests attending to represent Halifax society and the officers and midshipmen of the Cumberland.

Those who danced with the young Prince on that occasion recall his eyes—ready wit and his good-natured, boyish smile. One of his partners remembers his quiet amusement at the gay dance shoes worn by one of the male guests present; others recall his quick grin and happy manner.

They were a jolly bunch, those midshipmen who came ashore with Albert that day. Their chief interest, it would seem, was in being admitted, was the prodigious amount of food served at the reception they went thinking not about the girls.

A newspaper of the time records a little incident during the parade from King's Wharf to Government House that gave Prince Albert a December was the Enlightened of the Garter upon the Queen. The conferment was made on the King's forty-first birthday, just a few days after the accession, and was the only honor conferred that day. The Garter is the highest honor that can be bestowed by the Sovereign, and the order is the oldest in the world, limited to a membership of 25. Just before going to Scotland Elizabeth had also received the freedom of Edinburgh when she visited the Scottish capital with her husband to open the Royal Infirmary and Hospital of the Church of Scotland.

Married Fourteen Years.

The Duke and Duchess have just celebrated in modest fashion their fourteenth wedding anniversary.

They were married at Westminster Abbey April 26, 1923, by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Elizabeth then was 23 years of age, Prince Albert, Duke of York, was just 27. In 1926, and was only 8 months old when Princess Elizabeth received on their great Australian tour. Margaret Rose was born at Glamis Castle August 21, 1930.

Cockr life in some ways may restrict the Queen's activities, but the belief is expressed by the great and lowly alike that she who in the Abbey Coronation Day joined the grand procession of England's queens brings with her a deeper understanding of her opportunities for service and happiness than almost any other who has walked down that royal aisle to crowned queenship before her.

KING'S STEPS TO CROWNING

1895 (Dec. 14)—Born Prince Albert at York Cottage, Sandringham.

1910—Entered the Royal Naval Training College, Osborne.

1913—Visited Eastern Canada as a naval cadet.

1918—Aboard H.M.S. Collingwood at Jutland; mentioned in despatches.

1919—Joined Royal Air Force.

1919—Entered Cambridge for history and economics.

1920—Created Duke of York.

1923—Married Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon.

1924—Visited Africa and Egypt.

place in the hearts of Tallgonosa. Among the crowds that lined the streets to see him pass was a small boy, vigorously waving a flag as he sought for a sign of recognition of his presence from the Prince.

Prince Albert's attention was drawn to the opposite side of the street and he paused without noticing the little patriot. But the lad's disappointment was short-lived, for Albert quickly realized what had happened, retraced his steps, and saluted the youngster and his flag as he passed a second time.

Similar memories exist in the minds of residents of Charlottetown, where the Cumberland called after leaving Halifax. "People were impressed by his youthful shyness and evident sense of humor," a Charlottetown newspaper records.

While he attended a reception at Government House, he tried to keep as solemn a face as possible, adjusted to his dignity and the occasion. But every now and then, a smile would spread over his features and he would get behind one of his fellow-cadets.

During the three-day stay of the ship at Charlottetown, the Navy Cricket Club trounced the Piscenic Cricket Club of Charlottetown 119 to 46 in a single-innings contest. The Prince was a keen follower of the game, although he did not take part in the match.

King Renews Old Customs Of His House

George VI Gives Timely Aid to Sport of Kings With His Horses.

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION

George VI since his accession has restored some of the customs and practices of his father's, traditional with the royal house, but dropped by Edward VIII during his brief reign in 1936. The royal stables at Sandringham, closed by Edward, have been re-opened, and the King has resolved to maintain the family racing establishment on the same lines as George V.

Afternoon Cloche.

Clocks at Sandringham, kept half an hour fast by Edward VII and George V, but put in step with British time by Edward, have again been advanced the half-hour by the present King. His Majesty has also used the royal train. His brother, Edward, liked to travel in a private car attached to the regular express.

That the King intends to extent to the turf as goodly a measure of patronage as circumstances allow seems fully assured. The season started under the happiest auspices when their Majesties attended the Grand National running on Mar. 31 at Windsor for Aaon was in June, the King and Queen will make several appearances at that fashionable course.

The King has some 18 horses in training under W. R. Jarvis at Egerton House, Newmarket. His Majesty's racing establishment also includes the Hampton Court stud and the Sandringham stud. Originally all the brood mares were at Sandringham, but Edward VIII, during his short reign, closed this down. It is likely now that Sandringham will again be used.

Bred Derby Winners.

At Sandringham, were bred Edward VII's famous Derby winners, Persimmon and Diamond Jubilee. Persimmon also won the St. Leger, and Diamond Jubilee the Two Thousand Guineas and St. Leger. Last season, the royal horses ran in the name and under the colors of Lord Derby, winning in eleven events.

Unfortunately they have not scored again in the Derby in the years of the Coronation, for the simple reason that they have no entry. Perhaps the most promising of the horses in the King's stable at the opening of the season is Fairey, a well-balanced colt of considerable power and elusiveness, by Fairway out of Polish Air. He was a winner last year at Ascot and Doncaster.

It is understood the young jockey, W. Crouch, who was appointed to ride the Royal horses during the next flat-racing season, will retain the position. The jockey to the King. He is 21 years old.

Royal Yacht Ready.

The Royal yacht Victoria and Albert, built in 1897, the year of Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee, has just come out of dry-dock at Portsmouth after undergoing her annual overhaul. It will be up board the Victoria and Albert, which has carried more crowned heads and other Royal personages than any vessel in the world, that the King will steam through the lines for the Coronation Naval Review off Spithead on May 20.

THE QUEEN'S YEARS

August 4, 1900—Born Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, at St. Paul's, Walbrooke.

February 22, 1923—Bridesmaid at wedding of Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles.

January 13, 1923—Engagement to Duke of York announced.

April 26, 1923—Married Duke of York at Westminster Abbey.

April 21, 1926—Princess Elizabeth born.

August 21, 1930—Princess Margaret Rose born.

December 12, 1936 — Became Queen with accession of George VI.

The future of the world's most priceless stamp collection, assembled as a hobby by George V, is still uncertain. This collection is one of the finest in the world; the most complete as regards British issues. What provision, if any, the late King made for its disposal will not be known for some time.

In spite of their father's enthusiasm neither the present King nor his brothers have shown much interest in philately. Little Princess Elizabeth, however, always a favorite with her grandfather, has a considerable collection of her own, including some stamps of more value, given her by her grandfather.

The collection of George V may not go on the display for years, owing to lack of adequate display facilities. The philatelic section of the British Museum is so restricted and unsatisfactorily lighted that only a building has been financed out they would be necessary to do justice to such a large and valuable collection.

Fond of Sports.

As far as sports go, the King is equally at home on the golf links, shooting on Scottish moors, playing tennis or cricket. He is also fond of, also, played football and cricket, skiing and has never given much encouragement to horse racing.

It is said to have the best and quickest eye for a ball of any member of the Royal family. As a tennis player he has attended with a good enough to compete at Wimbledon and has played William T. Tilden II in his prime for a three-set match on the court at Buckingham Palace. The match was between the Duke "an excellent tennis player."

Since 1929 George has turned more exclusively to golf, and in 1930 he drove himself into the captaincy of St. Andrew's with a 300-yard tee shot. Fox-hunting for his time was one of his favorite sports, but he sold his stables in 1931 when, with the rest of the Royal family, he gave up a portion of his annual allowance.

He handles a gun like his father, George V, who was a crack shot. His has his own hunting box in Northants and is frequently shoot over the Royal moors in Scotland and at Sandringham.

Crowning Brings Thrill For Young Princesses

Elizabeth as Heir-Presumptive Has Prominent Place in Abbey as Sister Looks On.

The two youngest royalties going to Westminster Abbey for the Coronation took their part in the proceedings very much as adults.

"Princess Elizabeth is a serious little girl and very conscientious," those close to her remark. She never relaxes and is a good guide and companion to her younger sister, Princess Rose, who is an elf in spirit. Princess Elizabeth tells her what to do and when to remember to wave and say thank you, if Margaret Rose forgets to do so.

So it is highly probable that out of the corner of her eye Princess Elizabeth heir-presumptive to the throne will keep careful watch over her less responsible sister, who is but four years of age.

Princess Elizabeth, who had a birthday April 26, walked in the entrance procession of Princes and Princesses of the Royal House, her own first lady-in-waiting carried her train and her page wore white ribbons and helped her adjust it when the Queen was crowned.

Has Tiny Coronet.

Margaret Rose also has a coronet, as tiny a crown as Queen Mary's jewelers have ever made, and her intense pride in its ownership probably keeps her curly head as straight as a ramrod once it had gone on. She was escorted to her seat in the Royal box by a gentleman usher directly after her arrival at the Abbey, and watched from there to see her sister and her father and mother come up the aisle. The two Princesses drove to the Abbey together in a great gilt coach under the care of attending ladies.

Both "the children", as they are known in the Royal family circle, are delighted with their costumes, and dressing the elderly Duchesses when the Royal robemakers went to Buckingham Palace from Chesterfield Lane to fit their robes and trains. These had to be made to special specifications, as there was no precedent.

"A Queen's train is always strapped long, but the young Princesses are the youngest officials we have ever had, so we made their robes to meet the occasion, and not long enough to get in their way," the robe makers said.

New clothes are always a delight in the Royal nursery and Australian are chosen by the Queen to be made up by a very competent nurse. Washable prints are usually the mainstay of the young Princesses' summer wardrobe, and they are each made about four coats a year in simple, plainly tailored styles. Usually grey and a bright shade of green or gold are chosen for the summer, with brown and blue for the winter.

To these simply dressed young women Coronation meant a grand pageant in which they had the honor to participate.

Earnest in Duties George VI Tackles Empire's Problems

Well Schooled in Work of Royal Office, King Puts Business First and Is Confronted With Heavy Program Months Ahead.

By PAT USSHER

(Central Press Staff Writer)

Since that dramatic day in December when Edward VIII abdicated his brother, who succeeded to the throne as George VI, has been fully occupied learning the complicated task of kingship.

The approach of the Coronation naturally added to the new sovereign's heavy duties. In addition to the customary routine of audiences and state business, he has had to study scores of documents and have countless interviews with officials concerning the ceremonies.

Takes Work Home.

Even on week-ends, when the Englishman traditionally puts his work aside, the King has usually taken with him to Windsor several despatch cases crammed with official documents for reading and signing.

His majesty's immediate official program includes meeting the Prime Minister and other statesmen from the Dominions beyond the seas in London for the Imperial Conference and Empire Parliamentary Association, as well as the Coronation. For weeks following the ceremony he will be fully occupied with public engagements and social functions.

One of the King's first acts after succeeding to the throne was an assurance to Parliament that he would uphold the existing system of constitutional government in Great Britain.

His birthday fell on Dec. 14, four days after he became King, but at his own wish it was not observed as a holiday. In fact a birthday celebration with his residence was delayed while he occupied himself with business at Buckingham Palace.

With other members of the Royal family, King George spent Christmas and the New Year at Sandringham and remained there until Jan. 20. Shortly after their return to London the King and Queen moved from 145, Piccadilly, to Buckingham Palace, where apartments had been prepared for them.

Their Majesties have spent week-ends at the royal lodge in Windsor Great Park, which is a favorite action every Sunday morning at the royal chapel there. The royal family spent the Easter season at the Lodge and early in April moved into Windsor Castle.

Weekend Study By People.

The first public engagement of the King and Queen together since their accession was to visit the new People's Palace in the East End Feb. 13. The King opened the palace, and the royal couple were warmly welcomed as they drove through the streets from the East End to and from the big new recreation centre.

On March 17 King George drove across the Thames to Kennington, part of the Duchy of Cornwall estates. The visit marked the 600th anniversary of the granting of the charter of the Duchy of Cornwall to the Black Prince by Edward III. Besides being head of the Duchy houses, the King inspected the hostel for boys in Stockwell, known as King George's House, and a boys' club.

Travelling by Royal train, as was the custom of George V, the King and the Queen visited Alnwick Castle, the centenary running of the Grand National on March 19. They stayed two nights at Alnwick as guests of Lord Derby.

Previously the King made two visits to the British Industries Fair, where various members of the Royal family made a number of appearances.

Daily audiences with ministers, diplomats, Coronation officials and other dignitaries have kept the King busy. He held two investitures in order to bestow honors issued on the Coronation, ambassadors and other diplomats representing foreign countries have visited the Palace to present their credentials to the new Sovereign. One distinguished caller was the King of the Belgians, who was a guest for lunch at the Palace in the course of a brief visit to England in March.

George VI's reign has found his first months as Empire ruler an augury of a busy life.

Work of Wide Range.

Naturally, he was busy enough as Duke of York, but although his activities were always overshadowed by the wider interests covered by the Prince of Wales. During Edward's brief reign George was resolute and unflagging in every effort to lighten the burden of sovereignship which for a time his elder brother. After the abdication, when George VI became King, Baldwin, who announced the first act of his reign would be to confer the title of Duke of Windsor on the ex-monarch, who had left England on his abdication.

His message on his forty-first birthday, a few days later, read in the House of Lords and the House of Commons, said: "I have succeeded to the throne in circumstances which are without precedent, and at a moment of great personal distress. But I am resolved to do my duty, and I am sustained by the knowledge that I can count upon the wholehearted good-will and sympathy of all my subjects, here and throughout the world.

"It will be my constant endeavour, with God's help, supported as I shall be by my dear wife, to uphold the honor of the Crown, and to promote the happiness of my people."

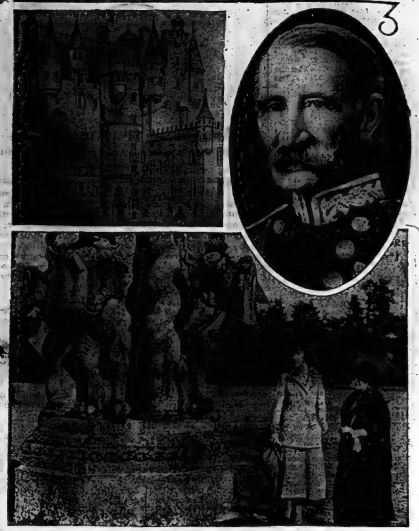
Baldwin's Blessing.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, whose birthday message addressed to the King was presented to his Majesty in reply to the previous message, said: "I have the honor of knowing the new King well. . . . Whatever may happen in time, no personal predilections of any kind will stand between him and what he conceives to be his high duty, and that is to fulfil his great task as King and Emperor."

King George said in a New Year's message issued shortly afterwards to all his subjects: "I follow a father who had won for himself an abiding place in the affections of his people, and a brother whose brilliant qualities fitted him for another historic reign—a reign cut short in circumstances upon which, from their very nature, none of us would wish to dwell.

"I realize to the full the responsibility of my noble heritage. I shoulder them with all the more confidence in the knowledge that the Queen and my mother, Queen Mary, are at my side.

"Throughout my life it will be my constant endeavor to strengthen that foundation of mutual trust and affection on which the relations between the sovereign and the peoples of the British Empire so happily rest.



"I ask your help toward the fulfilment of this purpose, and know that I do not ask in vain."

Tweed Citizens Band Arranges Special Coronation Programme

G. R. Fenwick, Mus. Bac., Dept. of Education is Speaker

Tweed, May 12.—An excellent program especially arranged for Coronation Sunday was presented by Tweed Citizens' Band at the auditorium on Sunday evening. Long before the hour of 8:30 when the program was scheduled to begin every seat was taken and scores were standing. It is estimated that nearly seven hundred persons were in the hall gathered together to participate in a program prepared to commemorate the Coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

G. R. Fenwick, Mus. Bac., Provincial Supervisor of Music of the Department of Education, and a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Sills of Tweed was the chairman. His interesting comments following the various musical numbers added to the general enjoyment of the program. Mr. Fenwick was introduced by Reeve W. H. Sills.

A special feature of the program was a group of Coronation and patriotic songs by a seventy-five voice choir from the Tweed Consolidated School. The children were trained by Miss Lois Richardson, teacher of music in the school, and directed by Principal R. M. Thompson. The children sang as their first group "May Peace and Love Be Your Rich Throne" and "Land of Clad Tomorrows". The first song was composed especially for this Coronation and was sent out by Mr. Fenwick's department to all schools in the province. The second group comprised (1) the "Royal King George" and (2) "Dear Canada, Dear Land o' Mine". Mr. Fenwick interested in directing terms on the excellence of the children's singing which compared most favorably with those in much larger schools. In a musical competition, he said, the choir would have received a very high score.

In the course of his remarks Mr. Fenwick stated that the Minister of Education is desirous of having music taught in all the elementary schools of the province. Music provides for the children an emotional outlet and makes it possible for them to put to profitable use their leisure time. Musical talent is discovered in the children and is developed.

In the past two years the teaching of music has been greatly extended in the schools and 2200 new rooms have been added. At the present time music is being taught in 60 per cent. of all the class rooms in elementary schools. Arrangements are being made and will probably be completed by the time of the re-opening of schools in September to have the teaching of music extended to Form 1 in the High Schools, with provision being made for 80 minutes per week being devoted to its teaching. Mr. Fenwick noted that music had been a subject on the curriculum of the Tweed Consolidated School for a great many years and that the school was well in the front line of those giving musical training to the children.

Two further numbers on the program were a cornet solo by Bandsman Bert Hirpck and a trombone solo by Bandsman Stan Iuffman, both marking the first public appearance. They received great ovations from the large audience which was seldom effort.

Mr. J. C. Young, teacher of guitar contributed two fine numbers on the electric guitar. Mr. Young is an artist of a very high order and delighted the audience with his numbers.

Other numbers on the program were:

"O Canada".

March—"The Fencing Master".

Vocal solo, "God Bless the King"—Frank Thomson.

Overture, "Oracle".

Humorous March, "The Jolly Coppersmith".

Overture, "Corinthian".

Hymn, "Sun of My Soul", arranged by Bandsman W. E. Deck.

"God Save the King".

Miss Lois Richardson made a splendid accompanist for the various numbers.

The band is indebted to Mr. John Sills for the excellent crown which was used in the stage decorations above the picture of the King and Queen. The crown, measuring 16 inches wide and 12 inches deep at height was an excellent likeness. It was cut from wall board and painted with gold paint. Blocks of wood, cut, moulded and colored to represent the diamonds, rubies, pearls and sapphires glued to the crown resulted in a most realistic facsimile.

Attractive souvenir programs designed by Mr. Keith Wilson, a member of the band, were presented to those in attendance.

Officers of the Band are:

President—Mr. Jones.

Sec.-Treasurer—Allon Foster.

Librarian—Walter Leal.

Bandmaster—W. E. Deck.

Committee—M. R. Rose, W. Leal, Bandsman Bert Hirpck, Wilson, J. Purchase, B. Thompson, W. Cartwright.

Honorary Presidents — Dr. H. E. Welsh, M.P.P., Dr. M. J. O'Connor, Dr. W. A. Tail, W. J. Gordon, Dr. Quinn, W. E. Tummon, W. H. Sayers, Reeve.

YOUR HOME

And How to Improve It

A Series of Articles on Suggested Home Improvements Advisability, Value, Cost, Etc.

Home, sweet home — home can be made sweeter, more comfortable and convenient, besides adding to its value, by comparatively simple additions or alterations. Modernization means money, money expended — money invested rather, for improvements can be made which will add to the value of the property much more than is spent upon it. Hence it is well always to consider the investment angle while enjoying the added comfort and convenience, coupled with pride in the home you love. The Home Improvement Plan provides the money to add value to your home investment.

X X X

What about a garage on your property? The Home Improvement Plan provides the money — repaid in small monthly installments, less than rental charges.

X X X

Your family is larger and the house is not as roomy as it was bock when the family was small and growing. How about an addition? Think it over. What improvements are required to make your home just what you would like it to be? List improvements you would like, get an estimate from a builder and then see any banker and find out just how easy it is to finance it under the Home Improvement Plan.

X X X

A loan of one hundred dollars under the Home Improvement Plan can be repaid in monthly installments of $2.78 for 36 months; $200 loan calls for monthly payments of $5.56; $300 loan is repaid in monthly installments of $8.34; $400 calls for monthly payments of 11.12. If desired the loan can be paid off in six months, 12 months, 18 months, or thirty months. Loans can be obtained up to $2,000.00.

BUNKS FOR BOYS

Just because you decide that you would like to have built-in bunks installed of bedd in the room that your boys occupy, there is no need to have the floor space covered in a composition material that looked like tile. The walls were painted an off-shade of white. At the head of each bed, shelves were put in, and the bottom shelves concealed lights.

With her own funds, the mother purchased linoleum for the floor room; in a dark blue which blended with the red, orange, yellow, blue and green of the hooked rugs which were on the floor. Curtains, the room used before, was placed at the foot of one of the bunks. A desk and chair were repainted. A plain blue rug was used over the old covering.

The casement windows were hung with red and white checked linen.

The Home Improvement Plan opens the way for modernizing interiors.

PRIDE OF THE HOUSEHOLD

Through modernization, a small square bath room became a colorful place and the pride of the household. Walls were tiled a light mare brown, with a wide black border at the top. Washable paper covered the ceiling with a design of turquoise, yellow, orange and brown. Black linoleum was used as floor covering.

Inside the bathroom, fixtures were placed at either side of the medicine cabinet, affording adequate light for make up or shaving.

Curtains provided a touch of startling tone or other equipment.

Yellow curtains were purchased for the window and shower. An orange towel to go with brown and white tones covered the floor and yellow towels with orange, brown and white borders the glass towel racks.

Funds for remodeling bathrooms may be obtained from any bank under the Home Improvement Plan, which is being sponsored by the Dominion Government.

MADOC JCT.

Madoc Jct.—Mr. and Mrs. C. Brimbell and Ruth of Corbyville, were recent visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Stapley's.

Mr. and Mrs. James Rayner received a letter announcing the former's brother, Mr. John Rayner of Minico, had passed away last Saturday. Mrs. Rayner left for Minico on Monday and will remain with Mrs. Joseph Rayner.

Several from here attended the Salvation's Motor Show and Fashion Festival held in Belleville, last week.

Miss Lenore Stapley is spending this week with Miss Caroline Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Wannamaker and family were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Stapley and Campbellford.

Last Sunday a "Go to Church and Sunday School Service" was held at Eqmiston church. During the morning church period, Mr. F. W. Mulin of Stirling gave a splendid address which was greatly appreciated and Miss Marion McMullen sang a solo.

Friends here are pleased to learn that Mr. Rest July of Shannonville is gradually gaining strength, and one day last week was able to visit his brother, Mr. Arthur July of Rawdon.

Mrs. T. Madill and Margaret Ann Lindsay attended the Women's I.O.O.F. Convention in Belleville, on Thursday evening, May 6th., when the members of Eqmiston Young People's Union met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hayton and held the closing meeting for this season.

Miss D. McMullen presided and after the worship period, games and contests were enjoyed.

At the close, lunch was served. Then the hostess passed personal dishes of delicious ice cream.

A vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Harlow for opening up their home for the meeting was expressed by Mrs. O. Stapley and Verla Parkson.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking behind the newspaper and I said, May pop, what time is it?

It's precisely 8 thirty 3 and a half, Benny, he said. O, pop, time certainly flies, don't it?

It has that reputation and believe is seldom fales to live up to it, pop said. I remember very vividly one time when I was about your age I was shown a whole quart of strawberry ice cream and I certainly did know how fast it could possibly eat in a gentlemanly manner in 3 minutes. High he, how those 3 minutes flew, he said.

And he started to read the paper again and after a while I said, the Editorial that I wrote, pop?

8 thirty 7 and I hope that covers the situation for a while, pop said, looking at his watch again, and pritty soon I said What time is it now, pop?

I'll take a certain amount of perishable pride in the accuracy of my watch but there comes a time when time becomes immaterial and irrelevant pop said. In other words I just told you didn't I he said and I said, Yes sir, and he said, Well what's the big hurry, where are you going except to bed?

Nowhere pop, only O, pop, just imagine, I said, and pop said, just imagine what? and I said, Just imagine that no matter what time it is now ma's wrist watch is still saying exactly 13 minutes after 7 because that's the time it stopped at when I accidently gave it a little push off of her dressing table.

Well, just then something like dynamite must have fallen on the floor in ma's service.

Here ends the beginning of the end part.

LONDON ROLLS ON WITH MILD FLUSH FROM CORONATION

Life as Usual Desire of Great Metropolis as Armies of Visitors Throng Streets And Marvel at Landmarks

By I. Norman Smith

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON,—(CP)—There's a sign on Charing Cross Station advertising "Conducted Rambles". The purist might argue a conducted ramble is no longer a ramble, but in this country of paradoxes the point is not raised.

The sign epitomizes, figuratively speaking, the way this great city of the past is abreast of the 20th century and aware of its still-potential future. Here the streamline caravans down he cobble-stone road and the customs of the people remain fixed by precedent although lightened by inconsistent flirtations with the moderns.

Coronation visitors find it either bewilderingly of fascinating or both. It is only certain they'll not remain indifferent for London is not one of those places you don't think about. Tourists agree about it, rave about it and curse about it. But the Londoner just smiles with an exquisitely flat guile.

Seeing 'Real London'

A prominent French author explained the other day he had not come to see the Coronation but to "see the real London'. That will be difficult but not impossible. For, all-embracing though the Coronation atmosphere may be, it is not sufficiently penetrating to do more than bring a flush to the face of this old woman who has mothered pomp and ceremony from an early age.

The answer to what the Coronation visitor will find depends upon the visitor. Most and near-half million move about London's 692 square miles in a manner that defies generalization. One thing is certain quaintness will be alarmed to find London shrieking from gaining calm. Apartment blocks are springing up slap against a Georgian town house. Skyline is losing a charming district and historic residences are giving place to garages—despite incessant letters to the editor that such activity is not only mad but sacrilegious.

Not that history has been crowded out—neither for Londoners' charm lies in its surprises. Around the corner from a fashionable hotel building the visitor will come suddenly into a quiet little square where the music of violins will bear the whisperings of Victorian scandal and Georgian gossip. The Inns of Court, for example, stand aloof with all the dignity of a winged bull from the tomb of the nearby Strand and the chaos of Fleet Street.

Minor Observations

Taking the inevitable first impressions for granted—brussel sprouts, afternoon tea, indifference, rain and foot coffee—the visitor will enjoy his minor observations. The bank teller weighs his silver coins, the young man wears no hat but is nevertheless snuffier, the "logical" expectation never works out for London revels in inconsistencies and doing things the hard way, the people are polite, the pound goes like a tt bill and time goes even faster.

The Canadian must reconcile himself to becoming an American for the 48th parallel is not common knowledge in this country. If he takes the pains to assert he's Canadian he may be rebuffed with "Well that's quite the same thing". But that same Canadian will perhaps do well not to presume all Englishmen are fools nor that their humor has worn away with the centuries. The determined and ladened English joke is admittedly grim, but there's a keen appreciation of the fun of congenial tidding and if the visitor makes a good object the more's the fun.

Some it was who studied his countries as reflected in the people it would seem the most rewarding pastimes for, as he said, one can see "the precise and distinguishing marks of national characters more in those nonsensical minutiae".

11 RAIDS OVER BILBAO TODAY

Bilbao, May 12—(AP)—Eleven insurgent air raids within less than five hours blasted the outskirts of Bilbao today.

Although the most densely inhabited sections of the centre of Bilbao remained untouched, it was agreed that the air raids were General Franco's way of warning that insurgent forces would bomb the city by sea and from the air without mercy unless Bilbao surrendered by Wednesday.

The Crown Jewels

Fabulous Treasure Contained In Crown Jewels of England

When Not Used Kept in Jewel Room at Tower of London

VALUED AT $2,000,000

The fabulous treasure which is the Crown Jewels of England was upon one of the rare occasions, brought from its steel and glass-enclosed repository in the Tower of London today when the Coronation of their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth took place in Westminster Abbey.

Lying in state behind the thick glass and heavy steel bars of the Jewel Room in the Tower, this magnificent display of the rare gems and jewels in the world have been the source of admiration for thousands of visitors during the past few days.

Intrinsically valued at $2,000,000 the Royal crown, which is so heavy it has to be removed from the head of the Sovereign immediately after the coronation, and replaced by the State Crown, is an accumulation of five pounds of platinum-gold and precious stones cunningly formed into its sovereal shape. It is a blaze of living fire with thousands of diamonds, and four rubies, four sapphires and six emeralds, stones which are worth a fortune in themselves. Two large pearls are reported to be worn by "Good Queen Bess" are mounted on the peak.

Sparkling with jewels and almost as valuable as the Royal crown, the Imperial State Crown bears the famous Stone, called the "Black Prince's Ruby," a pigeon blood-stone valued at one half million dollars. This stone was worn in the helmet of King Henry at the Battle of Agincourt. Other stones of great historical value in the Imperial Crown are the Great Stuart Sapphire, embedded in pearls, and the famous sapphire ring of Edward the Confessor. The famous second star of Africa cut from the equally famous Cullinan Diamond and which weighs in the vicinity of 309½ carats is one of the most brilliant stones in the Crown. Seventeen sapphires, eleven emeralds and thousands of diamonds make this crown a veritable blaze of shining fire.

Crown of India

Following a statute of British law which forbade the taking of the royal crowns out of the country, the Imperial Crown of India was made when King George V was crowned Emperor of India. This crown which occupies a prominent place in the British Crown Jewels is also brilliantly studded with precious stones of which a rich pigeon's blood ruby of Indian origin. Measuring seven feet seven inches in length with a white enameled dove at its top, is the King's Sceptre. It is made of solid gold while at its top rises a mound with a golden cross upon which the dove is placed. The centre of the sceptre has a band of emeralds and precious stones, and gold openwork. During the Coronation, the King carries the sceptre in his left hand.

The rarest of diamonds, the famous Major Star of Africa, weighing 516½ carats is centred in the head of the royal sceptre, which is handed to the King during the ceremony. Supporting the jewel cross forming the top is a perfect amethyst globe. Only two feet in length the royal sceptre is the most valuable piece of jewelery in the world.

Set in a golden scabbard with one of its ornaments a sapphire valued at $15,000 is the Jewelled Sword of State. Thirty-four inches of dull gold worth in the vicinity of $100,000, surmounts a blade of pure Damascus steel. It is a marvel of workmanship, and at the Coronation is borne by the Keeper of the Jewel House and offered to the King by him in homage to the Church.

Queen to Wear Koh-I-noor

The Koh-I-noor, one of the most famous diamonds in the world will be the outstanding ornament in the new crown, which has been made for Queen Elizabeth. It is the only crown in the collection of jewels which is made entirely of platinum and has only diamonds for ornamentation. The Koh-i-noor which was valued at $10,000,000, by Queen Victoria is supposed to bring ill-fortune to men who wear it, but does not affect women. It was set in the crown of Queen Mary previous to her coronation.

Rich in tradition are the colorful ceremonies which attended the Coronation called into action several articles which have been handed down through the years of British royalty. The golden coronation cope of King George VI was made 114 years ago for his royal predecessor, King George IV. It was also worn by King George V. The container of the holy oil, called an ampulla, which is used to anoint the King was used in Coronation ceremonies 1400 years ago.

Representative of various events in the history of England are several pieces of bygone royalty. The Queen's Orb owes its origin to Mary, wife of King William of Orange. This queen came to the throne in her own right, had the pleasure of hearing her husband invited to be King. Since that date it has been bestowed on Queen Consorts as an act of courtesy. The King's Orb is of polished gold and studded with precious stones and diamonds.

The actual value of the stones and jewels which were brought from the Jewel Room in the Tower of London for coronation purposes would be staggering to the ordinary person, although some quarters have it estimated in millions of dollars.

The pomp and pageantry, the regal splendor and other magnificence of the Royal Coronation ceremonies paled the fabled wealth and splendor of the Indian realm into insignificance, with its attending evidence of the loyalty of millions of British subjects the world over, and the solidity of the Empire as a whole.

Shillings are in constant demand. In Greater London alone, there are 1,000,000 coin slots which must be hold up to 30s each before they are emptied on an average every two months.

KING'S WAR SERVICE

George VI, as Prince Albert, entered the naval service as a cadet at fourteen, saw service during on the battleship Collingwood in the battle of the Jutland, 1916, served in the forward gun turret and was mentioned in despatches.

Transferred at the end of 1917 he entered the Royal Air Force and a month before the Armistice went to France on the R.A.F. staff, remaining until the close of hostilities.

The King suffered frequently from illness during his naval career, and in 1914 was removed to Aberdeen for an appendicitis operation. Although he had not completely recovered he returned to sea and soon after took part in the Battle of Jutland.

Joining the air force in 1917, he reached the rank of squadron leader, wing commander and group captain.

CANADIANS JOIN IN CELEBRATING CROWNING OF KING

United in Heart And Voice Dominion Acclaims King George

ROYAL SALUTES

Martial Music Filled Air And Streets Echo to Marching Feet

(By The Canadian Press)

United in heart and voice with the rest of the British Empire, Canadians today celebrated the Coronation of their King.

The Royal Standard, rarely flown except in the King's presence, was broken from mastheads by special permission from military headquarters. In military centres from coast to coast field batteries boomed 21-gun salutes and marching came message of patriotism and everywhere in the dominion was involved divine blessing on George VI's reign.

It was a gala holiday for most Canadians, a day of parades and night-spells, of garden parties, listen by radio to the King's history-making ceremony in London, in Halifax and Charlottetown memories were cast back 34 years to the time the King, then an 18-year-old midshipman, visited those eastern cities. They remembered him as a slim, quiet young man with a sense of humor.

In all nine provinces, to the Dominion's largest cities and tiniest hamlet and in the Yukon and Canada's northern rim, thoughts turned to the ceremony enacting historic Westminster. Gay flags and bunting decked the street, martial music filled the air and streets echoed to marching feet.

2,000 Miles Away

Tonight Canadian skies will reflect the Empire's celebration with 2,000-mile trail of beacons, lighted from Nova Scotia's strategic spots. The big bonfires will be touched off at Halifax and speed their message westward to Victoria. Nova Scotia's hold a torchlight parade at night. Many cities were served in this part of the ceremony when Mount Ste. Anne, Que., reported a 13-year-old Scout among those injuries received when collecting wood for the bonfire.

Canada's observance was epitomized in the Ottawa ceremony. There the King's representative, Lord Tweedsmuir, reviewed crack militiamen within the confines of the Peace Tower. Out over the Rideau Canal boomed 21-gun salute and massed bands played "God Save the King".

Varied Celebrations

Many and various were the celebrations. Stones from the birthplace of members of the Royal Family were obtained for the monument unveiled at Montreal to commemorate the date. They came from Sandringham, birthplace of the King, from the Earl of Strathmore's home, birthplace of Queen Elizabeth, and from the London home where Princess Elizabeth was born.

In the little town of Coronation Alla., named in 1912 to mark George V's coronation, postal officials busied themselves, cancelling a thousand stamps for collectors, while residents celebrated. At sea and in Canadian ports sailors held special ceremonies on decks decorated with flags.

Indians Take Part

A quick, coast-to-coast glance showed soldiers marching at Halifax with school children; navy units taking part. Boy Scouts were to light the great Citadel Hill bonfire to start the Canada chain of beacons. On the east coast in Vancouver and Victoria, in B.C., Indians were not content with a day of feasts and feasting but prepared for a 10-day celebration.

The prairie cities of Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Calgary and Edmonton each had their demonstrations, military and civic programs preparing, and Montreal left their respective provinces in rejoicing. Across the ancient plains of Saskatoon a parade passed at Quebec and school children held a festival.

The Maritimes likewise celebrated and at Saint John airplanes roared in formation. Bunting wound through the streets. Churches held special services and all the populace made merry.

Ticker tape flew out of downtown Toronto windows as business offices closed yesterday. Floating high in the air the tape came down on pedestrians and motor traffic homeward bound and added a new note to the city's festive decorations.

Forget Flood Troubles

Western Ontario cities forgot for a time the recent devastating floods from spring freshets and concentrated on an "accent on royalty" with bunting and flags brightening the ravaged areas. Sarnia reported the gayest decorations in the history of Lambton County.

Dedication of "coronation trees" on school grounds at Woodstock took place on Coronation eve. Today the district schoolchildren received medals to commemorate the event. Kitchener pupils made a five-foot replica of the royal crown to add to their extensive decorations.

International commemoration of the Coronation took place at border points joining Canada to the United States. Mayor George Harvey of Port Huron, Mich., brought greetings to Sarnia. Receptions held by civic delegations of Port Erie and Buffalo, N.Y., were incelebrated.

At 8.45 a.m. 21 bombs salutes the newly-crowned monarch at Niagara Falls. A triangular plot of ground near the City Hall was named "Elizabeth Place" in honor of the Queen.

PREMIER KING GIVEN OVATION

Rides in State Coach Directly Behind Prince Minister Baldwin

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 12—(CP Cable)—Prime Minister and Mrs. Stanley Baldwin rode in the first state coach, with scarlet-coated coachmen, to leave Buckingham Palace for Westminster Abbey today. As the coach left the Palace gates, an escort of Metropolitan Mounted Police wheeled into position beside it.

In the second coach road Prime Minister Mackenzie King with a distinctive escort of Canadian Mounties."

Then, following slowly, came other coaches with the Prime Ministers of Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, and then the Indian Princes and representatives from the far-flung Empire.

Crowds cheered and cheered again for the colorful empire escort —four Canadian Mounties leading. Immediately after them came men from the Australian cavalry, New Zealanders, South African Mounted Cavalry, Rhodesian Cavalry, men from the Royal Canadian Constabulary, and Troopers from the 16th Lancers.

As the empire Premiers reached Parliament Square, near the Abbey, the great crowd burst into cheering lasting several minutes. Prime Minister Baldwin, shortly to retire from the Premiership, it was one of the greatest ovations of his career.

Seatholders in the stands, rose and waved and cheered. Baldwin, in hat blue and gold court dress, looked happy but rather overwhelmed. He bowed repeatedly. Mrs. Baldwin, who sat at his side dressed in white, waved her gloved hand.

The crowd gave welcome scarcely less fervent to the Dominion Premiers and the Princes of India.

Abbey Will Open For the Public splendor of Coronation panoply, Westminster Abbey, will be open to admission from May 15 to June 5. Visitors will be through the annex up the centre of the nave and the choir, round the great platform where the Thrones stand and out by the east cloister door.

With the exception of members of the dominion and colonial services, visitors will be asked to pay an admission fee. This will go to meet the cost of providing turnstiles, barriers and the necessary attendants and also reimburse many surrounding the Coronation of his brother, King George VI—a Coronation that would have been his own but for his abdication to marry Wallis Warfield.

Shortly before the broadcaster told of departure of Their Majesties Mrs. Warfield and guests left their Chateau de Candé retreat and assembled before the receiving set in the nearby hunting lodge.

The dreary, rain-drenched grounds of Candé were deserted.

An associate of the Duke said he did not known what the exact differences were, but he hinted that King George and the mother Mary were at odds with the government in their determination that Great Britain should accord Edward "fair treatment" at the wedding.

"A number of members of the Royal Family believe the marriage should be public," this informant said. "The government insists it should be a private affair."

George and Mary's stand, he added, was that Edward, as a former King and former Prince of Wales who served his country for many years, is entitled to great consideration.

King George sent Edward a special request to postpone the wedding until the differences are settled, it was reported.

The request was said to have been delivered by plane Sunday by Lord Brownlow, former attendant to Edward.

The Duke was said to have accepted the request, thereby delaying the tentative wedding plans.

Windsor to Postpone Wedding Ceremony Until Early June

Monte, France, May 12—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor and Wallis Warfield will postpone their wedding until early June, friends said today, because of certain differences between the Royal Family and the British Government."

The statement was made while the Duke sat before a radio listening to a broadcast of the ceremony in which his brother, King George VI—a Coronation that would have been his own but for his abdication to marry Wallis Warfield.

Princess Margaret Rose Steals the Abbey Show

Wriggling, With Excitement She Tickles Sister's Arm; as Ceremony Begins

TIRES OF WATCHING

By FRANK E. KING

London, May 12 (AP)—(By telephone from inside Westminster Abbey)—The little Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose "stole" the great Abbey show during the early part of their Royal parents for the Coronation ceremony.

Margaret Rose grew special attention from the glittering assemblage as she emerged with the Royal house crew wide and tiny, silver-slipped feet dancing with excitement.

Princess Elizabeth was dwarfed at the side of her grandmother, Queen Mary, who appeared in stately grandeur with five ropes of diamonds—valued at approximately $1,000,000—around her neck and every inch of her white gown blazing with jewels.

Margaret Rose wriggled like any six-year-old on Sunday school class. She looked over the Abbey service book before her, but quickly lost interest. There were no pictures in it. Then she leaned over to rub her finger up and down Elizabeth's arm, tickling her.

Elizabeth, 11-year-old heir-presumptive, shook her curls up from and nudged her to sit still.

Still For a Minute.

Margaret Rose sat very still for a whole minute, then wriggled again.

As the ceremony began and the choir prepared for their Majesties' entry, Margaret Rose's eyes towards the great west door.

"The congregation — a glittering host of peers and peeresses, princes and diplomats from the ends of the earth—decked in the panoply of state, church and state surrounding their Majesties proceeded up the nave.

Little Margaret Rose, 'tho tall enough to get her chin over the front of the box, was standing on the edge and rolled her head from side to side.

The Anointment Ceremony.

King George and his Scottish-born consort were then ensnared as they reached their chairs of state. Offering and anointing, the King sat bent his head low and held his right hand over his eyes. The Queen knelt with her head bowed in front of her.

The King took the oath solemnly. His spoke clearly, though in a subdued tone. So the enunciation was slow and distinct.

Preparing for the anointing, the King undressed from his crimson cape but the task of unlacing the various cords and buttons proved a much for him. He tugged earnestly at them until one of the attendants came to his aid.

When the crimine was removed, the tall throne was hidden by the high three-quarter length coat. He took off even this for the anointing.

After the anointing ceremony, the most sacred of the whole Coronation the King wiped off the oil and got from the Coronation chair dressed in pure white garments, jewels and all—at that moment the simplest garbed person in the whole abbey.

Princess Margaret Rose, obviously tired after the strain of concentration for an hour, yawned several times, but her elbow up on the front of her box and rested her head on her arm.

As the ceremony of crowning approached, the two Princesses suddenly found a new interest.

More than a little page boy appeared carrying coronets for the Peers and Dukes around the throne.

The most important moment of the ceremony came when the Archbishop took the sacred crown. The primate held it at arm's length high over the king. Carefully he placed the crown with its 7,000 pounds of precious jewels and gold on the head which will be responsible for them throughout life.

CROWDS BREAK

arvt, and other members of the Royal family.

The return journey from the Abbey started at 2.49 p.m. (8.49 a.m. E.S.T.).

A few minutes before the procession left the Abbey a drizzle of rain began again to fall.

The wailing crowd hurriedly buttoned up raincoats and scores of thousands of umbrellas appeared above them like the bobbing crests of waves of a suddenly agitated sea.

Rain Soon Stopped.

In all their stately magnificence their Majesties—now outside—took their places in the coach and turned around them formed the greatest empire cavalcade London ever saw.

There had been a brief interlude for the Royal party to refresh themselves before the procession back to Buckingham Palace.

Through a gateway under the Horse Guards Parade leaving the Abbey. In the first coach were seated the Archbishop and Princess Alice, The Duchess of Gloucester, the Duchess of Kent and the Hon. Gerald Lascelles followed in the second carriage.

The third carried Queen Maud of Norway, the Royal consort and her eldest son, Lord Lascelles.

The roar of the crowds dinned through the air as the Royal Family entered the fourth carriage with her mother, Queen Mary, and Elizabeth and Princess Margaret.

Thundering of Cheers

The Queen!

A thunderclap of cheers broke about their heads as they re-entered the golden coach and took their place in the procession.

The winding, four-mile route of the return to Buckingham Palace lay through lanes of specta.ors rapidly becoming hoarse, past Britain's richest parliament, along the Thames embankment, through Trafalgar Square, Piccadilly Circus, Marble Arch, Hyde Park and down Constitution Hill to the Palace.

Bells pealed throughout London. Children danced in the streets of the East End far from the scene.

Thames River boats added to the din.

Their thick-throated whistles outbuilt towers of sound on London's most ancient highway.

Streets Are Gaiety of Colors

People clung to the chimney-tops. They ran dangerously close to the buildings and monuments — anywhere for a peep at the great procession.

London never before saw anything like it.

Ambulance crews and First Aid stations struggled to care for the fainting and injured.

The King, now wearing the Imperial state crown, bore himself with dignity and quiet bowing. The Queen fluttered a jewelled hand from beneath her royal purple, ermine-trimmed cloak. Willing famous Koh-I-Nor diamond shone amid the splendor lights of her crown.

Queen Mary was adorned richly in the magnificent and emerald gems always had loved. Her two little grandchildren wore their silver-gilt crowns jauntily.

Streets were a riot of colors, flowers and flaming bunting.

Rainbow-hued streamers fluttered from high standards.

Huge gilt crowns surmounted many poles, jutted from balconies. Every Royal Standard that flies over the Empire procession from the Abbey. They were in Canada, Australia, embassies and hotels.

Then the cheering resumed, the sound of a trumpet at the Royal annex door started it on its way.

"Here they come! Here they are the King!"

The shout became a chant. It echoed down side streets, was caught up by the thousands massed on every a single spinning spoke of the coaches.

The cavalcade turned left from Parliament along the embankment. Thousands of school children greeted it with shrill cries, from the Thames shadows the Royal Thames and Yard's turreted battlements.

Thousands of spectators watched the smoke from big guns at Hyde Park and Buckingham Palace.

Over the Victoria Memorial in front of the Palace.

On moved the procession, from the embankment into Northumberland Avenue.

Charing Cross's railroad bridge across the Thames at this point was alive with cheers.

Trafalgar Square, particularly slop its girders.

A roar swept down the avenue as the thousands crammed into Trafalgar Square caught sight of the King.

Peers Cascade Home

Here the Canadian Pacific and Canada House, where a large proportion of the Dominion's thousand Canadians watched from stands built in front of the building.

Then around before the King and Queen passed, the Canadians went through the gateway of Admiralty Arch. Prime Minister Mackenzie King's carriage passed.

The Canadian Premier's coach was tenth in the main carriage procession. Behind Mackenzie King, the senior Premier, was eleventh, and next came the coach of the Princess Royal Family, the various contingents of troops and the final coaching of Queen Mary and the King and Queen.

The train turned into a heavy downpour as the procession rolled on to the Palace gates.

Troops stationed around Buckingham Palace hastily donned waterproofs to protect their resplendent uniforms.

The lightly hemmed in were the crowds that only those in the rear-most ranks and in the more remote parts of the park could hope to escape to dry clothes and shelter. Thousands had been massed there before heavily burdened streets and pavements could dissolve the immense throngs.

Crowd Broke Ranks.

St. James slipped by as the crawling procession turned northward for the last mile to the Palace.

When the carriage bearing the King and Queen passed Piccadilly Circus and headed into the quadrant of Regent Street, the crowds behind broke ranks.

Streaming back down Piccadilly and Regent Street, the crowds raced toward Buckingham Palace for a second glimpse of the parade at its finish.

Regent joined to Oxford Circus and thence westward to Marble Arch marked an area with expensive vacant lots.

In a straight sweep westward toward Marble Arch, the procession went through the shopping district. All of the shops were boarded up to a height of eight feet, preventing smashing by the crushing crowds during the night of celebration.

On moved the procession, down Park Lane, through Grosvenor past Marble Arch and into Hyde Park.

Terrestial Rain

The procession was moving through a torrential rain as it turned the corner into Hyde Park.

The thousands massed in open air theatre and friendly forum for all and London crowds gathered to watch pageant its greatest reception.

On the hill spectators perched the only stands in the park. On the right there were no stands. Crowds there mingled their cheers with some show work in an effort to get a fleeting glimpse of pluming nodding by, of Indian turbans and the Royal Standards.

Along Park Lane, every window space was filled.

The procession entered Hyde Park corner, the carriages slipping through the narrow gate, the soldiers marching beneath side-arcades. Then the long climb to Constitution Hill, where, last July, a cripple suffering from a persecution complex threw a loaded revolver between the hooves of a horse ridden by the then King Edward VIII.

Jammed, drenched stands rose on both sides of the road.

The procession slowed perceptibly as the coaches left the Hill and moved at in a circle around the huge grey Victoria monument in front of the Palace.

Stirred Old Memories of Coleen

Inside the Palace the King and Queen had little rest before facing their subjects again.

They retired to their apartments to refresh themselves and don the robing of the crowds kept up a ceaseless cheering in their ears. They could not be denied.

A red-livered footman stepped to the balcony from a room in the throne room over the main archway of the Palace. Behind him, the King and Queen.

A moment's hush fell on the crowd. Then, as the couple stepped out, more loudly than before. The people saw King George, leading the Queen by the hand, both in their crimson-draped balcony.

The Canadians were followed by Boy Scouts put up barriers to keep the crowds from the path of the King's coach.

Then, which had ceased in the last hours of darkness, were resumed. The crowd was as calm as it had been during the night's celebrations.

Camaraderie on Stands

The camaraderie which prevailed among the more privileged spectators in the stands in the Park and the 250 gained them entry to the open-air stands.

Covered by flag and bunting-draped stands, the square in front of Buckingham Palace presented from a huge, topless circus tent, with the Queen Victoria Monument holding the centre ring.

These were considered the choicest seats in the park. Everything that would be able to see both the start and finish of the procession, with an added glimpse of the Royal couple when they presented themselves on the balcony of the Palace immediately after the crowning from Westminster Abbey.

Other grandstands covered various stands lining the route from the Abbey to the Palace, which would be for hours for a glimpse of the Royal parade. The cramped quarters were occupied by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who undertook the task of the hardships willingly endured by the standees packing the entire route.

Sit On Stone Curbs All Night.

Many spectators arrived at night to make sure of their place. In some cases entire families spent the early morning hours on the stone curbs. Their ranks were swelled as the morning wore on. Then, exhausted, they surrendered their front positions to those of smaller stature.

There, also, the crowds rose before dawn to don their state robes and regalia for the ride to Westminster Abbey. Fully 200,000 persons—some of them from distant provinces—crowded the historic building to watch them arrive.

Within, gold and precious stones gleamed and glittered as the first arrivals entered the cathedral's dim, shadowy interior of the Abbey.

The parade of nobility left nothing to be desired. Even as the crowd was concerned. Ermine-trimmed robes of peers, sparkling with valuable diamond tiaras and gleaming silk proved a never-ending fascination.

Finally, along the way to the Abbey, came the empire's glory and pride. Gold lace, had been thrown in plus and rejuvenated for the day. Tiny waists once to be spanned with two hands had been restored to care for modern figures.

Gems worth millions flashed from diadems and tiaras. Diamond, emerald and pearl tiaras gleamed against coiffures.

MEMORIAL PARK AT MEDICINE HAT

Dedicated by Service Club to Holder of Victoria Cross

Medicine Hat, Alta., May 12 (CP)—Memory of a soldier of the Great War, Arthur Foster Row-cliffe, Medicine Hat's winner of the Victoria Cross, awarded post-humously, was honored here today.

To his memory was dedicated, as part of the city's Coronation Day ceremony, a memorial park, gift of the Medicine Hat Service Club.

Through the gates of the Robertson Memorial Park troops marched today and behind them came comrades-in-arms of the Victoria Cross winner who was the empire's greatest award at Passchendaele.

Lieutenant Peter Robertson was a member of the 27th (City of Winnipeg) Battalion, under command of Col. P. J. Daly, D.S.O.

Bejeweled Peeresses Held Centre of Stage

London, May 13—(AP)—Bejewelled peeresses were the centre of attraction in Westminster Abbey for a few brief seconds today. Every eye turned to that tier of femininity the moment after Queen Elizabeth was crowned, when they donned their gold-studded, velvet coronets.

The flutter of white-gloved, jewel-armed arms in the hush of the Abbey was a dramatic moment. The peeresses massed opposite the banks of peers, spangled in their jewels and white. Some dated from the coronation of Queen Victoria and beyond.

Jeweled, wasp-waisted bodices and cream-bordered skirts, draped over satin petticoats trimmed with rare old lace, had been taken from attics and rejuvenated for the day. Tiny waists once to be spanned with two hands had been restored to care for modern figures.

Gems worth millions flashed from diadems and tiaras. Diamond, emerald and pearl tiaras gleamed against coiffures.

Coronation Day Ceremony Is Attended by Thousands At the Agricultural Grounds

ROYAL SALUTE FIRED

Blessing Given For The Peace Obtained Under British Rule

All Belleville today bowed in reverent homage to the crowning of a new King.

But it was at the Agricultural Grounds this afternoon, where the vast regrant eastern breezes tempered the heat of a perfect day that the outstanding exhibition fealty to a new ruler this city perhaps has ever witnessed, was displayed by the greatest assemblage ever at the estimated attendance of over 5,000 men, women and children, who entered into the planned program which proceeded smoothly, without a hitch to its dramatic and impressive end.

Nothing could be lacking in the memory of those who attended that gathering the impression of a vast concourse of people heart throbbed in an ecstasy of patriotism, seldom so thoroughly aroused in the Canadian aries, and whose voices swelled in unison to the familiar hymns of home and country.

New Spirit Enters.

Into the vast amphitheatre formed by the natural hollow there entered a new spirit during the morning of the Coronation day, a spirit of fervid, unashamed sentiment which found voice in a voluntary choir of thousands, which added to the grandeur of the massed bands.

Then the Sceptre with the Dove was held in the King's right hand and the Queen crowned. He carries it in the subsequent procession.

The Ring—placed on the Queen's fourth finger of right hand immediately after the anointing.

Ivory Rod — placed in the Queen's right hand after being crowned.

Armilla—gold receptacle in the shape of an eagle with outspread wings; holds the consecrated anointing oil.

The Spoon—a silver spoon with which the oil used in anointing the King; said to be 1,000 years old.

The Spurs — used to touch the King's heels before the crowning; signifies knighthood and chivalry.

was to clear the pavement in the part of Trafalgar Square through which the procession was to pass.

The Canadians were followed by Boy Scouts put up barriers to keep the crowds from the path of the King's coach.

Then, which had ceased in the last hours of darkness, were resumed. The crowd was as calm as it had been during the night's celebrations.

Camaraderie on Stands

The camaraderie which prevailed among the more privileged spectators in the stands in the Park and the 250 gained them entry to the open-air stands.

Covered by flag and bunting-draped stands, the square in front of Buckingham Palace presented from a huge, topless circus tent, with the Queen Victoria Monument holding the centre ring.

These were considered the choicest seats in the park. Everything that would be able to see both the start and finish of the procession, with an added glimpse of the Royal couple when they presented themselves on the balcony of the Palace immediately after the crowning from Westminster Abbey.

Other grandstands covered various stands lining the route from the Abbey to the Palace, which would be for hours for a glimpse of the Royal parade. The cramped quarters were occupied by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who undertook the task of the hardships willingly endured by the standees packing the entire route.

Sit On Stone Curbs All Night.

Many spectators arrived at night to make sure of their place. In some cases entire families spent the early morning hours on the stone curbs. Their ranks were swelled as the morning wore on. Then, exhausted, they surrendered their front positions to those of smaller stature.

There, also, the crowds rose before dawn to don their state robes and regalia for the ride to Westminster Abbey. Fully 200,000 persons—some of them from distant provinces—crowded the historic building to watch them arrive.

Within, gold and precious stones gleamed and glittered as the first arrivals entered the cathedral's dim, shadowy interior of the Abbey.

The parade of nobility left nothing to be desired. Even as the crowd was concerned. Ermine-trimmed robes of peers, sparkling with valuable diamond tiaras and gleaming silk proved a never-ending fascination.

Finally, along the way to the Abbey, came the empire's glory and pride. Gold lace, had been thrown in plus and rejuvenated for the day. Tiny waists once to be spanned with two hands had been restored to care for modern figures.

50,000 AT OTTAWA

Ottawa, May 13—(CP)—Close to 50,000 persons crowded the great square before the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill today to pay tribute to the Monarch who a few hours earlier had been crowned in London

George V, King-Emperor of Great Britain and the Dominions, hoarser, the people saved their great ovation for passage of the King and Queen.

When, inside the ancient walls, the crown was put upon His Majesty's head, cannons boomed and bells in London's churches rang out off like a string of giant crackers celebrations from every part of the great empire to the other.

London, May 12 (AP)—Coronation day sidelights ranging runs into tens of millions of dollars—in government and business and trade is the most expensive one-day show in the history of modern times.

Revenue from the Coronation season, most indirect, is estimated as high as $500,000,000 — with overseas visitors contributing a fraction.

As a Coronation it is more costly than any that preceded it. The government will have spent $2,000,000 before it is finished.

This compares with $1,000,000 for the Coronation of King George V in 1911 and $1,500,000 for that of Edward VII.

London, May 11 (AP)—Sixty-nine persons fainted today in the crush of crowds swarming about West-minster Abbey for Coronation day.

Three were taken to hospitals.

Most of the fainting was the result of a fractured skull received in a fall down an escalator. Many of the crowd saw her parents were awaiting the procession.

Others were in hospital of injuries suffered with 19 others when a crowd broke and overturned Dilly Circus. Cause of the quarrel was unknown.

London, May 12 (CP-Havas) — Rain was predicted for London by mid-afternoon in a statement issued today by the Air Ministry.

Showers are expected throughout today. Storms in southwestern England were moving in the direction of the capital this afternoon.

London, May 13 (CP-Havas)—The Coronation was celebrated in London churches today with services ordered for prisoners throughout Great Britain.

London, May 12 (CP)—With ingenuity born of necessity, many of London's small women appeared among the spectators for the Coronation parade wearing inspiration hats that added inches to their height.

Fashioned with enormous wooden soles, the boots acted as stilts, allowing their wearers to tower a head above their neighbors.

London, May 13 (CP-Havas)—At least seven infants qualified by eight a.m. today for Coronation babies and will be given all children born here on Coronation day.

The first baby was born after midnight in St. Mary's Maternity Hospital, Paddington, to a maternity nurse in Whitlo-Chapel.

Toronto, May 13 (CP)—First baby reported born on Coronation day was a girl to Mrs. Sinclair Colquhoun at Toronto General Hospital at 12:01 A.M. E.S.T.

The father was present to welcome their second child who arrived from Buckingham Palace. He made no comment as to whether they might adopt a "Royal" or "Coronation" name for the baby.

London, May 12 (CP-Havas)—Peers of the realm in their stately robes and coronets left their coaches to Westminster Abbey today by sandwiches and a cup of tea.

A girl cruising Victoria Street nearly fainted with embarrassment when her dress accidently popped open, spilling her lunch and knitting equipment over the road.

A small army of police dashed to rescue the embarrassed girl and her property, while the crowd roared with glee as Lords and Ladies in their cars were halted.

RULER DEDICATED TO SERVE EMPIRE

His Majesty King George Sixth Broadcasts After Coronation

London, May 12—(AP)— King George VI, newly crowned, tonight thanked his Empire around the world from Buckingham Palace in an address over a vast radio network.

His reply to broadcast greetings from the fourth of the world he rules.

"It is with a very full heart I speak to you tonight. Never before have I felt the need, which I now feel, to be able to talk to all his peoples. In my own person on the day of my coronation.

"Never has the ceremony itself had so little significance for the Dominions are now free and the ties between them and the United Kingdom. I felt this meaning that the whole Empire was in very truth assembled within the walls of Westminster Abbey.

New And Old Friends

"I rejoice that I can now speak to you, my friends old and new, my greeting old friends in distant lands and, as I hope, new friends in those countries which I have not yet had good fortune to go.

"I have dedicated my life to you and I wish health and happiness to you all and we do not forget at this time those of my subjects who are living under the shadow of anxiety and fear. Courage, of course and good citizenship is always before us. And to them I would send my sympathy and my confidence and good cheer. I cannot find words to express my feelings for my own love and loyalty to the Queen and myself.

Crown Symbol of Unity

"Your grief will in the streets look upon the crowds assembled from overseas and from every part of my British Realm, has filled our hearts to overflowing. I will only say this, that if in the coming years I can be a true servant of you in service to you that is the way I shall set others that I should choose.

"To many millions in the Crown is a symbol of unity by the Grace of God and by the will of the free peoples of the British Commonwealth. I have assumed that Crown. In me, as my King-Emperor, it will be the duty of maintaining its honor and integrity. I will uphold its grave and constant responsibility but it gave me confidence to know that representatives in the Abbey and to know that you too were enabling me to do so in this entirely beautiful ceremonial.

Dedicated To Kingship.

"The pictured forms come down from distant times but its inner meaning and significance is for the present for the highest of distinction is the service for others and to the ministry of others. I dedicate to your sharing, dedicated myself with this resolve at the very throne of the deepest solemnity. We will, God helping us, faithfully discharge that trust. And those who are children now will I hope retain the memory of this day and of its peculiar holiness such as I still have of the day of my own dedication to the task I assume.

"In the years yet to come some of you will travel from one part of the Commonwealth to another and many thus within the family circle will learn more and more to know and respect by the same memories, whose hearts unite in deep and lasting friendship with each other and all other members of the British Family the cause of peace and progress.

Day To Be Remembered.

"Then you and I will always keep in our hearts the inspiration of this day. May we ever be worthy of this good will which I am proud to think surrounds us at the outset of my reign.

"I thank you from my heart and may God bless you all. So help me God."

The King spoke very deliberately and clearly.

STREETS ABLAZE

Uruguay, Venezuela, Yemen and Yugoslavia.

Some members of the Royal Family followed. Then at 2:15 p.m. came the Imperial cavalcade of the Empire Prime Ministers, each escorted by mounted police or cavalry of their countries.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King in open state carriage, was escorted by mounted policemen.

Premier King Arrives

Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, was escorted by a escort of Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Prime Minister Lyons of Australia, Stevage of New Zealand, and Hertzog of the Union of South Africa came next. Then came Sir Mohamed Zafrulla Khan, delegate from India, and Dr. Banaw, representing Burma. They had a colorful escort of Indian cavalry.

Prime Minister Huggins of Southern Rhodesia, Patchett of Eire, Northern Ireland, the Irish Free Transkeiania, the Sultan of Zanzibar, the Sultan of Johore, the Sultan of Trengganu, the Rajah of Negri Sembilan and the Maharajah of Pahang then passed along.

The Lord Chancellor, on black charges, made a brave show in their crimson tunics, white buckskin breeches, black tricorne hats with white plumes dancing from their heads.

The first glass coach, surmounted with a golden crown carried the smiling, waving and gracious Queen of the throne, 11 year old Princess Elizabeth, and her younger sister, Princess Margaret. With them rode their aunt, Princess Mary, Countess of her elder son, the 14 year old Viscount Lascelles.

In the second glass coach were the slight and smiling Duchess of Gloucester, and the Princess Alice of Kent and the Princess Royal's youngest son, Hon. Gerald Lascelles.

A state landau carried Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught, and Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone.

Queen Mary Heartily Welcomed

A roar of cheering from the mall signalled the departure of Queen Mary from Marlborough House. Her glass coach, in which she rode with Queen Maud of Norway, sister of the late King George V, was followed by a landau carrying the Duchess of Gloucester and Princess Margaret, the Marquess of Anglesey and George Ponsonby.

Although skies were dull and lowering there was no rain to spoil the brave showing of the brilliant escorts and smart turnouts of Scarlet and Landaus. Cheering that had been continuous reached almost its peak as the popular little Princesses and their beloved grandmother passed along the route.

At 10:30 the King and Queen drove out to receive frenzied cheers and deep swelling roars that sounded like Niagara's.

"God save the King!"

"The Queen, God Bless Her!"

Seated in the magnificent state coach, preceded by a ceremonial escort, the King and Queen saluted and bowed as smiling, they passed through the greatest crowd in London's history.

Handkerchiefs fluttered from the banked-up stands. Colors dipped in the road. Massed bands blared forth the National Anthem.

TAKE THREE PROCESSIONS . . . .

Serve Against Lines

Along the triumphal mile of The Mall, where the rows of seats ran continuously along both sides of the spacious roadway and crowds on the pavement surged against police lines King George and Queen Elizabeth rode to their consecration to the service of the Empire.

Eight horses of the famed Windsor Greys, drew them on their way. Bearded Yeomen of the Guard, in crimson, gold and purple Tudor dress, trudged with pikes on their shoulders here and there on each side of the ancient, majestic coach. An officer bearing the royal standard rode behind, astride a high-stepped horse.

Among the King's sides-de-camp, a brilliant group in multi-colored uniforms behind the coach, rode his younger brothers, the Duke of Gloucester and the Duke of Kent, with the Earls of Harewood and Athlone and Lord Louis Mountbatten.

Ahead of the royal coach was a brilliant processional representative of the armed forces.

Abbey Bells Peal

The Abbey bells pealed above the cheers as the cavalcade swung under the Admiralty Arch and down to right from Trafalgar Square, where Hitler's Mercenaries stand in the sea of humanity, then down the easy slope of Whitehall between the various government buildings and the Horse Guards.

Drawing Street, the narrow entrance of which opens on Whitehall, was a seething mass of people reaching almost to the door of the Prime Minister's residence at No. 10.

Through Parliament Square under a triumphal arch, the King passed the King and Queen rode on new chapes preceding them automatically as they progressed toward the Abbey entrance.

Members of parliament formed a dark-clothed group to stands between the walls of parliament.

The procession there swung to the left and passed between the north wall of the ancient Abbey and the cheering swept along in waves to the Abbey doors and the entrance of brilliant assembly inside as the King and Queen left their coach to declare their lives to the position that has devolved upon them.

The modern descendants of historic Westminster were shrouded in mist as they filed in grey both to protect against the gloom of the overcast sky.

Conducted by Marshal

As the Royal Coach drew up to the door of the Abbey the King and Queen lowered the steps and the Earl Marshal of England, Duke of Norfolk, stepped out to conduct their Majesties inside.

He conducted them into their robing-rooms and the procession moved on behind them to the Chair of the Abbey to re-form for its triumphant return to Buckingham Palace.

Prime Minister Baldwin was greeted along the line of march with roars of "Good Old Baldwin!" The Prime Minister's face was lined by his high office, and Mrs. Baldwin in the gallery smiled proudly as they applauded the tribute.

Members of the Privy Council in the Privy Council uniform, was thunderously acclaimed while his colorful garb, P.C. M. F. in the cost caught the fancy of the crowd.

Their splendid uniforms brought from Canada for the occasion.

As the procession wound its way two other processions also left for the Abbey. The Lord Mayor of London left his coach at the start of the ceremonial carriage drawn by 12 horses and the aspirants to the throne, Commodore, Captain K. A. Pizzey.

Then the aged man from his retirement in the Queen's Dominions, drawn in his historic brakeless coach, by a team of brawny brewery horses.

KING COMES

Cure had been taken that the Anguila was filled with oil and, together with the spoon, laid ready upon the altar in the Abbey Church.

The Litany was sung as the Dean and prebendaries met the door of the Westminster proceeded from the altar to the west door of the church.

The Archbishop and Bishop's assistants, being already vested in their copes, the procession moved immediately outside the west door of the church, and whilst the litany was sung to the notes to which it has been immemorially wedded throughout the ages.

The anointing followed.

Robed of his crimson mantle, the King was seated in ancient King Edward's chair, the Coronation Throne, placed near the altar.

Holy Oil Poured

The Archbishop poured oil, which had been blessed, from the ampulla, into the anointing spoon, the old-fashioned pieces of the regalia.

On his head, breast, and palms of both hands, the king was anointed in the form of a cross and then, kneeling, blessed:

Be thy hands anointed with Holy Oil.

Be thy breast anointed with Holy Oil.

Be thy head anointed with Holy Oil, as kings, priests, and prophets were anointed."

Four Knights of the Garter held a canopy of cloth of gold over the cloth of gold.

Then the King was hallowed, becoming both layman and priest, his hands blessed to the service of church and state.

The Lord Great Chamberlain, Dean of Westminster and other dignitaries moved forward for the investiture.

The golden supertunica, or pall of cloth of gold, was placed upon the King.

The Lord Great Chamberlain, kneeling, girded the King with the sword of state, with golden spurs, emblems of chivalry.

Regalia Given

Other pieces of regalia were presented to him.

The sword of state was delivered to the Lord Great Chamberlain and deposited in the traverse in St. Edward's Chapel, another sword, in a scabbard of purple velvet, was presented to the King, who in turn handed it to the Archbishop to be placed on the altar.

The sword after a prayer was removed from the altar and, again given the King, who handed it to the Archbishop.

"Receive this kingly sword, brought now from the altar of God," the Primate intoned.

The Lord Great Chamberlain girded the sword about the King. Invested with Sword

"With this sword do Justice, stop the growth of iniquities, protect the Holy Church of God, help and defend widows and orphans, restore the things that are decayed, and maintain the things that are restored, punish and reform what is amiss, and confirm what is in good order . . ."

Invested with Mantle

The King was invested with imperial mantle and stole, symbolic of regal ornamenting the robe symbolical the sovereign's imperial authority.

The golden orb, surmounted by a cross was placed in his right hand.

The Archbishop:

"Receive this imperial robe and orb; and the Lord your God endue you with knowledge and wisdom;

. . . remember that the whole world is subject to the power and empire of Christ our Redeemer."

A ring was placed upon the fourth finger of the King's right hand "the emsign of kingly dignity."

Called the Ring of Kingship of England," the ring symbolized the covenant "betwixt sovereign and people."

The people pledge their allegiance. The archbishop intoned a righteous government.

Stepping before the altar were placed in the King's left hand.

"Receive the royal sceptre, the ensign of kingly power and justice . . . receive the rod of equity and mercy, and God direct you and assist you in the administration and exercise of all power."

"Be so merciful that you be not too remiss; so execute justice that you forget not mercy. Punish the wicked, protect and cherish the just, and direct your footsteps in the way wherein they should go."

The service ere you willing to do the people.

Tumult broke every throat in the Abbey when it was uttered, "God save King George!"

Only Light or so could see all the ceremony, but all could hear the shouting.

Trumpets sounded.

Facing east, then south, west, north, the King turned to "show himself unto the people."

Again the Archbishop challenged. Each section of the throng raised the cry, "God Save the King!"

A fanfare of echoing trumpets, silvery and clear, answered.

Thus the King was recognized, accepted sovereign of the British Empire by the Coronation oath.

King Takes Oath

"Sir, is your Majesty willing to take this oath?"

The Archbishop stood before the King.

Slowly, deliberately the King answered:

"I am willing."

A Bible rested in his hand.

The Archbishop: "Will you solemnly promise and swear to govern the peoples of Great Britain, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and the Union of South Africa, of your possessions and the other territories to any of them belonging or pertaining, and of your Empire of India, according to their respective laws and customs?"

The King: "I solemnly promise so to do."

The Archbishop: "Will you to your power cause law and justice in mercy to be executed in all your judgments?"

The King: "I will."

Solemn Oath

The Archbishop: "Will you to the utmost of your power maintain the laws of God and the true profession of the gospel? Will you to the utmost of your power maintain in the United Kingdom the Protestant reformed religion established by law? And will you maintain and preserve inviolably the settlement of the Church of England, and the doctrine, worship, discipline, and government thereof, as by law established in England? And will you preserve unto the Bishops and clergy of England, and to the churches there committed to their charge, all such rights and privileges, as by law do or shall appertain to them, or any of them?"

The King: "All this I promise to do."

Arises From Chair

Then the King arising out-of his chair assistor by the Lord Great Chamberlain, the Dean of Westminster being carried before him, went to the altar, and there bear uncovered, made his solemn oath.

The things which I have here before promised I will perform and keep, so help me God.

He kissed the Cross Bible, signed the oath, fulfilling ancient custom, to reign wisely and justly.

Then, kneeling, he said, "Veni Creator Spiritus," one of the oldest hymns of Christendom.

Sung to the notes to which it has been immemorially wedded throughout the ages.

The anointing followed.

Robed of his crimson mantle, the King was seated in ancient King Edward's chair, the Coronation Throne, placed near the altar.

"Receive this imperial robe and orb; and the Lord your God endue you with knowledge and wisdom;

. . . remember that the whole world is subject to the power and empire of Christ our Redeemer."

A ring was placed upon the fourth finger of the King's right hand "the emsign of kingly dignity."

Called the Ring of Kingship of England," the ring symbolized the covenant "betwixt sovereign and people."

The people pledge their allegiance. The archbishop intoned a righteous government.

Stepping before the altar were placed in the King's left hand.

"Receive the royal sceptre, the ensign of kingly power and justice . . . receive the rod of equity and mercy, and God direct you and assist you in the administration and exercise of all power."

"Be so merciful that you be not too remiss; so execute justice that you forget not mercy. Punish the wicked, protect and cherish the just, and direct your footsteps in the way wherein they should go."

Cannon of Tower Boom

At this stage the people, with loud and repeated shouts, cried: "God save the King!"

A signal raced around the world. It was just 12:30.

Cannon at the Tower of London boomed.

A tumultuous demonstration began in the Abbey. Shouts of "God save the King!" rang and echoed.

Coronets Are Donned

Stilled and reverent since the ritual began, the resplendent assembly burst into life and voice. Waves of movement rippled through the galleries as peers donned their coronets, the Kings-at-arms their crowns, and State Trumpeters pierced the tumult with a fanfare.

The King had been clothed in the rich vestments of church and state and sceptre and orb in each hand, had taken his seat in the sacred, old coronation chair over the rugged Stone of Scone to receive the crown.

As the outburst subsided after the placing of the crown, the voice of the Archbishop rose in prayer:

"O God, crowned with a crown of glory and righteousness that by the ministry of this our benediction, having a right faith and manifold fruit of good works, you may obtain the cross of an everlasting kingdom by the gift of Him whose kingdoms endureth for ever."

Then the organ thundered with an anthem and the choir sang: "Be strong and play the man; keep the commandments of the Lord thy God and walk in His way."

"Our gracious King, we pray Thee, may He have the most valuable thing this world affords," spoke the Archbishop, as he again presented the Bible to the Sovereign.

Benediction Pronounced

There followed the Benediction, the Archbishop pronouncing the words and the congregation joining in the "Amen."

"The Lord bless you and keep you; and as He hath made you this day partaker of His Kingly power may He make you partake of His eternal felicity in the world to come. And may God give you fruitful lands and healthful seasons; victorious arms and armies and a quiet Empire; faithful Councellors and upright Counsellors and Magistracies, loyal nobility, and a dutiful gentry; a pious and devout clergy and honest, peaceable, and obedient commonalty."

King Lifted to Throne

The King then left the Coronation chair and was "lifted up" into his Throne of State by the Archbishops and ranking Peers.

This ceremonial dates back to times when Kings actually were lifted upon shields.

As this was done the Archbishop intoned:

"Stand firm and hold fast upon henceforth the seat and State of Royal and Imperial dignity, which this day delivered unto you, in the name and by the authority of Almighty God, and by the hands of us the Bishops and servants of God, though unworthy."

With the King enthroned, the service passed to the ceremony of homage.

Homage is Paid

First the Archbishop with the other Bishops joining in, swore to be "faithful and true subjects to our Sovereign Lord, and your heirs Kings of Great Britain, Ireland and British Dominions beyond the seas defenders of the faith, and Emperors of India...so help me God."

MISTS OF MEMORY

Or again, perhaps, roving over the tumultuous events of her own reign. The years of the Great War, the reconstruction of postwar years; and finally to that dark rain-drenching morning of Jan. 20, 1936, when she followed a flag-draped coffin, borne on a gun carriage, as it rolled slowly through the streets from Westminster Abbey to Paddington Station on the last earthly journey of George V.

Of finality, it may have been that the Royal Family knew of the abdication of her oldest son, the brilliant, reigning Edward VIII.

Friends have touched her life but they have not bent her head. Tired, she caught and held attention, and the great crowd gave a thunderous cheer of "God Bless Queen Mary!"

Wide-Eyed With Excitement Little Princess Central Figure

Princess Elizabeth Is Dignified at Ceremony

RISES EARLY

(By Adelaide Kerr, Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, May 13 (AP)—A little princess, only a few days ago balanced a book on her head as a "play-lit" coronet, was one of the central figures today in the coronation of her parents.

Princess Elizabeth, just passed 11" was wide-eyed with excitement as the ancient ceremony which she may one day help "to perpetuate as Elizabeth II," queen in her own right.

Crowds cheered the young heiress presumptive to the throne as she wore her first real coronet, made by the same Crown Jeweler who designed her mother's crown. She had her first Lady-in-Waiting and appeared for the first time in Royal robes.

Takes Precedence

For the first time she took formal precedence over the older ladies of the Royal Family, including the right to be first to place her diminutive coronet on her head as her mother was crowned.

She was roused in the nursery at Buckingham Palace with her six-year-old sister Princess Margaret.

From her bedroom on the second floor of the palace she heard the murmuring of the vast throng outside; in the corridor opening to the procession. Of these 2,000 lined the streets and some hundreds assisted in the ceremony.

A total of 800 army cooks and waiters were required for the camp and celebration. In a sense, it meant goodbye to childhood—

Confirmed in Position

With her parents' Coronation as King and Queen, Elizabeth became confirmed in her position as heiress presumptive to the Throne, which rules one quarter of the world and 500,000,000 subjects—white, black, brown and yellow.

Her nurse gave place to a Lady-in-Waiting; robes of Royal purple and a silver coronet set her aspect as a Princess of the blood.

Elizabeth and Margaret breakfasted early, then donned their new high-waisted frocks of creamy white lace and the robes of Royal purple, bordered and caped in ermine—just long enough to sweep the floor about half a yard, but not long enough to be difficult to handle.

A great gilded "glass coach" awaited to take the two little Princesses to the Abbey, along with their aunt Mary, the Princess Royal, and their young cousin, Viscount Lascelles.

Excited, gruff-flowing hours of excitement. And then—the day's end, after the return of the great procession to Buckingham Palace, seemed destined to find a tired but happy little girl, suddenly grown up in a day, ready to sleep and dream of the time when she may be seated on the Throne of the Empire.

An Army of Cooks Feed Troop Today

LONDON—(CP)—Reminiscent of Great War days, London's great green parks are dotted with tents for accommodation of 30,000 Coronation troops.

Almost 2,800 officers and men, comprising the administrative troops moved early into London from Aldershot. The total Aldershot contingent for Coronation duties was 10,000 officers and men, including massed bands of each regiment.

Tents are pitched in the centre of the parks, also behind the ornamental fences of all cavalry regiments, infantry battalions and artillery units for the procession. Of these 2,000 lined the streets and some hundreds assisted in the ceremony.

A total of 800 army cooks and waiters were required for the camp and celebration. In a sense, it meant goodbye to childhood—

They got the DROOPS while shopping!

"Two yards and a half of factory cotton at 12c"—"Can you match this ribbon?"—"Upstairs and to the right!"

It's not only the shopping; it's the trudging about and the armful of parcels that give you the shopping Droops!

But there's a tea-room handy. And there you'll get a cup of tea that will revive you in a jiffy. For tea (as every woman knew, even before the doctors confirmed it) has a knack of dispelling the worries and the weariness of life. Tea smooths out the frayed edges of your nerves and temper, and—best of all—tea is the pick-me-up that doesn't let you down again.

Next time you find that shopping has taken all the pep out of you—let the nearest tea-room put it back.

Mary Given New Honors When Son Crowned King

Queen Mother Sits in Throne-Like Chair in Westminster For Great Ceremony.

Setting a precedent, for no Dowager Queen of modern times has witnessed the crowning of her husband's successor, Queen Mary was given a place of honor in the throne-like chair in the Royal box close to the actual theatre of the Coronation in Westminster Abbey.

The Queen Mother had a special train provided for her from and from the Abbey. She was accompanied by her sister-in-law, Queen Maud of Norway, and her carriage was preceded by a detachment of cavalry.

Arriving at Westminster the two Queens formed separate procession with their attendants to take their seats among the Royal guests. Queen Mary was preceded by her Lord Chamberlain like the Marquis of Anglesey, for train was carried by her grandson, Hon. Gerald Lascelle, second son of Princess Royal. The Queen was attended by the Duchess of Portland who performed a similar function when George V and Mary were crowned in 1911. Princess Mary was among the Royal guests.

The King's great-uncle, the Duke of Connaught, and his two great-nephews, Princess Louise and Princess Beatrice, did not attend, owing to infirmities of age.

Prince Arthur William Patrick Albert, Duke of Connaught, has just passed his 87th anniversary. Popular Governor-General of Canada from 1911 to 1916, he has been present at two Coronations—those of his brother Edward VII in 1902 and of his nephew, George V, in 1911.

The Duke's sister, Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, is also a New resident of Rideau Hall, and is now 89 years of age. Her husband, then the Marquis of Lorne, was Governor-General of Canada from 1878 to 1883.

Princess Beatrice is another daughter of Queen Victoria and is now 80 years of age. She married Prince Henry of Battenberg. Like Princess Louise, she is a widow.

FRANK BATTAGLIA IS KNOCKED OUT

Freddie Steele Defends His Middleweight Title at Tacoma

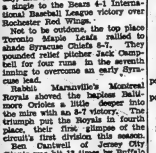
Seattle, May 11—(AP)—Frankie Battaglia of Windsor stood outside the middleweight threeroom today, stepped on the threshold by the power of champion Freddie Steele's crushing left hand.

The Tacoma, Wash., champion knocked out the Canadian challenger last night in the third round of a scheduled 15-round title fight in the civic auditorium before a heavily crowd of 8,000. Steele, at 156, gave away 2 3-4 pounds.

After scoring knockdowns in the first and second rounds, the Tacoma thunderbolt floored Battaglia for the full count in 34 seconds of the third round. A crushing left following a two-fisted barrage, sent Frank flat on his face. His handlers dragged him to his corner.

LEAFS RALLY TO DEFEAT CHIEFS

Toronto Remains at Top of League Standing by Victory



By the Associated Press

Babe Dahlgren, former Yank and Red Sox infielder, bobbed up at third for Newark Bears yesterday, and contributed a double and a single to the team's 4-1 International Baseball League victory over Rochester Red Wings.

Not to be outdone, the top place Toronto Maple Leafs rallied to shade Syracuse Chiefs 6-7. They pounded relief pitcher Jack Campbell for four runs in the seventh inning to overcome an early Syracuse lead.

Rabbit Maranville's Montreal Royals shoved the hapless Baltimore Orioles a little deeper into the mire with an 8-7 victory. The triumph put the Royals in fourth place, their first glimpse of the circuit's first division this season.

Ben Chapman's Jersey City Giants was hit 12 times by Buffalo Bisons, but managed to eke out a 6-5 win.

Success in golf calls for the best man has in the way of muscular control. This doesn't appear to be a very big order, but performances on the course show how little control most players are able to muster at the game.

Most people make the mistake of thinking that golf requires only an everyday sort of self-control, the kind they have shown in their respective specialties. But golf demands even more than this, for the only way of playing it successfully is through what I call the golf muscles. No person is born with any knowledge of the proper use of these muscles and very few people have used them for anything outside of golf. They are located on the weaker side of the body and therefore the last choice for any job where power and accuracy are needed. At least that is the way most players feel about them.

Even though their use strikes most people as being terribly unnatural it is the only way the player can be consistently successful. The fact that players generally have so little knowledge of their golf muscles explains most of their lack of self-control on the course.

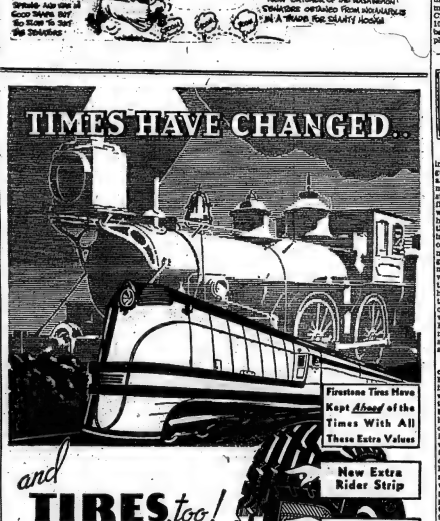
LEADING PIRATES DAMPER BEES 3-0

Associated Press Sports Writer

The National League-leading Pirates are playing no favorites.

As they moved into the Polo Grounds, stronghold of New York Giants, today the Buccaneers could look back on a record of six victories in seven starts since they came east last Tuesday.

They chalked up their sixth, and their fourth straight, yesterday as Cy Blanton came up with a five-hitter that put a 3-0 damper on the Bees.



Philadelphia Athletics have had similarly clear sailing on their western joy-ride. Percheron top of the American League as a result of their 4-1 trimming of the Tigers and Cleveland's fall before Boston by an 11-4 score, Connie Mack's cotfit moved into Chicago with a record of six won in seven starts.

Given four chances to hit as the Yankees dropped a 7-3 verdict to the White Sox, iron Man Lou Gehrig failed again, making it four straight fruitless trips to the plate. In the other American League game Jack Knott did a neat relief job for the Browns to top the Senators 7 to 5.

Brooklyn Dodgers edged into the National League first division as the expense of the Cubs with a 9-7 defeat of the Cardinals.

Four home runs, Dick Bartell's seventh of the season and others by Joe Moore, Johnny McCarthy and Lou Chiozza, and Clyde Castleman's fifth of the season, were too much for the Cubs. The crippled Chicagoans went to the Giants, 10-1. The Reds went on another batting spree, collecting 11 hits, plenty to help the Phillies, 12-3.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Apparently we have been laboring under a mental disillusion regarding the lacrosse situation around here.

Bill Fry, guiding mentor of the gutted-stick game, formed into the office yesterday fit to be tied. "What's the matter with you newspaper men anyhow? Here's Tommy Munn's in this morning's Toronto paper leaving inferences that Peterboro is the only lacrosse-minded place on the map and you sit there and never get away with it. Why we're doing more to sponsor lacrosse in Belleville than any town in this part of the province. Do you realize we have placed 10 lacrosse sticks into the hands of the school children of Belleville in the past two weeks?" stormed Fry. "Sure we do tell but what about your inter-mediate O.A.L.A. team, tell us something about it," we sarcastic-replied.

"We'll be in there when the time comes, wait and see," predicted Bill, but meanwhile our surprise at his gutted-stick lads would not open the season on Victoria Day as previously announced. It seems President Harry Moore has been forced to make a few changes in the Central Ontario League schedule. First the team will not open versus the Flyers on the 24th, the Peterboro squad drawing that assignment but the Belleville opening their part of the schedule a day beyond on May 25th with their first home game being played here on June 2nd. The postponement will naturally give the local lacrosse moguls an extra game before the strike is called and why we understand Coach Harry Moore has been putting the seasoned veterans to round out his forward line.

It's opening day today for the softballers. Although the game scheduled locally was played the Belleville Intermediate Softball League Juniors and the Belleville Sargent in new uniforms while Coach Jack Anne the "Cement-Makers" clash with the Corbins this evening.

The Kingston Penins are to have new uniforms this season and their livery is to be the same as the uniforms worn by Belleville in the Belleville Nationals cream with a shaded wide dark stripe, with the Enigma "Penin" emblem on the breast of the shirt. The uniforms are being made by the Regent Shirt Company of this city. Now that Penins have a few of the proven ballsters to wear these new outfits.

Red Doran former local athlete and for the past few seasons with the New York Americans was recently traded to the Detroit Red Wings recently. The Amerks bought Bert Sterling and Eddie Wiseman who brought fame to his name with his stellar efforts in the N.H.L. play-offs when he also placed Normie Smith, who was in-jured, Manager Jack Adams deemed Robinson of big league calibre and sold him to the Motor Bucko McDonald and the veteran Ebbie Goodfellow and will doubtless welcome the change of scenery.

Sunday baseball was recently sanctioned by the Ontario Baseball Arbiteur Association at their annual meeting. More recent rumors would lead us to believe that Sunday baseball will be tried in the Frontenac County intermediate league this season. The possibilities of Sunday baseball are being discussed by the Frontenac County moguls, who contend that twilight ball interferes with milking and farm chores. Bill Simpson, Calgaragil ball mogul, feels Sunday ball would revive interest in the rural sections, where baseball is now played merely as a pastime. Incidentially it was due to similar circumstances that Sunday ball was introduced, and has been played, in Essex County for the past seven years. After all if friendly ball games are played in the rural sections on Sunday, why not allow the same privilege in the other hand golf, tennis, aquatics and numerous other lines of recreation are enjoyed by the idle rich on the Sabbath, why not a little baseball for those who cannot relax and enjoy sports or recreation throughout the week?

Up in the Intercounty League the umpires are on strike, and it's not a "sit down strike" either. The Intercounty arbiters want more remuneration and recently walked out of a league meeting when efforts to iron out the difficulties went for naught. Bill Fralick, Wendelock secretary of the Intercounty Umpires Association, says their membership includes all of the recognized umpires in Western Ontario and they mean business this year and if the association officiating in a league game besides the strike is called will be expelled. President Magbranahan of the Intercounty, $5 is the rate it stands...s of fees for summires, but was voted down recently by the way.

Promoter Jack Corcoran announced today he had signed some good acts for next weeks wrestling show at the arena. A veteran rassler by the name of Garibaldi, Italy Andy Malmo, Brooklyn and Joe Maynard are on the card, while a suitable opponent for Herol Perron the Dutch Hillebilder and who has not been seen in Belleville, is also being sought for a main bout attraction.

Jo-Jo Grabouki, well known hockey player, is now working out nightly with the Corbin softballers at the Collegiate. Incidentially the wedding bells for Joey in June with Miss Josephine Cruil of this city, as his bride. Miss Cruil was a softball player of note during the reign of girls' softball in this city. When the eventful day breaks Josephine Cruil and Jo-Jo Grabouki will be in receipt of many words of congratulations and contributions of good fortune, Jo says he intends to return to England and play with the Wembley team next winter, taking his bride with him.

Howard Wheeler, former Belleville leather-pusher, won his first fight in the General Motors boxing eliminations recently, but was beaten on a split decision in his next start. Helen Noble, Toronto mitster, received a questionable decision over "Dynamite" who, doubtless by now has lost some of his oldtime zip, however.

Toronto continues to predominate in the International League, Pittsburg widened the breach in the National, while the surprise team, Connie Mack's Athletics, are now on full game out in front and atop the American League.

POLICE CALLED TO RESTORE ORDER

Anti-Coronation Demonstration Breaks Out in Ireland

Belfast, Northern Ireland, May 12—(AP)—Workers and police clashed today in a fight precipitated by a Republican demonstration against coronation decorations on factories in the Falls Road district.

Protestants singing "God Save the King" tried to drown out Catholics singing the Irish Free State anthem. The fighting broke out after police reinforcements were called to restore order.

Last night in Dublin police fought with mobs in the streets when the Irish Republican army, a banned organization, and its women supporters attempted to hold anti-coronation demonstrations in defiance of a government ban. Police fired shots in the air. Several persons were taken to hospital, injured.

Walter Winchell Inquisitive Reporter Makes Good

The story of Walter Winchell, the famed columnist who appears with Jimmy Fidler and Alice Faye in "Wake Up and Live" Twentieth Century-Fox filmusical opening today at the Belle, is as dizzy as the story of a man who made good because he wouldn't mind his own business.

Winchell, whose breezy, highly intimate column created a new type of journalism, was born in New York City on April 7, 1897. Winchell is his real name, despite countless rumors to the contrary, although the name was originally spelled with one 'L.' It was officially changed when the name appeared on a theatre marquee with two 'L's.

An incredibly nervous and energetic man, he talks and dresses like the Broadway crowd to whom he is historian. A "chain" cigarette smoker, he never drinks, and is a devoted family man.

Winchell's climb to the Journalistic peak was obtained without much formal education or newspaper training. He was in 6th grade when he left school. Heading straight for the theatre, he became part of a trio known as the "Three Little Boys With the Big Voices." The other members were Georgie Hessel and Eddie Cantor.

That failing, Winchell attacked vaudeville as a hoofer and wisecracker, taking his first step toward the newspaper profession with a little sheet called "The Newsence" a one-man paper typed out between acts and hung up backstage. Of a purely personal vein, the paper contained little items about the romances of the vaudevillians and where the best hamburgers were had and which rooming houses had the softest beds.

The typewritten sheet soon became a byword and an anticipated source of amusement to touring acts. Its "inside," gossipy style was a delight to the actors, and Winchell's blood was running with printer's ink. A job as gossip columnist for a Vaudeville News followed, at $25 a week, and here Winchell developed his word-coining style and his keen nose for news.

When Bernarr Macfadden started his tabloid, The New York Graphic, Winchell applied to writer Milton Gunzo for a job, and became dramatic critic, entertainment guide, columnist and amusement editor. Soon hitting his stride, he became the most talked-of columnist in America.

Winchell's next step was to the New York Mirror, where he is considered responsible for 200,000 of the paper's 900,000 circulation. His income now includes the Mirror salary of $1,000 a week, $3,000 for a weekly broadcast (forty - eight weeks a year) $450 a week from syndication of his column, and a bonus for doing a Sunday column. Total earnings: more than $230,000 a year, not counting such outside earnings as special articles and his current work for the Twentieth Century-Fox.

Winchell has a prematurely gray hair, light grey eyes, and is slim and of medium height. He is restless, talkative and distrustful of strangers. But even Ben Bernie with whom he conducts an undying feud has now reaches its greatest height in "Wake Up and Live," has a good word for Winchell.

Asked what it was, the Old Maestro thought a while, and then said, "I can't remember. No sub, I can't remember."

Delegate From Picton Home And School Club Presents Report

Picton—At the May meeting of the H. & S. Club held in the Legion Rooms on Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Charles Spencer gave a most interesting report of the H. & S. Club Federation luncheon held in the Royal York on Wednesday of Empire week. Miss Anne Waring, a delegate to the O.E.A., gave the highlights of the session she also attended. The musical part of the programme consisted of a vocal solo "Mother of Pearl" by Mrs. Howard Hogle and piano solos by Freddy Walden and Mary Frances Mothers. These were greatly enjoyed by all. It was decided to hold a cooking school early in June to raise money for the Milk Fund. The report of the nominating committee was adopted. Mrs. E. Ward, President occupied the chair during the meeting.

Picton friends congratulate Mr. Gay Wilson a former resident on his appointment as manager of the C.D.S. at Napanee.

Miss Mary Power is supplying in the local C.D.S. during the illness of Miss Margaret Mulholland.

It was reported in reliable quarters today that Mr. Harry Fox of Wauseon, Ohio, was appointed caretaker at Picton Post Office following Mr. Franklin, who retires on pension.

A profusion of spring blossoms made lovely the Mission Church on Sunday afternoon when Rev. David Wynn conducted a special children's Day service that had been planned by Mrs. Ball, Reg. No., and was largely attended by Mission members and friends.

THIRTY-NINE CREW MEMBERS SURVIVE HINDENBURG CRASH

Of the 61 members of a crew that the giant dirigible Hindenburg carried on her first trip across the Atlantic this year, 22 perished when it crashed at Lakehurst, N.J. after a terrific explosion. The majority of the 39 members of the crew who escaped death were severely burned and most were removed to the Lakehurst hospital for treatment. Several died after admittance to the hospital, including Captain Ernest Lehmann (lower centre), advisor on the ship's flight. At the left, his face revealing the stamp of horror fixed by the ordeal through which he passed and with his head bandaged, is Rudolph Sauter, chief engineer of the Hindenburg. He was one of the lucky survivors and is pictured as his way to look at the wreck. Three other members of the crew who escaped death were the ship's cabin are Captain Anton Wittekmann (upper centre); Captain Henry Bauer (upper right) and Captain Albert Sammt (lower right.)

PLANS 16 MONTH TRIP TO ARCTIC TO STUDY WIND VELOCITIES

To study wind velocity in the far north, Clifford J. MacGregor, meteorologist of the Weather Bureau at Newark, N.J., airport, will head an expedition which will use as its means of transportation a three-masted schooner, the "General A. W. Greely". MacGregor is shown above, at the left, high in the rigging of the schooner that will carry members of the expedition into the Arctic wastes on June 25. At the right he is shown in a characteristic pose while wearing the parka or Eskimo fur suit worn clothing of the northland. It is expected that 18 months will be spent in the Arctic, the weather from the data the object of making weather predictions two weeks in advance.

Trenton Celebrates Coronation With Special Ceremonies

Parade, Two Miles Long, Travelled to Mount Tehon Where Program Was Presented

R. C. A. F. PARTICIPATE

Trenton, May 12 (Special to The Ontario Intelligencer) — Greatest monster parade ever staged in Trenton passed majestically along the main thoroughfare of the town to the foot of Mount Pelion today when in the neighborhood of 10,000 local and rural residents joined to celebrate the crowning of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. The parade was by far the longest ever to proceed through Trenton and measured approximately two miles in length. Leading units of the colorful procession were assembling at the foot of the mountain before the rear sections two miles away in the eastern part of the town were under motion. The spectacle comprised: R.C.A.F.: Band and detachments from the Air Station; Members of the Trenton and Frankford Legion; N.C.O.'s of the H. de P. E. Regt.; Hon. Dr. Faulkner; Mayor H. R. Cory; Town Council and guests of honor; a Royal Carriage bearing George VI, the Queen and the Princesses; Cadets from Public and High Schools; Boy Scouts, several local lodges and thirty-eight floats depicting the main historical events in the building of the British Empire. Frankford and the Trenton Fife and Drum band also supplied music for the marchers. The parade assembled in College Public School grounds at 9.30 and was moving along Marmora Street at 10.30, with Sergeant-Major R. Abney and his assistant, Jack Hewitt, in full command. Nine silver R.C.A.F. Sikhh fighters in attack formation droned overhead of the parade as it travelled via Dundas Street to MacLeod and Mount Pelion. While the parade was in action, Trenton and Provincial Police routed traffic off the procession's line and kept cars from parking in the downtown section. Practically all the stores and business establishments and residences were gaily bunted with and flags formed a perfect setting for the celebration.

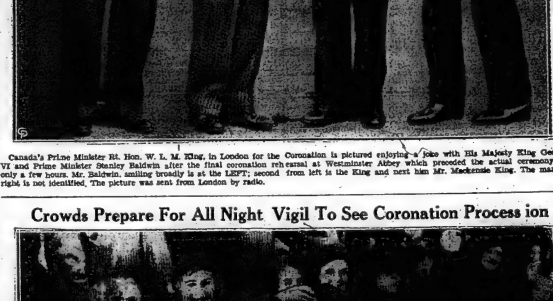
A Montreal news reel motion picture camera gathered the most interesting parts of the parade while news photographers and amateur photographers snapped scenes here and there. Next entry in the procession was selected by judges stationed in the balcony of the Gilbert Hotel which was appropriately fashioned for the occasion in a beautiful Union Jack. As each unit of the parade assembled on the Dafferin Public School grounds at the summit of Mount Pelion, the three flights of Army fighters manoeuvred aloft displaying an aerobatic show that was one of the features of the day. Following the mass singing of "O Canada", Mayor H. R. Cory lauded an address of welcome, which was followed by impressive Coronation remarks from Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Minister of Health. Grandest sight of the ceremony was when three hundred school children dressed in red, white and blue portrayed a mammoth Union Jack, set against the green background of the mountainside.

After several Coronation hymns the R.C.A.F. Contingent presented the Feu-de-joie. Rev. F. A. Smith of St. George's Anglican Church officiated at the dedication of the flag. As the colours were being raised the airmen gave the Royal Salute and the entire throng combined to extend a mighty three cheers to Their Majesties. Climax to the morning service was the smart military march past of the R.C.A.F. detachment and the Public and High School Cadets. Hon. J. A. Faulkner took the salute. Each child in the ceremony was given a medal emblematic of the the Coronation by the Rotary Club and each youngster was also treated to a hot dog and a bottle of pop.

Fast Time Carries

Trenton, May 12 (Special)—A five day municipal ballot vote was in favor of daylight saving for the town of Trenton for the summer months by 180 majority, Council announced at a special meeting last night. A total of 630 votes were polled. Fast time will become effective on midnight May 15. Time pieces will be returned to Standard Time on September 15.

Ladies' Golf Season Opens



Ladies' Golf of the Trenton Club opened their active playing season by taking part in the Club tournament yesterday afternoon. Many were on hand for the tee off and the well-promoted event was covered in fair totals by all. Prize winners of the afternoon was Mrs. D. MacDonald. Following the matches, luncheon was served on the spacious verands of the club house with Mrs. William Nugent and Mrs. Harold Wetler acting as hostesses.

BALDWIN AND MACKENZIE KING MEET HIS MAJESTY

Crowds Prepare For All Night Vigil To See Coronation Process ion

Crowds line the streets of London through which the coronation procession will pass hours before the glittering parade gets under way. These smiling hundreds are preparing for an all night vigil on the evening preceding May 12. To see the procession they are content to spend the night on improvised beds along the route of march. This picture was transmitted to America by radio.

TROOPS HONOR TWO MEMBERS

Fine Union Jack is Presented to No. 6 Troop Scouts

Two of the proudest boys in the city today are Douglas Crank and James Baker, Wolf Cub and Boy Scout respectively, who were invested into their respective troops prior to the Coronation ceremonies this morning. With the members of their troop drawn up in regular formation, the boys were given the oaths of the Cubs and Scouts and formally presented with hats and scarves emblematic of their membership in the organizations. The ceremony was conducted by Scoutmaster Morley Anderson of Belleville Boy Scout Troop No. 6 and took place on the lawn of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Sunday School.

Prior to the investiture of the youths, Mr. Jack Norris formally presented Belleville Troop No. 6 Boy Scouts with magnificent Union Jack. With Scouts and Cubs drawn up in ceremonial formation, Mr. Norris presented the flag to Mr. E. V. Ilary, who accepted the colors with a brief speech of appreciation. Mr. Ilary then presented the flag to the official standard-bearer of the troop, who carried it in its first public appearance in the head of the Scouts in the Coronation parade held this morning.

CORONATION DAY BABES BORN HERE

2 Baby Girls Arrive at Belleville Hospital Today

Two shubby baby girls made their debut in Belleville General Hospital on Coronation Day, the proud parents being Mr. and Mrs. Lauriston Kennedy of Thomasburg and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Walsh, Corbyville, respectively. Whether the infants will bear the royal name of Elizabeth to mark the important date, could not be learned. The new subjects of their Majesties are no interest whatever to Coronation commemoration which had the rest of the community all agog.

Births In Other Places.

Windsor, Ont., May 13 (CP) — There are two Windsor youngsters, at least one of whom won't have difficulty remembering their birthdays. They were born today while the Dominion was celebrating the Coronation of George VI.

A girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Lusby and a girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Allan.

Chatham, Ont., May 12 (CP) — Birth of a Coronation baby was reported today by Sisters of St. Joseph's Hospital. The baby, a boy, was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Walker of Tilbury.

Brantford, Ont., May 12 (CP)— Mr. and Mrs. Jim Humphrey, Dalhousie street were the first parents to register the birth of a child born on Coronation Day. The youngster, a boy, weighed 8 pounds, 12 ounces.

Ottawa, May 12 (CP)—Twins, a boy and a girl, were born early today to Mr. and Mrs. Allan C. McGuire, Ottawa Coronation babies reported in Ottawa. The babies will receive loving cups, commemorating the Coronation, gifts of the city of Ottawa.

Italian Papers Omit All News. On the Coronation

Rome, May 12—(AP)—Italian newspapers did not print the day's biggest news story—the coronation of King George VI.

The only published dispatch that contained hints of the Coronation ceremonies in London came from Dublin. That told of police dispersing a crowd demonstrating against the "Coronation of an English King for Ireland."

Italy recalled all her correspondents in London on Monday and banned all but three English newspapers. The action was in retaliation for English press bias in Italian defeats in the Spanish Civil War.

A special Coronation service was held in the English church in Rome. The British Ambassador, Sir Eric Drummond, and his staff attended.

MAYNOOTH HOME IS DESTROYED

Blaze First Noted by Children Returning From School

Believed to have originated from sparks seeping through crannies of the brick chimney and falling on the roof five hours after control of control through the home of J. M. Green Maynooth, yesterday, completely destroyed the house and contents. Mr. and Mrs. Green had been spending the day in Bancroft, unaware that their home had been destroyed until some time later. The blaze was first detected by children returning from school, and following the alarm a bucket brigade was formed by neighbors. Only a few pieces of furniture was salvaged.

The home of Thos. Murdock but a short distance away, was threatened with fire from flying sparks and heat, for a time.

3 MEN KILLED AS CAR PLUNGES

Embankment at Rockcliffe Is Scene of Fatal Crash

3 PERSONS HURT

Ottawa, May 12 (CP)—Three men, two of them constables of the R.C.M.P., were killed, and one man and two women were in hospital as the result of an automobile going over an embankment at Rockcliffe, four miles east of here today.

Dead

Constable E. L. C. Lindsay, 22, Ottawa.

Constable L. R. Bartlett, 36, St. Lindews, N.B., and Ex-Constable Ken Murray, 36, Ottawa.

Injured

Constable A. Tilley; formerly of Halifax.

Dorothy Hind, 21, and Dorothy McKinnon, 24, both of Ottawa. All were suffering from shock.

The car containing the six plunged over a 100-foot cliff into the chilly waters of the Ottawa River and in its course ploughed through rocks, trees and shrubbery.

Had Attended Dance

The men had attended a coronation dance at the Royal Canadian Mounted Police barracks at Rockcliffe last night. The two constables apparently went for a drive with Murray, a former R.C.M.P. Constable, and the girls after the dance.

Travelling along a roadway which skirts a cliff over the river Murray apparently missed a turn and applied the brakes, causing the car to turn directly over the edge of the cliff. It plunged down the rock wooded almost perpendicular face of the cliff, turned over several times and came to rest, upside down, on the bottom of the river.

The water is only two or three feet deep at the point and opinion of city police was that the three were killed rather than drowned. The survivors were in the water, however, and were in danger of drowning before they scrambled from the car.

PLANT ELM TREE AT FAIR GROUNDS

Members of the Belleville Board of Parks Commissioner contributed to coronation day ceremonies today was the planting of a special coronation tree, a "Moo-head elm" which was planted by the Commission near the band stand at the Agricultural Park shortly after the morning ceremony.

384 Cases Unwed Mothers at London

London, Ont., May 12 (CP)—A department of special service for children needing social adjustment and appointment of a counsellor for the rehabilitation of unwed mothers are advocated in the annual report of W. E. Kelly, Superintendent of the London and Middlesex Children's Aid Society.

The problem of the unwed mother continues serious here during the past 18 months the Children's Aid had 384 cases of which 200 were new. The chief aim of the organization is to get assistance for the mothers, to bring them back into normal society.

AMERICANS PRIVILEGED TO VIEW CELEBRATION

To Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lippincott of Burk's Fall, New York, Belleville's observance of Coronation Day will be one that may long be remembered.

"During our contact with Canadians we have often heard of your loyalty and enthusiasm, but never before have we been privileged to witness this in actual practice," declared these two of the most interested participants in this morning's ceremonies held at the Fair Grounds.

Seeking out the press table after the services were over, the United States visitors, who stopped over purposely "to witness Belleville's contribution to coronation ceremony expressed again their delight at being able to attend and take part.

2,500 BASQUES KILLED

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, May 12—(AP)—Spanish insurgents reported today 2,500 Basque defenders of Bilbao had been killed and wounded in a fruitless attempt to hold Biscarri Hill, east of the Basque capital.

New York, May 12 (AP)—Selected stocks took an upward jump with the rails in today's partial bet, many were sidetracked after advancing fractions to a point or more.

The recovery pace was exceptionally slow throughout. Extreme gains were halved or cancelled in numerous instances and losers were pitiful near the final period.

Transfers were 980,000 shares.

BELLEVILLE

of uniformed men, and the parade was under way.

Confederation Flag At Head of Parade

Fluttering proudly in the breeze as if cognizant of the important part it was playing was the Confederation Flag borne by Robert Hamilton. It's slightly faded colors shone with a new meaning in the morning sunlight as it furled and unfurled in the breeze at the head of the parade.

Immediately following the band came the members of the City Council and the Coronation Committee with yellow badges of distinction and Coronation medals glinting in the sunshine.

With the familiar swing and marching rhythm reminiscent of days ago, with the colors of their divisional berets bobbing in unison to the music came the fighting divisions of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. There was a new dignity to the veterans as they strode along the road. Heads erect by a pride of bravery and quietly shining in their faces and the colors of war-medals scintillating on their breasts the veterans marched along in homage to the King a lot of them knew in their period of war service.

Bringing up the rear of this body were the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion looking trim and smart in their blue berets and white dresses.

Marching No. 2 Company behind a distinguished guest of the city, the Hon. Dr. Faulkner, Minister of Health, Seated with him were Mr. C. A. Cameron, M.P., Rev. J. L. Gee, and Rabbi Benjamin Gerzil.

The stirring pipes of the Belleville Pipe Band heralded the approach of the Belleville Rifles as the city Brilliant sunshine glinted on the rifles of the Argyll Light Infantry (Watch) under the command of Lieut.-Col. A. R. Cribbs and the accoutrements of the 34th Battery C.F.A. under Major Van Steenburgh, Lieut.-Col. K. A. Geen, marched at the head of the military section with the commanding officer.

Borne on one of the rare occasions in Belleville the proud colours of the Royal Standard of England flanked by the official colors of the regiment waved brilliantly at the head of the uniformed troops.

A long line of khaki clad youths, representing the Cadet Corps of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational Institute, looking trim and neat as they strode along with rifles at the slope brought up the rear of the military section. Then the green sweatered figures of the City Wolf Cub packs, and the colorful dress of the Boy Scouts, the Boy Scouts, marching proudly behind newly acquired colors added colour.

School Children Proudly March

Perhaps one of the most outstanding highlights of the entire parade was the presence of hundreds of school children as they marched in a flag-waving column behind the banners of their respective schools. Faces shining and glowing with pride the children visibly cognizant of the significance of the medals they proudly wore on the breasts of their coloured blouses as along the route of march. Teachers walking at the side of the marching columns kept order and organization in the serried ranks of cheering children. Red, white and blue predominated in the colors of this section of the parade. Nearly every child carried a flag. Bunting was worn by several of the children with many of the fluttering gally-colored ribbons on their coats.

Headed by the band of the Salvation Army, King George, Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth's pupils, teachers marched in the orderly behind which came the units of the R.C.V.I. cadets headed the rear section of the parade. Immediately behind them came the formed band came the pupils of Bayside Public School, a pretty drawing gasps of admiration from the crowds of spectators as they marched along. The rear of the line of march, came the girls of St. Michael's Academy. Dressed in exceptionally neat and trim in uniforms of black and white the girls of the orderly manner and in perfect step marched along at the head of the pupils of St. Michael's Academy.

Then in order came the staff of the Belleville Collegiate Institute, headed by Principal P. C. McLaurin, the staff and pupils of the Ontario School for the Deaf marching "eyes right" as they passed and looking very attractive in uniforms of blue and white, and carrying Canadian flags. The rear was brought up by the Belleville Fire Brigade with their motor apparatus and ladder trucks.

Passing through the flag-decked streets of Belleville's Front Street, while crowds of interested spectators lined the streets, the parade moved along the route of march to West Bridge Street, where it veered to the right and continued to the Agricultural Grounds.

Cheese Conscious In Southern U. S.

Through the efforts of A. Rappaport, of Camdenton, Mo., closely connected with the cheese industry of that section, residents of the southern United States have been made cheese conscious and potential customers of a new product from this district. The story was revealed this week

Some time ago while motoring through Georgia Mr. Rappaport became with him, a small quantity of Seymour Township cheese. At various stops they gave small samples of this product to those he met. During the past several weeks since arriving home he has received numerous requests from the south for large samples of the cheese. An eight-pound parcel has been forwarded to the State of Georgia.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Time

By Martie Ramson

Remember Chick Edwards? Yeah, that's the kid used to ride for Brockman. Classy little jockey, if ya' ask me. Too bad he couldn't walk the straight an' narrow you. Got mixed up in some highway robbery deal after they run him outa Calhoste.

Put in two years at the big house. Two years is a long time, fella. A guy gets to thinkin' things out up there; thinkin' maybe it don't pay to step off the chalk line. But I guess Chick didn't do much thinkin', leastways, none that done 'im no good, because two weeks after he's out, he's picked up again, and—well, it was like this:

The day he gets his release, they let him the usual five bucks which is every thing he's got in the world. He's lucky enough to get a ride into Fresno and this fella tells Chick he's outta gas and that's why so it's up to Chick to fill up the tank. Well, Chick didn't like the idea so much, but he's anxious to get on, an' he fills up this guy's gas tank. By the time they get into Los Angeles Chick's bank roll shrunk to two lone dollars.

Now I ain't never had anything against anybody—that wants to make a bet or two on a horse race, but ever since Chick quit ridin' 'em he's always had an idea he could beat the bookies. He ain't had much luck so far, but he keeps tryin'—till every dime he can get, do the first thing he does when he hits town is make a dash for some book joint on Spring street. He gets in just before the sixth race at Laurel, grabs a sheet and gives the sticker at 'dat race over. Lays in the sheet down, he walks over to the guy at the desk an', says, "Two to win on Bitty Bit; leave it open." Bitty Bit never even got a call.

Well, bein' broke don't bother Chick Edwards. But bein' hungry was another thing, so he walks out and stands in the street tryin' to mooch a couple of nickels. That's when he finds out there's a depression on. In fact, it's so tough that some guy tried to mooch him. He figures he's on the wrong street and starts over to Broadway.

On the way over, he stops at a drug store and keeps scootin' in the window till he must've gotten an idea in his head; cause it ain't so good for Chick 'cause the last one he got sent him up for two years. He walks into the place step." Chick would've got outta there fast. Sick no, he had to be a nice guy, an' says to the Chief, "Well, so long, Sarge, if there's anything I can do for ya' ag-an, look me up personal. I don't like walkin' down here with my flat-feets." But the Chief's got that smart crack outta his mouth, when bang, the alarm clock starts ringin.

Yeah, Chick's in again, poor kid, but they took the alarm clock away from 'im, on account of where he went he'll have plenty of time without it.

TWEED

Tweed, May 12.—Special services were held in Tweed United Church on Sunday morning in honor of Mother's Day. Rev. Richeson gave a splendid sermon, "The Christian Home", the most valued institution in the life of a nation. The following characteristics belong to the Christian home: Authority teaches the children obedience; liberty there must be liberty and opportunity for self-expression. Some mothers sacrifice the family on the altar of good housekeeping; religious atmosphere—the mother's influence is greatest in developing this characteristic; God's example, rest and love. The pastor referred to the ideal of a Christian home as exemplified by that of our beloved King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. The classes of the Sunday school attended the service in a body with their teachers. The custom of presenting a basket of flowers to the oldest lady present and also to the youngest mother present established a number of years ago was continued. This year the honor went to Mrs. David Beatty but as she had been the recipient of the flowers for the past two or three years, she graciously declined the gift which was presented to Mrs. Archie Grier who is a few months younger, having observed her 81st birthday on Jan. 18. The youngest mother was Mrs. Charlie McConnell.

The two mothers were conducted to the front of the church by Emma Edensteiner and Ruth Nicholson. The pastor congratulated them and Audrey Delas and Betty McCulloch presented them with the baskets of flowers donated by the Men's Adult Bible Class.

A baptismal service was conducted. The following children were baptised —Charles Henry Myles, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Myles; Francis Calnan Craig, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Craig, and William Ross Bateman, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bateman.

Miss Cora Moffat sang "Little Mother of Mine". The choir sang Mandolin's "Thee Our God We Fly" with solos by Mrs. Harry Grier and Mrs. M. O. Dales.

The ushers were four members of the young ladies' class, Jean McCrea, Evelyn Terry, Lois Ketcheson and Vera Dutweiler.

Mrs. M. W. Connor of Madoc, mother of Mr. B. H. Connor, Principal of Tweed Consolidated School, celebrated her 85th birthday on Monday, May 10th. Mrs. Connor, who observed her fifty wedding anniversary on Jan. 28, has been confined to her bed for the past three and a half years.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Angus and children of Toronto spent the week-end with Mrs. Angus' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sayers.

Miss Helena McGee of Toronto was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. McGee on Mother's Day.

Mr. Don Barnett of the Royal Bank staff, Hastings, was a week-end guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Barnett.

Veterans Parade.

Tweed Army and Navy Veterans paraded to St. James' Anglican Church on Sunday evening where a special Coronation service was conducted by the Rector, Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne who delivered an address appropriate to the occasion.

A Coronation service was held in the Salvation Army Citadel on Sunday evening. Brigadier Riches and Mrs. Riches of East Toronto officiated, assisted by the local corps.

Rev. Nicholson gave an intimate sketch of the life of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth at the evening service of United Church on Sunday. The choir sang "God of Our Fathers" with solo part taken by Mrs. M. A. Grier.

CENTRE

Centre, May 12.—Mr. Earl Fox had the misfortune to lose his sheep and lambs with the exception of one, Monday morning. They were killed by marauding dogs. It is a pity the curs could not be caught or traced as several flocks were completely wiped out in this vicinity last season.

Mother's Day was observed at Centre Sunday school Sunday morning with an attendance of 66. The printed program was followed throughout and a pageant given.

Mrs. J. Townsend is at her home for a few weeks after spending the winter in detroit.

Mr. Winston Fulver and Miss Kathleen Giles also Don Spencer and D. E. Rednor attended the S. S. county convention at Melville on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Fox entertained on Sunday their son Ray and family, Mrs. S. Rush and Mr. F. Green and son of Stirling.

Mr. C. W. Spencer of Redneresville spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Fulver.

Mr and Mrs. B. L. Rednor visited her mother, Mrs. Pearsall of Bloomfield Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Lorne Brickman had the misfortune to badly injure his finger several weeks ago.

Mrs. Kemp, Sr., of Trenton returned to her home last week after spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Spencer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey of Toronto were week-end visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Wynne.

Another big rain retarded seeding operations the past week. Several proceeded in getting early peas sown for factory during the few days of fine weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Fulver and Morris attended the golden wedding of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Price of Selby on Tuesday. This fine couple have eight children and fifteen grandchildren all being present except the eldest daughter, Mrs. L. Card of Alberta and her son Earl who expect to spend the summer with her parents, arriving in June.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Fulver visited Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tillerson, Sixth of Sidney on Sunday.

Too weak to climb a tree, Shorov staggered on. He was crazed with terror; his heart pounded in his throat, choking the screams that trembled there unborn. At last he could go no farther. He sank exhausted to the ground in the path of his angry pursuer.

As Tarzan swung through the trees, Usha, the wind, brought him the pungent odor of Numa, the lion. He heard the angry growls of the carnivore, then he caught the scent spoor of a man, a lone white man. He could picture the [illegible] of that drama ahead.

Tarzan reacted to aid the unknown man. He was not prompted by any considerations of humanity; for he, too, was a jungle animal, fellow to the lion, and he knew the lion must eat, even as he must. In the jungle, one life is no more precious than another.

But this man might be a member of Jane's party, perhaps her friend. The stranger might give him important information of his mate. And thus it was that Shorov, as he fell, saw a remarkable thing—a bronzed white giant dropping down to face the charging beast.

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

Kerin, flushed and happy, was as unaware as a child of those roaming, calculating eyes. It was being a beautiful, beautiful party, and in all her life she had never seen that look of fulfilled happiness on Donald's face. Only Susan, jealous for her generous unaware friend, knew, and writhed, seeing the light gray eyes fill the curtained windows and the Larkin soap dear to her own great oak rocker with imitation leather seat fastened in by shiny brass tacks. The light eyes were seeing the light birth — Kerin storing the lighter tongue was atrophying eager to tell.

And now it was time to go to the dining-room, and Mrs. Herrick was most effusive of all in getting mother telling me of a birthday party she went to as a little girl; and they brought in a great big beautiful cake, all lustrous with cocoanut frosting and they put it in the middle of the table with oohs and ahs—but they didn't cut it and they didn't eat it and they didn't cut it and all the little girls' eyes grew bigger and rounder and rounder and bigger and bigger, and they ate everything there was and still nobody mentioned the cake—for they were all very nicely brought up to the very best parlalels and the very best manners—and so after everything was all eaten and there was nothing left but the cake, the lady said, 'Now if any little girl wants a piece of the cake, she may cut it'. And these children, so nicely brought up—

And of a sudden there was Carl, overcoated, his bag in hand. Kerin, facing him across the dining-room, felt her heart freeze within her with the surprise of it.

And Carl just stood. The children, one by one, for some reason they could not explain, were silent, transfigured into paste-boards.

"What in the world," said Carl, "is this?" His voice cut across the charged silence where had been only the noisy gay voices of the children. Kerin gave a sick and powerful lurch.

"Why, Carl! Why, where did you come from? I didn't expect you!"

"Evidently not." Carl's speech was slow, and astonished. He did not see Mrs. Herrick and Elizabeth who were out of sight against the near wall. To him there was present only Kerin and Sue and a host of witless children. There was something almost terrible in the presence of these children in his home.

NINTH INSTALLMENT

"Carl dear," Kerin caught on the far side of the room, tried to squeeze past the chairs to get to him.

"But Carl did not wait.

"So Donald's having a birthday party, is he?"

There was a sort of wondering bewilderment in Carl's voice; but almost immediately his tone changed. "A birthday party! And I was—it's to know's right, isn't it? Sort of sneaked it in as soon as I was out of town!"

Elizabeth gasped. She did not need to see Carl's face to know the look that was on it. But Mrs. Herrick gave a little silent scream of dismay because she couldn't see it and her lustrous eyes filled. "Mrs. Kerin, grew brighter.

"Carl dear—Carl dear, can you move your chair a little? Carl dear, I—

"Don't 'Carl dear' me!" came Carl's voice again' "You are right about one thing, that I am not to use for this kind of thing. It's a waste of money, it's a waste of time. It's a waste of energy. However, the real point now is that I wasn't to know. Donald Kerin! You—and Donald!"

"Carl dear—Sadie, honey, can you hitch your chair a little forward?"

"Never mind." Carl's voice was perversely calm. "There aren't many to argue now. Can you be through in time to come out to the automobile and it is an important conference I will need the dining-room table to spread out on. . . I would like to have the house empty—if I may." His very three words was not a question but a statement. He started to turn away.

There was an amazed, shocked silence. Kerin stopped where she was, then dropped back into a chair of ice cream only barely touched. The children looked from face to face from their chairs. It was too much for Susan.

"Carl Kingsbury," she called clearly, "we will do nothing of the sort. Children—sit down. Eat your meals. Janet, pick up your spoon. Children—eat your ice cream."

Carl turning back, looked at Kerin, ignoring Susan. "You understand, Kerin? The man is an important person. I cannot ask him to stand around waiting for a lot of children."—He looked at her a moment and turned and left the room.

"Come Gerald dear," Mrs. Herrick said quietly in her nice voice, "we must go. So good of you, Mrs. Kingsbury, to ask Gerald. Good-by, Mrs. McCleig, good-by Mrs. Baron." Mrs. Herrick's eyes stayed over them, bright, lustrous. "It's been a lovely party."

In ten minutes the little fiat was empty. Susan, tight-lipped, had occupied herself in a frenzy of hurry getting on leggings and galoshes and sorting out prizes and presents to their rightful owners. Donald, very straight, stood by and with a set white-faced silence. Kerin was crimson faced, murmuring apologies under her breath to Susan. In ten minutes the house was still.

Donald, for the last time, turned and looked at the disordered dining-room. All the little children had gobbled their ice cream, but some remained in a state of melting desolation, and every sad lump of cake bore testimony that their abandonment had not been wholly voluntary. One candle was tipped sideways and dripped unconsolably. Donald gave the room a look, looked at his mother, and, turning, went in to his own room and shut the door.

The door down the hall was opened as if by a violent gust of wind, and Carl charged into the living-room. Kerin, blowing out candles, felt herself trembling.

"What a mess! Lord! Is luck I didn't bring Adams with me. What possessed you, Kerin, all of a sudden?"

"You were away." Kerin was ashamed that her voice should sound so exhausted, so weak. "I thought it no harm for Donald to have a party. I spent my own money for it. And it wasn't bothering you."

"Not bothering me? Well, you see it did bother me. I really can't see, Kerin, why you can't get this elementary fact into your head—there is simply no time or place in my life for any of these trivial things. That's final. Sooh you and Donald will simply have to make up your minds to it, that's all."

He began spreading out papers upon the table, now he leaned his hands upon it and looked at her, exasperation and bewilderment fighting in his eye for expression.

"Don't you see, Kerin? We've got work to do. Work! Don't you honestly know what that means? There are lots of people in the world who don't want to work, when they do. Let those people fill their lives with dinners and birthday parties and all the rest of the chop trap. It's not for me, and it can't be for you, or for Donald."

There was something terrible, Kerin, watching painfully while Carl sorted his papers on the table, was that his hands were aimless, blundering. Even in her hurt mind it struck her that he was a good deal like one of those great brown June bugs that come with such force in one direction that they hit the wall and fall stunned, bewildered from their hurt, just stupidly buzzing on the floor.

"I'll be gone off—soon—as that packers' case; and instead, here he was, just burning. She felt angry again, but the anger was numb, tingling; his voice, when he spoke again, was cold and hard.

"You didn't get that party up just today. You had to send out invitations and what-not. Must have had to tell Donald not to tell me, putting me out to be entertained by ogre." His hand tipped over a paste pot. "What an example to set the boy!"

"I don't want to," he said distinctly, and turning away, was standing at the door when Carl, dazed, held his gift in his open palm. At the door the boy turned. "If you like it back. To the store they'll most likely give you your money back."

Carl came awake with a roar.

"Donald!" The boy stopped. "Come back here this instant."

Donald turned, but stood his ground in the doorway. He stood very straight and looked his father in the face, but Kerin, watching him in a kind of agony, could see his body trembling.

"I said—come here!"

TENTH INSTALLMENT

Donald took two— three—four steps toward his father, and stood still.

Immediately Carl reached out a great hand and grasped the boy by the arm. He perhaps had no real wish to hurt the boy, but he shook him, and in spite of himself the boy winced and tried to draw away his arm. The act of boyish withdrawal and defiance seemed to infuriate something in the man. His hand closed on the boy's arm and he shook the child in violent, frightening earnest.

It was as-if the act of anger unloosed some inhibition, hitherto controlling, in the boy. The little body squirmed and pulled, and unable to release itself, became a whirlwind of furious anger and sobbing words. With doubled fist he open hand he struck his father over and over again, and when his hand was caught and held he kicked and screamed viciously. Above the tumult of the two the voice, high and shrill, cried over and over, "I hate you! I do! I hate you!"

Kerin knew that Carl flung the boy from him and the lad fell back, panting, against the door. Kerin flew to him, and caught him into her arms, but he was hardly aware of her. He still faced his father in sobbing, resentful fury. "You're mean!" he cried. "Mean! I hate you!"

"Hush—oh hush, Donald." Kerin turned and faced her husband, her arms tightly holding the child. Carl stood over against them both, his hair and clothes rumpled, his eyes red, his flat disturbed.

He gave Kerin a look. "That's right. Pick him up and kiss him. Good lord! What a wife and child to have!"

"I don't want to be pour child!" screamed the boy, stiffening again; but his fury was going. With sudden movement he turned to Kerin, and burying his face in her dress burst into heavy cries.

Carl's animal anger subsided as suddenly. He unclenched his hands and smoothed his hair. But he still cast on Kerin an ugly hard look as he brushed his clothes with a sweeping slap on his great hands. "Well! It's just as well Adams hasn't come yet, if this is the kind of scene—"

"Carl—"

"I suppose you're going to tell me I had no business to spoil your party by coming home! My home, isn't it? The packers' case was continued a month. I suppose you think I should have warned you I was coming back, so you could have your mealy-mouthed attitude all ready for me! Bah! I'm sick of it! Lord, Kerin; I've sig work to do. Work! Try if you, for your mind full of tea cups and dirty dishes, can't help me, understand this— you're not going to hinder me, Lord! If a man could only have the help when he married to pick the kind of woman that's going to be of some service to him!"

Kerin's voice trembled and her hold on the quivering boy tightened. "If you want me to leave you, Carl—"

"Yes— you'd like to, wouldn't you? Leave me to my cooking and dish washing while I support you doing nothing. Well get out. If you want to. Get out and try earning your living for a while, and see whether it is so easy to do. And remember you've got—" mimicking her voice, "your own money'. Money! Twenty dollars a month, isn't it?" He laughed shortly. "Try living on it!" He grinned suddenly. "But leave the boy here. A child needs a father. He's a chip off—" She old block after all, Kerin. Yes, you can go. I won't make something of him."

Kerin felt the boy in her arms stiffen. He lifted his head and lifted agonized eyes of fright and horror to her. "Mother—mother, don't let him!"

Carl looked at the two huddling in the doorway. A sort of disgust came over his face. "Oh—shut up, Donald, can't you? Cry when you're hurt. Get out, the two of you. Leave me in peace to make can a man get any work done in a bedlam like this?"

As if in answer there was a sharp peal at the bell. Carl's face changed. "Mrs. Adams!" he cried, and strode past them to the door.

Kerin back in the bedroom, strained the exhausted and hysteric boy to her. "Donald, my dear! Where could she call up strength to comfort and quiet the boy with her arms? "Sh—sh, it's not going to happen, Donald dear. Mother will never leave you." She was saying it over and over. No way of silencing over now. By pretending that the boy did not hate and fear his father. How it was done? And open expressed, it would grow—grow—Kerin felt hysterical tears rising in her throat. Whom did she have, anywhere, to turn to? What should she do?

"There, there—dear. Don't be frightened, Mother's here. Mother's here."

Yet by the next day it was if the episode, as far as Carl went, had never happened. Kerin, arising apprehensive from her uneasy sleep beside Donald, who, even in his sleep, had clutched her hysterically and cried out when she tried to leave him, felt that surely now all their household life must be marred and broken by the storm of the preceding day. But Carl greeted them both with broad good nature; and while he did not maul and tussle Donald as he often did, still affection was not unusual. Donald went to school, Carl went to his classes with the remark that he was lunching on the campus, and Kerin was left alone in the quiet flat, to pick up the remains of the party and to wonder, in the sunny silence, while her hands washed and wiped dishes and nere eyes watched the drip, drip of melting sugar, how it could be that Carl could be so angry yesterday and today seem genuinely to have forgotten the affair. As she put her dishes in the cupboard and began sweeping up cake crumbs and tissue paper and string, Kerin's thoughts were unsparingly busy. Surely motivations were not as a rule part of Kerin's make-up, but yesterday was different. The words that had been said, the temper they had been flown into, leaving no cover how to hide Donald's fear and antagonism, these had shaken her terribly; to Carl it had happened and it had passed—no more.

This, Kerin thought to herself, she must understand.

Storms were, to be sure, inherent in Carl's make-up. He blustered over this, he stormed over that, who should know that better than she, Kerin? But these blusterings were after all only the child's reckless manifestation of his overabundant vitality. He had so much energy that he could afford to expend it hugely even on trifles; what would be another person be a mild disagreement became in him an explosive outburst. These things were Carl. Kerin understood them. They bothered her only when others had to share them, to misunderstand them, thinking that the words held more content of bluster than the felt—knew they did.

She paused here, thinking again of Susan's outburst. "You beat Kerin down"—that had been her phrase. Well, that was all foolish nonsense. Carl was definite, direct; he thought clearly swiftly; it was the core of him. And as in his mind there was no dalliance no disorder, so in his life; Deluxe, interruptions, uncertainties, these actually enraged him. Things about him in the way of his hands, his papers, his light, his feet, they bothered him. They bothered him, so she removed them. The clutter of "things" drove him to a kind of frenzy. His eyes never lifted to pause in rest or contentment upon a picture that they were for the moment to draw the mind out of self; they never remained for a breathing space upon a thing of grace, or a bit of color, or a valuable object that could make the mind smile with memory. Rather, Kerin could actually see, when he put a gay pitcher or a bright bowl upon a shelf, unless except for the delight in it, how his hands itched to push it away, to clear it out of sight, and leave the bare flat surfaces from which his mind could range at will, undistracted.

These things were Carl. They troubled her no more than the bothering of getting meals or doing dishes. They were part of her life; she was as accustomed to them and as undisturbed by them as by the fact that there was in the market for new land of meat.

But sometimes—there was something else. There was a ruthlessness, a cruelty. There were things, now and then, painful to remember, impossible to forget. When Donald was a baby there had been a Christmas when Carl had gotten angry over something and had thrown into the alley the little tree he had bought; and then he had gone out and not returned for Christmas dinner.

It had been cruel; and yesterday had been such another cruelty. No matter yesterday; yesterday had been anger, like throwing out the tree, and anger was understandable. The cruelty was today, as it had been when on that Christmas he had come to dinner. Was there in Carl a willingness to hurt his child quite separate from anger? here was something then, Kerin felt, that she must understand. But she shrank from understanding it. Was he even partly responsible? She had been angry enough to say the things he had said, glad to let them stand? "Get out if you want to." Or did he think so little of her that it was all a picture book they were watching about? Well, it was true that she had been angry, and she had been "sneaked" in having its party. It had been wrong; it had been very wrong in Donald had had to share in the deceit.

Donald, who had turned from the thought of him and the party with a wrench of tormented memory, had stood quite still, his face turning white-faced, and begged in a voice he did not to stay back from school.

"But why, Donald, why? After your party—"

Ah, that was it.

Donald shook. She had knelt beside him and put her arms around him. Only a girl behind, she suffered with the suffering of this child. They had had such a good time at the party. They aren't going to remember that—that—

You know, Donny, fathers of little boys are busy people. Fathers are like that. Your friends aren't going to think any less of you because Carl is angry. You exaggerate it, Donny, love."

But in a whisper of agony he had answered. "Yes, they will. They'll all—all—get together, and—and say things—ding things."

Sing things, Kerin could remember.

ELEVENTH INSTALLMENT

Now, at noon, with Donald's quiet entrance, Kerin's heart sank. She tried to talk cheerfully, while the two of them ate lunch—and the remains of the birthday cake in the sunny, still kitchen. But Donald ate in silence, his eye on his plate. It was only when he came to go that he looked at her and around at the peaceful, shabby kitchen, as if it and she were a refuge he longed not to leave. But he went, and after school he returned and shut himself in his room. Kerin coaxed him out to work with her on a picture book they were collecting—cutting pictures from magazines and pasting them on cardboard. Her friends saved pictures for her, and to Kerin's and Donald's eyes the book was beautiful; a refuge, in its bright colors and gay actions, from the drab, confined flat and the narrow city life.

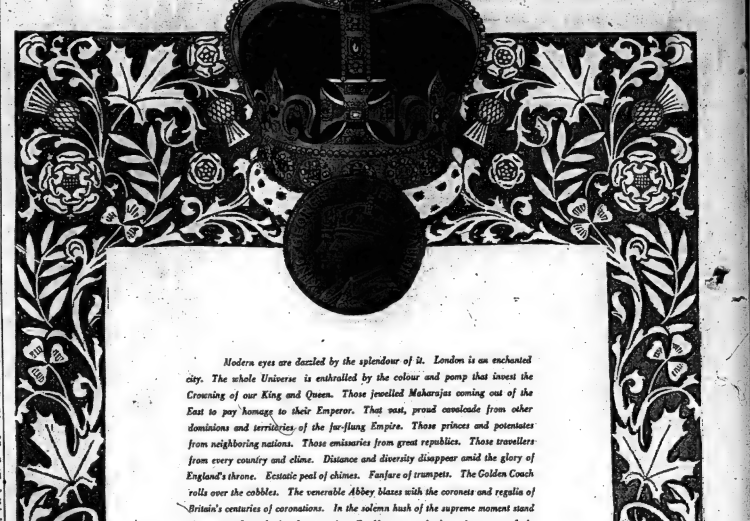
Donald came out, as always readily, as if even his mother must be shut from insight calls to her as often hiding. And grown happier and more talkative as the afternoon light, he asked his mother:

"Mums—mums courage?"

"Courage? Why, Donny—it's—" A rush of insight came to her. "It's being afraid to face something, and then facing it. It's being afraid to do something, and then doing it. That's courage. That's very, very fine courage."

That seemed to cheer him wonderfully. He grew boyishly noisy, drumming his feet on the floor and spilling the paste in his exuberance. After a while he asked:

"Courage is a good thing, isn't it?"



"Oh—it's a fine thing." Kerin's impulsive voice was warm and her eyes were glowing. "I think it's the very finest thing there is."

CORONATION

Modern eyes are dazzled by the splendour of it. London is an enchanted city. The whole Universe is enthralled by the colour and pomp that invest the Crowning of our King and Queen. Those jewelled Maharajas coming out of the East to pay homage to their Emperor. That vast, proud cavalcade from other dominions and territories of the far-flung Empire. Those princes and potentates from neighboring nations. Those emissaries from great republics. Those travellers from every country and clime. Distance and diversity disappear amid the glory of England's throne. Ecstatic peal of chimes. Fanfare of trumpets. The Golden Coach rolls over the cobbles. The venerable Abbey blazes with the coronets and regalia of Britain's centuries of coronations. In the solemn hush of the supreme moment stand those two whom destiny has cast into Earth's most majestic setting . . . and the C.D.S. joins with heart and voice as Canada shouts with one accord: God Save The King! LONG MAY HE REIGN!

CONFERENCE TO ATTEMPT NO DEFENCE FORMULA

Each Government Free To Set Foreign Policy And Decide on Defence

Imperial Conference Opens Friday With Baldwin as Chairman

EFFORT TO HARMONIZE

Conference Will Conclude By Middle of June

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

London, May 13 (CP)—The Imperial Conference, it was learned tonight, will make no attempt to formulate an empire defence scheme to be adopted by a majority vote and binding on all empire units. Nor will it attempt to lay down an Imperial foreign policy, to which all must conform.

Any such idea, it is frankly recognized in both British and Dominion circles, lies beyond the scope of the conference. The conference does not represent an ever-sitting super-cabinet. It is a conference of autonomous governments, each entitled to determine its own foreign policy and decide its own scheme of defence.

Harmony Is Idea.

What the conference will do is to endeavor to obtain the greatest possible amount of harmony between the foreign policies—sometimes diverging—of the United Kingdom and the Dominions.

On the question of empire defence the conference discussions will be guided by the resolutions adopted in 1923 and reaffirmed in 1926 which recognize that it is for the several parliaments of the empire, upon the recommendation of their respective governments, to decide the nature of their action. But, gathered around the conference table, delegates will exchange information to see how best their policies can be made to harmonize.

Baldwin Will Preside.

The conference will open tomorrow when Prime Minister Baldwin will be elected chairman. Following adoption of a brief address to King and Parliament by heads of delegations, the conference will appoint committees and then adjourn till Wednesday, when the heads of delegations will tackle the foreign policy of the empire and defence.

Inter-imperial trade and currency questions will be discussed generally but it is not proposed to attempt revision of the Ottawa Agreements. Revision of the Anglo-Canadian

Wants to Know Who's Billionaire

Washington, May 13—(AP)—Chairman Pittman (D., Nev.) blocked in the United States Senate today immediate consideration of a resolution calling upon William E. Dodd, United States Ambassador to Germany, to name the "billionaire" he said was ready to support an "American dictatorship."

The resolution, offered by Senator Nye (R., N.D.), was referred to the Foreign Relations Committee at Pittman's request.

Nye's resolution would request the State Department to call upon Dodd to name the name of the billionaire so that the Senate could expedite a "thorough investigation" of the charge.

Dodd, in a letter to Senator Bulkley (D., Ohio), recently made public, said he was advised an American billionaire, whom he did not name, was ready to support a United States dictatorship.

agreement already has been reached. Others of other agreements is proceeding through bi-lateral negotiations. Migration, while not on the conference agenda proper, will be the subject of extra-conference talks.

Delegates plan to conclude the conference by the middle of June. But they are so overwhelmed with social invitations that preparation of definite timetables is difficult.

TEAR GAS HURLED AMONG PICKETS

Woman Arrested on Charge of Inciting To Riot

Pittsburgh, May 13 (AP)— Police hurled tear gas into a crowd of shouting, demonstrating pickets today at the strike-closed Aliquippa, Pa., plant of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation.

One man was injured in what police chief W. L. Ambrose said was an attempt to prevent him and Burgess Morgan—John Jones leaving plant property after making an investigation of reported violence.

The chief said he arrested a woman on a charge of assault and battery and inciting to riot.

The strike, called by the union and the corporation failed to resume collective bargaining agreement, threatens to close down another independent steel producer.

THOMPSON TO BUFFALO N.Y.

Detroit, May 13 (AP)— The United Automobile Workers Union today announced transfer of Hugh Thompson, organizer who figured in the general motors sit-down strike at Oshawa, to headquarters of the committee for industrial organization at Buffalo, N.Y.

TERRIFIC BLAST SMASHES STATUE OF KING GEORGE II

Located in Central Part of Large Park in Dublin

Telephone And Telegraph Wires Cut to Isolate Cities

Dublin, May 13 (AP)—The equestrian statue of King George II, in centrally located Stephens Green Park, was blown up today. The terrific blast smashed windows of buildings around the park but no injuries were reported. The streets were littered with glass.

Several hours before the explosion police discovered a large store of ammunition in the park's direct vicinity.

It was believed the charge touched off today was laid under the base of the statue weeks ago.

The monument was badly damaged Nov. 13, 1928, by a bomb believed to have been fired as a protest demonstration to Armistice Day celebrations.

Meetings of demonstration against the Coronation in London yesterday passed off without incident. A group of men representing themselves as "Irish republicans" visited the Cork office of the Irish Times and demanded removal of a picture of the King and Queen from the newspaper. The editor complied to avoid trouble.

Reports from County Tyrone in Northern Ireland said unknown persons had cut telephone and telegraph wires Coronation morning. Omagh, county capital of the county, and Derry, in many villages, were without telephone connections.

From Belfast, the Duke of Abercorn, Governor of Northern Ireland, sent the following message to the Duke of Windsor:

"With my humble duty to your Majesty I beg to tender on behalf of the people of Northern Ireland our duty and loyalty on this your Coronation day.

"It is our earnest prayer that your Majesty may long be spared in glorious and that with the Queen and the Royal Princesses you may be blessed with every happiness.

"We look forward with intense enthusiasm to welcoming your Majesties among us on July 26."

COIN LODGES IN THROAT

Toronto, May 13 (CP)—A two-year-old girl was rushed to a clinic stuck in her throat was rushed to Sick Children's Hospital here from Sudbury yesterday. It is expected she will be operated on late today after the child has been given ether without great difficulty.

The child, Lorraine Langlois, was reported by J. H. W. Bower, hospital superintendent, to be in no distress. The coin doesn't interfere with the child's breathing although it makes swallowing difficult. It is not far down the throat.

Ciano Condemns Press 'Campaign' Against Italy

Chamber of Deputies is Addressed by Duce's Son-in-Law

ITALY AND SPAIN

Italian Journalist Charges Growing British Hostility

Rome, May 13 (AP)—Italy's foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, declared today, without specific reference to any country by name, that "grave danger" lies in an anti-Italian press "campaign."

"I believe it my duty," he said, "to call attention to the grave danger represented by the periodical efforts of a campaign of international press which, with regard to Fascist Italy, continues to be inspired only by resentment, hatred and falsehood."

(British newspapers have taunted Italians for their defeats in the Spanish Civil War, Italy has retaliated by recalling all Italian correspondents from London).

"Some Nations"

Count Ciano's remarks, made before the Chamber of Deputies in a discussion of Italy's foreign policies, strongly censured the press "campaign" of "some nations" against the "arm of the Italian volunteers in Spain."

While declaring the non-intervention control plan to keep arms and men out of Spain had made Italy a "little skeptical" about the absolute effectiveness of the system, he said the Fascist government nevertheless would respect its undertakings.

Challenge Critics.

Fascist circles charged today that British hostility was growing between German and Italian collaboration was endangering peace.

Virginio Gayda, often an interpreter of Premier Mussolini's views, reflected official concern of the possible consequences. In an editorial in Giornale D'Italia he termed Britain's attitude toward Italy "an offensive manoeuvre, a preparatory action geared to a truly warlike policy."

"I'll be candid, Gayda said, "that agitation in the British press is attempting—but in vain—to attack the Rome-Berlin axis, which is the foundation of European peace."

He declared a British press campaign is designed to present to the world a picture of "Italy and Germany as a cruel, dangerous criminal and therefore to be feared."

From such a public Fascist writer asserted, it "will be difficult some day to turn back to the better air and more graceful task of true peace and honest international collaboration."

The British policy is newly inspired and not a legacy of the Rhineland war-tension between Britain and France, which inculcated by a gentleman's agreement, Gayda asserted.

"But let no one be deluded," he concluded, "that Germany and Italy will passively resigned in the face of these manoeuvres. Italy and Germany are more than ever bound by the blood shed in the name of Italian fighters in the Spanish civil war.

Resentment, Hatred are Causing 'Grave Danger': Charges Against Press

Real Estate Operator Faces Charges

New York, May 13 (AP)—A 34-year-old real estate operator, Edward Lawford, faced charges of felonious assault today in the shooting of Bill Corum, 46, stocky sports columnist of the Evening Journal.

Corum was wounded in the hip yesterday. At first he told detectives a stray bullet hit him while walking past a taxicab in which two men were fighting. After questioning he related, detectives said, he was accidentally shot in a Park Avenue apartment by Lawford, demonstrating action of a revolver.

The shooting took place, the columnist said, in the apartment of Ruth Lamar, whom Corum had escorted home from a night club.

REFUSES TO DEAL WITH ORGANIZERS

Half of 400 Employees at Windsor Plant Walk Out

Windsor, Ont., May 13 (CP)—Half the 400 employees of Walker Metal Products plant walked out today when Manager H. M. Gregory refused to deal with United Auto union organizers.

Gregory said he had been willing at all times to confer with his employes or to any representative. But he was firm in his refusal to deal with outside organizers.

Trouble developed when a delegation of six employees, representing union men in the plant, came to Gregory's office for a conference. They said two organizers were waiting outside the office.

Organizers Not Admitted.

When informed the organizers were not plant employees, Gregory declined to admit them. "All my men in the plant," the men were quoted as saying by the manager.

Gregory left up with the cryptic full of iron," Gregory said. "It's a bad situation." He said 200 men remaining in the plant were not members of the union.

Gregory said he knew what union was represented by the delegation. He believed, however, they were members of the United Automobile Workers of America.

"Some men have been a strike in our plant and so far as I know the union has not complied with working conditions," Gregory said. "They haven't told me what they want and there have been no arrangements for a further meeting."

CZECH DEPUTIES EXCITED BY SHOTS

Praha, Czechoslovakia, May 13—(AP)—Czechoslovakian House of Deputies was thrown into confusion when a man suddenly arose in the spectators' gallery and fired a pistol at the ministerial bench.

"Half of the members of this House are Communists and traitors" he shouted.

All bullets had missed their mark. The man was overpowered by guards and jailed. Later he was identified as a 40-year-old flour mill worker, Josef Sebor.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

The "polar front"! The collar of the polar front and the warm air of the tropical regions are separated by an interface, called the "polar front." The interface is not, of course, as well-defined as the boundary between oil and water, but the two masses of polar and tropical air are distinct and often decidedly so to their properties. On the interface, or better, on the zone, thereof, low pressure areas form, and these are the areas by which the air from the two opposite air masses is interchanged. The circulation is notably that of the Rotary father and son, in a way. The whole present day system of forecasting is based on that conception.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, May 13 (CP)—Pressure is high over Manitoba, northwestern Ontario and the eastern States and is relatively low over the Northwest Territories. A shallow depression is moving southwestward across the lower lakes region while another depression is centred over the Arctic Archipelago. Showers have occurred in many parts of Ontario and Quebec and thunderstorms and snowflurries are reported this morning in the northern Prairies while in the Maritime Provinces the weather has been fair. Cool weather prevails in Alberta and Saskatchewan but the weather is mild in the west.

Lake Superior—Fresh to strong northeast and east winds, cloudy and quite cool with scattered showers or snowflurries over east portion. Moderate variable winds, fair and cool.

Manitoba—Mostly fair and moderately warm today and Friday.

Faith in Old British System Overwhelmingly Shown

'The King is a Constitution al King', Says Labor Organ, And 'Spirit of Ancestor's Descends on Such a Scene as Took Place in Westm inster Abbey', London Times Declares

By F. NORMAN SMITH

LONDON, May 13 (CP)—The British press, which labored so long and so hard anticipating the Coronation, today found the ceremony a fitting climax which lived up to expectations. Editorial writers reflected the great event from varied viewpoints but all found it a genuine manifestation of public rededication of spirit and faith in the ancient British system.

"The tumult of royal enthusiasm," said the Times, "rose in a sonorous crescendo in the clearings of such crowds as no event in history had known before, in fanfares of trumpets, in peals of bells, in salvos of the great guns at the tower.

"Yet in the hush-enhanced grey stillness of the Abbey was silence ... upon the great congregation who watched the ancient rite performed on the same holy ground where their ancestors had seen the crowning of many English kings, there could not but descend some of the feeling of those same ancestors, that a man who had sat on their chair and passed through that experience must rise up something other than what he had been. . . .

Monarchy Is Divine.

"Not decaying superstition but living humanism demands that the monarchy shall be divine. Today, like our remote ancestors, we do not attribute to a King a divine right to rule, but a divine right to live and to live a representative life."

And the Morning News hoped he would live more comfortably. "The destiny of Kings is not easy and their burden has been called well nigh intolerable," the News said, "it must in some measure be lightened as was his father's in the evening of his days by the realization of the nation's love and respect."

The Daily Mail, looking ahead, said: "It is true the outlook before the empire is not unclouded, either within or without."

"Industrial wars have not ceased and on the continental dark war clouds continue to gather." But it is well to remember that the last Coronation conditions were much less hopeful. Never before did the nation feel a better right to be confident and unflinching spirit of the duty of his Royal Family.

Triumphant Day For King.

The Express relished in the wonderful scene—continent of public acclaim. "It was a triumphant day for King George," the newspaper said. "How well he bore himself! Those who witnessed he could not be stupefied the ordeal of this day were astonished. Mr. Keith also was announced.

fits hands trembling with emotion, the Archbishop of Canterbury, primate of the Church of England, places the crown of St. Edward upon the head of King George VI as he sits in the historic crowning chair in Westminster Abbey, and King of All Britain, Emperor of India, Defender of the faith, was now undoubted King of his wide realm. . . . A Central Press Canadian photographer at the very moment that the crown was poised over the King's head, this picture was sent to New York by radio and flashed from that aeroplane to its Toronto distributing point.

"The clenar of the coronation ceremony is reached. . . . A fanfare of trumpets immediately followed the crowning, announcing to millions gathered in old London and to a vast world-wide audience who picked up the notes by radio, that George VI, by the Grace of God, is

SURPRISE TOUR BY KING, QUEEN THROUGH LONDON

Rolled Along Mall in Closed Cars Before Noon

BOTH LOOK RESTED

Little Princesses Compare Notes at Royal Table Today

London, May 13 (CP)—The King and Queen, smiling and rested, drove through London streets today in a surprise post-Coronation tour.

A closed car, bearing their Majesties rolled through the Buckingham Palace gateway and along the Mall shortly after noon.

Neither the King nor the Queen showed the slightest sign of fatigue. They beamed and waved at the crowds that surged forward to slow the progress of the limousine as it entered the Mall.

From the Mall the car crossed Trafalgar Square, scene of tumult during yesterday's procession of state, and up Charing Cross Road to Shaftesbury Avenue, thence into the North London area. All along the way the crowds shouted madly.

News Spreads Rapidly.

Their Majesties, it was understood, wanted to drive through the London streets because that is one of the areas they had not toured during the Coronation period.

They previously visited the People's Palace in the east end and drove through south and southeast London to visit the opening of the Empire Exhibition with National Maritime Museum.

Although the drive was entirely unofficial, news spread rapidly. A half hour before the car arrived at the corner of Leather Lane and Clerkenwell Road, in the poorer working class district, the streets were jammed with thousands.

The people, bursting through police cordons, almost stopped the police car which preceded their Majesties.

'ABIE'S IRISH ROSE' STILL GOING STRONG

New York, May 13 (CP)—The answer to a producer's prayer, "Abie's Irish Rose," whose five-year run of 2,327 performances made it synonymous with theatrical success, still doesn't click with the critics. Revived here last night, not all its prestige could win the plaudits of reviewers.

When the classic farce of the romance between the Jewish boy and his Irish sweetheart first appeared on roadway in 1922 theatrical experts treated it cavalierly.

It reappeared in still a mystery to Broadwayites of the 1937 . . . who tries hard to be tolerant. "This column has no objection to anyone liking it," he writes. "No play ever ran five years without having some thing to recommend it."

The play is "dull, obvious and excruciatingly common place," affirmed Richard Watts, Jr., of the Herald Tribune and it would have been better if Miss Anne Nichols, author-producer, "had been willing to let the masterpiece rest—only among the nation's

$2,800 IS STOLEN BY ARMED MEN

Branch Office Cashier of Canada at Montreal is Held up

Montreal, May 13 (AP) — Two armed men entered the office where chiefs hiding their faces, held up the cashier at the Rivard Street branch of Canada Bread Limited today and escaped with $2,800 in cash. The men escaped in a waiting motor car in which employees believe was a third man.

The cashier, James M. Lowe, and a driver, A. Fernand were just about to carry the receipts to a truck for transfer to a bank, when the two gunmen confronted them. While one gunman covered the employees, the other seized the money bag and started for the waiting car, followed by his accomplice.

License number of the car was given to police who reported the car apparently stolen.

ACCIDENT CAUSED BY GLARING LIGHTS

Blinded by the glaring headlights of an oncoming motor car, an automobile driven by Percy Hayman, 5th Trenton, crashed into a telephone pole, breaking the pole off at the base, late Friday night. Mr. Hayman informed Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Hughes today, his car was proceeding northward at a moderate rate of speed and after having successfully negotiated a curve was met with glaring headlights. "I turned out to avoid the lights and struck a soft shoulder. In so doing the car struck the pole," informer Mr. Hayman. The right front fender and side of the vehicle were damaged, but no personal injury sustained by the driver. The Bell Telephone Company were notified of the incident and the broken pole replaced this morning.

OLD-TIME MUSIC HEARD AT PARK

Celebration of the Coronation of their Majesties did not conclude with the parade and ceremony for a large number of Belleville citizens yesterday. In the afternoon on the lilting rhythms of the Pine Tree Mountaineers an old-time band, vocal selections, step dancing and the merry tunes of old time dances sounded from the sound of 'adding feet' echoed in Victoria Park at an outdoor entertainment sponsored by Mr. Bert Harris, local merchant. A large crowd of people witnessed and took part in the novel affair, which inaugurated the park activities for the season.

RIFLE BULLET FIRED THROUGH A WINDOW

It may have been an accident, but is isn't the least conducive to one's peace of mind, as Jack Hinks, Mr. James McGarvey, 18 Cherry Street, Kingston. The other night, while unwinding from the daily growth of beard from his face in the family bathroom, a rifle bullet crashed through the window and blind then imbedded itself in a wall.

The mystery of the whole affair is "who fired the shot and where did it come from." McGarvey rushed outside following the shot but discovered no one. The matter Kingston police and the matter is under investigation.

GAILY DECORATED DOG EXCITES MUCH INTEREST

"Buster" may not have known what it was all about. He may have wondered why all this hullabaloo, this flag-waving and the crowd of people who were excited over nothing, at least that he could see. But, when the actual time arrived for demonstrations of flag-waving, the palm must go to "Buster."

For he was nothing but a mongrel dog, who accompanied his young master to the Coronation parade starting point and there the Upper Bridge yesterday morning. But "Buster" held his homely little head high when he saw the Upper Bridge dressed for the occasion. Around his little body were wound a three span of red, white and blue ribbon. He were a collar of the same material, but the ribbon which caught the eye and was the envy of the other dogs in the vicinity was a narrow band of colored ribbon which adorned his abbreviated tail.

Sticking straight in the air, the little stump of a tail encircled by the covering of red, white and blue, wagged merrily when his master called to him. But the waving, patriotic touch came when a small Canadian flag was placed on the covering and acted as a tail extension.

Proudly Buster strode long the sidewalk with his youthful master, the flag and ribbon floating gloriously in the breeze, aided materially by the dog method of appreciation whenever the master spoke to him.

BLOSSOMING OF TREES RETARDED BY WEATHER

Hopes for the first showing of blossoms time in this section and Prince Edward district over the week-end on the part of local beauty lovers, it is believed, will be retarded stated today by C. T. Stevenson, Dominion of Fruit Inspector for the Dominion Department. "Cool weather earlier has resulted in slower blossoming than preceding this year in this section," it was explained.

PICKEREL FRY PLANNED

Further consignments of pickerel they have been sent from the local Dominion fish hatchery recently to the different district in the waters of Haig's Reach, Healey Falls and Crow Bay, while consignments of Salmon Trout fry have been sent from the Glenora Hatchery to the eastern lakes in Kingston district.

BEAUTY OF PARADE IS INDESCRIBABLE

A cablegram received in the city from John White, son of Mrs. S. J. Price, Moira Street West, informed his friends that he had had a seat on the Mall Cross, saw the Coronation procession, and said its beauty was indescribable. John has been in England since last August and entered the Royal Air Force in October. He has been at an air force station in Peterborough, and has done exceptionally well in the first year which is of a probationary nature. His many friends in the city are very pleased to learn of his progress.

GIANT CARP CAUGHT OFF ZWICK'S ISLAND

Fish stories have emerged bigger and better this season. Only a stout club was needed by Wilfred Seiber, 13-year-old resident of the city when he came upon a monster carp in a patch of reeds off Zwick's Island yesterday afternoon.

Evidently stranded in a small pool after it had made its way into the marsh to spawn, the fish was beaten into submission and hauled ashore. Its weight was guessed at about 25 pounds.

MANY TAKE FIRST DIP OF THE SEASON

Swimming was general in the harbor and bay yesterday, with several prohibited bathers taking advantage of the bright sunshine and comparatively warm water to take their first dip of the season, which was assembled on Victoria Park and opposite wharves to witness the first exhibition of the season's punt races. First bathers in the Moira were also reported in the vicinity of Lazier's dam during the afternoon.

INQUIRY IS MADE FOR OLIVER CROUSE

In a communication received today from distant relatives by the local Chamber of Commerce a request for information concerning the whereabouts of Oliver Crouse, is contained. Mr. Crouse, it was stated is a son of United Empire Loyalist family who settled in Ty-endinaga in about the year 1785. He is believed to be the father of a large family. Information regarding his family is needed to complete the Crouse family history, the Oshawa enquirer has informed.

OPENING TOURIST CAMP POSTPONED A WEEK

Following a brief inspection of the site by Alderman D. Greenleaf, chairman of Tourist and Publicity, and Mr. J. O. Herity, manager of the Ch mber of Commarce, this morning, announcement was made that the city tourist campsite of official opening had been further postponed until next Tuesday, May 18th. Considerable painting and cleaning up at the camp is still necessary and has been carried on during the past week or so by city employees. This year the camp will emerge in striking contrasts of new camps and blocks for tables, benches and buildings.

OPENING GAMES IN KI-Y SOFTBALL

Secretary J. E. Shortt, of the local Ki-Y softball leagues, announced today the opening games in two groups at morning at Queen Alexandra School grounds, the Bantam group with Cubs of the Wildcats meeting the Tigers. In the Juvenile section this evening the Bluejays meet the Cubs and Ends at Queen Mary School grounds and Queen Victoria School the Red Wings meet the Lucky Jacks. Next week games are scheduled in the Midget section for this evening. The entire Ki-Y league schedules will be released tomorrow, Mr. Shortt announced.

SEASON FOR PICKEREL OPENS ON MAY 15TH

Open season for pickerel fishing in this district will become effective on May 15th, instead of the later date as was at first announced by the department of game and fisheries of the Province.

Among the locations recommended for good pickerel fishing in this section will be Moira Lake, Brighton Bay and the Lakes and Weed and East Lake in Prince Edward County.

HOME AND SCHOOL CLUB LADIES IN MARCH

Forming one of the most colorful units of the Coronation parade yesterday were the members of the Home and School Club of Bridge Club. Marching in military order and behind their banner these ladies made an impressive picture and added materially to the general color and attractiveness of the parade.

SEVEN-YEAR BOY AVERTS BLAZE

The presence of mind of a seven-year-old boy averted what might have been a serious blaze yesterday afternoon when Roy Bowler, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Bowler, of 164 Victoria Avenue, sent in a fire alarm following his inability to control a grass fire off stove in the kitchen of his home.

Seen at his home following the arrival of city firemen young Bowler told his story in a modest way. "My father and mother were out," he said, "and before they left they told me how to run the lidings on the oil stove. I guess I must have turned it on too much for the flames started to get higher and higher when I tried to turn it off, so I ran out and told a man who was on the sidewalk and when he came the house I telephoned the firemen."

Prompt arrival of the fire department prevented any material damage being done. Fire Chief Gerald Vance complimented the youngster on his presence of mind.

Boy Proud He Fired Cannon in Salute

Is Master John Geen, son of Col. R. A. Geen, going to be a gunner, a gunman or an artillerymen? That is a question to be Mr. Hope but Gunner West Bridge Street, owner of a piece of ordnance.

Yesterday morning, at seventhirty o'clock with military precision John fired off the cannon, the property of Mr. McGinnis, on the latter's lawn in salute to the coronation of his father, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

Master Geen stated he was the envy of the other small boys present.

This cannon has been in the possession of the McGinnis family for some 58 years. On special occasions it has been fired. During the Royal birthdays, Royal holidays and special occasions in the reigns of five British Monarchs, Queen Victoria, Edward VII, King George V, King Edward VIII, and King George VI, the cannon has fired salutes.

Thursday Market

With the continued damp weather retarding the usual fast growth of asparagus, only a small quantity available remained practically unchanged at the City Market this morning. A scattering of farmers' morning vendors offered a fine display of this product, with twenty cents the pound bunch.

Rhubarb remained steady selling at thirty cents the peck with eggs offered at nineteen and twenty cents the dozen. Celery sold at ten and fifteen cents per head. Tomato and cabage plants ready for planting in field or garden were quoted at fifteen cents per box, or practically one cent each. Flowering geraniums were offered at twenty cents per pot with popular nicotine plant selling for twenty cents per pot.

Fresh lake trout sold well at twenty cents the pound.

POLICE BLOTTER

"I guess you have a warrant for my arrest," was the reply to Police Constable Bert Gordon's statement made by Gordon Graves, 20 years of age, when he arrived at police station and gave himself up to the authorities last night.

"That's right Gordon, we've a charge of theft against you," replied Sergeant Booth.

"O, K., lock me up then," he continued to the youth and P. C. Arnott promptly accommodated. Graves was wanted on a charge of the theft of eight tires and scrap iron, the property of the Canadian National Railways. Horace Bowler, Belleville, alleged victim of Graves' was apprehended on a similar charge and both cases and charges will be heard in Friday's court.

Reginald Davidson, Frankford was arrested by local police in possession of four bottles of beer on Front St. early today. Davidson was arraigned before a Justice of the Peace. His case was adjourned until Friday.

Charles Hyde, local plumber, reported his place of business, 200 Front St. had been entered last night. The burglars had forced a rear door and entered the building but nothing was reported missing this morning.

Persisting in the violation of Belleville's one hour parking by-law resulted in a number of motorists finding police stickers affixed to the windshields of their automobiles yesterday afternoon. Two out-of-town motorists also received summonses for parking inside of the restricted area opposite No. 2 fire hall. In these cases the alleged guilty parties had been warned by the city firemen, but took no heed of the warnings. A Toronto automobile, license L-J-947, was found on Front St. by local police last night and reported by its owner today.

Coronation Musical Service at S. A. Citadel

Though attendance was reduced by inclement weather, local corps of the Salvation Army held an successful a coronation musical service in the Citadel last evening that request for its repetition will probably be sounded in the near future it was announced by Adjutant Alderman this morning.

Conducted by Mr. H. B. Fetterly, as chairman, the concert included selections by the Salvation Songsters; march by the Band, The Golden West; a vocal solo by Bandsman Wynne; a cornet solo by Bandmaster Geo. Wardle, and a march Coronation Anthem, written for the occasion, presented by the Songsters under leader T. Adsane. Other numbers included the Coronation March, a planoforte solo by Sister Mrs. Green, also specially written. A vote of thanks for the capable manner in which he had conducted the choir was expressed Mr. Fetterly by Mr. Thos. Adams. The concert closed with a special number "Gentlemen, the Kings", by Mr. Thomas Adams, and with the National Anthem.

Appoints Commissioner To Investigate Charges Against Dr. Roberts

Toronto, May 13 (CP)—Instead of appointing forty members of the Ontario Legislature's Committee of Privileges and Elections to investigate charges against Dr. A. D. Roberts,—member for Sault Ste. Marie who was defeated in the general Party, a commissioner will be appointed to conduct the inquiry, Premier Mitchell Hepburn said today.

The committee was called at Dr. Robert's request during the session, after the latter had charged that Dr. Roberts had sought to obtain the Algoma Steel Company's medical practice in return for his support of a measure to increase the company tax rate. At the next meeting the committee adjourned since Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper the last company had left for England.

The committee was to receive what Sir Charles termed "facts" but the Premier said the expense of bringing the committee together would be too great.

Coronation Day Committee Chairman Expresses Appreciation

Mr. Shortt Commends Every one Who Aided to Make The Day's Activities a Success

"The unqualified success of the Coronation Day parade and ceremonies in Belleville yesterday was due to the splendid co-operation of all participating bodies and the faithful efforts made by those connected with the arrangements of the day," Mr. Jos. Shortt, Chairman of the General Committee in charge of the parade and ceremonies today in a statement in which he expressed his entire satisfaction and appreciation of the Coronation Day activities.

"The committee was well pleased with the entire affair," said Mr. Shortt, "particularly with the promptness and dispatch with which the marching units arrived at the point of convergence, in connection with the safety control part of the program. We wish to convey our thanks to the officers and members of the City Police force and the Provincial Police detachment for their fine work and about the parade and ceremony. The general public should be commended for its fine orderly conduct during the parade which it displayed a fine spirit of loyalty and affection to their Majesties.

"The committee is also grateful to the members of the Fair Board of the city for their generous co-operation in the use of the agricultural grounds and equipment, and the Hastings area directors of the use of the arena in the case of rain. Finally the committee wishes to express their deep appreciation of the daily press in bringing the important facts and pre-celebration arrangements before the general public."

"Personally, I am deeply grateful to the various members of the General Committee who through their generous efforts and complete co-operation made the ceremony and parade the success it was."

Mohawk Reserve Celebrates Quietly

Coronation celebrations in Tyendinaga yesterday were quiet and brief, informal in character, entered for the most part on dinners and visits at the various houses. Schools were closed throughout the day, and the majority of children attended the Belleville observances.

On the Reserve the Indian children met at the Council House where a parade was held after which the group were given over to sports of varied nature. The Western Mohawk school held a social at which Mr. Ross, Indian Agent, and the Rev. Mr. Pringle, minister of the Methodist church spoke. Coronation medals were presented by Miss Edna E. Kennedy, the high school and public school students paraded to Naylon's theatre where special services were held.

Rock Falls Off Car Cause of Collision

Blowout in Approaching Auto Results in Accident

Port Hope, Ont.—Two cars were slightly damaged in an unusual accident a few miles west of Port Hope on Saturday afternoon, according to Traffic Officer H. R. Mackie, who investigated. A car of Ludford of Toronto was driving with several pieces of rock on the left running board of his car. As he met a department of agriculture car driven by Mrs. Stevenson of Belleville, one of the rocks dropped to the pavement and was struck by the eastbound car. A collision resulted and the two cars collided.

Historical Pageant Staged at Wellington

The pomp and pageantry of coronations and other historical events which transpired in England during the last century were brought vividly to a miniature life in a novel Coronation Celebration Pageant staged by the residents of the village of Wellington last night. Headed by the Bookers Club of the United Church, school children, members of the local post of the Canadian Legion and numerous citizens clothed in the styles of other days all scenes in the Community Hall.

Uniforms of Napoleonic era wheeled in the first scene and from then down through a century of years, the large audience which attended the pageant saw pass in miniature review, the national historic events which made possible the reign of the British history. The accession and coronation of Queen Victoria, the epic events of her long reign and her subsequent death which plunged an Empire into mourning; the colorful coronations of the late King Edward and King George V, and a brilliant miniature ceremony of the present King's coronation in a setting of vivid coloring rounded out a novel yet beautiful pageant which delighted a packed audience.

A pyrotechnic display in Community Park on Wednesday evening at Post 160, Canadian Legion, which consisted of a miniature of Coronation Day celebrants concluded the day's events.

Leave All Decorations In Place for Balance Of Week is Suggestion

Coronation decorations may be left in place during the entire week, it was suggested by one Front Street merchant this morning when asked for his intention in that respect. Whether city hall decorations and bunting will be left in place for the remainder of the week was not stated by officials today.

One of the most unusual displays of patriotic fervor was noticed in upper harbor yesterday where a small launch, bedecked at a fancy buoy, decked out fore and aft with tiny flags set firmly in the gunwales.

WITNESS PARADE BY TELEVISION

Supreme Triumph of The New Invention to Date

By EDWIN JOHNSON

London, May 12 (CP)—Marking an epoch in this age of invention, 50,000 persons watched the glorious spectacle of the Coronation parade in the comfort of their homes, in offices, cinemas or halls hired for the occasion, far away from the actual panorama.

They were a new ilk which the present generation has dubbed "televiewers", and enjoyed the distinction of being the first group in history to view a Coronation on a television screen.

It was the supreme triumph of the new invention to date. The experiment was acclaimed a success although the viewers complained against it. Television apparatus had been installed by the British Broadcasting Corporation at Hyde Park corner, near the end of the procession route, and just as the broadcast was about to begin visibility became bad and rain began to fall.

A drizzle continued during the whole hours of transmission but under the circumstances the reception was good. BBC officers said sunspots would have improved the pictures 50 per cent.

Far from the crush of crowds in the west end of London and the pageantry of the elements, for the watchers it was an historic pageant, with the tumultuous acclaim of the masses as the King and Queen appeared and endless columns of marching men in a degree of detail denied the eye-witness spectator along the route.

As the procession moved before their eyes, they were given many close-up shots of their Majesties acknowledging the shouts of their subjects and other incidents of interest were captured by the "camera" in a manner not experienced before.

To onlookers it was like viewing a talking movie, but they knew they were witnessing a spontaneous, living scene, as if they were the privileged observers of a fairy-tale unfolded through a magic window.

REBELS DRIVEN FROM FRONT LINE

Government Forces Steadily Advance to Recapture Toledo

Madrid, May 12—(AP)—Insurgent defenders of Toledo were reported today to have been driven from front line trenches just south of the city.

Government columns were said to be steadily advancing in the major offensive to recapture the city, an important base for insurgent operations on the Madrid or Central Spanish fronts. Toledo is 40 miles south and slightly west of here.

Insurgents in the old Imperial city, lost the Government when its siege of the Alcazar Military School was broken last October, were reported by the Government to have been freshly reinforced by Moorish and Spanish troops.

(Insurgent reports from Toledo picturing the battle as one of the bloodiest of the Civil War carried estimates of the number of Government dead at 2,000 and said the Government land offensive had been shattered along an eight-mile front south of the Tajo River skirting the southern edge of the city.)

Whole Families Loaded With Worthless Bogus Tickets

Paid From $50 to $75 Each to Bogus Agents

CLEAR DEBRIS

London, May 13 (CP)—All was not joy and light in London Town today as the first Coronation grumbles began to roll in.

The biggest howl came from victims of bogus ticket agents. Whole families were loaded down with the worthless admission cards as the procession stands, for which they paid $50 to $75.

Scotland Yard, busy with a search for the bad ticket sellers, also furnished attention to the wail of some 100 motor cars, stolen from parking lots.

Many of the privileged "spectators" of the actual crowning in Westminster Abbey were among those muttering. Their only impression, they complained, was the echo of sounds reaching them on the third rebound in some far corner of the Abbey where 7,700 persons were crowded into each with an average beam of only slightly over a foot.

Most of the annoyances were smothered, however, by a realization of the magnitude of the task faced by the Earl Marshal — especially when the case of months-old Godfrey Donald Morrison, baby son of the Minister of Agriculture, was disclosed.

Debris Cleaned From Streets.

Mrs. Morrison wanted to accompany her cabinet minister husband to the Abbey ceremony but Donald is a hungry youngster who demands food every hour on the hour.

The Duke of Norfolk, the Earl Marshal, fixed up an elaborate arrangement by which Mrs. Morrison could slip out of the Abbey twice during the solemn ceremony to see that young Donald was fed.

The pleased husband paid tribute to the arrangement: "It speaks highly of the perfect organization that even such a little matter could be attended to.

Men were busy today cleaning up the city's streets, removing countless paper hats and mementoes cast aside by the happy celebrants who roamed Piccadilly Circus, Oxford Street, and Trafalgar Square into the late hours.

In the wave of the Coronation 9,- 565- persons were suffering from slight injuries and 303 from more serious hurts. One hundred and sixty-two were in hospitals. There were two deaths along the Coronation route.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not suffer the pain or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful condition of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from D. R. Dodds Drug Store a special 25c prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the brings relief almost from the first application when a simple rectal suppository is used. Ointment to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

TRIPLETS ENJOY PERFECT HEALTH

Brockville Children Now Two Years Old And Past Danger Stage

Brockville, Ont., May 13 (CP)—Triplet children of Mr. and Mrs. John Sikck, Elizabethtown Township were two years old today and enjoying robust health in contrast with the fears for their safety expressed when they were born. Margaret Elma, smallest of the triplets at birth when she weighed only three pounds, eight and one half ounces, has grown to 24 pounds. Mary Catharine who weighed four pounds, nine ounces at birth weighs 29 pounds. While Francis, who weighed five pounds nine and three-quarters at birth, tips the scales at 29 pounds.

FLIERS TO HOP IN LATE AFTERNOON

Delayed by Non-Arriva' Pictures at Liverpool

Southport, England, May 13 (AP) —Dick Merrill and Jack Lambie, United States fliers, planned to hop into this afternoon on their return trip across the Atlantic with pictures of the Coronation.

Non-arrival of the films on scheduls, Merrill said, prevented a takeoff at dawn as they had planned.

The pictures were being rushed from London to Southport by automobile after an air transport company decided against flying the films here through fog and mist that blanketed England and Scotland. Three planes with coronation pictures for northern cities were forced down yesterday.

Workmen were busy throughout the night clearing a special two-mile track, marked with flags and bolstered with railbed ties to give the machine a good grip while it taxied down the runway.

PUBLIC WEDDING WANTED BY DUKE

Insists Government Officially Recognize Wife as Duchess of Windsor

Monte, France, May 13—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor was said today by a close associate to be insisting, with the backing of the Royal family, that the British government permit his wedding to Mrs. Wallis Warfield to be public and that it bestow his approval on his bride by officially recognizing her as "Duchess of Windsor."

The Duke was said to have discussed the situation with Queen Mary by telephone and urged that his mother try and clear up the matter.

The Royal Family and the Government, it was reported by a friend of the Duke to be deadlocked over the cabinet's "firm opposition" to any recognition of the Duke's marriage to Mrs. Warfield.

The government's reported insistence against attendance of any member of the House of Windsor at former King Edward's wedding was said to have been the direct cause of the Duke's postponing of the ceremony until June. The cabinet has taken the stand, it was said, that the marriage should be strictly private.

VICTOR McLAGLEN SEEKS PROTECTION

Stated to Police Woman Threw Beer Bottles at Him

San Diego, Calif., May 13 (CP)—Victor McLaglen, brawny giant of the movies, who in his younger days in Canada engaged in such manly pursuits as mining and farming, early today sought police protection from a woman.

Police Captain M. D. Neely said McLaglen reported his hostess-became enraged during a party last night at a La Holla residence.

"She threw beer bottles at me," McLaglen said.

Two husky officers escorted McLaglen to the La Holla residence. He obtained personal effects and departed.

The strapping English actor told police "I don't want to be in the middle of any trouble."

He hesitated at saying what had angered the party hostess, but expressed relief that her aim with beer bottles was poor.

The desk Sergeant, to whom McLaglen first complained, still was chuckling about the incident two hours later.

"He's bigger than I am," the Sergeant said.

50-ACRE RANCH FOR MAE WEST

Home For Horses And a Place For Actress to Rest

Hollywood, Calif., May 13—(AP) —Mae West has bought a 50-acre ranch — but don't get the notion she's going rural.

"The country air does something to you, but I'll take it in small doses," the blond screen siren said today.

"I'm not going to live on the place. I'll just go out and look over the landscape once in a while."

It seems she hobnobbed so much with cowy and chickens in her last picture that she got the idea there really was something in this outdoor business—for the animals. The ranch, near Tarzana, about 30 miles west of Hollywood, will be a home for horses.

KEITH ARMSTRONG MARMORA, HURT

Car Overturns on Highway And Man Found in Unconscious Condition

Marmora (Special)—While returning to Marmora from a football game at Belora on Wednesday afternoon, Keith Armstrong was badly hurt when the car he was driving overturned on the highway near the residence of Matt O'Connor. The car landed on a side hill with the rear end over the fence. Mr. Armstrong was found by two boys in a semi-conscious condition. He was brought by Breen O'Connor to Dr. Tait's office, where the doctor advised his immediate removal to hospital. He was taken to Mitchell's Hospital, Peterborough. Constables G. O'Neill and P. Gray investigated.

BROKEN PIECES OF PROPELLER FOUND

Shattered Blade of Zeppelin May Have Ripped Fabric

Lakehurst, N.J., May 13 (AP) — Bits of a broken propeller, found inside the inner envelope of the dirigible Hindenburg, held the attention of federal investigators today as they studied the theory a shattered blade sent the airship to the ground a week ago tonight, with loss of 36 lives.

One group among the United States Commerce Department's Board of Inquiry and its staff of aeronautical experts speculated that if one of the ship's sixteen propellers snapped off as she maneuvered for mooring, it might have sheered into the silvery envelope and smashed into electric wires or otherwise caused a spark to explode the hydrogen.

The investigators planned to call a wood expert to match the pieces and find from which propeller they came. They found the wooden fragments during a 24-hour inspection of the wreckage yesterday after the second day of testimony by eye-witnesses of the disaster.

Alcohol Poisoning Fatal to Aged Man

Toronto, May 13 (CP)—Death for 76-year-old Alexander McKinnon from alcohol poisoning last night after a visit to a bootlegger's was claimed by his son today to be the third Toronto death this week from similar cause.

Alfred McKinnon, the son, said he and his father were drinking at places on Elm and Edward streets. He was convinced they were sold rubbing alcohol. He became alarmed when his own vision was impaired and he was rushed to St. Michael's Hospital fearing blindness.

"It was rubbing alcohol all right," he said. "That's what killed my father last night and two friends of ours in the last couple of days."

Tuesday morning a man died in St. Michael's Hospital, with poisoning given as the cause after an autopsy. Monday morning a man was found unconscious in a lane off Wellesley street and died 16 minutes later. Coroner Dr. G. R. Philip in this case said evidence "pointed toward wood alcohol."

Coroner Dr. Julian Louden said death of the older bootlegger was due to "inflammation of the stomach, induced by alcohol, but I wouldn't like to say what kind of alcohol."

TREATY FOR AN EXPEDITION

Kingston, Ont., May 13 (CP)—The heaviest fog of the season descended over Kingston today and held up navigation for some time. Steamers of the eastern passenger fleet, on their way up or down the river, remained outside the harbor until at least ten o'clock, when they resumed their journeys.

Their Majesties Acknowledge Cheers of Multitude

(By radio and telephone from London and New York to The Globe and Mail)

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, with Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, all wearing their crowns and standing on the balcony of Buckingham Palace, with their train-bearers behind them, after the Coronation ceremony in Westminster Abbey yesterday, smiling acknowledgement of glad cries of acclaim from the tens of thousands who gathered before the palace. Procession Brings Coronation Regalia

CORONATION DAY

The coronation of Their Majesties, King George Sixth and Queen Elizabeth is history. It wrote one of the most glorious pages of time as from the far ends and other parts of the earth were present representatives of a multitude of races, paying homages and foreign potentates and representatives paying honor. There was pageantry, glitter, but then was the symbol for everyone knows that the coronation itself was a sublime, religious ceremony, wherein the King and the Queen as well as the peoples of the Empire are pledged. While there was the ancient rite, there was the soul of the present in these ceremonies.

Scotland has in this coronation seen a Scottish lady crowned as Consort. In addition King George, whose royal lineage dates back to the earliest kings, among them Alfred the Great and William the Conqueror, and contains strains of all the lines to the crown, shares his throne with one who was not born a member of a royal family but a commoner. That gives Scotland and the people joy.

Another event of this greatest day of Empire in 56 years and possibly greatest day in all Empire history because of the momentous time in which it was set, was the message of the King to his peoples, delivered some time after the close of the scenes in the abbey and the royal procession through the streets of London. Here he implemented the pledge he had taken in the solemn ritual in Westminster. It was the first time in history a king had spoken to his people all around the world on the day of his coronation. What the ceremony meant to the Empire was made clear by the newly-crowned sovereign who said "Never before has the ceremony itself had so wide a significance for the Dominions are now free and the people partners with this stately kingdom. I felt this morning that the whole Empire was in very truth gathered within the walls of Westminster Abbey."

The King and Queen "wish health and happiness to you all and we do not forget at this time of celebration those who are living under the shadows of sickness." He added that "I cannot find words with which to thank you for your love and loyalty to the Queen and myself."

He spoke of the crown as the symbol of unity and the importance of the kingship. "Its outer forms come down from distant times but its inner meaning and message are always anew. For highest of distinction is the service for others and to the ministry of charity. I have, with your sharing, dedicated myself with the Queen at my side, in words of deepest solemnity. We will, God helping us, faithfully discharge our trust."

THE EMPIRE'S SWAY

That the British Empire is a League of Nations in itself was the striking statement of General Smuts, speaking at the Coronation celebration in South Africa. When Britain is at peace then at least one quarter of the world is at peace, he said.

The reference to the extent of the sway and the power of His Majesty King George has over mankind points to the world of influence Britain is exerting.

The immensity of the differences of races and faiths and cultures, lands and territories, under the sway of one sovereign with all at peace, is one of the greatest facts of interest in the modern world. Once before in history there was a smaller Empire, that of Augustus, when it was the proud boast of Imperial Rome that the whole world was at peace. Rome was at her greatest at that time in world sway, and Rome is the only name that can be mentioned along with Britain's in the vast differences of races, cultures and religions, under their rule. But Britain far eclipses for the ancient world was small, barbarous in many lands and there was no new world yet discovered.

"Man should be ever better than he seems, and shape his acts, and discipline his mind, to walk, adorning earth, with hope of heaven.—Aubrey de Vere.

A man is like a bit of Labrador spar, which has no lustre as you turn it in your hand until you come to a particular angle; then it shows deep and beautiful colors.—Emerson.

Show me the man you honor and I will know what kind of man you are, for it shows me what your ideal of manhood is and what kind of man you long to be.—Thmoas Carlyle.

CORONATION SONNET
May 12, 1937

Let all the world attend! And with glad song
Each son and daughter of Empire's band,
Rise to give thanks that o'er our peaceful land
Reigns now a monarch steeled by justice strong;
Who loves the home, where beats our Nation's heart
Who brings a Queen whose grace and charm imbue
A regal touch in all that's pure and true;
Making herself of our prized throne a part.

Rejoice to know! Defender by the sword
Emperor of India, by God's grace,
King of the Islands and beyond the seas,
The fair Dominions; He shall pledge his word
To rule in wisdom, over all our race:
With faith by God, to rule our Destinies.

JUNK FEVER IS SWEEPING THE LAND. Metal of all kinds is being eagerly collected and sold to junk dealers for good prices and many cars are being loaded daily for shipment. An appreciable rise in price of metal has created a furore in the junk market and now trucks can be seen on every road bringing in junk to the buyers in the centres. A wholesale spring cleaning of old metal junk around farms and city property has resulted, but the junk hunters have not stopped at waste material but have taken anything loose in the way of metal and much that is not loose. One farmer reported that his barn had been visited by junk robbers and an overhead metal track for transferring heavy articles, had been ripped out and stolen. Other farmers report loss of plow points and other metal objects and measures are being debated to circumvent the junk bandits. A recent visit to the premises of a large junk dealer revealed great piles of metal refuse. In one pile was noticed the remnants of a merry-go-round, several automobiles were noticed, also much farm machinery odds and ends, harrows, etc.—stoves, furnaces, etc. On a nearby railway siding several cars were being loaded with old iron, and several trucks loaded with junk awaiting unloading. The junk dealers are also covering the country and loading at as small a point as the magnitude of the business does not appear on the surface. Belleville boasts several junk dealers, and all are as busy as the proverbial bees. This junk fever is abnormal and many see in it indications that a major war is in the making.

POWERS ELEPHANTS STAGED A SIT DOWN STRIKE at Liverpool docks when they refused to go on board a freighter, bound for this country. They evidently didn't like the look of the gangway prepared for their passage, and sat right down and refused to move for several hours, retarding the sailing of the ship. Finally slings were brought and shown to the elephants, who, with painful memories of past like performance, showed their dislike of being swung aboard ship in such contraptions and they up and toddled on board. They are on their way to Hollywood to take part in a special picture built around the old New York Hippodrome in which Powers' elephants were the star attraction for eighteen seasons.

FRIENDLY OFFER

The new farm laborer wanted to attend a dance, but he hadn't had a shave for a fortnight, he couldn't shave himself, and it was a barber's holiday.

"I'll give you a shave with my razor, if you like," offered an old hand.

"Have you ever shaved anyone before?" the new hand asked.

"Not exactly!" was the reply. "But once I scraped all the hair off a pig without spoiling the bacon, so I reckon I ought to be able to fix you."

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 13th, 1917.

It is rumored that Belleville will not have an excursion boat here this summer. The steamers Brockville and Varuna, it is said, will go to Hamilton and the Rideau Queen, under command of Capt. Christy, will ply between Napanee, Bellevill and Oswego.

The schooner George A. Marsh cleared for Oswego this morning. Capt. John Smith, Master, and William Watkins, First Mate, are in command. This is the first Belleville vessel to go for coal this season, and as she left port, all in good shape, she was certainly a credit to the Belleville harbor.

The schooner J. B. Newland, formerly owned by Capt. George Cousins of Belleville, has been purchaed by Capt. John McCulloch of Napanee for a good sum. She is now undergoing repairs at Kingston and will later be trading between Napanee, Belleville and Oswego.

30 YEARS AGO

May 12th, 1907.

The Corby distillery at Corbyville was destroyed by fire yesterday. The fire started in the distillery proper and it is believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion. The new copper equipment which cost over $100,000.00 was entirely destroyed. The insurance will be fully $100,000.00 less than the loss. The fire was discovered by Fireman Harry Hubbs, who was at work on the night shift. He rushed and opened a door which led into the distillery proper and as he did so he was met by forked flames. His hands were severely burnde, his face blistered, his eyebrows singed and his hair scorched. He was conveyed to Belleville in the ambulance and given medical care. Two buildings were destroyed—the historic old grist mill, built over half a century ago by the late Hon. Robert Read, and the distillery proper which was originally erected by Mr. Henry Corby, the father of Mr. Hiram Corby, ex-M.P. The engine room and a large rail warehouse were also destroyed, also a large amount of grain. Resident Manager Mr. E. H. Dafoe says the plant will be rebuilt at once.

Mr. Harry Wills of New York City spent Sunday here with friends.

Mr. T. P. Brown is spending today in Gouverneur.

Mr. James M. Farley, who is connected with the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific in Northern Canada, is home for a few days.

40 YEARS AGO

Mr. Joseph Walters has returned to Toronto, where he is a student at the School of Pharmacy.

Mr. Charles Smith of Campbellford, well known in this city, will go to England in June.

Mr. T. F. O'Brien, dental student, has returned from Toronto to and will resume his duties in Dr. Ward's office.

Mr. George Sprague, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sprague of this city, has passed in first year examinations at McMaster University, Toronto.

The Grand Jury in its presentment made to Chancellor Boyd yesterday reported as follows: In inspecting the County Buildings we noticed that there is not a telephone in the Court House and Gaol and we would recommend for the convenience of the public that a telphone be placed in the Sheriff's office. We would suggest also that the main approach to the Court House be improved as in its present condition it is no credit to the county. His Lordship said that the absence of a telephone at the Court House was a disgrace to a wealthy county like Hastings and was false economy. The approach to the Court House in its present muddy condition was certainly a disgrace. He would see that a copy of the presentment was sent to the county council.

50 YEARS AGO

May 13th, 1887

Yesterday was Dedication Day at Bridge Street Methodist Church and the new edifice was dedicated in services of great interest. At the appointed hour, two o'clock, the church was crowded and upwards of 1,200 persons joined in singing "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow". The Rev. John Learoyd, the pastor, offered prayer, and following an organ number by Mr. Fred E. Cluff of the Boston Conservatory of Music, Miss M. A. Deacon, secretary of the Young Ladies' Bible Class of which Mr. O. F. Holton is the teacher, read an address and presented a bell to the church. Rev. L. W. Yeomans on behalf of the trustees accepted the gift. An ode ceased speaking the bell commenced to ring gayly from the belfry. The exhibitors within the convention rail were as follows: Rev. J. Edmison, Ameliasburg; Rev. R. Robinson, Rev. W. Bird, Rev. J. Young, Rev. J. Rice, Rev. H. Allan and Rev. Isaac Buchanan. Rev. W. H. Peake, Shannonville; Rev. C. Bowen, Plainfield; Rev. G. Dingman, Rev. W. H. Allen and Rev. H. Williams, Sidney; Rev. J. O. Ash, Demorestville; Rev. A. E. Tonkin, Canniton; Rev. J. J. Leach, Brighton; Rev. William Sanderson, Redneresville; Prof. Badgley, Cobourg, Rev. George Bodle, Rev. O. R. Lambly, Stirling; and Rev. Albert Carman, LL.D., Senior Superintendent of the Methodist Church. Dr. Carman offered the prayer of dedication. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Potts of Toronto, from the text: "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the House of the Lord." Psalm 122 and first verse. The able discourse which was preceded with appropriate allusions to the beautiful edifice, was listened to with rapt attention.

Canadian Soldiers Relieve Guards at Buckingham Palace

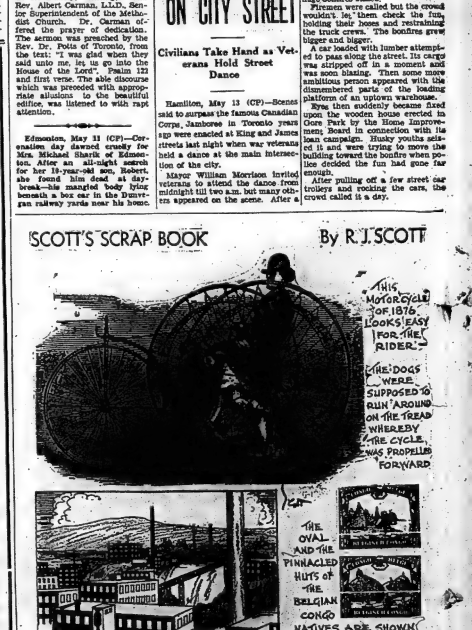
HUGE BONFIRES ON CITY STREET

Civilians Take Hand as Veterans Hold Street Dance

Hamilton, May 13 (CP)—Scenes said to surpass the famous Canadian Corps, Jamboree in Toronto years ago were enacted at King and James streets last night when war veterans held a dance at the main intersection of the city.



Mayor William Morrison invited veterans to attend the dance from midnight till two a.m. but mad celebrators appeared on the scene. After a while, someone set the piano being used on fire. Suddenly persons appeared from all directions bringing fuel for the flames, and soon two huge bonfires blazed.

Firemen were called but the crowd wouldn't let them check the fun, holding their hoses and reaching the truck crew. The bonfires grew bigger and bigger.

A car loaded with lumber attempted to pass along the street. Its cargo was stripped off in a moment and was soon blazing. Then some more ambitious person appeared with the dismembered parts of the loading platform of an uptown warehouse. Soon then suddenly became fixed upon the wooden house erected in Gore Park by the Home Improvement Board in connection with its clean campaign. Husky youths seized it and were trying to move the building toward the bonfire when police decided the fun had gone far enough.

After pulling off a few street car trolleys and rocking the cars, the crowd called it a day.

Stirling Holds Colorful Coronation Demonstration

Stirling, May 13 (Special)— In the morning with the celebrations held in nearly every city and hamlet of the British Empire Stirling village sponsored an interesting ceremony with the children of the district taking the major part in a colorful parade led by the brightly uniformed Stirling Band. local Cadet Corps, Boy Scouts, Cubs and Girl Guides and a good number of the Stirling Legion B.E.S.L. Early in the morning the children began to assemble at the High School and formation for parade was called at approximately 10 a.m. The parade was supervised by Messrs. Jas. Lagrow, Grant Thain, J. Good and C. A. Wells. Nearly five hundred grown-up citizens and children took part. The procession preceeded through the main streets of the village to the cenotaph where a brief ceremony was conducted. It was a blaze of color cars conveying the members of the town council and the ministers and guests of the day were bedecked with buntings and flags, the local fire department also gaily decorated had a part in the procession which reached nearly a quarter of a mile length. Each of the children in the march displayed a Coronation medal.

Returning to the High School grounds a public address system had been installed by Messrs. Colin Fox and Jack Ormston from which the broadcast of the actual Coronation procession was heard. Reeve Thos. Cranston welcomed officially all those present and opened the short program as he announced the first number a selection by the band. All joined in the singing of "O Canada" with the band playing the accompaniment. This was followed by a very fine address given by Rev. W. J. Scott of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling.

After the singing of the Maple Leaf Forever under the leadership of A. Duncan, Col. Roscoe Vandewater was introduced by Reeve Cranston. Well known throughout Hastings and Prince Edward counties for his military standing both in time of peace and war the Colonel was indeed an appropriate selection on the part of the committee to be the guest speaker at such a function. The Coronation hymn which has been a part of the musical training of the pupils in all Ontario schools during the past few weeks was exceptionally well rendered by the large number of pupils present under the leadership of Mr. C. A. Wells.

Beacon Fires at Night.

Late in the evening a pre-arranged beacon fire demonstration with a fireworks display was held on the highest point within the village. Rain detained many of the citizens who intended to take part in this ceremony, but the youngsters of the village and district were present in good numbers to enjoy this spectacle. Following the plan set forth by branches of the Boy Scout movement in all parts of the Dominion, the huge fire was set ablaze at about 9 p.m. by Mr. Thomas Cranston, Reeve of the Village of Stirling, and a committee composed of Messrs. J. Good, C. A. Well and A. Hedley were in charge of the feature which climaxed the day's celebration. Fire rockets in large numbers were also fired into the dark overcast sky as the bright flame from the oil covered pile of fuel leaped high in the air.

The various committees in charge of the demonstration are to be commended for the fine manner in which their duties were executed. The equipment for the new playground which is to be a memorial to the children of the future of this Coronation, is nearly in place and the other prominent project sponsored in conjunction with the celebration, that of cleaning and modernizing the children's swimming pool for future use is also well under way.

Coronation Dinner at St. Andrew's.

The ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church sponsored a very successful Coronation banquet in the Sabbath school rooms on Tuesday evening. The rooms were artistically decorated with flags and the tables covered in colors appropriate to the occasion.

Directly after dinner the audience was called to order by Rev. J. A. Koffend who acted as chairman and the following numbers made a brief program. A group of musical selections by Mr. W. Emsley of Renfrew, Mr. Ed. Emsley singing remarkable talent at the keyboard and his offerings were greatly enjoyed. The group of selections given by Miss Lloyd, well known elocutionist of Belleville, were also exceptionally well done, affording those present an unusual treat.

Speaker Is Mr. Grant Thain.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. Grant Thain, teacher of science in the Stirling High School. Mr. Thain also dealt in detail on the event from its beginning to the end. He also outlined vividly the historic background of this great ceremony in an address that was both interesting and educational. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

THIRD THURLOW

Third Thurlow—Mrs. Hulley of Belleville, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. W. Cole's, Cannifton.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Langebeer of Corbyville, took tea on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pound.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Wessels and girls have moved in Mr. Ketcheson's house, formerly occupied by Mr. George Carrion who has moved to Belleville. Mr. and Mrs. M. Johnson also of Cannifton, have moved to Belleville.

The Mother's Day Service at Cannifton on Sunday evening, was well attended, Rev. Mr. Merrick also gave an Ocronation Day as well as Mother's. It also consisted of readings and songs in touch of the both occasions.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pound called Friday last on Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Copeland of the Sixth of Sidney.

House cleaning is the order of the day with the ladies. The recent rains have delayed the men with their seeding.

Coronation colors decorated the Orange Hall last evening when members of the L.O.L. and L.O.B.A. held a very successful Coronation Ball. A large crowd was in attendance and each guest received an attractive favour, a special Coronation pin and ribbon. Bridge was played during the earlier part of the evening the winners being: Ladies' first, Mrs. Young; second, Mrs. Kent; third, Miss Kate White; fourth, Mrs. Juby. Prize Anne; men's first, Mr. W. Hall; second, Mr. Rich Robertson; third, Mr. Harvey Murray; fourth, Mr. Charles Bankey. The door prizes were won by Jane Reid and Harvey Murray. A delicious lunch was served after which dancing was dancing until two o'clock. Clare's Orchestra supplying the music. The committee in charge of last evening's entertainment included Miss Dodge, Worthy Mistress, Mrs. Bankey, Deputy Mistress, Mrs. Turner, Mrs. Rock, Mr. Reg Ferguson, Mr. Ben Ferguson, Mr. Fraser Paul and Mr. Stanley Martin of Bridge.

Mr. A. R. Brown and family who have been residents of Belleville for nearly fifteen years, residing on North Front Street, left yesterday enroute to their former home in Kingston where they intend to reside. Friends here regret their departure and wish them much happiness in the old City.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shannon, Palleron Street, entertained at a reception last evening in honor of their daughter, Mrs. Wilfrid McDermott, and Mr. McDermott. The house was very prettily decorated in pink and white. Little Connie Maher presented the bride to the guests. Assisting the host and hostess in receiving were Mr. and Mrs. McDermott and the former's mother, Mrs. M. McDermott, of Kingston. Dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening, the prize-winners being: Ladies' first, Mrs. A. B. Collins; second, Miss Kathryn Gallagher; third, Mrs. F. O. Cushing; fourth, Mrs. Stanley Smith; second, Mr. Charles Collins, and third, Mr. Hugh Reid. Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the evening. Mr. and Mrs. McDermott received many lovely and useful gifts.

Officers of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment held a banquet in Picton last evening at the Royal Hotel preparatory to the Coronation Ball sponsored by the Regiment in the Armouries. This was the first social function at which the new officer commanding, Colonel R. C. Donnan, K.C., presided, and he gave an interesting address. Sixty officers were present at the dance. The Armouries was beautifully decorated for the dance, the orchestral dais being outlined with a sunburst of Coronation colours. Basketa of Spring flowers added to the effective decorative arrangements. About one hundred couples were present and music for dancing was supplied by Bert Shanks' orchestra. Mrs. B. C. Donnan, wife of the Commanding Officer, was gowned in brocaded white velvet. Among the guests who included Mr. and Mrs. Jamie Donnan, uncle and aunt of Colonel Donnan, and their daughter, Ruth, of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Archie and Mrs. Adams, the latter in black crepe and net; Maj. HOME IMPROVEMENT PLAN HIP

A Series of Articles on Suggested Home Improvements

Advisability, Value, Cost, Etc.

Here's a question: If you were given $500 to improve your home what would you spend it on? The eternal male would probably give several answers such as improving the home heating system, insulation, new garage, or some such practical answer. Admittedly they are important, necessary and sometimes, to women at least, rather uninteresting. Mother, who spends most of her time in the home, has ideas. There are things she would like changed. A brighter, more modern kitchen would save mother many steps and make the work more of a pleasure—bathrooms would give her a refreshing view of the garden in the lulls between tasks. Many mothers' hearts are in their kitchen so home improvement should start there. Perhaps the sink is in the wrong place. It is an old sink anyway and should have departed long ago. More cupboards in the kitchen would be a decided improvement, places to put the ironing board, broom, pots and pans. More towel racks would be a convenience. If the kitchen is too small enlarge it so that it will be bright, sunny and sanitary, and perhaps a sleeping porch could be evolved out of the improvements.

x x x

Sun porches have been proved to be healthy, and many people get considerable pleasure sleeping in them where plenty of good fresh air gives the body new energy and better health.

x x x

Home improvements add to the value of the home property, hence improvements are a profitable investment.

x x x

We only pass this way once—life is short and time is fleeting. Let us have comfort while we live—all the comforts of a modern home.

x x x

Hold a meeting—Ma and Pa and the children. Decide what home improvements would be in the best interest of the whole family. See a builder, get an estimate of the cost, see your banker, or any banker, or Mr. Hurley, Manager Chamber of Commerce and find out how easy the improvements can be financed—any sum up to $2,000.

x x x

The home improvement fever is becoming epidemic from coast to coast. Fifty million dollars is available for home improvements, and it is estimated that two hundred million will be finally spent on home improvements, as the result of the urge created by the passing of the Home Improvement Plan which it is hoped will give employment to thousands who have been out of work a considerable time, place a large sum of money in circulation which will go into wages, materials, etc., most of it in labor, helping the worker on the actual job, the worker in the store and factory as well.

x x x

Fifty million dollars placed in general circulation in Canada this summer is bound to create a much needed burst of prosperity where it is most needed.

x x x

Your neighbor is contemplating extensive home improvements. Extend your neighborly help, advise him and help him, and above all, go thou and do likewise.

One thousand dollars, borrowed under the Home Improvement Plan, gives net proceeds of $982.23, under the discount plan, with monthly payments of $27.78 for 36 months, or can be paid off earlier if desired.

Members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Belleville were the guests of the Missionary Society of Scotts Church on Tuesday when a Temperance program was given by the visitors. Mrs. E. Chapman, President of the Missionary Society opened the service with remarks of welcome and called on Mrs. A. Maguire, President of the W.C.T.U. to take charge. Mrs. (Dr.) Moore gave Bible reading and prayer; Mrs. M. Denton sang a solo; Mrs. Jas. Cole a talk on Women's Privileges and responsibility as Citizens. Mrs. J. Cordis gave a splendid reading and Mrs. E. Farnsworth the speaker of the afternoon, chose as her subject, "Temperance From a Woman Standpoint." Drinking is Canada's national sin, and as an principal of London Normal School speaking at the Teachers' Association. When we read that 75 per cent of jail inmates are victims of drink this surely gives us cause to think. A former president, Mrs. A. Rutherford, of the Dominion Board of Missions, said 'Only as a nation is free from alcohol is it ready for the Christ.' Mrs. M. Denton and Mrs. J. Cordes sang "Wha That Kens Thee Best." Mrs. R. Lott moved a vote of thanks and lunch was served and a social half hour enjoyed.

K. OF C. VISIT TWEED MEMBERS

Rev. J. J. Collins Gives Historical Sketch of The Order

Tuesday evening a large number of Belleville Council 1006 Knights of Columbus went to Tweed and held the regular meeting there. The Belleville delegation was welcomed by Bro. Wilfred LeSage.

Bro. LeSage expressed the pleasure the Council members in being afforded the opportunity of entertaining their fellow members. Grand Knight Frank Domenico expressed his pleasure at being able to visit the Tweed Council and opened the business session.

Reading of the minutes by the Recorder Bro. Basil Quinn was followed by the reading of applications for membership. Following one of them, two-year-old Jannette Bowles had fallen into the fire.

A fire company, an ambulance and the police squad responded. Crowds gathered and traffic was blocked while would be rescuers descended into the hole. After a long search they reappeared unconscious—and found Jannette watching the proceedings with great interest.

Powerful Skin Remedy Discovered

This wonderful antiseptic, known all over America as Moone's Emerald Oil, is so efficient in the treatment of skin diseases that the itching of eczema often stops with the first application.

A few applications and the most persistent case of Eczema often is healed never to return.

Moone's Emerald Oil is safe and pleasant to use and it is so powerfully antiseptic and penetrating that even old stubborn cases have yielded to its influence.

Moone's Emerald Oil in the original bottle is sold by Doyle's Drug Store and druggists everywhere. You will find you of stubborn pimples and unsightly skin troubles.

MILLIONS IN U. S. HEAR BROADCAST

Most Expensive Hook-up And Longest Program in History

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
(Associated Press Radio Editor)

New York, May 12 (AP)—The air recital of the Coronation of Great Britain's King and Queen was a great broadcast.

Just how many listened in the world at large no one can say. Hundreds of millions is a conservative estimate. The possible North American audience was figured at 85,000,000.

As the experts had forecast, transatlantic reception approached the ideal, conditions making clearly audible everything that transpired in Westminster Abbey and the description of the proceedings.

On the Pacific Coast, where the time was 1 a.m., when London "started up" stations began broadcasting from Tuesday into Wednesday.

Restaurants Filled

In the Middle West, half-way between midnight and dawn all-night restaurants in Chicago were filled with listeners.

In New York taxi-cabs parked along Broadway and other down-town streets, each had its own cluster of outward-bound guests as what is auto receivers was reproducing.

Altogether something like 270 stations in the United States were carrying on the broadcast, every one of which obtained their signal by short wave after they had been originated by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

It was rated as the most extensive hookup ever attempted in broadcasting numerous other countries besides the United States and Canada relaying the program.

Also, the program was the longest on record, approximately six hours with little or no interruption.

"Cheer up—we've got good seats for the Coronation . . ."

Queen Shares Homage

London, May 12 (AP)—A smiling commencer shared with her Royal husband the homage of millions today for her Coronation as Queen in Westminster Abbey.

In the splendor of the Coronation scene, the Queen, formerly Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon was dedicated to the high position she could scarcely have dreamed of when she played with Her brothers and sisters on the Scottish moors.

No Scottish Queen has been crowned in Westminster Abbey since the Coronation of Matilda, daughter of King Malcolm III of Scotland and wife of King Stephen of England, 800 years ago.

Queen Elizabeth was the first consort to be Queen since Henry VIII took his sixth and last wife, Katherine Parr, but Katherine was never crowned.

The Queen, daughter of the Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorne, will be 37 years old Aug. 4. She is inclined to slight plumpness, has dark brown hair, bluish-gray eyes with dark lashes and heavy straight eyebrows. She is five feet, five inches tall.

The early life of "the smiling Duchess", as she came to be known shortly after her marriage, was far removed from the life of the court. She was brought up at grim-walled Glamis (pronounced Glarms) Castle, that has stood for nine centuries. The ninth of ten children, she led a simple life of quiet evenings at home, of poetry reading and of long walks in the country.

36-DAY STRIKE OF SHOEMEN ENDS

Union Recognized And Wage Increases Given to Workers

Perth, Ont., May 13—(CP)—The 36-day strike of 300 Perth Shoe Company Employees, members of the Canadian Shoe Workers Union and Allied Crafts, was ended last night when the strikers voted almost unanimously to accept terms of an agreement with the company.

Under the agreement the company will recognize the union and give increases of five per cent to piece workers and two and a half cents per hour to day workers.

Workers will return to work on a seniority basis and the factory, closed since April 15, will resume operations Friday.

HUFF'S ISLAND

Huff's Island—Several of the island young people attended the Y.A.C. dance at Quinte Inn on Wednesday evening.

Some of the Island ladies attended the May meeting of the W.I. at Mrs. F. B. Hamilton's, Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hatfield and Miss M. Hatfield attended the graduation exercises at Queen's University, Kingston, on Friday, when Mr. D. Hatfield received his B.Sc. degree. Mr. D. Hatfield left on Sunday for the gold mines at Sioux, Que.

A large number were in session at S.S., when a Mother's Day programme was given. The schoolroom was artistically decorated with flowers, while two pots of lilies on the altar, were donated by Mrs. E. Wallbridge as a tribute to all mothers. Mr. W. J. Hall, a former superintendent was the speaker and all listened attentively to his tribute to mothers. A solo by Mrs. C. Barber was also much appreciated.

A capacity crowd filled the schoolhouse on Sunday afternoon when Bishop Lyons was present to perform the rite of Confirmation on seven candidates. Some of the coronation service prepared by the Archbishop of Canterbury was used and the Bishop pointed out the close relation of the coronation and confirmation ceremony.

They were both religious— the Sovereign pledging his word to dedicate his life to the service of his God and his people, and the confirmation vows, repealing the vows made at baptism, to serve God, and to live their lives according to His laws.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Young were the happy guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. Conklin.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Morton and girls spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. L. Wallbridge.

Miss Bessie Wallbridge and Miss B. Jones were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. Nightingale on Sunday.

Messrs. J. DeLong and A. Townsend were Sunday guests of Mr. M. Wallbridge.

CANADA PARTNER IN GREAT ALLIANCE

Lord Tweedsmuir Speaks at Ottawa as Royal Representative

Ottawa, May 12 (Advanced)—The Coronation ceremony steeped in tradition and symbol, should remind Canadians that Canada is not only a free Sovereign nation but "a partner in a great alliance of free Sovereign nations," Lord Tweedsmuir, the Governor-General, declared here today.

The Governor-General spoke as follows:

"I am speaking to the people of Canada as the representative of His Majesty the King. Today in London there is taking place the most ancient and the most splendid ceremony which the world can show. It is at least 13 centuries old for it can be traced back to the days of the Saxon Kings. We in Canada will read about it in the newspapers, and we shall hear much of it through the broadcast, but I want you this afternoon to let me put to you the deeper meaning of this great event for the Empire.

"In the first place it reminds us that we are a very old nation with a wonderful history behind us. Every incident of the Coronation ceremony is long-descended. It reminds us that we have a great heritage and a high standard to live up to. It reminds us that we are the heirs to a long tradition of ordered freedom, of law and liberty, and that it is our duty to be worthy of the fathers who begat us. Remember that we can only pay our debt to the past by putting the future in debt to ourselves.

Canada's Ceremony

Again, it is Canada's ceremony, just as much as it is Britain's ceremony. Each Dominion, every part of the Empire, has its share in it. He details have, for the first time, been settled by a commission representing the whole Empire."

"I would say one word to the children of Canada. Our King has always shown himself interested in boyhood, in boys' summer camps and boys' sports, and he is young enough to know how boys feel about things. I want you children to think of him, as I know he would like to be thought of. As your friend as well as your Sovereign, I want you all to regard this Coronation day as a great event in the life of our ong, world-wide family and in your own life, so that for the rest of your days you will feel a warm personal interest when you say "God Save the King."

UNION VALE

Union Vale—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fox, Mrs. Celia Walker and Clarence and Mrs. S. Pearsall visited Mr. and Mrs. Thos. of Belleville on Thursday night.

Temporary Furnishings at Abbey to be Sold by Auction

London, May 13 (CP)—Coronation Day passed into history today with the Empire's King and Queen dedicated by ancient ritual to the service of their 400,000 people.

Reviews carried their celebrations up to dawn after King George and Queen Elizabeth had left before midnight, waved a final goodnight from Buckingham Palace to 60,000 hoarse but dauntless subjects massed before the gates and insisting on four appearances before they would let the Royal couple retire.

In hallowed Westminster Abbey the King and Queen were consecrated yesterday with the time-mellowed ceremonial to their task of rulership and in a broadcast from his palace following the spectacular, triumphal procession in his rich coronation robes, the King affirmed.

"This is indeed a grave and constant responsibility."

Solemnly he added that "the highest of distinctions is the service of others" and pledged that "God helping me, faithfully discharge our trust."

Referring to the many parts of the Empire he spoke of "how much our friendship with each other and with all the nations of earth can help the cause of peace and progress."

The Empire Premiers, who tomorrow will wrestle with new problems of Empire administration around the table of Imperial conference, joined with the King in the broadcast.

Prime Minister Baldwin, soon to lay down the cares of his great office, used the word "service" eight times in a speech of 180 words as he called upon the nation:

"Let us dedicate ourselves—save if need be—to the service of our fellows—a service in widening circles—the service by our home, to our neighborhood, to our country, to our province and to the world. Not in a breath, a service of our lips, but service of our lives, as we know will be the service of our King and Queen. God bless them!"

Unity of Nations.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada saw in the Coronation an expression "of the unity of the nations of the British Commonwealth secured by their free political institutions their free association with one another and their common allegiance to the crown."

Representatives of the other Dominions, India and the colonies joined in the great broadcast as homage was paid to the King and Queen as lands all over the world that appear in red on the map.

Today all Britons lay in bed as late as possible, resting legs wearied in yesterday's standing or dancing streets of London or joining in the countless thousands of celebrations throughout the kingdom. Threats that roared "over the rim of the ring" far into the night were hoarse and strained.

To Get Little Rest

The King and Queen, however, were to get little rest before starting a long list of post-Coronation engagements. Except for a two-day break, their Majesties were scheduled to make public appearances daily for the rest of this month.

They must don full dress and decorations tonight for the second brilliant state banquet at Buckingham Palace. Tomorrow they will dine again in State at the Foreign Office. Later there will be a Court Ball in the Palace.

On Saturday they will hold a formal reception for departing Foreign Royalty and special envoys who came from the earth's corners to the Coronation.

Tomorrow more than 2,000 Dominion and Colonial troops will parade in the palace garden for the Monarch's inspection. Each man will be presented with the Coronation medal especially struck to commemorate their trip to London from the ends of the Empire.

Princesses to Look On

Queen Elizabeth and the little Princesses, Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, were expected to watch these ceremonies.

Next Wednesday the King and Queen will drive in State again through cheering lanes of Londoners and visitors to the Imperial Guild Hall for luncheon with the Lord Mayor, Sir George Broadbridge.

The grandest ceremony at Temple Bar—boundary of the old city of London—then will be revived. The Lord Mayor will advance to the King's carriage and surrender to him the pearl sword, presented by Queen Elizabeth in 1571, as a sign that the city continues to pay homage to the throne.

That same evening the King will leave for Portsmouth to board the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert in readiness for a mammoth naval review the next day.

Many Social Events

The royal couple will drive through the city once more on May 24 to attend Empire Day Services at St. Paul's Cathedral. The next day will be the Prime Minister's dinner party for Their Majesties, at No. 10 Downing Street and the following night another court ball at Buckingham Palace will conclude Queen Mary's birthday.

On the night of May 27, the royal couple will attend an evening reception for the London County Council at County Hall, Westminster, and the next day there will be levee by the King at St. James's Palace.

There will follow an imposing array of other levees and garden parties and July will bring no rest for Their Majesties. State visits to Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland will take them, then London at the end of the season.

So it goes on and on, the royal responsible job of holding a symbolical sceptre over an empire, that girds a quarter of the globe.

Today, thousands of revellers nursed bruises and hangovers incurred in yesterday's long celebration. Street cleaners worked to clear the litter from the route of the Coronation parade to Westminster Abbey.

Souie Taken Down

Workmen started taking down the tiers of grandstand seats which had groaned under their tightly-packed loads. Trafalgar Square's fountain lakes were floating with orange peel, paper cartons and almost every kind of debris. Even as though an enormous circus had folded its tents and gone.

Hyde Park, usually green and beautiful, was an unsightly rubbish ground.

Workmen tearing down stands in Pall Mall and Whitehall found 18 umbrellas, 14 walking sticks, 12 rugs, three portable cooking stoves, scores of gloves, two cameras and one pair of false teeth—all abandoned by a throng gone joyously mad.

18,000 Cared For

About 10,000 persons collapsed in the crush and were cared for by first aid units. Police made only a dozen arrests and those were mostly the consequence of revelry that lasted until daybreak today.

The gorgeous blue and gold decorations and temporary Coronation furnishings at Westminster Abbey will be sold, now that the big show is over. Priceless tapestries that graced the vaulted chamber in which the Coronation ritual was performed will be returned to the Duke of Buccleuch and Lord Dervem who lent them.

Among the things to be sold was a beautiful, seamless blue Armenian carpet made especially to cover the 171 by 17-foot grand processional way in the Abbey. Its cost was unofficially estimated at about $50,000. Revenue from the sales will go into public coffers.

PREMIER BALDWIN IS TO PRESIDE AT IMPERIAL PARLEY

Conference Will Open on Friday at St. James's Palace

SAFEGUARD PEACE

In Matter of Defence All Nations of Empire Will Keep Step

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 13 (CP Cable)—In the quiet Old World drawing room of St. James's Palace tomorrow Prime Minister Baldwin will call the Imperial Conference to order.

Seven years have passed since the Imperial Conference last met in London—seven years of bewildering change in the swift march of events.

Then Inter-Imperial relations and Commonwealth questions held the stage. This year the dominant questions will be foreign affairs and empire defence.

And Empire statesmen, gathered in the walls hung with paintings of stout consorts of early Georgian Kings will consider developments far more disturbing than any since the Great War.

Barriers Dam Peace Stream

Barriers dam the streams of world trade. Peace conditions reel under the shock of repeated assault. Communist Hitler invaded Locarno. Premier Mussolini successfully challenged the League of Nations.

And as the two dictator states—Germany and Italy—draw closer together the world rearms at a pace never known before.

Yet it is not expected the Conference will revive any grand, unified scheme of empire defence. The tendency of recent years is especially against forms of centralization.

But the first Imperial Conference attended by Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada—since 1923—will affirm, down the principle, that "it is for the Parliaments of the several parts of the empire, upon recommendations of their respective governments, to decide the nature and extent of any action which should be taken by them." That, it is understood, will still be the guiding principle of Canada's attitude at the Conference.

Safeguard Communications

But within each Dominion continues to organize its own defence according to its own needs, there remains the question of safeguarding empire communications.

"What we hope for," writes Professor John Coatman in discussing the Imperial Conference problems in The Morning Post, "is a clear realization on the part of every British self-governing country that its defence policy has two aspects, one domestic, the other Imperial.

"Realization of this second aspect will ensure that another great desideratum will be achieved: namely, that the defence policy of each British country will be so designed as to fit it to be part of a coordinated system of mutual support for the whole empire. To use a simple metaphor we must ensure that in making our defence we shall all keep in step with each other."

Questions of defence will be reflected in the membership of the Conference. Chief Canadian delegate reported crushed to death in the press of the coronation crowd today.

Once, Newfoundland, her Dominion constitution suspended will have no representation. Burma, entering the long road toward autonomy and now separated from the Indian Empire, will for the first time have an observer. The Irish Free State, absorbed in Dail discussion over its new constitution, is not sending delegates.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour two pints of bile juice into your bowels daily. If this bile flow is sluggish, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons get into the body, and you feel weak, sick and all run-down.

Don't take a mere laxative! Insist always on getting Carter's Little Liver Pills. They start the bile flowing. Soon you feel like a new person. Just say "no end to" constipation, dizziness, headaches, sallow skin. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Resolutely refuse anything else. 25c.

27,000 WORKERS IN STEEL STRIKE

Two Huge Independent Plants Closed by C.I.O.

Pittsburgh, May 13 (AP)— First major steel strike in 18 years closed tight today two huge Jones and Laughlin Mills, throwing 27,000 workers into idleness.

The steel workers' organizing committees, set up by forces of John L. Lewis, called out lines of snake-dancing pickets that ringed six of its announced campaign to force written collective bargaining contracts with the large independent operators.

Jones and Laughlin is the third largest producer independent of "big steel." Two three other largest Bethlehem, Republic and Youngstown sheet and tube, had flatly declined to sign such a contract, although agreeing verbally to abide by terms of one signed last March by U.S. Steel Corporation subsidiaries.

A company spokesman said no attempt would be made to operate the Jones & Laughlin plants "for the time being."

Philip Murray, Chairman of the Union Committee, declined comment on the probable effect of the strike on the plants of the other large independents.

James F. Dewey, conciliator of the Federal Labor Department made a 11th hour attempt to avert the strike. He said he would sit in today in another conference between the company executives and Murray.

Murray announced the strike after a conference with H. E. Lewis, Chairman of Jones and Laughlin.

QUALITY ALWAYS HIGHER THAN PRICE

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

It may have been fate that sent Carl's feet up the stairs a just that instant. The clutter of pictures and coardboards and paste was past concealing and Kerin was in no mood to conceal it anyway. Donald, too, after one dismayed look at his mother, saw where he was as his father entered. Carl took in the warm bright group on the floor under the light, said "Paper dolls! Cod!" and went on down the hall to his study. Kerin, saying that she must get supper, began a little abandonedly to pick up the pictures. It was a bit like playing with paper dolls. May be that was why she so loved it. Paper dolls with bright fringed skirts and gilt watches—oh, they were fun! Her mind sprawled for an instant; Donald's eyes, furtive on his mother's face, saw it. Sensitive, suffering child; it was as if a too-great weight lifted from his childish mind; his shoulders squared, his eyes cleared, he drew a long breath of relief, and with willing hands gathered up every speck of scrap.

Supper was just as always. Carl talked with great fluency, and seemingly without recollection of any painful scene, of the new proposal in which Adams had attacked his interest: to codify and simplify the criminal laws of the state. He was carried away by the theme: his hands flexible, supple, full of emphasis, his eyes keen, alive, alert, enthusiastic. The boy's eyes almost never left his face. Like Susan, the wide eyes were expressing a reluctant admiration, an unwilling fascination. Kerin, seeing them, wished for the thousandth time that Carl could catch that look on his kids' face. He had no yet fled beyond Carl's reach, Kerin thought. Like herself. he was leaping to creep close to Carl. If Carl would only be quiet and let him. But as Carl looked at the boy —the eyes were gone.

After supper Carl rose without apology and blew like a high wind down the hall to his study; and in a way it was as if the house silent after his going, had been ached by a hurricane of the thing that gave it life.

After the dishes were cleared away, Kerin did what she often did for Donald, and both loved as much: she took an old, finely inlaid guitar which her father had bought in Vienna and had taught her to play, and sang and played to Donald. She sat crosslegged on her bed and he sat facing her at his foot, and as she sang the strange harmonies of Irish songs that were all that remained to her of those gorgeous free years she had spent with her father, her face grew whimsical or gay, her voice was rollicking or sad, and her body swayed in harmony as she sang lilting dances or valiant marches and strummed her guitar with surprising skill. This song the little children had sung as they played a noisy game in the little fishing village of Brittany; that one was sung by stange tall men to stamping feet around a campfire on Easter Russia.

Of course, sometimes when Carl was very busy, there would come a thump of protest on the wall, but tonight Olympus was silent, and Donald, in bed a last, lay in the darkness with stars in his eyes and a song in his heart.

It began warm with the devastating softeduess of the great warm country. Even while it was winter, with slush in the streets and packed snow beside the sidewalks, it was suddenly warm enough to wear gingham dresses, and all the backyards began flaunting their spring dishes of curtains and blankets. Carl went to Chicago on his case, deferred to overlap the Easter holidays; and while Kerin had to admit to herself a sense of great relief that Donald could come and go and whistle and stamp about the house as he liked, yet it brought a shadow to her heart to see how completely, in Carl's absence, Donald expanded into a normal, happy boy. Even his violin, so often taboo, screamed and howled at intervals unchecked.

Kerin herself missed Carl. Difficult Carl might be, even to her even-tempered spirit and acquiescent mind; and unconsciously Victorian in the attitude of tolerant condescension with which she accused her; but his dynamic presence, absorbing, exhausting, demanding of service and attention and affection and support, was so protentous, so vital, that her mind and nature, that it was a whole world. He bounded Kerin's life: and when he went away she was left without contact at all with the glamorous world of ideas and action that were to her the more glamorous because she knew it only vicariously, through Carl. The more she was starved of normal contacts when he was there, the more she missed him at all and when he went away. For Donald was a child, and for him as, only a child.

But it was, nevertheless, with a feeling of dismay that she heard, from the kitchen, on the fifth day of Donald's Easter vacation week, the booming return of Carl. It made her breathless just to see him again. He was so alive, so enthusiastic, so explosive as a tryant with something that was on his mind.

"Why, Carl dear—your case over so soon?"

"Mad I came back, are you?" But Carl's clear blue eyes and beaming face gave the lie to his words. "Not it's over. It was a pushover. Did 7 miss me?" Then—don't you read the newspapers?"

TWELFTH INSTALLMENT

He whipped out a Chicago newspaper from his overcoat pocket and pushed it in front of her. Another was plastered across the top in a small headline, and Carl's name was prominent in the text below. Kerin read it, smiling. Carl threw his overcoat, on one chair, his scarf and gloves on another, shied his hat on one of Kerin's open desk. He took big leather bags and his briefcase into the room with him, and then, too small to hold him. Life again overflowed the little flat.

"Ha! What do you think of your husband now?" Kerin thought she detected the little eye-agreement to him. He sat down in the big rocker and pulled her on his lap, sweeping the paper out of her hand. "But that's not the big thing. Glass old girl. That's another kind story. The thing is—what do you think? I'm actually going Russia!"

"Oh, Carl—not Russia!"

"Russia, let me just tell you." He got up so abruptly that Kerin nearly fell out on the floor. "I was lunching one day with a bunch of men—and as it happened I was talking about Russia! When you should blow in but Lisemenoff—you know!—the head of that new commission that's going over to fix up trade agreements? Lord, Kerin don't you know anything! Well, anyway, one of them knew him and called him over and told to him. 'Here's Carl Kingsbury, the greatest booster Russia's had in this country on the 'ist ten years.' Pretty neat—what? He spread his hands extravagantly. "All over him shouting. He took to me like a duck to water. He wants an American lawyer—and I'm a lawyer—and a damned good one. Fact is if Lisemenoff gets as soon as he knows me he will, I'll be leaving in a month. Lord, Kerin! Think of that!"

"Carl! For how long?"

"I don't know. Six month—a year—three years. How do I know?"

Kerin was hardly able to think. "And Donald and I—"

"Donald and I—my ears, playfully. "You'll keep the home fires burning. It's a commission. Can't you fancy a family, that's sure. Why, after getting is just my expenses." He smiled at Kerin affectionately, secure and safe in the knowledge of the impossibility of his work. He couldn't know—could he? —how it hurt her out.

"But—what'll we do, dear, Donald and I? Stay here?"

Carl spread his hands. "Stay where you like." He stood, looked down from his arrogant height to her stricken face, and gradually there grew a look of exasperation in his own. "Good Lord, Kerin, you aren't asking me to stay here just to hold your hand, are you? You are you? Lord! When will women learn to stand on their own feet! They talk enough about it—talk, talk, talk! But give one of them a chance, and—Good Lord, Kerin, you've got some money of your own. What else is it good for?" He paused. "Or is that what's eating you—you don't want to spend your own money? Lord! You aren't going to pull that on me, are you? claim your legal rights, cut me out of the biggest chance I've ever had to of some use in the world?"

Kerin, looking across at him, so strong, so indomitable, shook her head wretchedly. She could not speak.

He shook his head now, as to dismiss off some clutching irritation. "You understand, Kerin, I'm sacrificing a lot to do this, but I don't stop on that account. This generations is made up of the war-dregs. Those of us who can have to carry the burden. Service—that's what the world asks of us. All of us. And in a big way, you in your little way. We'll talk each other of course, but—you'll manage. Anyway—" He picked up his bag, stood a moment, and finished: "Anyway, that's the way it is," and passed out of the door.

Kerin sat down in the clumsy oak rocker and faced a blank wall with unseeing eyes and a beating heart. Dismay was all she could feel. Spend her honey—Donald's college money? A job? But what could she do? There were no jobs these days for even the experienced. Carl's presence in the doorway roused her. "You could teach," said Carl. "And thank me that I kept after you! Lord, you were dogging. Anyway, Kerin," Carl burst out in irritation, "don't sit there looking like a sick calf! I need you. I'm going to some money, of course. Been up and down a little spatti! I swear I never tried to do anything in this world that you weren't hanging on to me and couldn't screw! At the end of the dark corridor and big receding footsteps a door slammed.

Kerin looked at the clock. It was ten o'clock. There was time to Susan before she needed to get lunch.

She pulled on the blue-blue hat and the purple-blue jacket, and stopping only to tell Donald's lisdening eyes of his father's return, she flew up the street, her mind in as breathless a turmoil as her body in its flight. Her beating steps. She burst in on Susan, who was sitting at a sewing machine.

"Susan—Carl's going to Russia!"

Susan spat three pins out of her mouth and looked at Kerin in astonishment. "To Russia! Honestly, Kerin, your Carl is the most abrupt and unpredictable man alive. Where? For how long?"

"In a month maybe—isn't that —amazing? And—of course Donald and I are going."

"Well that's a mercy, anyhow." She looked sharply at her friend. "Surely you don't want to go do you? Terrible food—no comforts? Why, it would kill Donald."

"I know—at least, I suppose you are right." Kerin sat on a straight chair and watched Susan put her work was plastered across the top in a small headline, and Carl's name was prominent in the text below. Kerin, dead in, smiling. Carl threw his overcoat, on one chair, his scarf and gloves on another, shied his hat on one of Kerin's open desk. HEAVY CLOUTING MARKS GAMES IN INTERNATIONAL

Toronto Leafs Split With Syracuse Before a Record Crowd

PORTERS LEADS HITTERS

Jersey City Beaten Twice by Buffalo Bisons, Who Move up

Heavy clouting was the order of the day in the Canadian half of the International League as Montreal Royals and Toronto Leafs played before large Coronation Way crowds.

The Leafs split with Syracuse before a record throng of 17,438 paid admissions, winning the first game 8-5 and dropping the nightcap 8-5. Mike Meola limited the Leafs to one hit in the opener, Bobby Porter let a 13-hit assault for the Leafs with a circuit clout, wild two on the bags belt. The Birds won the first game 13-3, dropping the second 10-9.

Montreal Gets Two.

Four homers were batted out during the day. Woody Abernathy smashed out two in the first game and Pooch Puzzuoli got one in the second for the Orioles. Bud Hafey connected for the Royals in the opener.

Ollie Carnegie, 35-year-old Buffalo's outfielder, got six hits for seven times up as the Bisons swept their first double header of the season, walloping Jersey City 5-1 and 11-2. The double win moved the herd into a second place tie with the Newark Bears, who defeated Rochester 12-5, a half game behind Toronto's pace.

Newar belted Lefty Walker for seven runs in four innings and continued the attack against two more Wing pitchers in cinching up their triumph. Although outhit by Rochester 15-13, the Bears collected on their extra-base power. Joe Gordon hit a homer and his mates got three triples and a two-bagger.

HENRY PIERS IN MAIN BOUT CARD

John Kelan, the former Canadian heavyweight wrestling champion who was disqualified in his recent bout with George "Dazzler" Clarke, has been put on the spot for the next Queensbury Wrestling Show which will be held at the Belleville Arena on Tuesday, May 18. Kelan as rough a wrestler as there is in the sport, has been matched with Henry Piers, the champion of Holland, who has established himself not only a splendid wrestler but also as a great favorite with the fans of this district.

Pier followed a sensational draw with Jimmy Coffield by coming back to defeat burly Charlie Strack in the semi-final of the last show, a sparkling bout in which the powerful Dutchman showed to excellent advantage.

Promoter Jack Corcoran had no difficulty in making the match as Piers never bars any opponents while Kelan, with his usual braggadocio attitude, thinks he can lick the world. Those who saw these wrestlers at the last two shows will realize that the match between them is an exceptional attraction. It is a sports natural in every sense of the word. Though their styles contrast greatly, there is little to choose between them in ability and it will be a fast match between two extremely aggressive heavyweights.

Ralph Garibaldi, noted Italian heavyweight will be in the semi-final, looking for a main bout with the next card.... A main bout in New York, Garibaldi is an exceptionally pleasing master. He will wrestle another newcomer Bill Fiehl of Brooklyn College Graduate, here with quite a reputation.

Al Snyder, who has had main bouts here in the past, will be in the preliminary for a return bout with Joe Tsayaard of Boston with whom he drew a spirited encounter at the last show.

Ducky - Wucky Medwick Cleaning Up Leading League in Hitting, Doubles, Runs Scored

Regarded as One of The Five Most Dangerous Hitters in Game

CARDS FAIL TO GAIN

Pittsburg Pirates Stay on Top With Swell Relief Hurling

By SID FEDER

The time has come for someone to carry the torch for Ducky-Wucky Medwick.

Although he's generally regarded as one of big league baseball's five most dangerous hitters, and has played as big a part as anyone in the Cardinals' fight to stay in the top-flight, the headlines have come how missed him. They've gone instead to Dizzy Dean's noisier exploits or to the colorful antics of Leo the other gas house gangsters as Pepper Martin.

Last season, Medwick led the league in runs batted in, base hits and total bases, was third in the batting race, and put his name in the record books by collecting five two-baggers and 10 hits in 10 straight times at bat. In his first two-and-a-fraction years under the big tent, he's hit for a .333 average.

So far this year, he's cleaning up. He's leading the National League in batting with a .442 mark, in runs batted in, in base hits and in doubles, and is tied for the top in runs scored. In the Cards' eighteen games to date, he has failed to hit in only three, and has driven in 24 runs, an average of better than one per nine-innings.

Tied Off in Grand Style.

He found Baker Bowl, the Phillies' pint-sized ball orchard, and the giants of Claude Passeau and Pete Sivess much to his liking yesterday, and teed off for fair. When the battle was over, he had collected two homers, a pair of two-base smashes, and had driven five runs across to get the pace for a 13-3 walloping the Cards pinned on the slipping Phils.

The victory, however, failed to close the gap between the second-place gas-house gang and the league leading Pittsburg Pirates. The Bucs maintained their 3½ game edge by twice coming from behind to whip the Giants 6-5 with the hero role falling to Bill Swift's three inning hitless, runless relief twirling.

Brooklyn's Dodgers entrenched themselves firmly in the first division with a 5-1 win over the cellar-dwelling Cincinnati Reds, behind Max Butcher's five-hit flinging.

Charley Root, as usual, loaned his home run ball in the sixth inning, but by that time, Chicago Cubs had given him too great an advantage for Boston Bees to overcome, despite a pair of round-trippers by Gene Moore and Tony Cuccinello. As a result, Charley pushed across a win for Chicago.

All but one game in the American League was rained out, with the Chicago White Sox moving up to sixth place by transporting the luckless Washington Senators 13-5 in the lone tilt that escaped the weather.

GOLF FACTS & NOT THEORIES
Alan Morrison

DON'T ASK FOR MORE HANDICAP THAN YOU SHOULD HAVE!

NUMBER 1221

It seems a player should not have to be warned about asking a big handicap, but many golfers have a funny notion about the game. They figure that the main idea is to beat the other fellow, and obviously a nice big handicap is an advantage to start with. This explains the many high tee wrangles in trying to get arrange a match.

The spirit of rivalry does add to the interest in the game, provided players do not lose sight of the main object, which is to master yourself. In fact, no player ever improved another without first having beaten himself. Of course there are players who don't mind betting their opponents by means of a generous handicap. It means that the fellow receiving the odds can play badly and still win.

This is not my idea of sportsmanship and I doubt if there is much satisfaction in such a victory. I believe that all players are entitled to such an arrangement, as will set them to play without too much pressure, but there is such a thing as having it too easy, and this leads to fooling yourself.

LOUIS OBSERVES 23RD BIRTHDAY

Brown Bomber Has Earned $758,000 by His Ring Work

Kenosha, Wis., May 13 (AP)—Joe Louis observed his 23rd birthday today, cheerful over the prospect of increasing his ring earnings to $1,000,000 by the time he fights James J. Braddock for the world's heavyweight championship.

There was no celebration in the negro challenger's training camp, aside from a little dinner for his camp attendants tonight. Bill Bottoms, his cook, promised to bake a cake with 23 flickering candles and give him plenty of his favorite dish—fried chicken.

Since the Brown Bomber quit working for $5 a day in a Detroit automobile plant three years ago he has amassed the amazing total of $758,000 from his engagements in the ring.

Out of this total Louis has saved and invested $250,000. He built a home for his mother in Detroit and purchased a six-flat apartment building for himself on Indiana Michigan Boulevard in Chicago. He also is paying for a $200,000 annuity.

Dad: MAKE YOUR SON THIS Sporting Offer

and he will be sure to pass his EXAMS

SAY to him:—"Son, I know you want a C.C.M. Bicycle. I was going to reward you with one if you passed your mid-summer exams. But I'm going to be a good sport and buy you one right away so that you'll have all the extra time between now and midsummer to enjoy it. But I'll expect you to prove you're a good sport, too, by studying hard and passing with good marks. If you fail we will have to take the bicycle back to the dealer."

The C.C.M. Company and the C.C.M. dealer will back you up in this offer, dad. They will allow you the full price you paid for the C.C.M., if your boy (or your girl) fails to pass at midsummer. (Claim must be made within one week of the announcement of the term's results.) But he will not let you down. When your boy says he will do a thing, he will do it.

This year's C.C.M.'s set the pace in style, beauty and easy running. With working parts of specially hardened steel, machined to hair-line accuracy, they run with marvelous quietness and smoothness. To pedal a C.C.M. requires little effort, and the free-running C.C.M. New-rules Coaster brake enables a rider to frequently coast long distances without any foot-work.

All models have seamless tubular steel frames; plated or enamelled steel rims; rustless steel spokes; bright pure chromium plated over a 20-year nickel foundation; Dunlop Fort-or Imperial Tires; and other C.C.M. features. For quality and value a C.C.M. is still the big bicycle buy of 1937.

Canadians Scan Calmly Page of Empire History Written Coronation Day

Dominion Played Her Part In Ceremonies in London

SPLENDID WEATHER

Work Suspended at Ontario Reformatory at Guelph

By The Canadian Press

Canadians paused today to scan more calmly the page of empire history they helped to write in the crowning of a King. With pleasure and satisfaction they looked back to yesterday's coronation of George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

Among the brightest gems in the British diadem of Nations, Canada had played her part. In London a distinguished Canadian Company headed by Prime Minister Mackenzie King represented formally the Dominion. Canada's Royal Canadian Mounted Police added their bit to the colorful pageant.

At home were evoked demonstrations of loyalty seldom equalled. Canadians, back at their everyday tasks again, still long remember the events of Coronation Day. Generations to come will view the symbolic trees that were planted, will hear of the great military displays and new Empire talked to the world by radio on his Coronation Day.

In his coronation message the King dedicated his reign to the cause of world peace and progress and Canadians thrilled particularly as he said, "our Dominions are now free and equal partners with this ancient kingdom."

King of Canada

George VI became, in name as well as in fact, King of Canada by the coronation oath he took and thousands there—and all down to listen to the historic ceremony that crowned him. At huge gatherings in large cities Canadians demonstrated their affection for the new King and Elizabeth, his Queen. Such ceremonies as Parliaments were no less fervent though on smaller scale.

Close to 100,000 persons were estimated to have witnessed or taken part in the Toronto celebration as Ontario's capital sports its gayest dress. At Ottawa 50,000 were packed before the parliament buildings to hear Lord Tweedsmuir sound the key note of Canadian observance, reiterating the Briton's love of freedom, peace and order.

Impressive Silence

In Montreal, as in Toronto, an impressive silence marked the celebrations at International Baseball League games paused to listen to the King's address through public address systems. International flavor was given festivities at many border points as American visitors flocked to Canada for the holiday.

Ontario staged an unofficial coronation stork derby, Windsor, Ont., led with 26 babies born. At a Toronto mother decided to call the girl that arrived five minutes after midnight Audrey Elizabeth, in honor of the Queen. Twins were born to Calgary suburbanites and the boy will be called George, the girl, Elizabeth.

As in London, the weather man played tricks in many parts of Canada. Ontario seemed the hardest hit with night programs rained out in Toronto, Windsor and Galt. Parades continued in the rain at many centres, while in others celebrants took their programs indoors.

The sun smiled on Eastern Canada and its most western province, Vancouver had a pestering of rain, but brilliant Coronation observances were unaffected. Albertans were glad to see rainfall over their wheatlands and showers failed to mar their celebrations.

Dedicate Totem Pole

Representatives of 18 Indian tribes along the British Columbia coast gathered in the Vancouver Island village of Albert Bay for one of the most unusual demonstrations. They wore ancient tribal costumes and donned war paint to pay homage to "the Great White Father across the big water." Outside Montreal, at the Caughnawaga Reserve, a tribe of eastern Canadian Indians joined their Chief Polstog Tahe in the dedication of a totem pole "which never shall come down."

The crackle of rifle fire sounded over the Maritimes, but it was the joyous sound of a Feu-De-Joie—fire of joy. Nova Scotia school children heard read the Governor-General's message and received Coronation medals. Halifax, St. John and Charlottetown were thronged for the biggest and best celebrations since the Armistice.

Premier Pattullo of British Columbia used an airplane to attend ceremonies in his coast province's three principal cities—Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria. Residents of Coronation, Alta., sent a message of loyalty to the King and Queen. Winnipeg, where the Lieutenant-Governor read Manitoba's message of loyalty, listened to a massed choir of school children.

Beacons Lighted

Premier Aberhart and other notables attended Edmonton's festivities, while at Calgary, Alta., the foothill city's greatest peace-time military parade was staged. Private Peter Robertson, C.V., killed at Passchendaele, was remembered at Medicine Hat, Alta., where a public park was dedicated in his honor.

From coast to coast flamed the Boy Scouts beacons, touched off at strategic places from Halifax to the Pacific coast. Typical, perhaps, was the ceremony at Baden Hills near Kitchener, Ont. It had rained in the afternoon, but the North Waterloo Scouts used their woodcraft to light their beacon.

At dusk 21 rockets shot skyward in a royal salute, 1,500 voices sounded in "God Save The King" and as the fire burned to a dull glow, the Scouts stood at attention, sang the National Anthem and cheered to the echo their new King and Queen.

Speaking at St. Thomas, Premier Hepburn recalled that in the three years he had served as premier he had taken the oath of allegiance to three different sovereigns. The King had ascended the throne when the world was in a troubled state with rumors of pending wars.

"We trust and feel the ideals of peace, thus must of necessity be inculcated in the mind of our new King by association with his late father, will help him to become an influence for peace throughout the whole world," the premier said.

Work Suspended.

Work was suspended for prisoners at the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph where Dr. J. D. Hoslip, superintendent, said all "behaved perfectly". The men spent the day quietly in dormitories and cells.

As a parade of gaily decorated floats wound down the main street of Sioux Lookout, airplanes manoeuvred above the northwestern Ontario town, fireworks ended the festivities at night and despite a cold wind and a touch of snow most of the town's population turned out.

Panic-stricken when a street car caught on fire at Toronto, 200 women were injured when they smashed their way out of windows. One was taken to hospital. A child in the city's west end touched off 4600 worth of fireworks and knocked the nearby residents out in unheralded program.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma and Pud&Simkins was sitting on his front steps last night and arguing, and I said, Here comes Reddy Merfy, let's insult him without actally giving a excuse to get mad.

O, how? Puds said, and I said, I'll show you.

And Reddy came up and sat down as if he thawt he owned the steps and was boss of everybody in the neighborhood and it isn't worth it then, and I said, Hay Puds, I know a speckled onion....covered with moth bites, but I didn't mean Reddy Merfy.

Hay, who said you did, what's all this, what's all that? Reddy said, and I said, What's a matter, I said I didn't mean you, that's a compliment.

Then keep it.to yourself or you'll be complimenting people through bandages in a hospitle, Reddy Merfy said.

Puds Simkins not saying anything, and I said, woo Puds, how do you know, I mean outside of Reddy Merfy?

O, I dont know, Puds said kind of nervius, and I said, Riley smokes you must know somebody else, is Reddy the only guy in the world you know?

And I gave him a double dare look and he said, Well, I know a guy with 7 times as many freckles as Reddy, they call him the freckle wonder of the world, and of course it couldn't be Reddy, I

Making it as mild as he could think of, and Reddy said, Hay, look at here, hay!

I said it couldn't be you dont you know flattery when you hear it? Puds said, and Reddy said, I know flattery a guy's nose against his face, and you'll be the guy in a minute, and you too, and I think maybe I'll cook you anyways just for good luck.

With just then the other fellows came up and we started a game of cops and rackateers, making me and Puds feel lucky.

W. M. Harrison Says He Will Never Tire of Telling of Splendor

DAVID FORGOTTEN

(The following story of the impact of the coronation ceremony upon an American newspaperman was written for the Associated Press by Walter M. Harrison, managing editor of two newspapers in Oklahoma City, Okla.)

London, May 13—(AP)—Bring a pack of cards to life, animate Cinderella, wave a magic wand over Chaucer and multiply Hollywood's most fabulous pharisaey a hundredfold. Then you might approach the coronation.

Too many Americans have the idea a coronation is the greatest ramp in the world, devised by tradesmen to hoist prices on hold-over goods.

On our side the deep, religious importance of the Westminster Abbey ceremonies is given too little consideration.

Over there the talk is about the gold coach and the weight of the diamonds in the crown. They wonder whether the ermine is real. They want to know what it costs and they have made up their minds beforehand it isn't worth it.

When I heard Aldous Huxley say in New York a fortnight ago he was getting away from London because the coronation would ruin London and the whole racket would bore him stiff, I really felt somewhat ashamed and decided to come.

Never Tire of Repeating

Back in my hotel last night, after a day devoted to witnessing the world's most magnificent procession, I think I shall never tire of telling my grandchildren about seeing a golden page in history made in London May 12. The moving picture camera made on the retina of my eye by the story of the ages cannot be taken from me.

It amazed me that "David", Duke of Windsor, disappeared so completely from the picture.

During a week in town I heard men and women of all ranks and station deplore the abdication and speak in terms of deep affection of the King who renounced his throne.

But so completely do these British accept things as they are that as this is written there has been not a single report of a "Burnah for David" anywhere along the circuit of the magnificent procession.

If I get the feeling of the natives correctly, he chose to drop out and the home folks helped him leave the stage entirely to a younger brother.

Baldwin Heartily Received

To me this historic day was a jumble of bodays, bobsails, chairs, forage caps, dismal tricornes, golden cochins, fields of bayonets, jewels and armour, and aching backs, sore feet and rain.

Stanley Baldwin, retiring Prime Minister, got the biggest ovation among the dignitaries as the procession passed Downing Street where my stand was located.

Down in Trafalgar Square they sang "He's a jolly good fellow" when his coach rolled by.

Queen Mary with charming little Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose. The Queen Mother was literally regal. Those two dainty girls the while seemed to be having the lark of their lives.

Canada's Prime Minister, W. L. Mackenzie King, seemed almost to be cheered as Baldwin in our sector.

King George must have been done in by his terrific day.

AT THE BELLE

Whschell-Bernie Feud a Riot in New Musical Hit

Today's flash from the motion picture front is a good-news flash, for "Wake Up and Live," the film-

nical featuring Walter Winchell Ben Bernie and Alice Faye which opened yesterday at the Belle Theatre, is by all odds the sweetest, hottest, most glamorous musical ever made by Twentieth Century-Fox, the studio which also turned out "On the Avenue," "Cross Is a Million," and "Sing, Baby Sing."

A sweetest of a show, as Mrs. Winchell's boy Walter might put it, "Wake UP and Live" carries the famed Winchell-Bernie feud to new heights of merriment, with your News Correspondent and the Old Maestro engaged in a furious vendetta in the midst of one of the most eye-filling musicals of the year.

In addition to the spectacle of Winchell and Bernie feuding face-to-face, "Wake Up and Live" offers Alice Faye, singing, dancing and acting her way to new laurels; Patsy Kelly, Ned Sparks and Jack Haley piling up the laughs; and nine swingsational new song hits by Gordon and Revel, the tops in Hollywood tunesmiths.

Against the hilarious background of L'Affaire Winchell-Bernie, "Wake Up and Live" tells the story of a timid vaudeville performer, Jack Haley, who muffs his big radio opportunity when, at an audition, he gets "mike fright" and faints. His partner, Grace Bradley, turns upon deserts him for Walter Catlett an agent who hooks her into a night club.

Through the influence of his sister, Patsy Kelly, who is Winchell's "Girl Friday" Haley gets a job as a uniformed guide at Radio Centre. There he follows the artists around sells an occasional "gag" to Ben Bernie, and meets Alice Faye, the "Wake Up and Live Girl" of radio who tries to help him overcome his mike fright.

Listening to Bernie's program one night, Haley is inspired by the music, steps to a microphone in a deserted control room, and sings Unknown to him, the song is broadcast, and a flood of fan mail deluges the station.

No one, however, knows the "Phantom Troubadour" and Haley even joins in the search during which Bernie attempts to pass off the sensation as something of his own, and tries to put over a voice impersonation as the Phantom on his next program, but Winchell exposes the hoax. The rivalry between Winchell and Bernie becomes even hotter as each strives to capture the Phantom for his program.

Alice Faye, discovers by accident that Haley is the Phantom, but he is shanghaied by Catlett and Grace Bradley, who have guessed his identity. A whirlwind climax winding up in Bernie's night club, where Winchell in a rapid-fire broadcast, announces the best moments of the finale over the air as they occur.

A tuneful picture, "Wake Up and Live" is given melodious aid by Gordon and Revel, who turned out nine smash hits for the film: "Never In a Million Years," "It's Swell of You," "I'm Bubbling Over," "There's a Tall in My Life," "Bernie's Love Song," "Oh But I'm Happy," "I Love You Too Much, Muchacha, "Red Seal Mail" and "Bernie's Love Song."

An excellent array of featurettes procede the feature attraction.

The entire program will be repeated again tonight and Friday matinee and evening. By all means place "Wake Up and Live" on your "must" see list.

DAILY SHORT STORY

A David of the Window Sills

By Joseph Appelgate

Hans, the window cleaner, had the nick of a grimly and the features of a bruiser. His lumbering gait was that of a trained bear rather than an agile man as at home as a pigeon upon a window sill forty stories above Broadway. He was as gentle as a Great Dane and as trustful as a child.

No thought ever entered his mind connecting his pretty, little wife with the frequent visits of Ole Anderson and his friend.

It was Hans who brought the revelation to Hilda that Ole was in love with her; but Hans remained unaware of it. On this night Hans returned home in a rage. A catch on his life belt had broken. For one horrible moment he had started falling. Then the other end of the life belt did its work and held him, legs dangling. His cries, heard by office workers brought about his rescue.

He strode out of the dining room and slammed the door behind him. Hilda, shuddered. She visualized it all. The snap of the catch, the fall, the split second of indescribable horror, the heroic guard pin holding fast!

She sobbed and made a cuddling gesture toward Ole. In a second his arms were about her and presently she was smiling her thanks through her tears. And Ole, forgetting much about women but little about this woman, held and kissed her fiercely upon her upturned, cherry-ripe lips!

Hilda was too astonished to struggle, too fond of her husband's friend to rebuke him. But she was guiltily aware that these kisses were different. When the door of the bedroom opened and Hans entered to find her in Ole's arms.

"She fainted. She is sick." Ole said, bending over her as she quickwittedly feigned unconsciousness.

Hans lifted her tenderly in his great arms and bore her into the bedroom crooning to her with a sound that suggested the purring of a lion.

"Would you marry me if Hans—if Hans—if you were a widow?" Ole asked one night just before Hans came home.

She shuddered. "Don't speak of such things. I don't want Hans dead."

The next morning Ole was at work on the fifteen story iron which Hans had tumbled. Soon his partner saw Hans take hold of the guard pins on the sill where Hans was due to dork within an hour. He looked at his watch. Three o'clock. He would knock, off work and wait. The superintendent would excuse him if he reported he was dizzy. Then he would go to the street and wait until the time when Hans—

Ole received his excuse and wandered in nearby streets thinking how well he had done his work, how certainly the afternoon shadows would make unlikely the discovery of the weakened pins. He looked again at his watch. It was now four. Four o'clock! It must have happened. As he approached the corner he could see the open top of an ambulance above a dense crowd gathered about something on the avement.

A man was speaking. "I was standing right here when it happened. I saw a shadow and dodged. I thought it was a newspaper falling. And he crashed here!" The man had repeated the story twenty times.

Ole turned back. The way was clear now. He would go to Hilda right away, to be there when the news reached her.

Hilda opened the door to his ring. But when he kissed her he thought that she shrank from his embrace.

Suddenly there came a knock at the door. It galvanized him into instant action. He knew it would be a policeman—he flung open the door. Hans stepped over the threshold!

"I heard your voices so I didn't get out the key", he said, kissing Hilda. "How are you, Ole? You quit early, hey? Well, it was a bad day. A poor fellow on the new building opposite dropped from the thirtieth story. An iron worker." A pause. Suddenly he embraced Hilda again and kissed her tenderly. "It might have been me, Hilda. You know what I found, you two people? I'll tell you. I found that both of the guard pins had been filed almost through on the window sill! I was to work on just before quitting time. And if I could get the man who did that—"

He held up that hairy paw and as it worked concavely Ole remembered a hand he had seen in an advertisement in the subway train. That hand was used to illustrate the futility of criminal living!

15-YEAR-OLD MURDER CASE REOPENED

Authorities at Los Angeles have since again reopened the 15-year-old mystery of the murder of William Desmond Taylor, Hollywood film director, who was shot in the back in 1922. Two of the most important witnesses appearing before a county grand jury, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby and her daughter, screen star Mary Miles Minter, sweetheart of the murdered man, are shown above as they appeared in court. It was the veiled statements of Mrs. Margaret Fillmore, another daughter of Mrs. Shelby, in a deposition made recently as part of a civil suit between her and her mother that supplied the spark which started the investigation. During the opening sessions of the investigation, two officers were sent to Santa Barbara, in search of a pearl-handled revolver which Mrs. Shelby admitted owning at the time of the murder.

TARZAN'S QUEST

As Tarzan dropped down the lion stopped in his tracks, eyeing the intruder with displeasure. The beast growled, then advanced again. From the cavity of Tarzan's mighty chest rolled savage growls, and he moved slowly forward to meet his antagonist. Again the carnivore halted, and glanced quickly from side to side. He snarled, wheeled, and walked contemptuously away. The Jungle Lord had outbluffed the beast. Now Tarzan turned to the amazed man who sat on the ground, anxious to question him about Jane.

"But your Jane, in the hands of the Kavuru, was beyond immediate aid. She knew she was not at last he put her down. Jane glanced quickly about strong enough to escape from her captor by force; her. The Kavuru apparently anticipated her purher only strategy. "Put me down," she urged. 'pose. He talked his spear. "Do not try to escape," he warned. "If you do, Ogdi may have to kill you!"

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 13—(AP)—Fresh labor difficulties in steel and motor centres today kicked the props from under the stock market.

Leading issues slumped 1 to 3 points generally with a few of much more in dealings that occasionally put the ticker tape behind. Numerous new lows for the year or longer were posted.

Industrials and Utilities led the fast retreat. Rails held fairly well first encountered the rebels.

for a time, but they eventually met selling pressure. There were one or two attempts to rally the list. Volume dwindled and renewed declines put prices around their lowest levels near the final hour.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

(Close)

Toronto, May 13—(CP)— Under the influence of a weaker Wall Street market and uncertainty regarding the early outlook for commodity prices, the Toronto market worked lower today on a moderate amount of selling. Abitibi Common led the industrials downward, dropping about three points while weakness was general in the utility, food, steel, beverage and building shares. The metals trailed along, both golds and base metals posting losses generally. Oil issues, both senior and western listings, displayed more firmness than other groups but they nevertheless posted more losses than gains.

After holdings a gain through most of the day, Abitibi Pfd. followed the junior issue to lower levels, losing about two points. Great Lakes Paper Common weakened about a point and pulp declines were turned in by John Lang, Massey-Harris Pfd. Mercury Mills Pfd., Steel of Canada Pfd., Consolidated Bex, United Fuel Pfd. and Power Corporation. Fractional declines were boarded for Consolidated Bakeries, Alberta Grain Pfd., National Grocers and Weston. Fanny Farmer was off about 1 3-8.

All the distillery stocks, the Walkers issues, Distillers-Seagrams and Industrial Alcohol A, worked lower, changes in the banks were on the down side and losses in the building group reached 2-4 for Building Products and Canada Cement and a half point for Gypsum.

Senior oils limited their losses to 1-4 point, British American and Imperial held unchanged.

In the base metals, Hudson Bay and Nickel weakened a point or more and the close was down for Falconbridge, Aldermac, Jack Walte, Sherritt, Sudbury Basin and Ventures.

BRITISH SOLDIERS KILLED ON FRONTIER

Simla, India, May 13 (C.P-Havas) Three British soldiers, including a native officer, were killed and nine wounded in an engagement Tuesday with troops of the revolting Fakir of Ipi on the northwest frontier, according to reports reaching here today.

The rebels fled to the mountains, leaving numerous dead and wounded behind, when a British brigade under Donald, aided by tanks, carried out a flanking movement as it came to the aid of the British force, also from Donalli, which had

FISHER PLANT IS SHUT DOWN

Strike Called to Protest Lay-offs And "Speed-up'

Cleveland, May 13 (AP)—General Motors' Fisher Body Plant here was shut down today by a sit-down strike affecting between 6,000 and 7,000 employees, Louis Splisak, President of the Fisher Body local of the United Auto Workers of America said the strike was called to protest layoffs and what he called a "speed-up."

"Fourteen men in one department have put the whole plant out of operation," said Lincoln R. Scalf, General Manager.

"The management will follow its usual policy in this matter and won't talk to men who are sitting down at their jobs. So far there has been no move on the part of the union to negotiate the issues involved. The management is willing to do so as long as the men are willing to work."

Splisak said the union stopped all operations at the plant "following repeated discrimination against the strongly organized local Fisher Body Plant by needless layoffs and unfair use of the speed-up."

"Starting in one department where skilled workers keep the cut, speeding up the job and causing several men to be thrown out of work, the men stopped work until the matter could be adjusted."

FAITH IN SYSTEM

confounded. The next time you hear a rumor that the King is frail of health loyally and truthfully deny it . . . the Royal Family yesterday came into the sun of happier days again and the public showed their pleasure in it."

"Steeples rocked with a frolic of bells and happiness was in the air," said the Telegraph. "Mingled with the happiness was sentiment and patriotic emotion, expectant and responsive to a constantly awakening touch.

"Eloquent of much was the presence in the procession of marching men from far distant lands, proudly wearing the uniform of the King Contingents were there from Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, young nations consecrated to splendid destiny.

Police Confirmed.

"Outside observers keep trying to weigh the exact significance of it all in scales of their own. We who have for over two tables of weights and measures prefer not to place such impondera bles in the balance before capacity upon necessity compels.

"This has been the first Coronation since the Statute of Westminster and it confirms our policy."

"As we have said before," declared the News-Chronicle, "the British people, on occasions such as this or the jubilee of two years ago, by celebrating their King are by transference celebrating themselves. As a people we have shown an unstable world remarkable stability."

British System Vindicated.

The Daily Herald, strong Labor organ, found the demonstrations overwhelming vindication of the British system of government.

"There are national demonstrations of triumph of one creed over all others, or the suppression of all differences of view and conscience, but they are demonstrations of government, whereas yesterday's was the demonstration of a people. . . . The King is neither a dictator nor a party man. He is a constitutional king in a parliamentary democracy and yesterday was a celebration of that democracy by all people who, irrespective of party, mean to honour its rules."

Both the Western Mail of Cardiff and the Manchester Guardian were impressed by the fact the service and procession were limited to the corners of the empire.

"Thanks to wireless and the sagacity of our statesmen," said the Western Mail, "the Dominions are no longer relegated to the role of obscure and remote country cousins. . . . The effect must inevitably be momentous and far reaching."

flags, made a lane for the limousine. The bobbies, standing at 15-yard intervals, could not restrain the crowd's enthusiasm.

Hurriedly lettered banners, inscribed "the Leather Lane Traders greet their Majesties," and "God Bless the King and Queen," blossom across the roadway.

When the procession emerged from Leather Lane, the struggling police lines had to push back wide enough for the automobile.

All over the Lamble route their Majesties chose, it was the same—a living wall of cheering humanity.

Princesses Hold Away.

At breakfast this morning, the little Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret held away at the Royal table, gaily comparing their impressions of yesterday's Coronation, the biggest "party" of their lives.

Their King and Queen awoke later than usual, refreshed from the long strain of the ceremonies. Their first thought was for Queen Mary, whom they telephoned at once. They also conversed with Queen Maud of Norway, who is staying with the Queen Mother at Marlborough House.

After breakfasting with their children their Majesties spent some time going over some of the many loyal and congratulatory telegrams from all parts of the world. Secretaries were busy reading and assorting a pile of more than 1,000 of them.

At the gates of Buckingham Palace, the Welsh Guard this morning made way for a contingent of troops from South Africa, smartly dressed in grey-green uniforms and colonial helmets.

AAJMAA JUNIORS SPRING SURPRISE ON SARGENT LOCK

Win Opening Game From Last Year's Title Holders by 12-5

DRACUP IN FORM

Winners Score Nine of Their Total in First Two Frames

With true opening day traditions and added with a Coronation colorful holiday crowd, the Belleville Softball Association was officially opened at the Coleman Plats by His Worship Mayor Arnold yesterday afternoon following which the Aajmaa Juniors won the initial game of the league schedule, taking the Belleville Bell-Sargents into camp by the score of 11 to 5. Mayor Arnott in his softball inaugural called upon the individual players to play the game as true Britishers and for the game's sake. The subsequent ceremonies included the throwing of the first ball, with Mayor Arnott as pitcher, Frederick Bill catching, and Harry Rollins, local convener of the C.O.A.S.A. performing the catching duties.

Capitalizing on the wildness of Eddie Schreiber and making their hits count into early-game runs, the Aajmaa juniors garnered nine runs in the first two frames to coast in to a 12 to 5 victory over the gaudy-clothed Bellerville Sargent team. Harold Dracup was on the hilltop for the junior kids and hurled steady ball, limiting the "lock-snakers" to four singles and a triple, by drawing the line. Dracup struck out an even ten, but in moments of wildness issued six passes via the four ball route. Due to errors and wildness Schrieder, on the mound for the Bell-Sarges found himself in early difficulties, but later the "lockmakers" settled away to play a better brand of ball. Schreider whiffed six and walked four, all in the first two frames, incidentally.

Aajmaa Leads Attack

Stan Amo led the Aajmaa kids at bat with two mighty triples and a double, Cooper hit three base clout and a single followed while Cooper, Rowbotham, Westfall and Dracup slashed singles that counted. Freddie McGuire, with a brace of singles, and brother Jimmie with a mighty triple, that saw him out on the plate trying to stretch it into the big output wielders for the Bell-Sargents, Robinson, Hughes and McMartin getting credit to bring their quota to six safeties.

A single, double, triple and a walk netted Aajmaa five runs runs in the initial frame, while they added five more on two hits, three walks that saw a couple of errors squeezed across the plate. Amo's triple counting a brace of runs in the seventh. Two runs in the initial frame, one each in the third, sixth and seventh saw the Bell-Sargent's rallies terminated.

Manchild found in some sparkling efforts around shortstop for the junior kids, while the ruddiness made numerous sensational running catches for Manager Red Townsend's team-aged kids. The McGuire boys clicked splendidly around the keystone sack for the losers, making many fine plays. The second game scheduled for yesterday, between the London Lunch and Corbitts Hardware at Point Anne, was rained out and will be played in the cement village on Friday night while the Claco-Percival Store game was postponed until Saturday at Coleman Plats.

The line-ups:

Belleville Sargents—McMartin, cf; Barriage 3b; Parraro and Hughes rf; Cole lb; Robinson c; F. McGuire ss; J. McGuire 2b; Schmark and Hasbel lf; and Schreider p.

Aajmaa Juniors—Adams 2b; Goyer cf; Rowbotham c; Cooper lf; Cooper 2b; Amo lf; Manchild ss; Westfall rf and Dracup p.

Score by innings:

	H	E
Bell-Sargent	201 001 100—5	6 2
Aajmaa Jrs.	440 001 20x—11	9 3

Aajmaa Juniors—Adams 3b; Goyer 1base.

FINICKY APPETITES OFTEN ONE RESULT OF CONSTIPATION

When nothing tastes right, and you don't eat as you should, then trouble may be common constipation. Poor appetite is one of its symptoms. Others are headaches, listlessness and sallow complexion.

Constipation is usually due to "low-bulk" meals. Serve your family Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—a concentrated source of "bulk."

Within the body, this food absorbs faster its weight in water, and gently exercises and sponges out the system. How much better than taking pills and drugs!

ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Three times daily, for severe cases. Serve in a cereal with milk or cream, or cook into appetizing muffins, bread, etc.

Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with

Ken J. Colling

The weatherman in general was favorable to all yesterday. Everything went off to the King's taste, which was as should be on Coronation Day, although a few of the twilight sporting events were rained out, but in general it was a gala day for all. Men's softball assumed the spotlight over on the Coleman Plats yesterday afternoon and also provided a real surprise and a fine notable threat loomed on the local softball horizon in the form of "Red" Townsend's Aajmaa Club juniors who gave the 1936 City League titlists, the Belleville Sargents a sound 12 to 5 pounding.

Mayor "Dick" Arnott was on hand and officially opened the softball season. After assuring the softball moguls that their new diamond would be finished as soon as possible, Mayor Arnott spoke briefly to the players and large gallery. "It is a pleasure to be here to be with you and officially open the local softball season. Belleville has always been noted for its good sportsmanship and is the constituting of British citizenship," reminded His Worship and the game was on.

Apparently the local softball clubs did not forget that was Coronation year. The Bell-Sargents appeared in brilliant white jerseys, trimmed with red and blue stripes, while the London Lunch team, of Point Anne, also sport the lyin color of red, white and blue, but the colors are more evenly divided. Even Red Townsend's Aajmaa juniors trotted out in new livery, their jerseys being gold and purple.

Young Harold Dracup was in rare hurling form yesterday, the local junior hurling one hit ball until the sixth, he was given some splendid support, however. Eddie Schreider was pitching shakily, issuing four walks and yielding five hits for a total of nine runs in the first two frames. This brought forward Dracup for the "Lock-makers" to open and although they played the juniors to a tie after the second frame, the Townsend-led kids hung on doggedly and won the opening game. Dracup was just too good for the 1936 city championship juniors. Although he weakened slightly in the seventh, the kid came back to retire the opposition in order the next two frames.

The Corbin at Point Anne game was rained out last night while the Percival-Claco game was postponed until Saturday. The former game will be played in the Cement village Friday evening. Judging from the relative strength of the local softball clubs the fans should be treated to some hard fought games, but surely if the members of the game are interested in the welfare of the patrons, they will endeavor to provide some kind of seating facilities for the customers at future softball games.

Only three craft owners availed themselves of the Coronation punt races, sponsored by the Belleville Yacht Club yesterday. Ordinarily the boat owners were not ready for the pre-season opening, although a number of disinterested skippers were seen cruising their craft around the bay, but taking no part in the special races of the day. The three boats to come up to the starter's line yesterday were Maurice Callaghan's "After You If", Duke Smith's "Joke" and Ron Salisbury's new, the "Presto". Just after crossing the starting line the "After You" was forced out of the race with serious damaged rigging, there being a heavy wind in progress. The "Joke" went on to win the two-craft race, completing the two-lap course in 43 minutes. The "Presto" seems to have wintered well and gave a splendid race. Two new daughts were noticed cruising around which may mean that dinghy racing will be revived on the Bay of Quinte this summer.

The final rounds of the Coronation tennis handicaps were rained out at the Country Club yesterday, although generally speaking old Jupiter Pluvius was incredibly on his good behavior for the better part of Coronation Day.

Although it is not meant to set a precedent, the tri-weekly dance at the arena will be advanced 24 hours on Tuesday next in order to permit professional wrestling on that night. Promoter Jack Corcoran, true to his previous announcements, is bringing together in the local ring many new faces of the rassling realm. Next week two or three new faces will be introduced, Gino Garibaldi, the pugnacious Italian; Bill Fisher, the Brooklyn college graduate and one other, who meets Al Dunlop in the opening bout. Incidentally the dance gardens at the Belleville Arena have been completely renovated and a modern setting included. It opens for the public on Saturday night with comfortable chesterfield suites et al.

The public school scholars have been fully employed with lacrosse sticks and we expect George Loughlin, to release the school season lacrosse schedule in the near future, possibly by Saturday, then we can expect to see the innovations of bantam lacrosse early next week. Teams representing Queen Elizabeth, Queen Alexandra and Queen Mary Schools, St. Michael's Academy, Point Anne and the bantams of the Belleville Collegiate are included in the set-up.

Down in Kingston the Frontenacs have requested that automobiles be permitted to cross the race track and circle the playing field during the progress of C.O.B.L. games this summer. The Limestone City Parks Commission would not comment upon the suggestion. Why the Pony management need motor cars inside the playing field with two big stands to fill, we are at a loss to know. If the Kingston club can fill the first and second base bleachers with patrons each game, they need little worry about finances.

Herb Ralph, who manages the Waterloo Riverside baseball team is anxious to get an exhibition game with Twig Woodley's pets on Victoria Day, but alas the local juniors open their Senth Hastings schedule that day. Incidentally Manager Ralph says—"no softball for my players".

Mel Ernie McNeeley last night and he led us to believe the Flyers would have a much better hockey team in 1938, than in '37. "How's your R. C. A. F. lacrosse team progressing?" we asked Ern. "Well, we'll have a team but they haven't all been out to practice yet," added Ernie as he started only two or three of the Flyers' hockey team would be playing lacrosse.

TENNIS

Rain brought to an abrupt halt the completion of the Coronation handicap tennis tournament played by the Bay of Quinte Country Tennis Club on their newly renovated courts yesterday. The culmination play was keenly contested with eight first entries and 16 entries in the men's group competing. Both groups advanced to the final playoffs when rain intervened, it being announced by President Eli Wickerson, that the finals would be played at a later date.

In the ladies' section of the Coronation handicap tournament of the Bay of Quinte Country Tennis Club in the first round, Jean Holland eliminated Edna McCreary; Grace McCreary beat Jean Chichester; Jean Stobie defeated Mrs. Bone and Evelyn Jack won over Kay Hinchey. In the semi-final round, Grace McCreary won over Jean Holland and Evelyn Jack eliminated Jean Stobie. The finals between Miss C. McCreary and Miss Jack will be played over the week end.

In the men's section 16 entries faced the initial round, eight being naturally eliminated. In the second round, however, Jack Doyle beat Butler, Cole beat Edwards, Mitchell beat Andrews and Evans won over Doyle. In the semi-final round Ab Faulkner was drawn against Art Evans and Evans was playing versus Mitchell, when rain suddenly fell and brought to an abrupt conclusion the day's activities. The semi-finals and finals will be played later.

WORLD UNREST STUDIED AT EMPIRE PARLEY

'We Deplore Necessity But We Had No Choice' —Baldwin on Rearming

First Act of Conference of Premiers is to Send Loyal Message to His Majesty King George VI Who Sends Signed Appreciation

SOLUTION SEEN IN COOPERATION

Canadian Prime Minister Urges on Conference That Enduring Peace Not Possible Without Economic Appeasement

BY GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 14—(CP Cable)—Prime Minister Baldwin called the statesmen of the Empire to the council table today to examine and see what can be done about the pressing problems perplexing the world.

"It will be our task," he told the first plenary session of the Imperial Conference, "to examine the causes of present international unrest, exchange views upon them and consider whether there is any contribution which we, co-operating together, could make to their diminution or removal."

Following Baldwin as Prime Minister of the senior Dominion Mackenzie King of Canada praised the example of individual British statesmanship which provided through these conferences for quota controls and to lessen in every practicable way the barriers to international trade."

Prime Minister Joseph Lyons of Australia called for the formulation of a "consistent, unified empire policy."

"We must be prepared to play our part in ensuring the peace of the world," he declared. "We must be prepared to offer our counsel and to reinforce that counsel with our assistance.

Empire United Action For Law.

The Australian government feels that a statement should issue from this conference which will demonstrate to the rest of the world that the countries composing the British Commonwealth of Nations are prepared to act together in regard to the maintenance of law and order.'

Empire statesmen gathered not, as previously had been the custom, about the council table of historic No. 10 Downing street but in the first time in a royal palace. And as they sat in the old drawing room of St. James's their first duty was to send a loyal message to the King.

On motion of Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, seconded by Prime Minister Joseph Lyons of Australia, Prime Minister Baldwin was appointed chairman.

Present Duty is King.

Members of the conference rose as Baldwin then proposed that "the prime ministers and other representatives of the British Commonwealth of Nations, assembled in conference in London, at their first meeting and as their first official act desire to present their respectful duty to the King and offer your Majesty and her Majesty and their families their loyal devotion.

"They pray that your Majesties' reign," the resolution said, "which has been inaugurated so auspiciously for the Commonwealth celebrated two days ago, may be happy and pros-

King George Sixth Thanks Conference For Loyal Message

London, May 14 (CP) — The King, in a message signed by his own hand, replied today to the message of loyalty from the Imperial Conference.

"I sincerely thank the Prime Ministers and other representatives of the British Commonwealth of Nations," his Majesty's message read, "for the message of loyalty and devotion which they addressed to the Queen and myself on the opening of the first Imperial Conference of my reign.

"It is very fitting that the solemn ceremony of last Wednesday should be succeeded immediately by your deliberations. I shall follow them with the greatest interest in the confident hope that they will advance the happiness and prosperity of all my peoples."

George R. I.

Conference Highlights

London, May 14 (CP)—Pertinent paragraphs from today's speeches before the Imperial Conference:

The King's message to the gathering:

"It is very fitting that the solemn ceremony of last Wednesday should be succeeded immediately by your deliberations. I shall follow them with the greatest interest in the confident hope that they will advance the happiness and prosperity of all my peoples."

Stanley Baldwin:

"We are met at a time when the international situation is difficult, even threatening. . . . It will be our task to examine the causes of the present international unrest, exchange views upon them and consider whether there is any contribution which we, cooperating together, could make to their diminution or removal."

"With so many of the most powerful nations of the world expanding their armed forces, little country have decided that it is our duty to put our defences in order as a root for the security of which you know. We deplore the necessity of it but we had no choice."

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Editor, Meteorological Service of Canada

Lost atmosphere! The moon has no atmosphere. If it ever had one, it lost it. Guess that form atmosphere are lead to be so light that the speed of their molecules is never to return. The speed of a molecule depends upon its temperature and mass. It takes a speed of seven miles per second to overcome the earth's gravitational force. The earth retains its heavier gases, such as oxygen, nitrogen, carbon dioxide and water vapor, but the lighter ones, like hydrogen and helium, are lost about as quickly as they are supplied.

EIGHT MEN KILLED AS BRITISH SHIP STRIKES MINE

Floating Mine Off Spanish Coast in Thought Cause

BOWS RIPPED OPEN

14 Men Suffer Injuries, Some of Them Seriously

London, May 14 (AP)— The Admiralty officially announced today eight men were killed aboard the destroyer Hunter yesterday, when it was rocked by an explosion just off the government-held city of Almeria on the Southern Spanish Coast.

Despite insistence of Spanish Government sources at Valencia and Almeria the blast was caused by attack from "a German submarine," a floating mine laid during the non-intervention patrol duty was was understood to have been the destroyer's undoing as the cause of the disaster.

The official announcement came as the Admiralty launched an investigation at Almeria to determine what the exact cause for responsibility for what observers believed would be a stern probe.

The victims of the explosion which ripped open the destroyer's bows in mid-afternoon were three Petty Officers, four seamen and a stoker.

Fourteen other members of the crew were injured, some of them seriously, said the announcement, made after a thorough check of the ship's crew.

Twenty other members of the crew of the destroyer escaped some of them seriously, by the explosion which ripped open the Hunter's bows in mid-afternoon.

Struck Floating Mine

Dispatches from Gibraltar said the destroyer, one of Britain's newest men-of-war, was on duty in a part of the international "hands off Spain" patrol, when she struck a floating mine about four miles off the southeastern corner of Spain where it juts out into the Mediterranean.

Only three bodies had been recovered when darkness last night forced rescue workers to halt their search and the vessel was then was towed to a mole in Alberia harbor.

As soon as daylight broke the search was resumed for the bodies of the dead and for others still trapped inside the twisted forepart of the ship, it was announced.

Ships are nearly sunk into quick action as the Hunter's radio reported her plight. Within an hour of the blast's was recalled from shore leave for the mercy race, the Hunter's sister destroyer, Wrestler, and the cruiser Arethusa also steamed for the scene.

Crew Removed Quickly

The first radio calls brought the Spanish government battleship Jaime Primero and destroyer Lazaga, cruising in the vicinity, to the assistance of the Hunter, taking on the bodies.

Survivors of the complement of 134 men were removed quickly, as the destroyer seemed to be sinking, but it was later found she was in no danger.

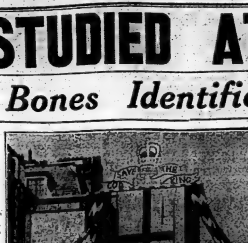
Lita Chaplin Still Has Husband Though She Sought Divorce

Judge Thinks Marriage Has Not Had Fair Trial

"HOLLYWOOD CUSTOM"



Los Angeles, May 14 (AP)—Lita Grey Chaplin Aguirre still had a husband today, despite her complaint that he "played golf, tennis, sat around the house and spent my money."

The actress, former wife of Charles Chaplin, sought a divorce from Henry Aguirre, whom she married eight months ago. She charged cruelty.

"It seems to me," said Superior Judge Charles S. Burnell, "in denying her plea yesterday, that she'll tend itself to that sort of procedure.

"It seems to me that marriage has not been given a decent trial."

MAY ANNOUNCE WEDDING PLANS NEXT MONDAY

Report Creates Impression Question of Title Has Been Settled

DUKE IN CONFERENCE

London, May 14 (CP)—Word came today from the Chateau de Candé at Monts, France, where Mrs. Wallis Warfield and the Duke of Windsor are staying, that an announcement of their wedding plans would be forthcoming Monday or Tuesday.

This created an unofficial impression the question of whether Mrs. Warfield shall be known as "Her royal highness" after the marriage has been solved. The Duke's reported insistence she be granted the royal style was said to have caused difficulty in government circles here.

If the matter has been settled there was no indication what agreement was reached.

The Duke conferred for five hours yesterday with his solicitor, A. G. Allen.

Government Still Firm.

Unofficial but usually well-informed sources said today the British government still was firm in its attitude that the proposed marriage of the Duke of Windsor to Mrs. Warfield would be unacceptable to the British people.

The dangers and the high hopes that sugar shock is really an effective medical weapon were dramatically told by a group of Bellevue Hospital, New York physicians, headed by Karl M. Bowman, M.D. At Bellevue 50 dementia praecox sufferers have been treated with sugar shock.

Each time white-clad doctors and nurses lined up at the bedside, inside them were trays containing sterilized hypodermics of glucose and adrenalin. Pat' ons, two or three hours they almost literally never took their eyes off the sugar-shocked patient.

The patient was always unconscious, sometimes seeming to sleep peacefully, at others delirious. But the danger for which they watched so carefully was collapse of his veins. That may happen without warning. His results would be almost immediate death.

Injection of glucose or adrenalin into the collapsed veins, if done quickly, will revive the patient. The insulin lowers blood sugar and glucose acts as the sugar antidote.

There have been no deaths in the fifty cases Dr. Bowman reported. The patient died several weeks afterward apparently from other causes. In 34 of the 50 the shock treatment has been completed and 15 of these are apparently recovered or improved. Eight were almost entirely unaffected.

Sugar Shocks Play with Death, Cure Lunatics

No Deaths in 50 Cases, Recoveries Reported

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Pittsburgh, May 14 (AP)—New progress in relieving insanity by a treatment which seems to play with death, the "sugar shock" produced by injecting massive doses of insulin that was discovered by the young Viennese physician, Manfred Sakel, was reported to the American Psychiatric Association's closing meeting here today.

A group of internationally known physicians, including Sakel, himself, described the treatment of a big number of striking and remarkable recoveries from dementia praecox worst and commonest form of insanity.

FILMS AVAILABLE TOPUBLIC MONDAY

Will Run For 33 Minutes And Part of Them to be in Color

London, May 14 (CP-Havas)— Coronation films running 33 minutes will be available to the public by Monday, it was announced here today.

Reports film companies had limited showings of the Coronation to nine-minute, 1,000-foot reels were scouted as "utterly ridiculous" by C. P. Metcalfe, president of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association.

Shots of the ceremony, now showing in British motion picture theatres, were "the longest that could be produced in 1,000-foot reels."

Metcalfe's statement was prompted by a headlined story in the London Evening Star entitled "scandal of the Coronation films" and asserting that United States was being favored over Britain by being given 20-minute showings of the films.

"The whole of the film industry realized long ago that interest in the Coronation by the English-speaking world," Metcalfe said. "Money was spent lavishly and the whole resources of the industry were pooled."

The scenes of the Abbey ceremony alone will run far longer than nine minutes, Metcalfe added, promising that a 33-minute, 3,000-foot film, one-third of it in color, would be available by Monday.

OCEAN FLIERS REACH BOSTON

Merrill And Lambie Arrive Back From London

ON WAY TO NEW YORK

Boston, May 14 (AP)—Finding a "hole" in the clouds after successfully spanning the Atlantic on a return flight from London, Dick Merrill and Jack Lambie today brought their plane down at the naval air base at Squantum, near Boston.

Merrill kept his engines warm after landing and prepared for an almost immediate take-off, with Floyd Bennett Field, New York, his final destination.

Naval officers at the base timed the pilot at 2:40 p.m. E.D.T. on his landing.

Merrill and Lambie cruised about for some time before landing, peering a rift in the low "ceiling" that would enable them to make a safe landing.

The break in the flight near Boston was unexpected, however, as reports had been received from him shortly before indicating that he was nearing New York. A strong wind at Floyd Bennett Field for the fliers.

NETTING OF CARP IS REPORTED POOR

Carp fishermen of the district now engaged in netting are reporting indifferent success in various sections of the bay and adjoining waters, in spite of the fact that the fish are plentiful this year. The poor luck is favored with ideal conditions for spawning in a marshy due to the present high levels of the water.

Since the concerted drive on them during the past year or so, the carp, brainest fish of the finship tribe, have become wise and more difficult to net year by year. Carp are not like other fish. They refuse to be caught in gill nets. When they do, experience has taught fishermen, close their gills and back out of the net slowly, explained one fisherman.

Manx Folk Want Governor Seek Man 'With Spurs to Win'

$10,000 Year Job Vacated By Sir Montague Barlow

POPULAR RULE AIM

Douglas, Isle of Man, May 14 (CP) — The Manx House of Keys, the parliament of this little Irish Sea island, cast about today for a young man—"a man with his spurs to win"—to be governor.

He would succeed Sir Montague Barlow who resigned to become Master of Pembroke College, Cambridge, his public sentiment appeared to be all against appointment of a man not approaching old age.

Too, the island legislators have signified their wish that the appointment should provide the Manx people with "practical" controls of their affairs and make it compulsory for the governor to consult a house committee on proposed administrative action.

But when the young man is located he will have a good job. The salary is $10,000 a year. Among his duties would be summoning of both houses of the island parliament and presiding over the Executive Council of the Tynwald, the annual open-air parliament at which both houses

COL. D. BARRAGAR DIES EARLY TODAY

Was Well Known as an Educationist And Military Man

AGED 77 YEARS

Ill was with sincere feelings of deep regret that citizens of Belleville learned today of the death of Lt.-Col. David Barragar, which occurred early this Friday morning at his late residence, 16 Holloway Street, after an illness of one week's duration. Col. Barragar spent several of the winter months at New Orleans, La., with his only daughter, Mrs. Lyall G. Campbell and returned to Belleville, less than a month ago.

In the passing of Col. Barragar the city of Belleville has lost a good citizen; a man of fine character and pleasing, friendly personality. He enjoyed the friendship and confidence of young and old and by citizens in general he was held in high regard. Pleasant memories of him will be retained long by the many persons who knew him well and enjoyed his friendship.

Native of P. E. County

The late David Barragar, who was in his 77th year was born in Prince Edward County, the eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barragar. He chose the teaching profession as his life's work and qualified for the duties of a teacher at the Ontario Normal College. His first school was at Zion's Hill in Thurlow Township and later he taught at Glen Miller. Forty-four years ago he came to Belleville and served as various times as principal of the Carmichael Road School and Octavia Street School. When the latter school was replaced by the new Queen Mary School, he became the first principal of the new school. He was an excellent teacher and was popular with teachers and pupils alike and occupied a high place in their esteem. In the year 1897 he resigned and took up a living retired since that time.

Organized First Cadet Corps

Col. Barragar organized the first cadet corps in Belleville and Ontario as Queen Mary School won the honors at the majority of annual inspections. Several of the Queen Mary School cadets enlisted and saw active service overseas during the Great War.

In religion he was a faithful member of Bridge Street United Church and some years ago served as a teacher in the Sunday School.

Fine Military Career

For many years Col. Barragar was prominent in military affairs in this city. He became connected with the old 15th Battalion Argyll Light Infantry when a young man and was appointed a commissioned officer on April 10th, 1900. He was major under Lt.-Col. L. W. Marsh in South Africa in 1902 and after commanding the regiment and continuing with the Militia Department from November 17th, 1915 to November 24th, 1919.

During the Great War Col. Barragar rendered excellent and valuable service as officer commanding

Flood Waters Cut Path Thru Cemetery

Fairbanks, Alaska, May 14 (AP) —Refugees crowded upper stories of cabins and hotels today as flood waters of the Chena river cut a path through a cemetery and carried away bodies of a few dead deep in some places through the streets.

The Chena and Tanana rivers are frozen each winter from about November to May. The Chena ice broke Thursday and the Tanana ice moved out Wednesday. Ice jams formed, however, the waters rose. Stores, churches, hotels, the Alaska railroad station and a hospital were flooded.

MISSING TRAPPER, AUBREY SEDORE, LAST SEEN FEB. 16

Mother of Disappeared Man Swears He Always Carried Money

KNEE CAP, ARM BONE

Constable Dymond Tells of Interview in Jail With Woodman

Positive identification of the bones found in a heavy brush near Flinton, Ont., was made as human remains by Dr. A. R. Pritchard, medico-legal expert of the Attorney General's Department, Toronto, at an inquest convened at Flinton today by Dr. J. C. Wilson of Napanee, coroner, with Frederick Ham, also of Napanee as Crown Attorney.

The evidence of six witnesses was heard before the inquest adjourned at two fifteen for lunch. It was resumed at one-thirty.

Bones Compared Before Jury.

Dr. Pritchard stated positively that the bones given to him by Provincial Police who investigated the finding was one of the right knee cap and the other a bone of an arm. The medical expert had human bones that were not burned and made a comparison before the jury of these bones and those found in the brush heap.

Evidence was also adduced to show that Aubrey Sedore, 29, had not been seen since Feb. 16, and that a brush fire had been noticed on Apr. 19 but had not been investigated until May 1. The bones were found on May 7.

Disappearance of Trapper

Provincial Constable Arthur Dymond of Madoc stated that he was first informed of the disappearance of Aubrey Sedore on May 1st, and proceeded to his home in Flinton, where he found the house locked and a cooked meal left on the table with a good supply of groceries on hand but unused. After receiving instructions he visited Robert Woodman, now being held on a vagrancy charge in Napanee County jail, as he had heard he had been removing wood from Sedore's lot and that he had been driving Sedore's automobile, and that he had been spending money in the beverage rooms Northbrook and Flinton.

Woodman Questioned

The constable stated that he had questioned Woodman as to what he made the money, and was told by him that he had cut ninety cords of wood north of Northbrook. The officer learned that Sedore had his car insured as a car for sale as late winter and Woodman had told him that it (Woodman) had purchased the car from Sedore for $185.00.

Evidence was given by Frank Lloyd and Joseph Reid as to the finding of the bruah fire and the bones, also the finding by police of a pocket knife, a piece of cloth, a belt buckle, a shoe string and a ring in the fire and which were thought to be worn by Sedore.

Robert Beatty, relative of Sedore and Mrs. Stella Beatty, Sedore.

C. OF C. DIRECTORS HEAR PLANS FOR ATTACTING TOURISTS

At the regular weekly meeting of the directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, which was held on Thursday, the president, Mr. Leo. B. Riggs, presided and the following directors were present: Messrs. F. V. Tobey, H. W. Ackerman, H. E. Fairfield, W. H. Morton, J. B. Boyce, James G. Galloway, E. F. Bermister, John McIntosh and Secretary - Manager, J. O. Herity.

Considerable routine business was transacted and Mr. H. W. Ackerman and Mr. H. E. Fairfield gave short interesting addresses giving an account of their visits to Florida during the past winter, and dealing with business conditions and the means adopted for attracting and taking care of tourist visitors.

Mr. T. D. Gallagher, an inspector of the Canadian Board of Commerce, was a guest at the meeting.

NO BUYERS FOR SQUIRREL CAGE

The old-time squirrel cage with the wheel in which the captive animal was supposed to gallop madly for its daily exercise, has long since been relegated to the ash heap and there are no present day buyers, it was learned by a rural resident yesterday who attempted vainly to peddle one in the city.

Evidently resurrected in some dusty garret, the cage drew plenty black looks and negative shrugs of the shoulders on the part of second hand store owners to whom the relic was offered for sale.

LARGE PURCHASES MADE OF CORONATION STAMPS ISSUE

Belleville's supply of the three cent Coronation issue stamps on sale this week has not been too large to satisfy the demands of local and district philatelists, it is indicated by the purchases of solid blocks of the stamps that have been made. Purchases have ranged from 1,000 stamp lots by individual dealers, down to the half dozen or so of smaller collectors.

32 BABIES BORN HERE IN APRIL

Births in the city and district again led death by a wide margin during the month of April, while applications for marriage licenses also reached a comparatively high mark it is revealed by the vital statistics compiled at city hall. During the month a total of 33 births were registered, 4 of which were male twins. Deaths reached a low registration of only 19 of which 12 were males. Twelve marriage licenses were issued.

Obituary

FRED SULLIVAN

(Detroit, Mich.)

Mr. Fred Sullivan, Detroit, Mich., passed away suddenly in that city on Thursday, May 13th. Born in Rawdon Township, he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sullivan. He had resided in Detroit for the past thirty-five years, and he was employed as a furniture salesman, and previously had lived for some time in Belleville. His wife pre-deceased him, left to mourn his passing are one son, James F. Sullivan of El Paso, Texas, and one sister, Miss Emma Sullivan of Belleville.

FRANK BLAKE
(Marmora)

Marmora. —(Special)—A well respected citizen of Marmora, Mr. Frank Blake in his sixty-seventh year, quietly passed away at his home on Wednesday evening, after a two days' illness. A former resident of Campbellford, Mr. Blake took up residence in Marmora and has been associated with his son-in-law in the grocery store, for the past seven years. His kindly manner and ever good nature has won him a host of good friends during his stay in Marmora. His wife predeceased him almost two years ago.

Surviving are one son, one daughter and four sons, Beecher of Lakefield, Lester of Frankford and Jean, Stewart and Clifford at home.

Interment will take place in Centreton Cemetery, after the services which will be held in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora.

MRS. GEORGE C. LENNOX
(Kingston)

Mrs. George C. Lennox of 404 Victoria Street, Kingston, passed away on Saturday, May 8, after a two weeks' illness. The funeral service was held at the house on Sunday at 4 p.m. The Rev. W. J. Phiddo conducted the service, assisted by the Rev. L. M. England. Interment took place on Monday in the beautiful Pontbill Cemetery at Welland. Mrs. Lennox was the daughter of the late Rev. N. H. Howard, and was born in Melrose, Ont. She was in her 70th year. Besides her husband, she leaves to mourn her loss two sons, John S. Lennox, and Thomas C. Lennox, both of Pittsfield, Mass.; also one sister, Mrs. A. Morgan of Kingston, and one brother, N. H. Howard of Calgary. Mrs. Lennox was a member of the Princess Street United Church. She was a woman of fine character, and was very much respected by all who knew her.

TWO CARS TAKEN ARE RECOVERED
Police Soon Find Both Abandoned in Thurlow

Two automobiles, apparently stolen in sequence, were recovered by Provincial Police late last night. Although W. J. Mills, Chatham Street, reported the theft of his 1936 model coach, one of the two vehicles had previously been reported by residents of that community as abandoned on the Second Concession of Thurlow. Mr. Mills' car was found in a ditch into the ditch and the right side badly damaged.

While the O.P.P. were investigating this theft a second car was taken in that neighborhood when Harry Grills' 1927 Chrysler sedan was removed from his garage on the 2nd of Thurlow. Provincial Police located this automobile, left abandoned on the concession of Thurlow, however. Both thefts are believed to have been the work of transients, who found the police too close on their trail and left all the stolen property behind in the wooded thickets under the cover of darkness.

Eleven transients stayed in the cell block at the police station last night.

Self Denial Week Starts with a Tag Day

Throughout the world this week — Self Denial Week — Salvation Army workers have taken the field in the various cities and towns in an effort to raise funds for the philanthropic work for which this organization is noted. Local Corps of the Salvation Army have designated Saturday (tomorrow) as the day of their annual appeal for donations from Belleville citizens. Taggers will be on the street from daylight until dark. Contributions are earnestly requested.

ATTENDS SON'S FUNERAL

Mrs. W. W. Bell, 8 Centre Street, has returned from Toronto where she has been attending the funeral of her son Walter Hubert Williams, teacher of the University Schools. Interment was made at Kitchener Mausoleum.

Cars Crash Along the Bank Of Trent Canal—Both Ruined

Belleville Car Saved From Going Into Canal by Large Tree

NO ONE INJURED

Trenton, Ont., May 14. (Special) —Possible tragedy was averted on the Frankford-Trenton highway three miles north of this town early today when an automobile driven by Mr. Malcolm Cook of Belleville, crashed into a large tree on the bank of the Trent Canal following a terrific impact as the car smashed into another automobile driven by Wm. Mumby, Springbrook. Following the crash the Cook-driven car careened wildly across the road, overturned into the ditch and came to rest three feet from the steep bank of the canal.

Occupants of the cars escaped with minor scratches and a shaking up. According to statement issued by Provincial Patrol Officer John Whitby of Trenton, who investigated the accident, Cook was proceeding in a southerly direction along the highway when without warning the car veered to the left and crashed into the approaching automobile, ricocheting it with a terrific force. Mumby's car was hurled into the ditch where it turned over and rested with its four wheels in the air.

Fortunately for the Cook car and its passengers; the large elm tree impeded its progress and prevented it from plunging into the waters of the Trent Canal.

Both automobiles were completely wrecked. Charges will be preferred against Cook, Officer Whitby stated following his investigation.

Graduating Nurses Feted By the Nurses' Alumnae

Dinner And Special Program is Held at Hotel Quinte

J. O. HERITY SPEAKS

The annual banquet for the graduating nurses of Belleville General Hospital arranged by the Nurses' Alumnae, a gracious feature welcoming the newcomers into the ranks of the profession, was held last evening at the Hotel Quinte and was a splendid success. The young graduates, the chief place of honor at the head table, made a lovely picture, which was further enhanced by the bouquets of flowers, and the centrepiece of a crown, setting on a mirror base. Motion. As guest speaker on the occasion, the committee in charge had pledged to have Mr. J. O. Herity who gave a very thought-provoking and interesting address.

The many guests, including nurses throughout the district, were received by officers of the Alumnae: Miss MacFarlane, president, Miss Wright, vice-president, and Miss MacIntosh, secretary. Each one present found a dainty favor at her place, a Coronation souvenir coffee spoon. Dinner music by Mr. Leslie Lennox, violinist, and Mr. Raymond Lennox, pianist, was a delightful part of the evening's program.

Following the delicious dinner, the toast to the King was proposed by Mr. Herity. Miss Barbara Farlane expressed in a happy little speech the welcome of her associates in the Alumnae to the young nurses, outlining the attributes of a perfect nurse and urging the graduates to remember that they were entering a profession which was worthy of the best in them. Miss Dorothy Osborne, a member of the graduating class, in a few, pithed, expressing appreciation for the honor that had been shown them. Approaching with timidity their new service, they would long cherish the happy memories of class life, and were indebted to their school authority. Miss Mac Macindoo for her patience and kindness, and to the nurses, and to members of the alumnae, whose encouragement and co-operation had made their tasks lighter.

Miss Ann Brown sang two solos in splendid voice, "When Love is Kind" and "Come, Mr. Piper." Mrs. Taylor Franklin presided at the piano. Miss Ann Brown also gave humorous readings "Cheering the Sick" and "Who's Afraid" gave fine characterizations.

Gives Address on Our Changing Civilization

Mr. Herity who was introduced by Mrs. Irene Benny paid a splendid tribute to the nursing profession and prefaced his address with amusing anecdotes. "Our Changing Civilization," Mr. Herity contrasted the newer outlook with those of his earlier days, finding in the story of modern invention much to commend and customs to endorse.

While many looked upon civilization as a stream flowing ever onward in one direction, it was better to think of it as a succession of waves, rising to great heights, some ebbing away to be forgotten, others leaving indelible impressions on mankind.

He outlined these various periods of civilization, and quoted the words of Dr. Raymond Fosdick: "Is man to be master of civilization he has created or is he to be its victim?" especially pertinent now when so many of the world is in the midst of confusion. Democracy, once hailed as the perfect form of government, has been superseded by dictatorship throughout much of the globe.

The speaker questioned the progress of nations such as Italy which has developed mechanics to such an extent that she has achieved the pace of 432 miles per hour but still persists such a brutal conquest of Ethiopia.

Touching on religion Mr. Herity said that the religion of the brotherhood was dominated by "Other Worldliness," but today religion gets closer to individual needs, remembering man's duty to man, as well as man's duty to God.

At the conclusion of his address, Mr. Herity was expressed the thoughts of all in a vote of appreciation to Mr. Herity, and the thanks of the guests were also tendered the artists who had assisted with the program.

The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought to a close a very happy evening.

King and Queen Present Medals to 1200 Empire Men

BY EDWIN JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 14—(AP)—An inspiring picture symbolizing the armed might of the British Empire was presented in the gardens of Buckingham Palace today as the King and Queen, aided by the Duke of Gloucester and Princess Elizabeth, decorated 1,200 men from the Dominions, India, the colonies and protectorates here for the Coronation.

It was drawn up in three sides of a square on the big lawn when Their Majesties, the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose and other members of the Royal Family came out on the palace balcony.

It was a stirring sight for the thousands who milled outside the railings of the palace grounds. The King, wearing the dark blue undress uniform of a field marshal, and the Queen in a gown of silver and tangents. Then their Majesties and the King's two brothers each took a separate rank, distributing the medals—blue, red and white.

Princesses Are Present

Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret were dressed in pink with wide brimmed pink hats, and accompanied their mother. Queen Mary and the Duchess of Gloucester watched the ceremony from the palace steps.

After the investiture the troops formed into columns and, led by the colorful Indians, marched past the King and Queen. Second, in the march past were the Canadians, whose band struck up "Land of hope and glory" as they passed in review.

Two Canadian officers were among those receiving medals.

Tremendous cheers greeted the troops as they marched from the garden gate and into the Mall, whence two days ago the King started his historic drive to Westminster Abbey for the Coronation.

government appointed to have won its point with the Duke of Windsor to keep Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson divorced and the Duke's wife being styled "her royal highness" after they are married.

That referred to the status of Queen Elizabeth at the time she married the then Duke of York and contended only an act of the King could confer a royal title on Mrs. Warfield.

Queen Elizabeth, who was the commoner-born Lady Elizabeth Brown-Lyon, was raised to royal rank by King George V by her father-in-law, after her marriage in 1923.

Peerage Handbook Quoted.

"Debrett's," handbook on "peerage, baronetage, knightage and companionage", points out that system of precedence for ladies of the nobility have been altered since 1917.

"In that year, the reformed shows, it was ordained that henceforth the style of "her royal highness" should be confined to issue of the sovereign and to daughters of the sovereign's sons.

The styles of "highness" and "serene highness" the handbook states, thus would be allowed to lapse gradually.

However, the present Queen Elizabeth became "H.R.H." by royal edict after she became the Duchess of York and Lady Alice Scott received the same title by permission of George V when she was married to the Duke of Gloucester.

The Duchess of Kent, married to the present King's youngest brother, already was "Her Royal Highness" because she was the daughter of Prince Nicholas of Greece.

Debrett's says "wives usually take the same rank as their husbands," but no authority could be found to bear on the specific case of Mrs. Warfield, once she marries the Duke.

London, May 14 (AP)—The future ranking of Duke Wallis Warfield as Duchess of Windsor apparently has been definitely fixed, informed persons disclosed tonight, by changing the Duke's Order of the Garter banner to a position behind that of his three younger brothers.

That, it was added with seeming authority, would make the future Duchess of Windsor of eighth lady of the realm.

She would rank below Queen Elizabeth, Queen Mary, Princess Elizabeth, Princess Margaret, the Princess already was "Her Royal Highness" because she was the daughter of Prince Nicholas of Greece.

It was disclosed that the Duke's banner had been removed in secret from the chapel of Windsor Castle, George's Chapel, Windsor, and hung in fourth place.

Thus the Duke himself now ranks below the King, the Duke of Gloucester and the Duke of Kent.

West Huntingdon

West Huntingdon — Coronation Day was celebrated very quietly in the town. Those who were fortunate enough to possess a radio enjoyed the service and the reception was good. The fathers have been delayed in their work with the recent rains; that they deemed it wise to continue their work while the sun was shining.

Sunday was fittingly celebrated as Mother's Day, a number of the community's former boys and girls were home to honour mother. Others sent suitable gifts.

The programme at United Church on Sunday morning was a combination of Mother's Day program and Coronation service. There was a large crowd present.

The singing of the National Anthem preceding the first Coronation service recorded in the Bible (chapter 1 Samuel, 10th chapter), was the first item on the program. Mothers' Day songs such as "Listen Mothers, while we sing"; "Stand up, stand up for Mothers"; and "I love to tell of Mother", with familiar tunes, were used. Mr. William Bray led in prayer and Marjorie Wright and Barbara Sarles each gave an address of welcome. Mr. Clayton Tummon gave as a solo "My Mother's Hands". Each of the Primary and Junior classes gave Mother's Day exercises.

Messrs Keith Bray, Alvin Carr, and Harold Elliott gave Mother's Day sermons.

The young ladies' class assisted by their teacher, Miss Evelyn McIlravey, gave in unusually interesting manner "Songs Our Mothers Loved".

Mr. Philip Carr gave the special address in which he stressed the responsibility of motherhood and denounced some of the prevailing national sins. He also spoke of the life of King David and his second coronation, emphasizing the importance of recrowning the King (our Saviour) in our own lives.

Miss Irene Elliott was pianist for program. Messrs. Jack Pitman and Harold Thompson were ushers. The church was suitably decorated with flowers.

At St. Andrew's church in the afternoon, after the regular Sunday School period, the service was Mother's Day throughout. Rev. J. A. Koffend gave an appropriate solo and based his remarks on the seven jewelled crowns worn by mothers:—jewels of endurance, courage, comfort, sacrifice, patience, forgiveness, faith.

This was an excellent address and listened to with rapt attention by large crowd present.

The Missionary Band of St. Andrew's church met on Saturday afternoon at Miss Jean Thompson's home for their regular meeting. The program was taken from the official Paper "Glad Tidings". The hymns used were "I Love to Tell the Story", "Come to the Saviour" and two verses of "God Save the King".

Miss Jean Thompson gave a reading on the King and Queen leaving Buckingham Palace and arriving at the Abbey also one on the Coronation's priceless jewels. Mrs. Samuel Dornan gave a talk on the King and Queen. Short readings were given by several members Billie Donnan, Lindsay Ellis, Muriel Thompson, Arlene Haggarty. At the close of the meeting a lunch was served and Miss Arlene Tummon who is leaving the Community soon with her parents was presented with a snapshot Album.

The cheese factory started operations on Tuesday with Mr. Harry Juby as cheese maker assisted by Carl Thompson.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Haggarty and Hilda, were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Clancy and family of Wellman's and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abbott of Roslin.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Fox and Leo of Cenire, were Wednesday guests of Mr. Geo. McCurdy and Delbert.

Mr. Alex McCurdy was a week-end guest of Mr. Morden Brough of Elzas.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bray of Belleville were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. William Bray.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pitcher attended Mother's Day service at St. Andrew's Church on Sunday a.m.

Mrs. James Yorke spent Sunday with Mrs. John Moorcroft.

The Young People's Union met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elliott on Friday evening —a large number of young people were in attendance.

Mr. Charles Moran presided over the meeting and gave an address on the Coronation. Rev. Turner conducted a number of games.

The concluding meeting will be held in the Hall on Friday evening.

The Huntington Branch of W.I. held their annual meeting at the Town Hall Pembroke on Tuesday. Mrs. Sills conducted the election of officers as follows:

President— Mrs. Samuel Kilpatrick.

1st Vice President—Mrs. Frank Ashley.

2nd Vice President — Mrs. Will French.

Secretary-Treasurer — Mrs. John Clement.

Press Secretaries — Mrs. R. T. Sarles and Mrs. C. Mills.

Delegates were appointed to attend a District meeting to be held at Cooper.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Ottawa, May 14 (CP)—Possibilities of increasing the nomadic population in wide areas of marshland in Northern Manitoba in order to provide Indian trappers with productive trapping grounds and L. Swallwood are being studied by the Indian Affairs Branch, Lands in the Delta of the Saskatchewan River where it enters Cedar Lake near the Pas are regarded as holding promise in view of the success of a private venture in that area.

Winnipeg, May 14 (CP)—Brig.-Gen. M. L. Hornby of Lethbridge, Alta., advocate of controlled immigration, gathered in an interview here more than 50 per cent of the members of the Canadian Home of Commons favor resumption of British family settlement in Canada. "If it is properly organized and adequately financed."

Simcoe, Ont., May 14 (CP)—The Rev. Jas. Endicott is not a loafer; it's a war, L. B. Reynolds of Waterford claimed, at a fruit growers' meeting here. It is a war between Ontario and British Columbia members for fair play in markets, he claimed, and the growers suffered. He urged organization similar to that in British Columbia.

London, May 14 (AP)—Thomas James Wise, 77, noted book collector, died yesterday at his home in Hampstead.

In collaboration with the late Sir Edmund Gosse, Wise edited the letters and works of Algernon Swinburne and the unpublished and uncollected writings of Brownings, Rossetis and other writers.

Kincaid, Sask., May 14 (CP)—Melburn Van Kuskirk's pony is home safe and well to look on eight-mile walk, a five dollar bill and some tears to bring it back.

The 12-year-old lad's mother seconded a work bees and traded the pony and a new harness for the heavier horse. Learning the pony was to be sold at auction, at a price eight miles away, Melburn took five dollars of his own money and walked the eight miles to the sale.

When the lad went beyond $5. the lad began to cry. Spectators, who heard the story, told the sale operator. He dropped the bid back to $5 and sold the pony to Melburn.

Swift Current, Sask., May 14—(CP)—A wild west show whipped up lasso from nearby fields and blew it in cheering chaos into the southwestern Saskatchewan town, giving a realistic touch as the Marshall, Sask., amateur club presented "Rebel", a drama of the frontier lands. The club was a convalescent in the recent Dominion drama festival.

Tokyo, May 14 (AP)—One hundred and fifty Salvation Army men and women, barricaded in the organization's hospital, refused all appeals today for settlement of their "Holy Revolution." They demand the Salvation Army in Japan be given complete independence from international headquarters in London.

Lieut.-Gen. Gunpei Yamanouye, veteran Commander-in-Chief of the organization in Japan, wept as he listened to the complaints of the men and women but declared himself powerless to settle the dispute.

The "revolt" started two days ago.

COURTESY AND LESS CHANCE-TAKING

"Courtesy comes first" and "start a little earlier so that you will not have to take chances on the way," are two rules picked out by the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, Toronto, as rules that will cut down highway losses.

This advice is timely as the increase in legal speeds becomes effective on May 25. More courtesy and less chance-taking will be required, "for the higher the speed the greater the impact when you hit something," says the latest bulletin.

With the new speeds the driver will be more and more on trial.

NEW YORK MINISTERS ON CORONATION

The coronation is a symbol of rededication to God, the Rev. Dr. Henry Darlington said at the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth Avenue and Ninetieth Street, in speaking of "The Religious Significance of the Coronation."

"Ancient dynasties, monarchies, republics and democracies have been falling," Dr. Darlington declared. "In their place dictatorships which reject religion have been rising up. Yet here in this decay stands this custom, it is not old. It is ever new. Whenever any group recognizes publicly its foundation on God, what a challenge that throws out to the whole world!"

When the Archbishop takes the "pilgrim's bottle" from the altar in Westminster Abbey and anoints the King and Queen he will be following ancient custom, Dr. Darlington said. Moses anointed Aaron and Samuel anointed Saul. He declared that the act symbolizes appointment by God.

"Everything about the coronation centers and goes to the altar," he said. "Through the whole of this service there is the religious emphasis and note. It is more than one of crowning. It is a consecration."

The coronation services, although they are founded in the past traditions, look forward to the future, full of hope and purpose, Dr. Joseph F. McComas, vicar of St. Paul's Episcopal Chapel, Trinity Parish, Broadway and Fulton Street, said.

"Hope is the essence of life," he said. "A man without hope is not really alive. A nation is motivated with its eye upon the future. We study the past to build upon it, but are not bound by it. The coronation ceremonies give evidence to the value of age-long tradition, but except for the right of the sovereign to be crowned, traced from the past, everything in the services pertains to the future."

"The impressive event of this week is more than a pageant," said Dr. Sargent in his sermon at St. Barthomews' P. E. Church. "It signifies a solemn religious service. British Christianity has led the fight for the democratic principle in the church."

"In the totalitarian States," he said, "the government signifies abuse, autocracy and continued persecution. In the democratic nations the King symbolizes all that has been attained through freedom."

"The fortune that befall us and the interpretation we give them shape our lives and character," the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick said at Riverside Church, 122d Street and Riverside Drive, New York City.

"All our experiences are made up of two factors," Dr. Fosdick said. "First, the objective situation presented to us from without and, second, the subjective interpretation of it which we contribute from within. This power of man to transform outer facts so that they are no longer merely outer facts but facts plus an interpretation is one of the most distinguishing elements in human life.

"Animals do not possess it. An event befalls an animal and when the animal is through with it the event is what it was before. The same kind of event, however, befalls a man, and at once something begins to happen to it. It is dressed in the man's appreciation, understanding and interpretation. It comes out of his life something altogether different than it was when it went in.

"A man can do almost anything with an event, for our experiences do not fall into our lives as single lumps, like meteors from a distant sky of fate. Our experiences always are made up of two elements—the fortunes that befall us and the interpretations that we give them.

"Here lies the secret of happiness. The reason happiness is so amazingly independent of outward circumstances, so that some of the most miserable people we know are privileged and some of the happiest are poor, blind, crippled and unfortunate, is that every experience has thus two factors—the outward fortune and the inward interpretation.

"And while we often cannot help the fortune, we always can help the interpretation. That is in our power. That is the throne of our sovereignty over our lives."

TO A PIONEER MOTHER

Your quiet face smiles down the kindly years,
Years that you walked with consummating grace
When you with visionary eyes beheld
The smoke of future homes blow by your face.
In wilderness you reared small girls and boys,
You baked their bread and made enchantment live
Through tales of knights and tournaments and love
There on the plains—and that was much to give!

You pioneered, with clear eyes on the stars,
That they might have green fields, high hills, and sun,
Breathe deeply of the good earth smells and take
Into their blood life urge you had begun.
You gave them pride in this, their wide-spaced land,
You taught them to be brave and proud and free;
Now may your daughters' daughters keep the faith
With dreams you cherished—this becomes our plea!

BELLEVILLE'S CORONATION DAY PARADE WAS VERY PLEASING. The procession was a long one and each unit seemed to have taken pride in presenting a smart appearance. The most outstanding feature of the parade to many was the representation of school children. Each school must have turned out as nearly one hundred per cent as possible, and the appearance of so many children in one parade was a revelation and subject of much comment. Belleville younger generation is certainly coming up strong, in numbers as well as physique and there will be no question of lack of material to fill the gaps in the ranks when the oldsters fall out later on, here and elsewhere. Conjecture as to the future activities of the army of youngsters seen in the parade is interesting. Some will stay at home to keep the home fires burning and sich like, while others will go out into the world and take their place, humble or proud, in the world's workaday armies, where Belleville sons and daughters have always given a good account of themselves.

TWO TORONTO CHILDREN WERE HONORED with a private audience with Queen Mary on Coronation Day. It seems their mother wrote a book all about a certain section of Toronto in the early days—back when Muddy York was struggling out of the swamp, and sent a copy to the Queen. Queen Mary read the book and expressed her appreciation through her Lady-in-Waiting. When the mother and children were in London during the Coronation Queen Mary being apprised of their presence graciously consented to receive the children—an experience which they will cherish all their lives.

WHAT IS A BOY? Here is an answer recently published in the Rotary Magazine:

"The person who is going to carry on what you have started. He is to sit where you are sitting and attend to things which you think are so important, when you are gone. You may adopt all the policies you please, but how they will be carried out depends upon him. Even if you make leagues and treaties, he will have to manage them. He will take you seat in Congress, assume control of your cities, States and empires. He is going to move in and take over your churches, schools, universities, corporations, councils, and prisons. All your work is going to be judged and praised and condemned by him. The future and destiny of humanity are in his hands, so it might be well to pay a little attention to him."

FOUR YEARS OF STOMACH SUFFERING

Perpetual pain and sleepless feeling

Every stomach sufferer will sympathize with Mr. Whitney, of H. . . . But joyous relief came his way. Mr. Whitney writes:

"Up to five months ago I had been suffering for four years from stomach trouble. Probably only sufferers know the agony of that perpetual pain and sinking feeling. Eating became tougher anything harder than trying to look pleasant while suffering that way. Sleeping? Why that was getting me down," and I was being weighed. One day I bought Mayfield Brand Stomach Powder. I had no faith in it, but that I decided to carry on with it. Now I can eat anything I fancy, and my job is now a pleasure."

Insist upon MACLEAN BRAND Stomach Powder. You can tell it by the signature "ARCH. C. MACLEAN" on bottle. Sold only in bottles in cartons, 75c, powder or tablets. Never sold loose. ♥

FESTIVE SCENE AS MARMORA MARKS CORONATION DAY

Full Day's Programme Splendidly Carried

Marmora—Coronation Day celebrations at Deloro and Marmora drew out practically the whole population of each town, festive in their flags and bunting, to join in the happy jolly crowds. The celebration at Deloro commenced at 10 a.m. when the young folk of the village assembled at the Public and Separate Schools and marched in a body to the Rink. The younger children, with the Deloro pupils of Marmora High School joined the procession, as it halted at the Rink, that each participant receive the presentation of medals and tiny flags. These were presented by Mesdames S. B. Wright and F. A. Sagar. Mr. F. A. Sagar made a introductory remarks. Headed by the Marmora Canadian Legion Band under the baton of George Carey, the enlarged procession paraded to the grounds of both schools where in each a pine tree was planted as a commemorative tree. At the public school grounds the first early, was deposited by Misses I. Handley and S. Morton, teachers, the scholars following the lead. Then under the direction of Miss Morton, the scholars sang "We are part of Britain." In the Separate School grounds Miss Margaret O'Connor, deputizing in the unavoidable absence of Miss A. Foley and trustees J. A. Teague and J. A. McKelley, placed the first earth. Col. A. V. Yates, in charge of the procession then arranged marches through the village and back to the Hall, where the final ceremonies for the program given there. The interior of the hall had been beautifully decorated with flags, shields and streamers and was indeed a beautiful setting for the specialized program given. Miss Mary Paquet presided at the piano for the opening chorus "God Save the King in the ages past", which was followed by appropriate address by the Reeve, Chairman and Reeve S. W. Wright. The singing of the Maple Leaf came next, after the fine address. Agreement, three excellent essays on coronation were read by three pupils of Marmora High School. That of Queen Victoria was portrayed by Miss Dorothy King Edward VII's Coronation by Theresa Shannon, Geo. Hendrick and Ethel Trumble. After the singing of "O Canada", Col. A. V. Yates gave an instructive and very inspiring talk to the children. After the singing of the National Anthem, the splendid gathering dispersed. Scholars of the Public School returned to their grounds and were served by Ladies received from England by Mrs. Handley were planned in the afternoon.

Deloro, with its many sport enthusiast watched with delight the resurrected football team meet and defeat a renowned C. F. R. team from Peterborough by the score of 9-1. Newcomers on Deloro's victorious eleven were Clare O'Neill goal keeper; W. Townson, right back and Robert Allison, right wing. Although lacking the brilliancy of play that the practiced seasoned teams of Peterborough and District Football League have produced, the team shows possibilities of playing a first class type of football, before the coming season has far advanced. In the opening of the first half after Smith of the home team had slipped worn in a favorable position to score. W. Hart also had hard luck with a shot, Simmons, netted after about fifteen minutes of play and soon after Brown, upon receiving a neat pass from W. Hart, baffled Adams, Simmons again netted Adams for the latter to make a fine save. Play was taken to the other end but defensive tactics by the backs gave O'Neill little to do. shots coming his way being well looked after. C. C. F. for a short time played only ten men, one of the players retiring temporarily. On a corner kick Smith received the ball and banged in another goal for his team. W. Hart and Simmons narrowly missed adding to the score but before half time came, Gray scored from close in. In the second half rain sent the fans to shelter, though the teams kept valiantly at work. Deloro added goal through Brown, Simmons and Smith (2) and towards the close Mayette dashed away to get the sole counter for his side. The score does not indicate the relative strength of the teams, neither team as yet having reached the best play that is yet to come in the season. Play was clean and hotly contested good work by Hart, senior who handled the whistle.

The teams were:

C. C. F.—Goal, Adams; Right back, E. Dimeson; Left back, W. Dimeson; Centre half, Lawrence; Centre, McDonald; Left half, Clapham; Outside right, Henwood; Inside right, Jobe; Centre forward, Castle; Inside left, Mayette; Outside left, Lewis.

The functions in Deloro Hall in the evening wound up the day's events, At 7.30 p.m. under direction of Mr. Hart Handley, a concert was given by the scholars of the schools in the following order:

Chorus—"God Save Thy Health unto His Majesty"; "A Greeting to the King"; Recitation, "The Empire Is our Country", Ethel Morton; Present, "To Greet the King"; Recitation, "The United Empire"; Song—A Coal—"King George", Frances Coal; Recitation, "All in one", Pep Deese, Shirley Quinn; Coronation Reunion.

At 9.30 doors opened for a Coronation Dance at which Jack Grant's Acts supplied music.

Marmora's celebration took the form of a parade of Legionnaires, members of the village council and school boards with pupils of the High, Separate and Public Schools from the Public School grounds through the main streets and back to the grounds, headed by Canadian Legion Band and with Capt. Percy Gray in charge. After the presentation of medals to the large number of children had been specially attending to, H. M. Sabine acted as chairman for the following program: Chorus, "O Canada"; Address, Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth; Hymn, O God our help in ages past; Addresses, Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell, Reeve W. R. Linn.

After the close of the meeting Mrs. Reid and group one served lunch and a social half hour was enjoyed.

OBSERVE MOTHER'S DAY

A very pleasing and inspiring service was held at Scott's Church on Mother's Day. The service began at 2 p. m. with quiet music by the organist. The programme specially prepared for the occasion was used.

The children greatly enjoyed the story "The Old-Fashion House" and the moral was pointed home that we must do some things that we don't like to do as well as those we do like to do.

The Superintendent had those present number, there being 71 present.

At the close of the Mother's Day programme the pastor baptized two babies, Ada Roy Jackson and Cameron Roy Bine.

The coronation service which followed was very solemn and impressive. A pleasing feature of this service was the presentation to the Heavenly King was the fact that eight young people, namely Clarence Paul, George Wah, Edison Bine, Carl Sine, Myrtle Walker, Lottie Sora, Dorothy Jackson and Alice Pringle were received into the church, thus making their design to become followers of the Christ.

Cairo, May 14. (CP-Reuters)—The Gebel Aulia Dam on the White Nile, that will increase Egypt's agricultural area by 300,000 acres has been completed, 30 days before the contract date. The cost was $10,445,356.

Its construction was approved in early as 1911 but preliminary work was only begun after the war and actual construction started in 1933. Seven miles in length, the dam reaches a height of 50 feet.

Dodge Custom Six, Four-Door Touring Sedan

LEARN WHY MOTORISTS EVERYWHERE ARE SWITCHING TO DODGE AND ARE SAVING MONEY RIGHT FROM THE START

THE "SWITCH" TO DODGE has become a Parade. Thousands who formerly owned more expensive cars switched to new 1937 Dodge cars and found greater beauty, easier riding, greater economy of operation—and they are proud to be seen in their Dodge cars anywhere!

Mr. Melvern F. Thomas, writes: " . . . we made a tour from Toronto to southern Florida and covering 4302 miles in all kinds of weather. We used 215 U.S. gallons of standard gasoline which is equivalent to 24 miles per Canadian gallon."

Sales more than Double

More than twice as many Dodge cars were purchased in the first 3 months of 1937 as in the same period last year. Owners like Mr. Thomas are the best Dodge salesmen—and there are thousands of them. Talk to a Dodge owner yourself.

Then go to your Dodge dealer and DRIVE a new 1937 Dodge. Note the luxurious comfort of the "chair-height" seats. Hear how quietly a Dodge glides along—even on rough pavements. Dodge "Floating-Power" engine mounts road noises. A sure-type hydraulic shock absorbers together with Dodge weight distribution combines to make the famous Dodge Airglide Ride!

Years have proved the perfection of Dodge Hydraulic Brakes and all-steel safety body. You need the protection of these safety features for yourself and your family.

Beauty, luxury, safety and economy are yours when you buy a new 1937 Dodge. Drive one to-day!

Simple "swing-type" ventilating vents provide controlled ventilation in all Dodge cars.

BELLEVILLE IS WELL ORGANIZED FOR A BIG HOME IMPROVEMENT DRIVE

WALLS CRACK AND CEILINGS BEGIN TO FALL

Here's Hints on How to Overcome Most Embarrassing And Uncomfortable Situations.

The owner of a home had trouble with cracking walls and ceilings. He decided to use composition wall and ceiling board in remodelling the bedroom. The material had the advantage of being comparatively inexpensive.

The wall and ceiling material was applied over the original, and a cheerful room resulted. Floors were scraped and painted. A modern electric fixture replaced the old one, and a modern panelled room was the result.

The wall material was finished in soft green and the ceiling was finished in a lighter colour. This made a fitting background for the furniture which had been used in the room before the redecorating. Rugs had a dark red as the predominating colour and the bed spreads were in red, brown, and tan. A wing chair was covered in red chintz and another chair had brown upholstery.

The other furniture was finished in walnut.

Owners who wish to remodel rooms should apply to their banks for information about the Home Improvement Plan. This plan provides a method whereby creditworthy home-owners may borrow funds to modernize and brighten their properties.

Bigger and Better Homes and a Good Share of That Fifty Million Dollars is the Slogan of Belleville H. I. P. Committee Which Also Covers the County of Hastings.

MAKE IDLE DOLLARS WORK AND INVITE PROSPERITY BACK IN FULL FORCE BY PROVIDING WORK FOR THE WORKLESS.

BELLEVILLE JOINS ALL CANADA IN A VIGOROUS FORWARD MOVE

Belleville has always given strong support to all forward movements including the many problems which arose during the Great War in which this city and district played such a proud part abroad and at home. Everybody was anxious to help in making the world safe for democracy, and in adding lustre to the proud name of the Bay of Quinte District. Now another important movement is under way and Belleville and district is organized to take an important part in the Home Improvement Plan which seeks to provide additional employment, to give an added impetus to the building trades, and make it easy to provide home improvements and modernization—a plan backed by the Dominion Government and endorsed and actively assisted by many of the prominent and busiest men of Canada.

H. B. Muir, of Kingston, member of the Provincial Executive of the Home Improvement Plan, is chairman of this district, and a live wire he is, a very busy man, being Business Manager of the Kingston Whig Standard, but not too busy to give his time and the benefit of his wide business experience to forward the Home Improvement Plan.

J. O. Herity, Manager of Belleville Chamber of Commerce, is Chairman for Belleville and surrounding country, and has assembled about him a committee representing practically all the principal activities of Belleville and Hastings County. Every member of the committee is active and aggressive and keenly interested in community service, and will put every ounce of ambition, energy and ability into this drive for BETTER HOMES FOR BELLEVILLE.

EXTRA LIVING ROOM GREAT CONVENIENCE

How to Utilize Spare Space and Turn it Into Usefulness, Giving Comfort And Convenience

Any home that is occupied by more than two people will find plenty of use for an extra living room. Space in attic or basements may often be converted to this use and funds for the necessary work may be obtained from a bank or other authorized lending institution under the terms of the Home Improvement Plan. The loan may be repaid in instalments over a period up to five years if necessary.

Occasionally little work is necessary to create an attractive room. In one basement, a brick fireplace was built in, to make the focal point of interest. The walls were painted a soft shade of yellow and the floor a deep shade of brown. Composition board was used to close off the corner of the cellar that was being used for the room.

The ceiling gave the effect of beams, the floor beams being joined with false ones to carry out the effect. Curtains were hung at the sides of the small cellar windows, so as not to detract from any light that might enter, and to give the feeling of greater width.

Simple furniture was used in this room.

MA PROVIDED BOXING RING FOR DAD, LADS

Don't Have to go Off to The Club, Enjoy Their Favorite Sport in Own Game Room.

A housewife decided to decorate her own version of a game room. The father and two sons in the family were boxing enthusiasts and were always going off to the club for a few rounds of fun.

A boxing ring was established in the basement of the home. A portion of the cellar was partitioned off, the wall finished in a plain, light colour. A padded canvas mat was laid on the floor, and the ring properly roped off. Benches were placed at the side for the neighborhood audience.

Basements may be made into recreation or work rooms with funds obtained from any bank under the Dominion Government's Home Improvement Plan.

THOUGHTS ON A MODERN DINING ROOM

Modern styles in decoration and furniture have changed the dining room in many homes from a place where the ornamental furniture from the rest of the house is stored to an integral part of the entire decorative plan.

The importance of home planning has increased during recent years. In metropolitan centres, authorities claim the vogue of entertaining at home, rather than in hotels or clubs, has returned. No matter how small the house, the dining space must be adequate to care for the family's social needs.

Modernization funds may be obtained from any bank under the Dominion Government Home Improvement Plan, and the dining room may be completely transformed by this means. The keynote of the room's character will undoubtedly be found in the type of entertaining the hostess plans. A formal room would be out of place in a home where entertaining is casual and informal.

The dining room of one home was planned to care for dinner parties, but at the same time to be suitable for the usual family gathering. Walls and ceilings were finished alike in rough plaster in ivory colour. The door into the hall was removed and the doorway arched, while the kitchen passageway was finished in a corresponding style.

Three windows were built together across the front of the room, giving the effect of one large window. Hardwood floors used throughout the rest of the house were continued in the dining room.

With this simple but effective background, the housewife purchased equally simple furnishings with her own funds. A walnut table blended skillfully with a modern sideboard. A plain rug covered the floor and venetian blinds and plain side curtains hung at the window. A round, unframed mirror was hung over the sideboard.

AN EXPERIENCE IN BUILDING A NURSERY

An Interesting Experiment Which Produced Wonderful Results — A Model Nursery Created at Moderate Cost.

The nursery is one of the most important rooms in a home and the wise mother spares no effort to make it the most attractive. This need not be expensive. A little ingenuity and the proper use of inexpensive materials can produce unique and pleasing effects.

If extensive modernization of this room is planned, funds may be obtained from a bank under the Home Improvement Plan.

A home was modernized and the owner attempted to create a model nursery, but at the same time every effort was made to keep the cost of the room within the range of the average home-owner.

The walls were covered with paper of a light pastel plaid. The woodwork was painted a deep cream and a corner of the room which protruded had a guard placed to prevent the wall being chipped when games were in progress.

A composition floor, resembling planking, was laid. This was easy to clean, thus safeguarding the health of the occupant. It also lessened the burden of the person who cleaned the room. Venetian blinds, also washable, were hung at the windows and there were no curtains to hold the dust.

No ceiling light was used and wall brackets had shades which at the windows and the lamp shades were white with red polka dots.

The furniture was finished in the honey colour so popular in modern homes but borders of turquoise blue removed any air of sophistication. A juvenile design was applqued on the headboard of the bed and the doors of chest and book case. A washable rug covered the floor.

Space was provided for the many toys and the young owner was taught to put things away at the end of a busy day.

COMFORT IN NEW BED ROOM ON TOP FLOOR

A New Bedroom With Maple Furniture Created From Idea Inspired by Home Improvement Plan

Wanting a simple bedroom, but a comfortable one, the owners of a small house went about redecorating a top floor room.

Knowing that maple furniture was to be used in the room, a decorative scheme that would be suitable was decided upon. A daintily sprigged wallpaper—blue flowers on a white ground—covered the walls. The ceiling paper was ivory.

Woodwork was painted a deeper tone of ivory and the floor was waxed. A ceiling light was dispensed with, but ample floor plugs were installed to care for lamps.

The maple furniture, for which the room was planned, showed off to good advantage, with old-fashioned patch-work quilts as a colour accent. They combined blue, green, red and white. White curtains hung at the windows and the lamp shades were white with red polka dots.

Under the Home Improvement Plan of the Dominion Government, homes may be remodelled and redecorated.

HANDY WALL BOX FOR SMALL PACKAGES

When Away From Home Small Packages Can be Delivered — Ingenious Idea But Practical

You can solve the problem of what to do with small packages that are delivered when you are away from home by having a receiving box built in the wall. One home had such a unit built in between the service porch and breakfast room. It measured about 12 by 14 inches. It consisted of two cast-iron frames, and had an inner and outer door, the outer locking automatically when closed from the outside—opening only from the inside.

When you are expecting a package, the outer door is left ajar. When the package has been placed inside, the door is closed. When you want to remove the package, open the door from the inside.

Repairs and improvements of a permanent nature to the home may be made under the terms of the Dominion Government's Home Improvement Plan. Loans, large or small, may be obtained at any Canadian bank at a very low rate of interest.

TRICKED OF $65,000

Nice, France—John Sophia, wealthy visitor to the Riviera, said to be of British nationality has been the victim of confidence men who robbed him of $65,000.

HERE'S A HINT ON HOW TO HIDE PIPES

Unsightly Pipes in Living Room Can be Hidden Without Tearing Down Walls — Grandfather's Clock Effect

If you have fumed at the pipes which were run down the side of your living room wall you will welcome this information: They may be hidden without the expense of tearing down walls and enclosing them.

One housewife built a set of useful shelves around them, enclosing the whole thing. The result generally resembled a grandfather's clock and provided an excellent place for cards, cigarettes, writing paper and other supplies that always seem to clutter up the house. The top shelf was left open and served as a base for a bright vase of flowers.

This is just one of the methods which may be used for hiding pipes or other unsightly but necessary appurtenances of the home. Money for built-in improvements, as well as for many other modernization and repair projects, may be obtained through the Dominion Government Home Improvement Plan.

Expect the Town Planning Commission to be Approved

Recommended That All Jennings Prepare Draft of Duties of Com'n.

PYRENE CO. PAY $40

Formation of a Town Planning Commission for Belleville, with a standing committee of members of city council being elected from year to year may probably receive official sanction of city council at its Monday evening meeting following a recommendation to this effect passed at last evening's committee meeting.

Present committees of council which are no longer functioning will be crossed off and a complete overhaul of committees will result if the joint recommendation is effective.

The recommendation as submitted will request that Alderman Jennings (original sponsor of this Commission) prepare a draft of duties of the Commission on Town Planning committee the duties and tion in a new bylaw setting up standing committees of council, to be submitted at Monday evening's meeting, and that a consultation in this regard be held with the city solicitor.

A second allied recommendation will ask that bylaws providing for standing committees be consolidated and the sum be placed in the Fire longer function be omitted, and that provision be made for a Town Planing Commission, the duties and limitations of which are to be considered by the council before the bylaw is drawn.

Other minor recommendations which will be submitted are: "That the sum of $40.00 tendered by the Pyrene Company for damage caused by the explosion of a sulphuric acid jar, be accepted in full and the sume be placed in the Fire estimates.

Permission will be granted S. McPee for the use of a lot on Chatham Street for the purpose of gardening, and to Hiram Vance on Howard Street, for use of a lot also for planting.

It was recommended that the boiler inspector's report on the city boiler be referred to a committee of Aldermen Barlow, Kennedy and Baldree for a report on whatever repairs are needed.

The city clerk will be asked to ascertain from similar communities copies of bylaw for licensing and regulating transient traders in the municipality.

KILLED ON ROAD, STRUCK BY CAR

Chatham Girl Had Been Attending Celebration

Chatham, Ont., May 13—(CP)—Walking home with two escorts last night after attending the coronation celebration at Tilbury, Lorraine Chotnard, 22, was struck by a car and killed. The car driver was Walter Johnson of Comber.

Coroner Dr. O. J. Rochon empanelled a jury, which adjourned until a date to be appointed.

Miss Chotnard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Chotnard who live on the town line two miles south of Tilbury, was walking with her brother Theodule Chotnard and Alphonse Trudell. Headed south, they walked on the east side of the road, facing approaching traffic as a precaution. The young men walked on the concrete pavement, the girl on the grassy shoulder of the road.

Johnson, headed south, turned out to pass a car going in the same direction which was driven by Albert Badgley of Tilbury. As he turned, his headlights showed up the two young men on the road. To avoid hitting them he swerved more to the left and struck the girl, who he had not seen. The accident occurred a point half a mile south of the post office within the limits of the town.

Robert Taylor and Joan Harlow in Comedy Hit

Joan Harlow and Robert Taylor is the thrilling new star combination glamorized by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in the new comedy romance, "Personal Property", which comes to the Belle Theatre starting Saturday, for two day showing.

Taylor, currently idol of the screen, comes from the arms of Garbo in "Camille" to his romance with Miss Harlow in the present picture, play which is based on the H. M. Harwood stage success "Man in Possession." Miss Harlow was last seen in the four-star hit, "Libeled Lady."

"Personal Property" comes from the hands of W. S. VanDyke who has directed such stars as never having turned out a failure. VanDyke's record includes the hits were "After the Thin Man", "San Francisco" and "Rose Marie."

A "Stand Picked" cast supports Miss Harlow and Taylor. Reginald Owen, one of Hollywood's most distinguished character players, has the important role of Taylor's older brother and in the course of the amusing plot, becomes a rival for the affections of Miss Harlow. Others in the supporting roles include Una O'Connor, Henry Stephenson, E. E. Clive, Cora Witherspoon, Maria Shelton, Forrester Harvey, Lionel Braham and Henrietta Parker.

Miss Harlow, hailed by critics and public alike, for her talents as a comedienne is given one of her greatest opportunities in the new picture, in which she plays the role of Crystal Wetherby, and American harassed by debts. In an endeavour to keep up a "front" she runs herself even more deeply in debt, with the result that her creditors make use of the English custom of assigning a sheriff's assistant to take up his post in her home and to which her personal property to make certain that she does not sell anything. In desperation, Crystal resolves to marry Claude Dabney, an elderly, pompous Englishman whom she does not love but whom she believes to be rich.

It is Taylor who plays the part of Raymond Dabney, the sheriff's assistant assigned to watch over Crystal's belongings, and when she implores him not to "give her away" before the man she wants to marry, he agrees to pose as her butler. Then the fun begins, for reveal any further of the plot would be to spoil the operation of enjoyment of a smart comedy hit.

The teaming of the popular Taylor with Miss Harlow marks the latest step in the hectic career of the young actor who has now appeared with the majority of the screen's glamorous feminine stars. Having recently won plaudits for his brilliant performance as Armand to Garbo's "Camille," he previously scored with such film luminaries as Joan Crawford, Barbara Stanwyck, Loretta Young and Jane Cayno, to name but a few.

The new picture also climaxes the career of the versatile Miss Harlow who has run the gamut from comedy to straight drama in such pictures as "Libeled Lady", "Wife Versus Secretary", "Riff-Raff", The Girl from Missouri" and "Red Headed Woman."

"Hollywood Second Step," revealing the lives and loves of Hollywood screen players, the Belle Latest Movietone News Event, and "Swing Wedding," a clever Comic-color Kartune will be exhibited on the same program. On Saturday afternoon only, a new adventure with Robinson Crusoe on Clipper Island will be exhibited.

Sunday, Mon., Tuesday

Walter Winchell and Ben Bernie continue the famed vendetta between the Old Maestro and the New York Correspondent in "Wake Up and Live", the Invincible Twentieth Century-Fox musical in which they are featured at the Belle tonight for the last time, with Alice Faye, Patsy Kelly, Ned Sparks and Jack Haley in leading roles. Three entertaining short gems precede the feature attraction. The complete shows will be presented tonight at 7:10 and 9:10. The feature attraction begins at 7:30 and 9:45.

TORONTO YOUTH SENT BACK TO HIS PARENTS

Visions of seeing the world in general and out for a jolly good time were abruptly halted in Belleville last evening when Gordon Wright, 13-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Wright, 59 Beaufort Road, Toronto, admitted to local police he had run away from home but a few hours of freedom apparently had brought remorsefulness upon the youth, as he regained the warmth of his home after admitting his waywardness.

Early last evening a teen-aged youth appeared before Sergeant Booth at the police station seeking a night's shelter. After taking the lad's name and age the Sergeant became somewhat suspicious of the answers received to his questions and after further investigations, the lad broke down and admitted he had run away from home, "I hitch-hiked as far as Port Hope in one automobile and there got a ride to Belleville," stated the youth as he informed the officer he had left Toronto about 2.00 p.m. yesterday.

"The lad's parents were immediately contacted and arrangements for his return to Toronto was arranged. The lad was detained at the police station until today, when he was returned to his anxious parents, a more enlightened and conscious-stricken boy.

"NO STRIKING"

Smiling Robert Montgomery, film favorite and president of the powerful Screen Actors Guild, is shown as he announced from the speakers stand at a Hollywood meeting that the strike for which 96 per cent. of the guild members voted, unless picture producers would meet their demands, would not be called. Negotiations agreed to by the guild proposals a few hours before the meeting. Members of the Screen Actors Guild are going to work on the motion picture lots through picket lines established by the striking technicians. Strike leaders have seized pickets that picture cars are to be considered same as anyone else.

COL. GEORGE DREW NOT CONSIDERED

Premier Says Former Organizer Not Offered Cabinet Position

Toronto, May 13 (CP)—Col. Geo. Drew, former organizer for the Conservative party in Ontario, "has not been considered" as a possible member of Premier Hepburn's Liberal cabinet, the premier said today.

Suggestion that Col. Drew had been offered the Attorney-Generalship was current last week when reports denied by the premier and Conservative leader Earl Rowe—circulated that the premier had conferred with Mr. Rowe on the possibility of a union government. Subsequently Col. Drew resigned his party post, disagreeing with Mr. Rowe on labor policies.

"I have not talked with Col. Drew either directly or indirectly since we met on the same platforms during the Hastings East by-election," the Premier said today, adding, "I commend him for having the courage of his convictions and for realizing the danger of the invasion of the Lewis forces. (Premier Hepburn's stand against the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization was endorsed by Col. Drew in his statement of resignation as Conservative organizer.)

At the same time the Premier denied charges made by Mr. Rowe in an address that the province's financial statement showing a $9,000,000 surplus included only 11 months expenditures and 13 months revenue. He called the Rowe charge "an unwarranted slur on the provincial auditor who prepared the statement."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop had a package with him when he came home for supper, being a medium size package with 2 red labels pasted on the outside, one saying Fragile and the other one saying Handle With Care, and pop said to me, Here's your precious confounded package, and the next time you buy any chinaware or cut glass or whatever it is, for Pete sake have it delivered the regular way instead of leaving it at my office for me to bring home.

Well I fully expected to take it home myself but I unexpectedly found myself overburdened with bundles so I just had to ask Mother to be leave it at your office, ma said, and I hope you didn't have much trouble with it, she said, and pop said, I had nothing but trouble with it. I never had so many people bump into me on the street in all my life. Every second I expected to feel a splintering and expensive crash under my arm. Icy drops formed on my brow, contrasting strangely with the hot sensation at the back of my neck. And then I had to hold the darn thing in my lap all the way up in the trolley car for fear some pest would wreck the contents with his foot, pop said.

Well now that's too bad, but it proves I was rite, ma said. I knew I had to do something to keep you from leaving the package in the trolley car or somewhere, because if you and package are soon parted, so I stopped in at a chinawares shop and asked a clerk for some leafy paste Fragile stickers on the outside, but as a matter of real fact there's nothing inside but a dozen guest towels and I cant think of anything less breakable, she said.

Being the beginning of a argument.

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

FOURTEENTH INSTALMENT

Slowly Keith released her steps, her hand idly plucking the pickets of a grey fence beside her. Where in her life had she done just this? She could not remember exactly just it, like the town, was part of some memory. She paused to take a last look at it. Her hand idly rested on the gate in the picket fence, and as she leaned upon it a little the latch gave, so that she almost fell into the yard it protected. Clanging at the little house's gateposts for this trifling intrusion, she saw the sign, "For Sale or For Rent."

Keith, standing outside the fence, eased at it in fascination; it was a tiny place, a once-white New England house, squat and low upon its land, its windows small and many-paned, its narrow walls of crazy-quilt bricks laid to the front, over which, like so many small country houses, was hung on one side, so that the long side of the house faced the downhill slope of the valley and contemplated with friendly content the little oven. High lilacs stood against the door. Their green fans hitting into the low second-story windows, as in the spring their heavy scented heads must do. Beyond was a barn. Over everything was the shade of maples and one tall spreading butternut tree.

"No, not a butternut tree," she thought hastily. A butnut tree. That was what the town reminded her of: the summer she had lived with two winters she had lived as a child on a lumber-trapping slope of Lake George. She had had to walk two miles to a little country school at Sabbath Day Point. That was the name! There had been thirteen children in the school-room, and that the teacher called the roll by numbers, and she had been number thirteen. There was a boy that cracked butnuts for her on a great hitching stone under the butnut tree. He had given her a ring, soon as used to come on penny sticks of candy in country stores. It had a red stone in it with an H on it.

Why an H? Keith laughed aloud, a soft laugh there against the silence of the gray picket fence. She hadn't thought of that for years. It was the smell of juniper that had brought it back, because there, inside the gate, she saw a great growth of it upon a gray stone. Gray stone, juniper, fern on upland pastures, and lilac grey and chimney under bare feet; thank heaven they had not worried about tenements then. From this hill, almost as high now as then, she could see her father sitting far out on a boat maddocking, fishing. One year they had had to eat fish, as he had caught fish through the ice.

"For Sale or For Rent." With a half sigh for wishing and hoping, she pushed open the gate and walked up the mossy, stone bridge. She stood upon the little square of an enclosed porch, looking in at the windows.

The big front was the main door, flanked by long narrow glass panes enclosing the tiniest narrowest, steepest of stairs leading up. It was like a doll's house; it would be such fun, Keith thought smiling, to play in a house like that. Paper dolls. One with a lavender fringed shirt and gilt skirt and a gold gilt scarf. To the right a window looked into the parlor. Probably the mantel belonged to a boarded-up fireplace. A fine old mantel, too, of course. A cast iron sink, an old range. That range! Her father had had a range like that, and whistling—a clear tender whistle full of quiet prayer. Girls could remember watching him cook cook—fritters, that was it!—over just such a range. Perhaps girls could remember watching him cook and listening.

She turned, lingeringly, and went out the gate, shutting it softly behind her; and there was warmth in her heart for the little house and she did not know why. Some people came they had brought back to her so clearly her own childhood summers, and her father whistling the tremulous crickey whistle he used even in camp made her spine shiver deliciously. Keith thought, wistfully, that she had never known as a child what it was to be unhappy. Whatever Donald—

In the tourists office Mrs. Winters, the dean of women, was saying, "I think we are fortunate. Just the sight of her is reassuring. Young, yet grown up. Also kindly. If you wanted to confide in her and protect her at the same time, and yet she looks disciplined—an excellent combination for a person who has to deal with girls. Young people resent too much self-possession; it makes them want to get the best of it. They like a secure looped to college life. And I must confess frankly, President Sheldon, that I prefer in this job a woman who's been married."

President Sheldon smiled quizzically at the woman beside him, his colleague in years and in understanding of the peculiar glories and trivialities that support and afflict college life. "If I were venturing anything, it would be to say that she is perhaps a little young."

"Not a permanent fault, President Sheldon."

The two pairs of elderly eyes twinkled at each other. President Sheldon spoke decisively. "Well, I'm glad we can afford again to give you an assistant. Now if you can just be persuaded to lie back and spare yourself—"

But Mrs. Winters brushed her hand softly across the lap of her dress. She had knew how hard it had been this past year to conceal from herself and the world that the passage of time was beginning to spell the word "age". Yet she had dreaded, too, breaking in an assistant: the conferring, the delegating of decisions, the giving advice by which to her simply and easily handled. Yet—to go to bed at night, and never have to chaperone any more dances; she sighed now in the luxury of it. Curiously enough, having Mrs. Kingsbury already seemed like a rest to her.

"Not more. She was a bulky woman, but in spite of that and her plain rudy face and dingy gray hair she was, definitely, a distinguished looking person, carrying her almost seventy years with pride. She had that simplicity and definiteness that give conviction, that warm reasonableness of mind that conveyed to the most skeptical girl a feeling of her integrity and justice; and she was quite without mean correctness and believed in changing what Keith Kerin, indeed, could hardly have fallen into a happier lot.

"I'm thinking about. To be told, to sit there and be told, that she was being invited to become Mrs. Winters' assistant, made her tremble all over. She could answer only in inconceivable, and said yes, certainly, to the question whether the salary of twenty-five hundred was acceptable. Twenty-five hundred dollars! To Keith the sum seemed absolutely prifilely! "And you'll have to find a place to live. Now, there are some faculty apartments—"

"But I am a house!" Keith came alive and articulate, remembering the little house. "On a hill. For rent. I'd love to have it."

Mrs. Winters considered. "On a hill. Near? You'd have to be near. There's a lot of night chaperoning and our winters are cold."

"Rather near. Twenty minutes, perhaps. I am used to long distances—"

"I wonder if you mean old Mrs. Bascomb's little cottage? That's on the hill. But it's—it's a run-down little place. I'm not even sure it has electricity."

"But—but I would love to manage." Kerin's eyes glowed, remembering the little house. "It takes me back to my childhood. And Donald—my son—he's never had any childhood like that. Only city life. There's lilac in the yard, and juniper, and a big barn."

Mrs. Winters opened the drawer beside her and took out her car keys, shutting the drawer with a snap. It was a habit with her, had she known it, that shutting drawers with a snap. "No harm to go and see it. Old Mrs. Bascomb could certainly use the money. That's one thing about a little town like this, you get to know everybody else's business. Mrs. Bascomb's pride and Mrs. Bascomb's no-count son are part of our worries, just as much as is the little Arden girl who's infatuated with a barber downtown, or the beautiful young Avery boy who was blinded two years ago and this June is graduating into a world strange to him. Do you drive, Mrs. Kingsbury? You'll enjoy a car here. New England—you'll come in time to understand how it gets into the blood."

Color rose in Kerin's cheeks and a deep happiness glowed in her hazel eyes. "It already has, Mrs. Winters," she said simply. "I don't believe you can understand what it means to me—now—to be calling this home."

"Oh yes I can," said Mrs. Winters. "That's why you and I are going to get along so well."

Kerin went back west in a daze. She had wired Carl, "Think matter settled favorably awaiting Thursday," but she knew he would be at class when her wire arrived. She had wanted to wire Susan and Alan but a feeling that after all the whole thing was going to turn out not true deterred her. Mingled with her images of the little cottage the friendly town, the gay students in their pre-graduation plumage, the austere but friendly Mrs. Winters, came the recurrent thought that the board of trustees of the college had still to act on her appointment. Twenty-five hundred dollars was an awful lot of money, and it might just be—very probably it would be—that it would all fall through. Yet, above all that, she could hear the calm even tones of Mrs. Winters discussing her job as a settled fact.

It was an incoherent Kerin that burst in on Alan and Susan. In spite of Alan's calm reasoning that the action of the trustees was purely formal it was plain that Kerin was not going to believe in this until the contract was signed, sealed, and delivered.

"It's just too good to be true, that's all. If you could see the little house and Mrs. Winters going around with somebody from the buildings department, and she was saying, 'I think cream white paint throughout, don't you, Mrs. Kingsbury?' Open up the fireplace, John. And do something thorough-ly drastic about the bathroom and the kitchen—new fixtures, gas stove —' Susan, the kitchen is to be pale yellow and there are to be little sprigged papers on the bedroom walls, and there are even going to take out a partition and make the front of the downstairs into one big room!" Kerin's voice was still on a hysterical note, and her eyes were bright with wonderment and fatigue. "Think of it, Susan! She said I'd need a big room for entertaining. Entertaining! Think of it Susan!"

Susan thought. Tears rose to her Irish blue eyes.

"And I'm paying only thirty-five dollars a month. Eighteen to old Mrs. Bascomb, which was her rent, and the rest to the college for the improvements." Kerin's voice had fallen on a small wondering note. "And Alan, I'm going to have a cow! And John, after Mrs. Kingsbury gets down, have some one come over and clean up the yard under her direction. And—and—I repaint the outside, and the fence. I'll never forget that, Susan never. Every year—I repaint the outside and the fence." It all seems—I know. I'm being silly, Susan—"

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY

Stirling and District

Stirling—The regular weekly meeting of St. Andrew's Young People's Guild was held in the church parlors on Monday evening. Mr. Roy Juby, President of the organization acted as chairman. The meeting opened with a song service of sacred selections appropriate to the Coronation celebration and the president led in prayer. The Scripture lesson was presented by Mr. Wm. Dermidy. During the business part of the meeting which followed included the report of the last meeting as read by the secretary Miss Wimifred Ward. It was decided that following the next meeting the society would enter into its customary recess for the summer months. The next musical contribution to the program was an instrumental duet by Messrs Jack McCaughan and Ross Scott, playing the guitar and accordian respectively. Mr. Dermidy also offered a pleasing tenor solo "In the Garden," Mrs. F. H. Williams presiding at the piano. A reading given by Mrs. Foster entitled the "Coronation" was greatly enjoyed. The final musical number of the evening was a piano solo by Mrs. Williams "The Floral Song" and with the singing of the National Anthem. After the meeting a social period was enjoyed during which lunch was served by the hymn, Mr. M. E. Hulin led in prayer and the scripture lesson was read by the President.

Miss Eva Hall introduced the remaining numbers on the program as she accepted the chairmanship on behalf of the Missionary Group. Miss Fenwick contributed the first number in the form of a helpful and constructive poems interspersed by verses of the hymn "When I survey the Wondrous Cross" sung by the members of the audience. The speaker of the evening was Mrs. E. Munro. Speaking on the subject of "Foreign Missions" Mrs. Munro delivered a very instructive address. Mission work both at home and abroad is based entirely on the Missionary education in the life of the Church, all Missionary workers refer to the influence of missionary organization in the home church as an inspiration to the work. The division of Missions into the two well known sections "Home and Foreign" is rather confusing just where the divisional point is established is hard to explain. In reviewing the work of Foreign Mission activities the speaker outlined the progress made in such countries as South Formosa, Japan, Korea and Trinidad.

Appropriate to the Coronation ceremony taking place this week Miss Hilma Mastenbrook offered a soprano solo "God Bless Our Sovereign King" a stirring Coronation composition from the pen of Mr. George Kingston of Toronto, former resident of Stirling. This solo received recognition throughout the continent by the speaker called for. Miss Mae Currie played the accompaniment.

The final number on this interesting program was a Biblical Coronation Pageant of the village, in which the Khaki division gained first honors. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Special Church Service For Mothers' Day

Special church services were conducted in the major Protestant churches of the village on Sunday were set aside to glorify the Motherhood of the nation. At St. Paul's United Church the auditorium was gaily decorated with flags for the Coronation celebrations held in the evening. A memorial basket of flowers was placed in front and the "The Coronation Day" Inspirational messages were presented by both congregations at both services by Rev. W. J. Scott.

St. Andrew's

Held in conjunction with the Annual Mother's Day Service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was a Baptismal service when several children of the congregation presented their children for Baptism. A Junior's choir assisted in the musical part of the service and Rev. J. A. Kolfred presented a splendid address. The choir of the church was banked high with flowers placed there by members and adherents of the church in honor of their mothers. In the evening service which was specially dedicated to the Coronation a male choir of twenty five voices led in the singing and the auditorium was elaborately decorated with flags and bunting in honor of the occasion.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, May 14.—(CP)—Improved buying stiffened the price structure of the Toronto share market in the trade today, particularly in golds and base metals. Morning losses in the industrial section were pared down in the early afternoon but the action slackened off in the last hour, leaving the whole list appear a bit heavy again at the close. The turnover was up about 125,000 shares from that of Thursday.

Base metals registered a considerable pick up. Noranda closed about 1 1-2 up at 61, International Nickel added 3-4, Falconbridge more than a point and Rhoden Ray firmed 1-8. Trading in Sudbury Basin advanced about 20 cents and smaller gains were posted for Ventures, Sherritt-Gordon, Chromium and Pend Oreille. Wallz-Amulet, Noranda and Jack Wallz were off.

Among the golds to register improvement were Pickle Crow, Dome, McIntyre, Jardine, Wright Hargreaves, Hard Rock, Central Patricia, Madsenna, Pyramide, Chibougamau, Teader, Hollinger and Pioneer. Among the penny issues moderate gains were awarded for Francoeur, Bidgood-Kirkland, God's Lake and Kirkland Lake Main Dome, and McIntyre added more than a point each.

The stock improved their position in the afternoon and closing prices were even a slightly higher for Dominion Steel, Canadian Car and Foundry Common, United Steel and Steel of Canada. Dominion Bridge and National Steel Car registered sizable losses.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, May 14.—(AP)—With the labor horizon a little brighter, stocks today showed some of the ground lost in yesterday's slide.

The buying pace was fastest in the morning session, dealers climbing back fractions to 2 or more points. Volume dwindled later and near the final hour profit-selling was sufficient to reduce top quotations moderately. Transfers were around 1,300,000 shares.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

MARKET COMMENT

The various earnings statements that are making their appearance make excellent reading for shareholders. In the case of International Nickel, for example, in the first quarter of this year were the best in the company's history and indicate the ability of the company not only to maintain current $2.00 annual dividend rate but to increase the dividend moderately. Earnings in the complex are also rising at the rate of $3.06 a share per annum on the present working capital position has been maintained.

Noranda is another company that showed excellent earnings in the first quarter, net income being equivalent to $1.17 a share as against $1.29 in the preceding quarter, and $1.07 a share in the same quarter of last year.

Wall Street has a widely diversified opinion ascent the immediate movements of the market and the traders believe that definitely lower levels will be seen before any important resistance can be reached; others say that prices will attain gows of the year this month but there seem to say just how long that might be and still others believe that the market is now going through a test which will produce lower prices before the end of the month. At least brokers are firm in one idea and that is commission business is too small for comfort.

The stock market picture changes rapidly. Several months ago many investors were complaining of the lack of satisfactory yields on common stocks. Today the picture is different. Today good, returns are plentiful with many issues paying over 5 per cent. Talking about acquiring equities at current prices. A good recovery is necessary before they regain their confidence and by them, of course, yields will not be as attractive as at present.

Some Stocks Move Faster Than Others

Some stocks move faster than the average because small capitalizations magnify their fluctuations. Other stocks tend to move faster simply because they are in the low-price range. Still others move faster because of leverage. During the last upward swing it was noted that Consolidated Smelters, Ogilvie Flour, Anaconda and Royalite responded quickly to moderate buying.

Facts, not chances. If stock speculation depended on mere chance or luck then it would not be so suitable a place for risking one's money, as the poker table or race track; for the stock market does not always give the immediate action one may get elsewhere. Successful speculators, however, do not regard the stock market as a game of chance. Indeed, success is somewhat in proportion to one's ability to replace chance and guesses by facts. Amateur speculators always take chances that would terrify the trained market student. Smart operators even plan well in advance just what they will do if the unexpected should happen. Rich men risk their money with far more care than poor men.

BOYS ARE REPORTED ROBBING DUCKS' NESTS

Wild duck attempting to build nests and hatch their families in the bay are doing so under difficulties it is indicated by the number of eggs and young lately who have been haunting the reedy places in shallow-bottomed boats. Department of game and fisheries regulations prohibit molestation of wild birds or eggs and nests, it is pointed out, but nevertheless a number of twenty-five or more ducks in any single flocks are a common day sight over the bay.

HAVE YOU Stomach Upsets?

IF you are troubled with indigestion, gas, sour stomach, heartburn, if you are weak and lack appetite, try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It helps stimulate the appetite, improves the action of the stomach, makes the food digest better. Read what Mrs. Doris Scott of 1107 Dundas Street, Strathroy, Ont., had to say: "After an illness I had no appetite and suffered from indigestion. After eating I would get so bloated and frequently had heartburn, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it was wonderful. It improved my appetite and relieved me of all my stomach discomfort. It seemed to build me right up." How glad, Mrs. Scott would like

Conference Highlights

"Whatever may be the nature of our problems I am confident that we shall be able to find a solution of them through co-operation in unity of purpose under the crown, which is at once the symbol of our partnership and the focus of our common loyalty."

Mackenzie King:

"The outcome of the depression in Canada has been the increase in sectional jealousies and strain to bring the surface problems which may require some readjustment of the financial and constitutional relations between the Dominion and the Provinces."

"The international situation will be reviewed in detail at later sessions. I shall therefore not make any reference to it at this point beyond expressing my firm conviction that enduring peace cannot be achieved without co-operation. It must, that political, tension will not lessen without an abatement of the politics of economic nationalism and economic imperialism."

Joseph Lyons:

"The Australian government feels that a statement should issue from this conference which will demonstrate to the world the bond that the countries composing the British Commonwealth of Nations are prepared to act together in support of the maintenance of law and order."

"Australia would like a welcome a regional understanding and a pact of non-aggression, both to include the Pacific, concerned in the spirit of the principles of the League."

persons and that under Divine Providence your loyalties may long be spared to strengthen the bonds of affection and loyalty which unite all the people of the British Commonwealth under the Crown."

Example of King George V.

The first thought of the conference, Baldwin declared, would be the grievous loss sustained by the death of King George V.

"Many of us found this table knew the value of his wise counsel and quiet courage in times of difficulty and stress. He was never found wanting to duty and the service of all his subjects was the keynote of his life. As the head of this great family of nations he has left us a noble follow a great and enduring example".

COL. D. BARRAGAR

ing the School of Instruction for officers of the Canadian militia and floors at Kingston. Nearly all the officers who attended the school district for service overseas with the O.B.F. were passed under his guidance. He was a councillor of the city, a loyal subject of the Crown and a true Canadian gentleman.

Fraternally Col. Barragar was a Very Wor. Bro. in the Masonic Order, a member of Ionic Chapter, Frank Lodge A. F. & A.M., a Patriarch in the Canton and associated with The Belleville Lodge A.F. & A.M. He was a man who was the efficient secretary for many years. He was, also, a member of Moira Chapter, R.A.M. Col. Barragar was Past Grand Steward of the Grand Orange Lodge of Canada. Col. Barragar was interested in community welfare and was an active member of the Belleville Literary Club.

Left to mourn his passing and to whom the sympathy of many friends will be extended are one daughter Mrs. Lyall G. Ireland of New Orleans, La., and one sister, Mrs. Demorseville, Demorseville, Ontario.

The announcement of the funeral, which will be with military honors, is made elsewhere in this paper.

MISSING TRAPPER,

dore's mother, stated that they had not seen Sedore since two weeks before Christmas. Mr. Beatty inquired of his whereabouts from Woodman on April 16th and was told by him that he had not seen Sedore and that the last time he saw him he was going across country.

Beatty stated, that Sedore being a trapper, not much thought was given to his absence.

Says He Always Had Money

Joseph Demore, Flinion storekeeper, saw Sedore last on Feb. 8th when Demore gave him $25 owed to Sedore by Wilfred Sedore, his brother. Before they paid his bills the storekeeper testified, and always had lots of money.

Mrs. Stella Beatty, mother of Sedore, stated that he always had money and was known to have had from $400 to $500 on his person at a time. He never refused her money any time, she said. She knew he owned a pump shotgun and a 30.30 carbine rifle. He had not been satisfied with the rifle and had intended buying a new one.

A watching brief was held by Mr. I. D. Corcoran representing Mr. J. Wallace Pringle, Napanee, counsel for Robert Woodman who is being held in Napanee on a charge of vagrancy.

PAIR ADMIT THEFT OF BARS

Two Young Men Are Remanded For Sentence

Horace Bowker, 24 and Gordon Graves, 21, both of this city, pleaded guilty to charges of the theft of angle bars and other track materials, the property of the Canadian National Railways, when they appeared before Magistrate K. J. Butler in today's local police court. They were remanded until Monday for sentence.

Bowker and Graves elected summary trial and pleaded guilty as charged, Fred Chapman, in charge of the C.N.R. special agents, presenting the information. Mr. Chapman told of the discovery of the theft of 400 pounds of angle bars and other track metalio materials. "They sold the iron to a junk dealer for $12." informed the witness.

"That's a pretty small amount of cash to drive from over 800 pounds of iron isn't it?" asked Crown Attorney Donman as he stated he was under the impression the iron was worth brought 2 1-2 cents a pound since the sudden rise of the price of steel had come into effect. The total stolen was valued at $106.56, Mr. Chapman revealed.

"Have these young men any previous records?" queried His Worship.

"I believe they have, but they are not available here," answered Mr. Donman.

"I would like to use these records, so we will remand these cases for sentence until Monday," stated Magistrate Butler.

A transient, who gave his name as John Turner pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication. Would I get the time I've already served on remand included in the sentence he pleaded the account man. His request was denied as Chief Reid stated he was undergoing of lency. Two other minor charges under the L.C.A. and a non-support case, held in camera, constituted the proceedings. The court adjourned early to convene again at 3.30 p.m. this afternoon for special session.

BANCROFT YOUTHS TAKE TERMS IN JAIL

Convicted of breaches of the Excise Act, Archie Boomhour and Robert Lake, two Bancroft youths, were sentenced to serve three months in the common jail in default of payment of the amounts of fine levied. Magistrate A. E. Lloyd in County Police Court held court at Bancroft.

Boomhour and Lake were prosecuted by Chas. E. C. M. Gow, charged of operating a still suitable for the manufacture of illicit liquor and having same in their custody. The charges terminated a raid made by the "Mounties" on the still early last winter when the still was found and confiscated.

The conventional fine of $100.00 and costs was imposed in each case but the youths informed the court they were unable to pay the heavy assessment and in consequence were remanded to serve the terms of time that is meted out in default of payment of fines levied under the Excise Act.

MRS. GRACE LEONARD IS GRANTED DIVORCE

In the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario, held before Mr. Justice J. K. MacKay at Belleville, this week, Mrs. Grace Leonard, (nee Grace Leeman), was granted a decree absolute in her divorce proceedings. The case was undefended. C. A. Campbell, K.C., appeared for the plaintiff.

ROAD TO PLANT IS BEING IMPROVED

Work on the Pinnacle Street Road leading to the Stephenson-Kenson Company, recently authorized by city council was commenced yesterday by employees of the department of public works. The road will be macadamized. Work at the city quarry which is at present employing a force of fifty unemployed men, of whom the majority are relief workers is expected to last for about one week when authorities installed stone for summer road repairs will be supplied street gangs.

DONATIONS REQUEST, TO AID BEACH PLAN

Donations to support the work of the Quinte Tuberculosis Association in furthering their plans to provide a beach and park at the east end of the city are urgently needed. Such contributions will be appreciated by the committee. Donations may be left at the Ontario Intelligencer office.

Ald. Henry W. Greenleaf has been appointed chairman of the Coronation Week Committee.

WHAT! AN AUTOMO BILE IN BERMUDA?

No, Lovvia Young, motion picture star, is not breaking the law. The "auto" in which she is riding at Pembroke Gabs, Bermuda, is apparent defiance of Bermuda's ban, is really a velocs. a log-powered roadster, the vehicle has four wheels, three speeds, brakes, etc., but summed up is really just a bicycle with a body.

BLAZING BEACON FIRED BY SCOUTS

Ceremony Culminates Festivities For Picton And District

Picton, May 14— (Special)— A blazing beacon, some sixty feet in height, flamed through rain drenched skies Wednesday on Macaulay's Mountain, near Picton, forming one of the links of Boy Scout cross-continent flares, and culminating the Coronation Day festivities of Picton and Prince Edward County.

In the afternoon Picton and district joined in the nation-wide coronation celebration. Several thousand people thronged the gaily-decorated streets of the parade and subsequent services held on the campus of Picton Collegiate Institute.

Preceding the service was a parade headed by the band of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and, which included members of "C" and "D" Companies of the Hastings and Lennox and Addington Regiment, and which included members of "C" and "D" Companies of the Hastings Legion, representatives of town and county organizations and decorated bicycles and cars.

A feature of the program was the broadcasting of the message of His Majesty King George VI. to the assembled crowd through the medium of a loud-speaking system. Rural school pupils under the direction of Mr. C. H. Simpson and town pupils under the baton of F. E. Walden combined in the singing of Coronation Anthems. In an impressive address, Mr. Carson Hubbs briefly described to the assemblage the meaning of the Coronation. Mayor Scott presided.

Previous to the ceremony each school student received a medal emblematic of the important occasion.

A feu de joie fired by members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment concluded the ceremonies. Morning activities consisted of the planting of trees in Memorial Park.

EIGHT MEN KILLED

Although informed sources in Berlin and London avoided reports the explosion was caused by a torpedo from a submarine, Prefecture Spanish government News Agency, declared:

"Two mirrors circulate in Almeria. The less authorized is that the vessel struck a mine patrolling the coast. The most consistent accounts say the disaster was caused by a torpedo launched by a German submarine."

("German submarine" was presumed to mean one German-built and in the hands of Spanish insurgents).

May Have Been Torpedo

The Agency said the Hunter's bow showed holes on both port and starboard, indicating a torpedo had passed through the hull.

News of the disaster, printed in morning newspapers in Great Britain and various versions caused widespread indignation, but naval quarters pointed out authorities might find it difficult to assign responsibility.

All-Time Winning Streak Earned by Carl Hubbell, Giants In Defeating Pirates 5 to 2

Hurls 21 Victories in Row Over a Two Year Stretch

KUHEL TIES RECORD

Joe DiMaggio Takes Over Cleaning Position in Yankee Line-up

By SID FEDER

Oddly enough, the only man in baseball who wasn't all steamed up today over Carl Hubbell's all-time winning streak was Carl Owen Hubbell, himself.

Naturally, "Squarepants" took pride in his string of 21-in-a-row over a two-season stretch, an achievement never before accomplished in baseball history, but he realizes that one of these days, the law of averages is going to catch up with his good left arm. Then the Hubbell bubble will be "busted".

"You know," he said, repeating what he has said time and again, "a streak like that is largely a matter of luck. One of these days a pitcher is going to be hot against us and is going to shut us out.

"Every time I go out there to pitch I'm not thinking much of the streak. It's the immediate game on hand that I'm working on, of course I want to continue the streak, but largely because I'm paid to win ball games. I'll go on winning them until some club catches up with us."

Giants' Mail Ticket.

Until then, however, he's still New York Giants', "mail-ticket" who comes through with that win when it's needed; still the screwball specialist whose 5-3 win over the Pirates yesterday topped off a performance that outclassed the shrieks of the Waltherons, the Johnsons or the Marquards.

The queer part about the whole business is that the National League doesn't recognize the streak as a record. The only distance flinging feats given official sanction are the 18-straight by Tim Keefe in 1888 and Rube Marquard in 1912. The Rube also won his last start in 1911, for a run of 20 straight.

It was that run which "King Carl" eclipsed yesterday with a six-hitter against the Pirates. It was "Hub's" fifth straight this year and hooked onto his unfinished run of 15 last season. The best he is going to get for the job is a special notation in the books that he won 21 in a row in league competition for a two-year stretch.

Bells Three Triples.

Joining him in breaking into the record books yesterday was Joe Kuhel, Washington's first baseman, who belted three triples to tie the modern major league mark and lead the way to a 10-2 win over the White Sox, ending the Pale Hose's season losing streak.

A revamped batting order paid dividends as the New York Yankees as they nosed out St. Louis Browns 4-3 and shoved up to a third-place tie in the American League. Joe DiMaggio, batting in the cleanup spot in the Bronx's place, clubbed out a triple and two singles.

Brooklyn's scuffling Dodgers turned in their fourth straight win, topping Cincinnati Reds 6-4, while Chicago Cubs went 12 innings before downing Boston's Bees 8-7, and St. Louis Cardinals continued their Baker Bowl belling with a 5-4 conquest of the Phillies.

Making his major league starting debut, George Gill pitched a five-hit shutout as the Tigers topped the Red Sox 4-0. For the second straight day the Athletics and Cleveland were rained out.

EDMONTON GRADS WIN

Edmonton, May 14—(CP)—Edmonton Grads, united as the International Women's Basketball Championship in 1923 by Coach J. Percy Page, seemed certain of another successful defence of the Underwood Challenge Trophy today as they marked up a second victory over Wichita Thurtiens.

Grads trounced the Kansans 49-12 last night to take a two-game lead in the best-of-five series and are rated to end the series in the third game tomorrow. The Edmonton quintette won the first game 33-18.

TUSSLE PROMISES PLENTY ACTION

Flying Dutchman Meets Katan, a Tough Wrestler in Main Bout

Henry Piers, the "Flying Dutchman" need fear anything Honest John Katan has to offer in their bout as the Arena next Tuesday evening and the latter promises to be wild and woolly affair. Piers is used to all kinds, of wrestling. First he learned the Greco-Roman style. Then he entered the catch-as-catch-can tournaments of the 1928 Olympics and reached the final by defeating Ed "Strangler" Lewis who became champion of the world in a professional bout less than a year later which made Piers look like a good even then.

Turning professional himself, Piers soon found that the opposition didn't elect to Olympic rules and he schooled himself to cope with the attacks of the mat villains he had to meet. Now he is busy doing so with such success, that he now considers himself ready to be matched with a clean wrestler or a rough.

Main bouters will be in the semi-final. Ralph Garibaldi, sensational Italian, who is the younger brother of Gino Garibaldi, has been matched with Cyclone Jack Fletcher, former football star at Rutgers University.

In the preliminary Al Dunlop and Joe Maynard will set a fast pace for the other grapplers.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Six Stories Up

By Daphne A. McVicker

It began like all lovers' quarrels, it went on like most of them. They both said ugly, hurting things. And then because his jaw was so set and stern and she hadn't been used to being crossed, she said the unforgivable. She forgot that he had come from a small western town, that he was very proud of a self-made family that perhaps, in his inmost heart he was a bit timid of the swank social set in which she lived.

"It would be a step down for me anyway—" she began.

She never finished. He had jumped to his feet, his grey eyes flashing. He had bowed icily:

"Then I certainly shan't urge you to take it," he said. "I shan't come back, Maureen. At least until you yourself admit that I can take you up in the world far higher than you've been."

She tried to speak, to express her instant regret. But it was too late. He had vanished from the room as completely as from her sunny living room. She plunged into gaiety, foolishness, a whirl of amusement, trying to forget.

Bored with parties, she tried a business career and for a time lost herself in a new interest.

But long-lashed blue eyes set in with a dark smudge had the same effect on the boy two rows behind her in business college as they had on the stag line at the cotillion. She found herself all over again, trying, trying to forget another voice that had said pleasant things, woodland tones that had looked down on her, flushing a little at her nearness.

Another engagement flickered into being, flickered out again, leaving Maureen ashamed and unhappy.

And then one day she jumped out of a car in a pouring rain and hurried into the front of a dingy building. A nearby radio store was singing for all the world to hear, and it had chosen that yearning cry that had echoed through all her happy days that season so long ago, "Boulevard of Broken Dreams."

It looked like a street of sorrows, full of people dodging about in the fine lines of driving rain, and Maureen ducked her pretty blue rubber beret and pulled her saucy blue raincoat with its huge wooden buckle close around her with a little shiver.

She sighed with relief as she found herself in the warmth of the building entrance, her finger pressing the elevator bell.

"Third," she said carelessly, pressing herself against the back of the elevator.

A moment later she gave a little choking cry. A bed dream that came to life! Then was that of being trapped in a stalled elevator, unable to move in either direction. And now it had happened. The elevator had groaned and stopped. "What's happened?" she demanded.

The man whose broad back concealed the entrance with its precarious slice of between floors view, spoke slowly.

"Power's off," he said. "Nothing to be frightened about. It's happened before. He—here, you aren't going to faint, are you?"

With an enormous effort, she righted the elevator, which had been revolving in her desire about her, and stiffened her small spine, "It—no," she said. "Not right now."

But at that moment he turned with a swooping motion and stood staring down at her.

"Maureen!" he said incredulously. "You!"

She nodded and clenched her hand on the brown stenographer's book that she carried to steady herself.

"And Maureen," he said thickly, "you're working, too?"

"Hard," she told him, and then she felt his big violently and cried out, for he had jerked the lever down with the power. With a cord back, hurled them violently aloft.

With a jerk, Martin stopped the car. Below and above, bells began ringing out a steady call, but he did not notice, nor did she. For he was holding her tight, kissing the bruised lip and murmuring to her. Then he stiffened. "I forgot," he muttered. "I wasn't going to—"

But she took his shoulder.

"Ye yo were," she insisted. "You said so. When you could take me up in the world higher than I was already. And you have Mart. You're taken me up six stories."

TARZAN'S QUEST

With that savage spearman at his heels flight was impossible, so Jane tried a different policy. "You are a chief, of course," she said, hoping to make a favorable impression by flattery. He snapped: "I am not a chief. There is only one chief—Kavanda-anda."

She tried to draw her captor into conversation, expecting to gain helpful information. At first the Kavuru only growled, then he snapped viciously: "Shut up, or I'll cut out your tongue! Kavanda-anda does not need your tongue." Thereafter Jane was silent.

That night Ogdii bound her securely with his rope, and lay down to sleep. In the morning they were again." Then he shouted. And the massive pales swung open like the jaws of a devouring monster. A moment later they closed grimly behind Tarzan's mate!

Ogdii pointed back to the forest, and said: "Look well upon the outer world; you will never see it

In the midst of the glamour and splendour attendant at the Coronation ceremonies, it seems fitting that the realities which gird the sinews of the Empire—the buying and selling of merchandise—should take their proper place. We are proud in the knowledge that, outside of the British Isles (perhaps including them) Eaton's is the LARGEST retail distributor of Empire-made merchandise in the British Empire. We are proud of the mighty link we forge in the chain of Empire trade.

To impressively picture the dominant part the C.D.S. occupies in Empire market places, we devote this week to a glorification, in display and advertising, of Empire-made goods.

LAKE SHORE HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION TO CLOSE

Government Not to Yield To Demands of Strikers, Hepburn States Today

Increase in Wage Scale Would Curtail Program

DECIDES 'FAIR' WAGE

Hepburn Claims "Steward Plan" Inspired in Soviet Russia

Toronto, May 15 (CP)—Premier Hepburn announced today the government will abandon road construction work on Lake Shore highway just outside Toronto rather than yield to demands of striking highway workers.

If increased wage rates were decreed in the case of the Lake Shore contract the same scale would have to apply on $12,000,000 worth of roadwork contracts throughout the province and, as a result, the construction program would have to be curtailed, the Premier said.

Demand Is Refused.

Representatives of the Lake Shore strikers came to the Premier yesterday demanding a 50 cents per hour minimum for unskilled workers and rates riding as high as 75 cents per hour for semi-skilled men. They also asked that the "steward system" should be upheld.

"The steward system had its inspiration in Communist Russia and under it the men would be running the contractors' business for them. We won't have it," Mr. Hepburn said.

The Premier said that last year when Ontario let road contracts in association with the federal government, it was stipulated that the prevailing wage rate in the various counties should be considered as the fair wage for government contracts. Those rates ranged from 33 to 40 cents per hour. This year, he said, contractors submitted their tenders on the same basis but in the case of the highway paving work in Mimico and New Toronto, it was found there was no standard rate for the county. The municipal rate was 50 cents per hour.

FIVE KILLED AS TRAIN HITS BUS

Fast Passenger Train Running Fifteen Minutes Late

Milton, Ont., May 15 (AP)—Five persons, four of them school children, were killed today when an automobile used by transporting the children to school collided with a Montreal-bound train two miles north of Milton village.

The dead were John C. Vanzer, 37, driver of the car, Rena Lavelle, 11, her brother Howard, 12, Earl Murray, 10, and Earl Fuller, 14, all Milton.

Investigators said the driver apparently expected a clear track at the little second-grade crossing, unaware the train, an express from Washington and New York to Montreal, was running 45 minutes late.

The light sedan was hurled against the front of the locomotive and every person in the vehicle was killed.

SCHOOLBOY ROWE IS SUSPENDED

So Says Detroit News in Story on Sport Page

Detroit, May 15—(AP)—The Detroit News today said it had learned from a reliable source that Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, Tiger pitcher, had been suspended indefinitely, without pay, until he is in condition to play.

Rowe, left behind when the Tigers entrained for St. Louis Thursday night, denied he had been suspended. He underwent treatment for Henry Fordism, a malady for stomach trouble and a cold. He has been unable to play in a complete game this season.

When the Tigers left Detroit, Manager Mickey Cochrane said Rowe would remain here and work out daily at Navin Field until he "feels he is well enough to take his turn on the mound." He did not mention a suspension.

MAYOR IS BLAMED FOR TWO HOLIDAYS

Windsor, Ont., May 15 (CP)—Board of Education action in removal today as criticising Mayor E. S. Wigle for abolishing two school holidays here this week. L. C. Hughes-Baller, board chairman, who suggested the first holiday, was also rebuked.

John F. Tripp, chairman of the Board, charged two extra holidays—Monday and Friday — followed Coronation Day had disrupted the city's educational system. He contended it "is not my job to run the city" but he has consulted the board before provincial holidays are declared.

DOCTOR SENTENCED TO JAIL

Toronto, May 15 (CP)—Dr. Geo. A. O'Leary, Toronto physician, was convicted today of defrauding the Toronto Welfare Bureau of $25 by billing it for more service among indigents than he rendered. He will serve one month in jail.

MOUNTIES DISEMB ARK THEIR HORSES AFTER OCEAN CROSSING

Of the many empire forces which participated in the coronation procession on May 12, none received more cheers and applause than the colorful Canadian Mounted Police contingent who, dressed in bright red tunics and mounted upon well trained horses, made a fine showing. The Mounties took no chances on not appearing their best and made sure they took along their horses from Canada. A group of them are seen above as they watch the horses being disembarked at Surrey prior to the coronation.

LORD SNOWDEN DIES SUDDENLY HEART ATTACK

Former Chancellor of Exchequer And Prominent Labor Leader

ACCEPTED PEERAGE

Championed Balanced Budgets And Orthodox Finance

London, May 15 (CP)—Viscount Snowden, 72, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, died suddenly today of a heart attack.

Snowden died at his country home in Tilford, Surrey. He had been confined there for some time in ill health. His widow, Viscountess Snowden, explained on the day before the Coronation that her husband was not well enough to attend.

His illness, however, apparently had not seemed critical for Lady Snowden was present, and was a guest last night at the state ball at Buckingham Palace. She was informed here of her husband's death and left immediately for Tilford.

Snowden was Chancellor of the Exchequer during the financial crisis of 1931 and Sept. 21 introduced the bill suspending the gold standard. A few weeks earlier he had brought down his famous "axe and tax" budget which had aroused by heated measures to arrest the flight from the pound.

Not In Last House.

He was Chancellor in both Labor governments and followed Ramsay MacDonald into the National government in 1931. He remained at the treasury through the financial crisis but did not seek re-election to the House of Commons in the general election of that year.

He accepted a peerage and remained in the cabinet as Lord Privy Seal until the summer of the following year when he resigned over the government's tariff policy in the Ottawa agreements. Later he became a severe critic of the government and particularly of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, for so many years his chief in the Labor movement.

One of Lord Snowden's last utterances was in a radio speech when he addressed a letter to the Cobden Club advising that statesmanship which could not avert the catastrophe of another war was "bankrupt."

"If the war which we are told is inevitable does break out, it will be declared on that occasion, "the contest thereof, added to present debt, will be the cause of certain financial ruin to the nation."

Free Trader.

Philip Snowden, as he was known before he was made a Viscount, was, as a Socialist and a Free Trader, but throughout his career a consistent opponent of Socialistic legislation and orthodox finance.

He was a pioneer of aid in the civil service but illness, which was to make him a cripple for life, forced him to retire in 1893. As an invalid he gave most of his time to writing but he was able to move around began writing and lecturing on Socialism.

He rapidly made his way to the front of the Liberal Labor party and first entered the House of Commons as a member of the backbenchers in 1906.

Dines with King Then is Sentry

London, May 15 (AP) — Private Tirkatene of the 1st Battalion Grenadier Guards, participant in the Coronation had the experience of dining with the King one night and guarding him as sentry the next day.

The Tirkatene represents the southern Maoris in the New Zealand House of Representatives, besides being a private of the New Zealand National Guard. He was entertained at Buckingham Palace with other parliamentary delegates. Later he mounted guard at the gates thereof which he had driven on the night before.

Happy Festive Crowds Throng London Streets

Sightseers Like Jokes, Something to Look at, Some Tricks to Play—Girls and Women Are in Majority

By I. NORMAN SMITH

London, May 13 (CP)—The end of Coronation week finds London well into its dismantling task but the festive fever remains. A man needs only to drop his hat and a crowd gathers.

The fashions and sweat hotels are continually surrounded by sightseers, eager to obtain a glimpse of the Royal Family and Empire and Foreign Notables. Traffic remains abnormal with the bus girls dragging into its third week and the thousands of visitors add to the congestion. The Whitsun week-end finds the London packed instead of empty.

Barriers Disappear.

Immediately the Coronation procession passed on Wednesday, Boy Scouts began uprooting the barriers that aided police to control the crowds. It is an easy task to uproot and the great timber structures that held the thousands of spectators along the procession route but they are rapidly going.

The grime of London's parks was turned into mush under millions of feet and heavy rains. Countless feet of tulips and other flowers suffered much damage.

The streets themselves were finally cleared of refuse and pulpy slush to which newspapers were reduced by the combined action of feet and rain. One cleaner termed it "one bloody hell of a mess" which is backed up by official figures that 500 tons of rubbish were carted off the streets after the Coronation.

Rubbish a Record Pile.

Subway rubbish made the previous record of 72 tons during the jubilee of 1935 but this week it promises to pass 80 tons—another way in which the Coronation was bigger and better.

MERRILL PLANS TO ENTER RACE

Merrill And Lambie Back Next Week on Workaday Jobs

New York, May 15 (AP)—Henry T. "Hank" Merrill, the only man who has flown the Atlantic four times in an airplane, talked today of his next flight—the air race to Paris—and decided his experience gives me a pretty good chance at that prize."

The race in August will commemorate Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's historic flight to Paris, accomplished just 10 years ago next week.

Merrill's second round trip across the ocean was completed at 4.35 p.m. E.S.T. yesterday when he and his co-pilot, John S. "Jack" Lambie, Jr., landed at Floyd Bennett Field, 24 hours, 22 minutes after leaving South Port, England, and exactly five days to the minute from the time they took off last Sunday for London to bring back pictures of the Coronation.

Merrill made his first round trip last September with Harry Richman, the night club singer.

Merrill and Lambie spent three full days in England. "They showed us a marvelous time there," said Merrill.

"Everybody was just as nice to us as they could be. It was a grand visit."

Both fliers will return next week to their workaday jobs of flying a transport plane on the New York-to-Miami run.

JUSTICE KELLY TO LEAVE BENCH

Has Served 51 Years as Lawyer And Jurist in Ontario

Toronto, May 15 (CP) — Monday morning Mr. Justice H. T. Kelly will step down from the Ontario Supreme Court bench to which he was elevated more than twenty-five years ago. He is retiring on the 51st anniversary of the day when he stood in surrogate Hall courtroom and was called to the Ontario Bar.

He will hold the regular weekly court and then turn it over to his colleague friend, Chief Justice Sir Wm. E. Rose. This will be of particular significance as Mr. Justice Kelly brought his first case before Chief Justice Rose a half-century ago, a few years before Arthur Kelly, son of the retiring jurist, brought his first case before Chief Justice Rose.

CORONATION BALL IS SPECTACULAR

Royalty, Nobility and Empire Dignitaries Are Present

CORONATION BALL

London, May 15 (CP)—Most spectacular of the formal Coronation festivities of 1937 was held at Buckingham Palace last night attended by Royalty, nobility and dignitaries from every part of the Empire.

Dancing took place in the gold and white ball room lit by huge crystal chandeliers that shone on men in gold embroidered court dress and women beautifully gowned in dancing dames and lovely brooches with dazzling jewelled tiaras and necklaces. Guests from the Indian Empire were particularly string in their Oriental costumes.

The Queen was gowned in ivory lace with floral emblems embroidered in silver and gold. She also wore a high diamond tiara and a diamond necklace with pearl drops and diamonds. The King wore the full dress uniform of a field marshal.

Members of the Royal family present were Queen Mary, the Queen of Norway, the Duke and Duchess of Kent, and the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester.

Empire were particularly striking to Halifax, May 15—(CP)—Five persons had to safety today as fire raced through a 16-room house in Halifax north end today. Damage was estimated at $28,000.

John Schellmans, owner of the building, R. S. Stuart, W. R. Purcell and his eight-year-old son, Roy and Miss R. Devanny, housekeeper, were all up to get out of the building before flames levelled the three-storey structure.

CADETS HOLD CEREMONIAL

Kingston, Ont., May 15 (CP)—Annual ceremonial parade of the cadets of the Royal Military College before the members of the old vicory board of the College, was marked by despite rain which interfered with some of the program of the annual meeting.

The buildings at the college were inspected and a memorial service was held at the Memorial Arch.

Half of the Inhabitants Fleeing Rising Flood; Boats Used to Rescue

Nearly $400,000 Damage Estimated by Private Construction Firms

PLANES USE SKIS

Refugees Find Shelter on Dry Ground And in Public Buildings

Fairbanks, Alaska, May 15 (AP)—Rising river waters flooded three-fourths of Fairbanks today, caused half the 2,100 inhabitants to flee homes and cut off communication except by airplane.

Water about three feet deep flooded buildings. Persons saving their most valued possessions used rowboats and canoes to reach their homes. Private construction firms estimated damage at between $300,000 and $400,000.

Highways Blocked.

The Alaska railroad and highways were blocked. Airplanes quickly supped their skips with skis and slipped off the airfield where areas of muddy ground showed.

Refugees found shelter in private homes on dry ground and in public buildings and hotels.

SENATOR O'CONNOR, DR. W. P. ST. CHARLES, HONORED BY POPE

Conspicuous among the names of the recipients of honors bestowed by His Holiness Pope Pius XI, through the Apostolic Delegation of Ottawa are those of Senator Frank O'Connor, K. C. S. G. of Toronto, noted Canadian philanthropist, and Dr. W. P. St. Charles also of Toronto, and a brother of Miss M. St. Charles of West Metro, Street.

The Honors list contains names representing all classes of society especially those interested in such works as the Federated Catholic Charities, St. Vincent de Paul Society, The Holy Name Society and others.

Senator O'Connor was made a Knight Commander of St. Gregory with star in appreciation of his munificence to public good works, Catholic and non-Catholic alike, to poor, sick and afflicted of society.

Dr. St. Charles, who was awarded the Cross "Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice" and leading Toronto medical practitioner, and also president of the Lake Shore Mines Ontario is a supporter of charitable and religious works.

Royal Family Leaves For Windsor Park

London, May 15 (CP-Havas)—The King and Queen and the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose left Ingham Palace late today for the Royal Lodge in Windsor Park.

Earlier his Majesty received all foreign delegations to the Coronation in a "farewell" audience at Buckingham Palace. The ceremony marked the close of the foreign dignitaries' "official visit" to London.

The newly-created sovereign, in the presence of Queen Elizabeth and the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, shook hands with all his guests.

'King Anthony', Pretender, Warned Not to Print Currency

He is Not Worried Over Coronation Bank of England

SAYS CHARTER INVALID

London, May 15 (AP)—"It's not the Coronation of King George VI that worries the Tudor Pretender to the throne, Prince "King Anthony". It's the Bank of England.

The Bank of the English Realm even if they put me in jail for it, because its charter is invalid" said the would-be King, otherwise Anthony Hall, today in referring to a police warning he must stop printing his own private currency.

"His currency is for redemption when he mounts the throne" by virtue of the descent he claims from Anne Boleyn and Henry VIII.

CONVICTED OF FRAUD GIVEN JAIL TERM

Windsor, Ont., May 15 (CP)—Mrs. Ethel Hall, Windsor woman was in county jail today following conviction of false pretences in connection with selling stock in Michigan clients by telephone from Windsor. His fellow employees were free, one acquitted, the other on suspended sentence.

Julius Rabuah, 38, was sentenced to one month in jail late yesterday after Judge F. W. Wilson said he "must find he made false representations." Rupert L. Jackson, 49, was acquitted of the charge and Gregory Nalik 30, placed on one year's suspended sentence.

UNIONIZATION OF FORDS OPPOSED

Cards Circulated Among Workmen Outlining Stand of Ford

Detroit, May 15 (AP)—First approach move of the Ford Motor Company to oppose unionization of its 150,000 employees in the United States were revealed today.

An announcement card bearing Henry Ford's views on labor organizations and policies will be circulated among the workers Monday came soon after the union indicated it would seek a closed shop in General Motors plants.

Conferences last night between union officials and the management of two strike-closed General Motors plants at Saginaw provided for the union to retreat from its stand, with negotiations of the disputes opening the same day.

"Fordisms" Announced.

Harry H. Bennett, Ford personnel director, made public the cards—labelled "Fordisms"—that will be circulated among employees.

"We have always made a better bargain for our men than an outsider could," they inform the workers. "We have never had a bargain against our men. And we don't expect to begin now."

The statement adds that "our men ought to consider whether it is necessary to pay the outsider every month for the privilege of working for us." It cites the outcome of recent automotive strikes as being "merely that numbers of men put their meals into another pocket."

"We're only trying to show who pays for the food," it says.

"Figure it out for yourself. If you go into a union, they have got you and what have you got?"

Scotland Yard Shows Secrets to Mounties

London, May 15 (CP-Havas) — Secrets of the secret of Scotland Yard's methods of fighting crime were revealed today to a contingent of Royal Canadian Mounted Police here for the Coronation.

Heads of various departments welcomed the mounties, who visited Scotland Yard, which only a few privileged persons are ever permitted to enter. The visit included the criminal department and the radio car control room were all studied.

Baldwin Title is Earl of Cleebury Or Earl of Clee?

London, May 15 (CP-Havas) — The News Chronicle predicted today that when Prince Minister Baldwin resigns and is raised to the Peerage he will be known as the Earl of Cleebury or the Earl of Clee because of Shropshire origin of his family.

The newspaper said he had been treading the poems of A. E. Housman, who wrote "The Shropshire Lad", to guide him in choosing the name he will take for his title.

Bewdley, where he lives in Worcestershire, had previously been suggested for his title.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

The gardener on a vacation? The agricultural traveller who likes to wield a hoe may have a garden when he goes away to the country for the summer. Have a garden just for fun or something, and have your own vegetables. You needn't complain quick growing things. Tomatoes ready to pick, beans and beans, beets, radishes, turnips, carrots, kohlrabi, and some greens you can grow and enjoyed before the vacation is over. 90 days from corn can be matured in that time. Radishes in quickest results, about 25 days; the bush bean will take six weeks. It will be big, so plant deeper than you would in early spring.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, May 15 (CP)—Pressure is high over the far west portions of Canada and has extended from Lake Superior to Quebec eastward to Newfoundland. A trough of low pressure extends southwestward from Hudson Bay to the southwest States and a storm has developed and centred over Connecticut. Rain is occurring in the Lakeward valley and the Maritime Provinces and scattered showers have occurred in Southern Ontario and Quebec the western districts.

Lake Superior—Fresh easterly to northerly winds, moderate to fresh northerly winds, mostly fair and cool.

Georgian Bay—Moderate to fresh northerly winds, mostly fair and cool.

Lake Erie—Fair tonight and Sunday with stationary or a little lower temperatures.

25th Anniversary of Accession Celebrated by King Christian

Crowds in Streets Cheer Popular Danish Monarch

ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE

Copenhagen, May 15 (AP)—Tall and stately Christian X of Denmark and Iceland, fifth longest reigning sovereign of Europe, celebrated the 25th anniversary of his accession to the Danish throne today as thousands massed in Copenhagen streets to cheer the popular monarch.

The king, resplendent in the scarlet uniform of the Royal Life Guards rode with Queen Alexandrine in an open state carriage drawn by four black horses to the Cathedral of Our Lady for commemorative services.

Two other Kings, Christian's brother, King Haakon of Norway, and King Gustav of Sweden, with diplomatic and royal visitors went to the Cathedral for the occasion.

The 24th Danish monarch got away with a royal salute of 21 guns.

More than 20,000 visitors poured into the city from the provinces to take part in the silver jubilee celebration.

Every village and hamlet of tiny Denmark had some kind of celebration and observances were planned to continue through Sunday.

A gala dinner was held at a lavish night procession through the capital's streets was planned as a culmination of the jubilee which included a broadcast to the British Empire and to all parts where Danes had organized observances.

In Danish history, King Christian's 25-year reign is not unusual, for only since 1448 has the little kingdom had only nineteen rulers, ten of them named Christian, eight named Frederick, and one named Hans.

The only European sovereigns who outrank him in point of service are Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands who has sat upon her throne for 47 years, King Victorio Emmanuel of Italy with 37 years, King Haakon of Norway 31 years, and King Gustav of Sweden 29 years.

JAIL INMATES SPENT WEDNESDAY QUIETLY

To all outward appearances Coronation Day was just another twenty-four hours in the life of the inmates of the County Jail, according to officials of that institution. Only one expressed any desire to see the parade held in the city, but this had to be denied owing to regulations. The remainder were about their daily tasks of oblivious of the fact that one of the great events in the history of the Empire was taking place.

FLOWER BEDS RUINED BY KNIGHT PROWLERS

Residents of Church Street and other streets in the city are up in arms regarding the depredations of night prowlers who tramp over newly dug flower beds, ruining blossoming plants and crushing new shoots beneath ruthless feet.

"This is the second time this has happened in my residence on this dignant Church Street housewife today," and I think it should be stopped. We are going to keep watch in future and the culprits will feel the arm of the law if we catch them."

SHIPMENT OF BEES BROUGHT FROM GA.

Buzzing angrily as if indignant about being confined to the narrow walls of their hives by a journey swarms of bees in small screened bottles containing provender, a source of interest to a number of people this morning. Piled in the back seat of a car, the containers which were in transit to purchasers and which bore the trademarks of Georgia, U.S.A. apiary, were the scene of angry actions as the bees apparently sought an exit. The quieter of the swarms, however, were satisfied to remain in a solid egg-shaped cone of honey suspended at the back of the box.

An excited youngster finally located two bees crawling on the seat of the car, and which had apparently made a triumphant exit. They turned and hurried around the windows of the car, but the anxiety of the spectators did not wait to see what happened when the owner of the car made his appearance.

FARMERS TAKE STEPS TO PROTECT PLANTS FROM FROST TONIGHT

Prince Edward and Hastings Counties farmers marshalled their defensive forces today in preparation for a threatened attack by Jack Frost. Sharp covering of temperatures reminiscent of that which preceded the last of a year ago which destroyed hundreds of dollars worth of early planted tomato shoots and other green life caused mild alarm among the ranks of the market garden owners and other growers. In view of the fact that the height of the season is nearly double that of a year ago, added precautions will be taken to offset the ravages of the frost, should it put in an appearance, one prominent grower stated.

MIGHT MAKE EMBLEM FOR YACHT CLUB

Belleville Athletic and Yachting Club officials pondered the question today if a life-sized carp, rampant on blue field, would not be a suitable official club emblem, following an early morning discovery today.

Evidently placed by jokesters in the night, the carp was hanging gently in the wind from the fly of the jail mast of the racing yacht Joke, owned by Duke Smith, prominent Club official as the boat swayed at anchor in the upper harbor.

RAILWAYMEN HEAR OF WAGE DISPUTE

An interesting insight in the recent negotiations between officials of the Canadian National Railway Employees, which culminated in the strike vote, and which a threatened wage dispute was given to members at Division 126, Belleville, last night by J.E. McGuire of Montreal, General Chairman of the Central Region of the Brotherhood at their club rooms on Front Street.

Important matters pertaining to the welfare of the brotherhood and of local interest were discussed by Mr. McGuire. He spoke of the increasing membership of the organization which now embraces divisions from coast to coast.

Mr. McGuire who represented 15,000 railway employees at the wage settlements held the attention of his listeners as he described the various phases of negotiations and the final success of the dispute. A large number of members of the of the brotherhood attended the meeting.

KILLING FROST JUST YEAR AGO

One year ago on Saturday, May 16th, killing frosts which hung over this district following a week of low temperatures, rain and cold weather, caused hundreds of dollars loss to produce gardeners of this district with strawberries which reached their lowest recorded level in years, registered at 30-36 degrees. Fortunate then as homes, offices and city buildings were one more stoked up and citizens reverted to top coats to winter attire."

Hastiest losses were among tender tomato plants set in the open for the first time. It was estimated by T. Lewis, local market gardener that 30,000 of his plants were ruined, while reports of other losses came, in from districts as far as Bancroft and east to Napanee.

On the city waterfront heavy frosts were also recorded on that same date.

ONLY DRUMMING OUT THE CALL OF SPRING

"When you see a hard working woodpecker tattooing furiously on some hard object, just at this season such as glass insulators on telephone poles, or even the tin sheeting of drain pipes on churches or homes, don't get the idea he is an industrious bird. He's merely drumming out the call of spring—love call to his mate, or a message to other woodpeckers of the district. He has to have some hard, resonant object to select to do this", advises a local nature lover. Others of the local residents have become amused over their odd antics.

CHILDREN TRADING CORONATION MEDALS

Coronation medals issued by the School Board and city laid away for posterity 365 moons ago, are indirectly by this observance of one local youthful possessor of a shiny medal presented last Wednesday, who was vainly trying to negotiate a trade involving the medal with a second school chum on Front Street this morning.

"Are medals are common. Maybe I might trade for two of them", observed the holder of the marbled, exhibiting a fist full to the avaricious gaze of the medal holder.

With one hundred and thirty choristers, a large number of whom were boys from St. Simons Church, who had come down from Toronto to take part in the festival along with the church musicians of St. Simons choir, and the fact that the service was held in the form of evensong, there was a majestic and overpowering feeling of religious emotion about the entire festival. Rev. G. G. Wright, rector of the church conducted evensong. Creating the musical festival was His Lordship Bishop John Pearson, D.D., who pronounced the benediction. Among others taking part in the service were the Rev. C. T. Lewis of Belleville; and Rev. A. E. Swart. Evensong proceeded to the end of the third collect. The fertal responses were sung according to the Church Mutual Society and Psalms 121 and No. 122 were sung by the choir, which was divided into a chancel choir and a gallery choir.

The rendering of "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills", and of "I was glad when they said unto me", gave the large congregation an opportunity to hear the music according to special rhythm, pointing, a new feature of the musical service.

Dr. Willan's Settings Sung

The "Magnificat" and "Nunc Dimittis" by the famous musician-composer, Dr. Healey Willan of Toronto, were sung with very fine effect by the two choirs. The works of Dr. Willan are outstanding in their appeal and the manner in which the choir handled these was inspiring to those who know intimately the richness of the musical portion of the Anglican service. Particularly fine was the singing of "Nunc Dimittis".

Hymns sung by choir and congregation were "Have Mercy on Us, God Most High" with descant by Archie choir, Mark Luther's hymn "A Safe Stronghold Our God is Still", and "Crown Him with All Crowns" gave a magnificent opportunity for showing the volume and quality of tone, expression of musical sentiment and emotion. The part played by the choristers in these hymns was outstanding.

When the gallery choir sang the two motets "O Come Ye Servants of the Lord" by Christopher Tye, 1553 and "God Be in My Head" by Dr. Walford Davies, the congregation heard some of the finest ecclesiastical music it has ever been privileged to hear and to hear so well sung. The pure, flutelike quality of the boy voices was particularly appealing.

The chancel choir which overflowed to the south wall of the church, sang then "Rejoice in the Lord" by Henry Purcell, one of the greatest of composers of church music. This was rendered with the finest balance of parts, perfect intonation and finest shading of musical thought. The gallery choir then sang two motets, "God Lives Still", by J. S. Bach and "Preserve Us O Lord".

"God Save the King" Sung by Choir

The number which made the deepest impression was naturally the C. V. Stanford arrangement of "God Save the King". Herein the conductor Mr. E. S. Lewis of St. Simons Church, showed himself at his mastery as director. It was a most impressive finale to the Coronation Week. The voices of the large choir had ample opportunity for develop in the harmonic beauty and impressiveness this arrangement of the National Anthem.

S. S. Wesley's Anthem "Blessed be the God and Father" was rendered with fine appreciation by the chancel choir, which also sang the anthem "Judge Me, O God" by Mendelssohn which was also impressively done.

After the overture on the organ played by Mr. George N. Mayber, organist and choirmaster, who provided as organist for the festival, two choruses were sung, including the Coronation Oratorio, written in 1727 for the Coronation of King George Second and composed by Handel, "The King Shall Rejoice" appealed to the congregation. A double quartette sang "Exceedingly Glad Shall He Be", while "Let Us Be Glad" a number of the kind during the festival and was exceedingly well done and was followed by "Hallelujah Chorus" in which the fine effects were attained.

The organ accompaniments throughout were made by the secretary of the School of English Church Music, who accompanied the St. Simons choir to Belleville, that Mr. George Mayber, organist and choirmaster of St. Christ Church, has been appointed representative here for the School of English Church Music.

SUNDAY TRUCKING TO BE CURTAILED

Only Milk And Other Necessities of Life to be Moved

Instructions regarding the discouragement of continued Sunday trucking on provincial highways was today received by the Motor-cycle Patrol of the Provincial Police, Traffic Officer Sam Ervine announced. The instructions were issued through the office of J. P. Bickell, registrar of Motor Vehicles of Ontario, and specifically stressed the enforcement of the non-trucking laws as laid down under the Highway Traffic Regulations.

The notice received read as follows:—"The increase in the unnecessary use of commercial motor vehicles on Sunday makes it necessary to warn owners of such vehicles that their operation for commercial purposes or gain on Sunday in contrary to the laws respecting Sunday observance. The practice also increases the accident hazard and congestion on the highways on the one day of the week when considerations of passenger cars can use them."

This is therefore to advise you that consideration will be given to the suspension or revocation of motor vehicle permits of those whose vehicles are hereafter operated unnecessarily on the public highways on Sundays. It is, of course, not the intention of the Department to interfere in any way with the operation of motor trucks used for the conveyance of milk or other necessities of life, or those engaged in business that must in the interest of the general public, be operated."

The authority for suspending motor vehicle permits for unnecessary Sunday operation is contained in section 20 of the Highway Traffic Act."

The enforcement of this traffic law, namely the unnecessary operation of trucks on Sunday, will be rigidly enforced, Motorcycle Patrolman Ervine and Whitty announced today.

Obituary

MADELINE G. HODGKISSON

After an illness of three months' duration Madeline Gertrude Hodgkisson passed away at the Belleville General Hospital on Friday, May 14th.

The late Miss Hodgkisson, who was in her 21st. year, was born at Belleville, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hodgkisson, with whom she resided at 101, Pinnacle St., Belleville. She had resided in the city for the past fourteen years, and had numerous friends who knew her. She was associated with Christ Church parish.

Surviving to mourn her loss are her parents; four step-sisters, Beatrice, Tillie, Alice and Delia, and one step-brother, James and Ray, all at home.

The funeral will take place Monday morning, May 17th, from her late residence, 51 St. Paul Street.

REEVE GRAY'S CAR IS STOLEN
Taken, From Garage After Being Placed There Late Friday

An epidemic of automobile thefts has advanced to the stage, where it has become acute in Thurlow Township of late, three automobiles having been stolen from that vicinity within the past 48 hours. Two were previously recovered, but an automobile belonging to Reeve Percy Gray, 2nd concession of Thurlow was taken from his garage some time early today.

Mr. Gray placed his motor car in his garage and retired about 11.30 p.m. last night, but upon the arrival home in the morning, about one hour later, the automobile was missing. Provincial Constable Wm. McBrien was notified and in company with the Grays searched all the by and highways adjacent, but without results.

The stolen car was a 1931 model Chevrolet sedan bearing Ontario license plates number 3-J-85.

DECORATIONS TAKEN FROM CITY HALL

Emerging from its flamboyant colors of red, white and blue bunting, shields and flags, following the removal of the Coronation dress yesterday afternoon by city firemen, the city hall emerged bleak and bare today in contrast to the still decorated stores and shops through the business section. Removal of the city hall trimmings was hastened by the fact that the wind loosened many and threatened to blow them to the street.

Fifteen Nurses are Graduated From General Hospital

Miss Mary Edna Sullivan Gold Medallist of Class

ANNUAL EXERCISES

Dr. Bert Howard, Principal of Albert College, is Speaker

Annual graduation exercises of Belleville General Hospital in the Collegiate Auditorium last evening were attended by hundreds of citizens of Belleville and district who assembled to pay tribute to the fifteen young ladies who were presented with the diplomas which marked their entry into the profession of their choice. The graduates this year were Misses Mary Edna Sullivan, Marjorie Helen Doolittle, Dorothy Emmeline Osborne, Margaret Pearl Dewey, Helen Augusta Wallbridge, Doris Williams, all of Belleville; Kathleen Verda McDonald and Mildred Irene Laughlin, of Trenton; Thornton Marcella Love, Napanee; Annie Kellar, Frankford; Marjory Amy Hutson, Tort Dalhousie; Marjorie Phyllis Bonnell, Marmora; Ina Elda Boyd, Campbellford; Marjorie Agnes Robinson, Colborne and Nora Evelyn Thompson, Redneersville.

In their immaculate white uniforms which their lovely Marquess Waller Stunt splash of colour, the graduating class presented a charming appearance in their places on the stage which was tastefully decorated with ferns and blossoms. After the nurses had entered the auditorium the hymn "O God, Our Help in Ages Past" was sung, and prayer was offered by Rev. E. Farnsworth.

His Worship Mayor R. D. Arnold was chairman for the occasion and in his address he conveyed congratulations to the members of the class of 1937, on attaining the first milestone in their career. The Florence Nightingale Pledge was taken by the nurses who repeated the words of this famous exercise after Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne.

Presentation of diplomas and pins was made by Mrs. Van Blaricom, president of the Women's Christian Association.

Gold Medallist

Miss Mary Edna Sullivan received the highest award in the nursing course, the Gold Medal presented by the Belleville General Hospital Graduates, Mr. E. F. Bernstein, member of the board of Governors, in presenting the medal with the prize, for the highest degree of efficiency, commended the efforts shown during her years of training, the diligent study, and hard work which had made possible the achievement, congratulating Miss Sullivan not only on her success but on the qualities which guided her.

Dr. G. A. Cronk, chairman of the Medical Staff presented to Miss Marjory Amy Hutson, the Medical Staff prize for the second highest award of merit.

Mrs. Jemmail-Shaw in presenting the prize in massage to Miss Helen Augusta Wallbridge spoke in high terms of the efficiency in this phase of nursing shown by all the graduates. Congratulations from the staff of Dolan's were received in a letter from Mr. Charles Dolan which accompanied the remembrance to each member of the class, the gift of a thermometer.

Miss McIndoo, superintendent of the hospital, presented to the successful nurses the following prizes: Dr. Cronk's prize in hygiene and sanitation won by Miss Marjory Amy Hutson; Dr. Morgan's prize in gynaecology won by Miss Mary Edna Sullivan; Miss Burke's prize in dietary work won by Miss Marjorie Amy Hutson; Dr. Blakiston's prize in surgery won by Miss Mary Edna Sullivan; Miss McIndoo's prize in neatness won by Miss Marjorie Helen Doolittle.

During the evening musical numbers were greatly enjoyed. These were two selection, "Pure as the Air" (German) and "Flow Soft Winds" (Vincent) sung by a chorus composed of Mrs. Hutchinson, Mrs. A. Brown, Miss L. Brown, Miss Cotton, Miss Reddick and Miss Potter and solos by Mr. R. M. Anglin, "Clorinder sings" (Morgan) "The Pretty Creature" (Horsen).

Graduation Address

The eloquent address to the graduating class, delivered by Dr. Bert Howard, principal of Albert College contained a stimulating message of encouragement not only for the nurses but for all present.

The challenge of life comes to all, either to follow a high calling or to make of the challenge a high calling the goal whether pointed out. While the profession of nursing is today a high calling, when it received the inspiration of Florence Nightingale it was then the most degraded career a woman could enter. She raised it's standard in the world; it has been made still higher by the thousands of women who in the years since her time have obtained it, and to-day that honour the newly graduated nurses have come.

The speaker cautioned his hearers to see that their occupation become really a vocation, for after all the millstones around the neck of the world today are due to a great many professions, followers are working in terms of bread, butter and meat instead of in terms of real life.

"Love to your profession" said Dr. Howard, "the stamp of character; tinting it with the colours of your own personality, the glow of the radiant touch of your own mystic soul and turning the ordinary task you are asked to perform into something very beautiful."

"Adam" he said, "takes interest in your patients, and above all do not get in the way of thinking of your patients as 'Another case', the father of another soul belonging straight to me and God and may turn possible defeat into victory.

"Make your vocation a service of wisdom by putting real content into your Nightingale pledge, reflecting on one phase of the life of the founder of your profession, the weary hours in the night she spent comforting the sick there may come to you inspiration, that timely voice, that mystic touch, that just helps you to fight out a little braver and a little longer. Keep your idealism in a profession that can become very material."

To make of a vocation a high calling one must have prayer which, some and noble, one's inner life, finally in order to bring to sufferers the gift of life in their darkest hours, it is necessary to cultivate a fellowship with the Eternal.

After Dr. Howard's address, the singing of the National Anthem concluded the graduation exercises.

SHANNONVILLE CEMETERY BOARD HOLDS MEETING

Committee Appointed to Arrange for Purchase More Land

Shannonville—The Cemetery Board held a special meeting at the home of K. B. Virtue on Monday evening. The meeting was called to see if the lack of space in the cemetery could be rectified. It was decided to elect three representatives of the Board to conduct negotiations with a farm owner who owns the land in the vicinity of the cemetery. In late years the cemetery has been greatly improved through unceasing efforts of the Cemetery Board. Those chosen to represent the board in the negotiations were: J. F. MacFarlane, W. S. Dies, Sam Geddes. The executive of the board is, Chairman W. S. Dies, Secretary, Fred Melbourne, Treasurer, Mrs. K. S. Virtue.

Mr. and Mrs. William Young were visitors in Shannonville on Wednesday.

Jack Bell has left for Norwanda where he has secured a position.

A large crowd attended the Coronation dance held in the Orange Hall on Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the Agricultural board. The hall was attractively decorated for the occasion.

An enjoyable coronation tea was held at the home of Mrs. Stanley MacDonald on Thursday evening. The tea was sponsored by the Women's Institute of Shannonville. A large crowd attended and the proceeds were gratifying to the ladies who worked so hard to make the affair a success.

Mrs. Phillip Reid aged 58 was buried in the Riverview Cemetery Shannonville on Monday. Mrs. Reid died suddenly in the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday with only relatives present.

Mrs. Macleod said it is possible the Spanish war may continue for another two years and it is imperative that arrangements be made to care for homeless and parentless children.

ORPHANS OF WAR TO BE CARED FOR

Establishment in Peaceful Sections of Spain is Planned

Toronto, May 14—(CP)—Establishment of model children's communities in peaceful sections of Spain for orphans of the Spanish war is being planned by an international committee, it was learned here today.

Announcement of the plan was made in a statement by A. A. MacLeod, chairman of the Canadian League against War and Fascism, prior to his departure for paris to represent North America on the committee.

The model communities will be more or less socialized, with educational and other facilities arranged so that the children will be largely self-sufficient.

Members of the committee, after discussing the plan in Paris, will make a study of likely sites and country houses in certain sections of Spain. It is hoped to have a farm, a laundry, carpentry shop sewing room, shoemaking and other trades, shops operating in conjunction with each community. The Spanish government will be called upon to provide teaching, medical and administrative staffs for these centres.

Letters to the Editor

19 Isabel St.,
Belleville, Ont.,
May 13, 1937.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

Dear Sir:

Several things struck me very forcibly yesterday during Belleville's Coronation celebration: 1st. The veterans cry of 1916-18, "Vive Dieu"! Are we afraid? Should we be afraid? Fear paralyzes. No! one practically no-one knows who knows where our strength is. 2nd. The Coronation Anthem, the music by Miss Price's composition. I stood 50 feet north of the Bailey saluting "Mon Pariel" so was in the correct position to judge. The music was spiritually superb, and does says a lot, but no one I'm sure is surprised when we think of Ross Burnell's past accomplishments. There is an old saying "A prophet is not without honor except in his own country and amongst his own people" but this does not apply in this case. All honor to Ross for his wonderful production.

Thank you for space,
Arthur Rowland.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Fort Perry, Ont., May 15 (CP) —Plenty of sauerkraut and bratwurst to celebrate is the secret of long life for the Raymes twins, George and Charles, who celebrated their 85th birthday.

"We put up a 30-gallon barrel of sauerkraut each year. That's what makes us last," explained John. He sailed the lakes as an engineer for 35 years. His brother superintended the machinery at a local grist mill for 47 years.

London, May 15 (AP)—A gilted friend of the Duke of Windsor asserted today he is definitely fixed that the Duke's bride-to-be will not become "Her Royal Highness" at least not immediately. He said it was possible the King might raise the Duchess to the rank of "H.R.H." after a lapse of time.

Detroit, May 15 (CP)—Michigan bartenders are going to learn how to mix and serve drinks with demonstrations. William Ennis Brennan, of the Bartenders' Union, will conduct a "bartenders' school" here during the third annual convention of the Liquor League of Michigan May 23-26. The league has 7,000 members.

Chicago, May 15 (CP)—Quarters and half-dollars totaling $120 brought by unclaimed to three high school boys who discovered a buried cache near Lake Michigan, Police, however, took a different view. Declaring the coins counterfeit, they started a search for the manufacturer.

Seattle, May 15 (CP)—Don't mention a chicken dinner to the William Jacksons.

For 18 consecutive days the Morgans ate a chicken a day, hoping to find a $100 diamond pecked at in Mrs. Morgan's ring while she was feeding the birds.

The diamond was found in the gizzard of the last rooster. Now they haven't any chickens.

Union, S.C., May 15 (CP)—City Patrolman Kelsey Kinard was on the car before, but couldn't remember just where. He lagged it, anyway, for overtime parking.

Mayor E. M. Davis was the owner. He fined himself $1 in Mayor's Court. Patrolman Kelsey then recalled where he had been the day before and lagged it for the same violation once previously.

Little Benny's Note Book

Saturday afternoon me and Puds Simkins was sitting on my front steps and I said, I feel punk and I been feeling punkier all day.

You don't feel any punkier than what I do, Puds said, and I said, The heck I dont.

Well knowing whether I did or not but feeling so punk I felt like arguing for the sake of the argument, saying, I started the day wrong, that's what's a matter with me. The first thing this morning I had to go a-round before breakfast, rolling marbles the day weree than going a errand on a empty stummick, I said.

Well how about me? Puds said, I had to stand still and have 2 buttons sewed on me when I could of had a swell ride with Shorty Judge in his father's delivery truck if I'd of been ready. What's one errand compared to a lost ride in a delivery truck? So that proves you're punkier than me, said, and I said, I dont hae to, because in the first place thats a lot of baloney and in the 2nd place I'm not skinny, I'm just regular.

That's what you think, Puds said, If said because fat people aren't as sensitive as us other people because their nerves are berried deeper, that's why.

O is that so? Well skinny people like you haven't even got any nerves, all they've got is a bunch of rusty wires, and you can ask any doctor, Puds said, and I said, I dont hae to, because in the first place thats a lot of baloney and in the 2nd place I'm not skinny, I'm just regular.

Why haven't I? Puds said, and I said because fat people aren't as sensitive as us other people because their nerves are berried deeper, that's why.

O is that so? Well skinny people like you haven't even got any nerves, all they've got is a bunch of rusty wires, and you can ask any doctor, Puds said, and I said, I dont hae to, because in the first place thats a lot of baloney and in the 2nd place I'm not skinny, I'm just regular.

Why haven't I? Puds said, and me you seem as skinny as a half starved, sardeen that was even too skinny when it was born. Well do you want to know how fat you seem to me?

No, and the way I feel I advise yop not to tell me, Puds said.

Wich I was just going to tell him anyways only just then the other fellows came up and we got in a game of cops and robbers.

Proving people that start the day wrong are the worst company for each other.

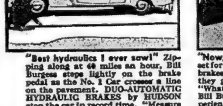
BILL BURGESS DISCOVERS A new kind of brakes

SAFEST STOPPING

ANY CAR EVER HAD . . . ANOTHER No. 1 FEATURE OF CANADA'S No. 1 CARS



"Best hydraulics I ever saw!" Zipping along at 46 miles an hour, Bill Burgess stops lightly on the brake pedal as the No. 1 Car crosses a line on the pavement. DUO-AUTOMATIC HYDRAULIC BRAKES by HUDSON stop the car in record time. "Safest I've ever driven it," says the dealer. 69 feet, 7 inches! Less than half the distance allowed by law.

"Now, disconnect those hydraulics!" All set for an extra special test . . . the hydraulic brakes are purposely disconnected and away they go back over the same test route. "What, no brake at all?" "Wait and see!" Bill Burgess is now about to have an experience he'll only duplicate in a 1937 Hudson or Terraplane. Up to 46 miles an hour again . . . Stashing over the line . . . "NOW!"

"Stop again!" . . . AND HE PUSHES THE SAME BRAKE PEDAL! No fumbling for an emergency brake lever. Bill just pushes the regular brake pedal a little farther down . . . and again . . . a quick, smooth stop! "That's the kind of a brake system for me!" exclaims Bill. Yes, but only Hudsons and Terraplanes have them!

"Two separate braking systems!" When Bill Burgess stopped the first time he used only the hydraulic brake system. After disconnecting the hydraulics he again stopped quickly and smoothly with the reserve mechanical system. "A feature that's years ahead," explained the dealer. "Typical of all Hudson engineering!"

"Only Hudson and Terraplane have brakes like these!" For your complete protection Hudson builds three separate brake systems into their cars . . . hydraulics that are big, powerful, sure-acting . . . an entirely separate mechanical system that operates from the same pedal and a hand lever parking brake conveniently placed under the cowl with finger-touch release.

HUDSON No. 1 CAR OF THE MODERATE PRICE FIELD

TERRAPLANE No. 1 CAR OF THE LOW PRICE FIELD

Safest stopping is but one of dozens of No. 1 FEATURES you'll find in any new Hudson or Terraplane. No. 1 in performance, performance, economy . . . holders of 41 OFFICIAL A.A.A. records! You'll quickly understand why new thousands, like Bill Burgess, are driving, riding . . . and discovering for themselves their No. 1 CAR!

No. 1 Cars of the Low and Moderate Price Fields

No. 1 Wheelbases . . . 117 inches in Terraplane; 122 and 129 inches in Hudson • No. 1 Horsepower . . . 96 and 101 in Terraplane; 101, 112 and 122 in Hudson. Double-action carburetion in Super Terraplane and all Hudson Eights • No. 1 Roominess . . . 55 full inches of front seat comfort for three • No. 1 Driving Ease . . . with exclusive Selectric Automatic Shift (as optional extra) • No. 1 Safety . . . with exclusive Duo-Automatic Hydraulic brakes and bodies all of steel, including roofs. New Double-Drop "2-X" frame • No. 1 Economy . . . 27.5 miles a gallon for Terraplane; 23.44 for Hudson in Los Angeles-Yosemite Economy run. • Hydraulic Hill-Hold, optional extra on all models — 45 models — choice of 8 beautiful colors . . . also a complete line of Terraplane Commercial Cars • Ask about the new Never-Knit Hudson Time Payment Plan — terms to suit your income.

W. E. MORTON, PUBLISHER

AN EARLIER ERA

A story appeared in the papers the other day of a child's flute which was found in a cave buried at the sixteenth level below the present surface of the plains of Iraq. Such a civilization takes man back at least six thousand years.

In this generation which deals with thousands of years in the development of the race, man has a tendency to look upon the emergence of mankind from the primitive as very far ago. But on the other hand it is found that records and relics of civilization go back very few thousand years. Naturally the age before man came to the use of the powers he now possesses would leave few if any relics. One might believe one could go back farther than the present evidences of civilization.

But this discovery of the child's flute in a stone age assures of one thing—that in the ages as yet uncovered and unrevealed to us, children already had their toys. One of the most touching facts in excavations of older civilization is the retrieving from the dust of centuries some plaything of a child of another race and of another age. It shows the child was indulged then as now, that he had his toys. This little Mesopotamian child who owned this flute had of course an unusual toy, one to make a music.

One unique fact stands out in his excavation—that the advanced civilization which appeared on the lower levels at Iraqu disappears entirely on the twelfth level ,possibly as a result of some world upheaval, when civilization sank back.

Parents of today who take a child's joy as their own as they furnish him or her with toys and gifts have the great consolation of knowing that the little boys and girls of far-distant pas had just as good times, indulgent father and mothers as children have today. Doubtles that instinct is as old as the first man and the first woman.

So life under any dynasty and under any era has many things which are largely the same as they are today, the forms may differ but man, woman and child are quite the same at heart. Man has his foibles, the things he likes and dislikes. It would be no surprise to find the true representative of man as a fisherman or hunter or spectator such as we have today.

HEALING THE HURT OF BABEL
(New York Times)

Never before in the history of man have so many persons heard one and the same voice at the same as "listened in" to the voice of King George VI Wednesday. It is science that has made this world audition possible, but the scientific fact still has all the mystery of magic for those who take part in it. Yet it is significant not only in what has been achieved but in what is promised for the future. The augury of the flight of words into every sky is that some day mankind will again be of one speech, as by tradition it was before the confusion of tongues at Babel. There is a genealogical memory in the Book of Genesis of a lad who was given the name Peleg (meaning "divided") because at the time of his birth the division came. Employers and the employed were not able to understand one another and so the work was halted—and the tower that was to reach heaven was never finished.

It is estimated that in Shakespeare's time the total number of English-speaking persons in the world did not exceed the number of men, women and children in New York City at the present time. Moreover, comparatively few were then able to read and write the English language. The number now must be somewhere between 200,000,000 and 300,00,000. With the ever-extending use of English in broadcasts and by other means of communication, that number must be constantly increasing—perhaps assisted by an auxiliary language, but inevitably moving toward an earth-population in which everyone will hear his neighbor, as at Pentecost, speaking in his onw language. Not that other languages will disappear, but that all civilized people of whatever nation will come to have one in common of ever-widening range. The King of Britain now the "lord of the language" as Chaucer said in choosing English instead of Latin for his sovereign speech, has made brave and noble use of that last phrase in the utterance of the words that were at the heart of his moving coronation address:

This is indeed a grave and constant responsibility. But it gave me confidence to see your representatives around me in the Abbey and to know that you, too, were enabled to join in that infinitely beautiful ceremonial. Its outward forms come down from distant times, but its inner meaning and message are always new. For the highest of distinctions is the service of others, and to the ministry of kingship I have in your sharing dedicated myself with the Queen at my side in words of the deepest solemnity.

This message will be reaching even beyond "the bounds of the free peoples of the British Commonwealth"—wherever indeed English speech is welcomed.

THE WANDERER

Behold him as each day he comes
To someone's door,
Begging of meat, of life sustaining crumbs
From richer store.

Limping hopelessly upon his way
With ill-shod feet,
To God knows where within a day
Unto what night retreat.

Turning for charity to those who can Help him his way,
Keeping his senses clear another span
Of wandering day.

Wandering the dusty road of Life
Learning it's turns,
Meeting with every phase of strife
That sears, that burns.

Looking to brother men more blest
To keep him whole,
Body to mind, mind unto soul possess'd
Upon their dole.

Asking of you and I a penny's fare
That he may roam,
Onward toward those hilltops where
Seeks he his home.

IT'S PLEASANT TO SEE OURSELVES AS OTHERS SEE US—when they see us in a favorable light, hence a letter from G. B. Van Blaricom, editor of the Canada Lumberman, was a very palatable tonic to start the day with. Mr. Van Blaricom is a Belleville Old Boy and keenly interested in everything that transpires in this neck of the woods, despite the fact that he chose the Big Time and made good on some of the best newspapers in Canada. Editor Van Blaricom recently entertained an audience of Rotarians and recollections of that species of humanity which revels in writing LETTERS TO THE EDITOR, with particular reference to that particular species which refuse to sign a name for publication and passes the buck of responsibility, and damages, if any, to the newspaper publisher. Editor Van Blaricom took note of the recent 48-page Rotary Edition of this Great Family Journal and was pleased as the following excerpts from his letter testify:

I have been scanning the pages of the Special Rotary Edition of May 1st, and wish to congratulate you on the splendid and instructive issue, which covers in a very interesting way the activities of the Rotary Club, and particularly the outstanding work that it is doing on behalf of crippled children.

The contents of the entire number reflect the large measure of work, patience and research that must have been exercised by your staff in presenting such a wealth of information on the history, development, and associations of Belleville—past and present.

You are to be congratulated on your enterprise, and I am sure that the issue will be preserved by many readers as a memento, for its wide variety of material, and the bright and attractive manner in which it was presented.

MARK TWAIN CREATED LOTS OF FUN OUT OF THE JUMPING FROG OF CALAVERAS, that classic story of a western mining camp where time hung heavy between shootings and the originator of a new idea for entertainment was acclaimed the hero of the hour. Now the Frog Derby of Calaveras, made famous by Mark Twain, is to be revived in all its ancient glory festooned with the latest tricks in holiday entertainment. May 15-16 is the date of the Frog Derby and woe betide any city slickers who attempt to capitalize on this one as they did on the original told by Mark Twain. As Mark tells it the city slickers fed the champion frog buck shot and it was so heavy it could not jump and the strangers entry won legs down. To prevent imitators the local hardware shop in Angels Camp, California, will be closed down the day of the derby and anyone found carrying buckshot is liable to be arrested on sight if not summarily lynched. No sit-down entries will be considered this year.

OTTAWA PARADE

Back Stage in the Dominion Capital with

WILFRID EGGLESTON

Many members of the Mounted Police have a rich store of reminiscence at their command. I heard a yarn the other day here that is too good to lose.

It was at the time of the terrible rock-slide at Frank, Alberta (then still the North West Territories) in 1903. Half the town was swept away in the avalanche. Half the people living in southern Alberta came to have rushed up there to see the spectacle, and the police were busy trying to maintain law and order. Frank was a pretty tough mining camp in its day.

This policeman was one of those summoned to the scene. When he arrived at Frank he was instructed by his superior officer to go down and close up a certain saloon which had re-opened contrary to orders.

When he got there he found the inmates pretty hilarious, and inclined to make a show of resistance. He promptly ordered the first two he could lay hands on and proceeded with them to the "jug".

When they were safely locked up he went back for more. He found meanwhile that the saloon keeper had closed it up.

Returning to the barracks, he found the superior officer in a terrible frame of mind.

"Do you know who you were looking up?"

The policeman hadn't any idea. It proved to be two of the most eminent legal minds of the north-west, one of them a household word still in Canadian annals. They had been released as once.

"You're washed up, as far as the force is concerned," said the superior officer. "You may as well hand in your resignation right now."

But the policeman didn't, and next morning the eminent legal gentlemen came up with a box of cigars, and congratulated him for having done his duty a member of the Mounted Police should.

I heard the other day of a Toronto man who refused a senatorship and a knighthood on the same day. Yes, it was years ago. I found this: I was seated at lunch with a man who had declined a senatorship in his day. Those Liberals are not very common. Everyone knows that L. W. Dafoe, of the Winnipeg Free Press, once declined a knighthood, and later the post of Minister to Washington. I don't know whether he was ever offered a senatorship though.

There was a curious juxtaposition in the Dominion Drama Festival which may not have received the notice it deserved. On the first evening there was a play based on the Moose River mine disaster, and prominent in it was a newspaper man who was broadcasting to his paper over the single telephone wire the events as they developed. But the immediately preceding play featured the work of a young man who was not a reporter but was actually the man who broadcast over the Canadian network the Moose River affair, and whose voice became very well known to all Canada.

In the Drama Festival, however, he was playing the part of a playwright and producer in one of A.A. Milne's comedies.

"Tam" Reid, of New Westminster, gets a good deal of kidding about his haggises, but he is not easily fazed.

However, during the last election he attended a Scottish concert and dance. One of the items on the dance program was a Scotch quadrille, a dance, which occupied considerable time.

"There was a piper there to play for this," tells the member for New Westminster. "But someone suggested that I play the pipes for this dance, and so I really got started.

"It so happened that the set of eight had to wait while I went to play, and, not being in very good practise, I was forced to stop after three of the four quadrilles had been danced, and to ask the piper to finish alone.

"On seeing this a man sitting in the wings came forward and addressed me, 'Mr. Reid,' I have attended many gatherings in this city, but this is the first time I have ever seen a politician out of wind'!

x x x

Did you know that "Tam" Reid's secret ambition was to be a preacher of the gospel, and that he actually studied for this vocation for a time . . . that instead, he realized another ambition and became a member of parliament . . . he was born in Scotland 50 years ago, and came to this country when he was 23 . . . he is a farmer by occupation . . . that the late Hon. Peter Veniot was a fellow apprentice blacksmith in his younger days, a principality, too, who had toured the Maritimes . . . he had little formal education and his rise to the highest offices and levels in his province (as premier) and as a minister of the cabinet at Ottawa is an achievement rare even in a country where merit counts more than birth or wealth . . . that Mr. Dr. C. J. Veniot, now represents the old riding (Gloucester) in the House of Commons.

Believe Bones Sedore's Say Jurors After Inquest; Means of Death Unknown

ieve Man Came to Death by Party or Parties Unknown

NOTE NEAR ASHES

Witnesses State They Were Offered Rifles For Sale by Robt. Woodman

"We, your jury empaneled to ascertain when, where, how and by what means some party came to their death, on the evidence produced, believe that the bones produced are the bones of Aubrey Sedore and that he came to his death some time in February 1937, on the west quarter of lot 21 or 22 in the Township of Kaladar, County of Lennox-Addington by some means not know to us and by a party or parties unknown."

This was the verdict rendered by a jury composed of R. J. Campbell foreman, Harvey Bryden, Chas. Bouchard, John Davison, Howard Hasler, Arnold Wagar, Joseph Yanch, Cecil Casey and Charles Jolliffe, before Dr. J. C. Wilson of Napanee on Friday, at Flinton with Kenneth Ham also of Napanee as Crown Attorney. The town hall was used for the occasion and it was packed continuously throughout the day as the evidence collected by the Provincial Police was unfolded to the jury. Many pages of and "My Goodness" as some salient point was d to by the large number of witnesses that paraded before the coroner's court. Robert Woodman, who is held on a charge of vagrancy in Napanee jail was not present in court but his counsel J. M. Slingerland, Cannonan of Trenton, who held a watching brief. Expert evidence was given by Dr. R. R. Franklin, medico-legal expert of the Attorney General's Department in Toronto.

Expert Evidence

Dr. Franklin, in the morning session positively identified the charred bones found in a brush fire near Flinton on May 2nd, as the bones of a human being and in the afternoon testified, that the notches found on several trees found out on the scene of the brush fire were identical with the notches seen on an axe, found at the home of Archie Woods, where Robert Woodman resided at the time of his arrest. Provincial Constable Fred Barrett of Napanee, who is in charge of the investigation under direction of Inspector Frank Gardner of Belleville headquarters produced both pieces of charred wood found in the fire and virgin wood and identified, that both pieces had been cut by the axe produced in court.

Testimony was also produced by several witnesses, that Woodman attempted to sell two rifles at different times after the later part of February or the first of March and also that he attempted to sell a Ford car, identified as a car belonging to Aubrey Sedore and finally did sell it to Charles Champagne for a price of $16.50. By J. C. Kingston, mining engineer, it was shown, that Woodman was an employee of the Rich Rock Gold Mine on April 1st, 2, 3, 6, 7, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 21, 22 but did not work on the 18 or 20th; the 18th being Sunday and along with the evidence was the testimony by Frank Lloyd, that he first witnessed the brush fire on April 19th but no investigation was made until May 1st and the charred bones were found on May 2nd and 3rd.

Doc Skin Identified

William Sowern, a garageman and truckster, identified a doe skin, found in the home of Robert Woodman with the pattern for a pair of gloves as belonging to Aubrey Sedore. Sowern walked, 3 the table and placed the pattern in the skin, where a piece had been taken out and it exactly fitted. He also testified, that Sedore early in the year had purchased from him two new tires for his car and the tires were delivered to Sedore at his home and that Sedore went to a gate near the barn and dug up a sealer from which he produced the money to pay for the tires. At this point Constable Barrett identified a knife found in the brush fire and the same was identified by Frank Lloyd as one like the one he had seen in the possession of Aubrey Sedore.

A note found by Provincial Constable Arthur Dymond, who investigated the fire on May 1st, and who arrested Woodman at the home of Archie Woods. The following night, was identified by the Constable. The note said:—"Say Bob, can u have the lend of your dog pen till Spring. Have to keep the dog outside. If I can have it, Shelton Freeburn will come after it". Signed Addie. The Constable stated the note was found forty feet from the fire and was scorched but never beaten. Mrs. Addie Renaud in evidence stated she had never written her daughter, and that it was written about Christmas time. Asked if she got the dog pen from Robert Woodman, the witness replied in the affirmative.

Admits Writing Note

Mrs. Nellie Sedore, daughter of the former witness admitted writing the note for her mother and after being shown the note identified it as the one written by her. She stated, that she signed her mother's name "Addie" to the note. Frank Floyd recalled at the point stated, that Sedore had a 30-30 Winchester carbine rifle, and a pump shot gun and around Christmas time he purchased a 25-35 rifle. Asked the range of the shotgun the witness thought it was a 12 gauge gun. At this point Kenneth Ham introduced evidence of witnesses, who had been approached by Woodman to purchase a rifle he had for sale. Wilfred Rennaud testified he knew Woodman and that around March 22nd, he was asked by Woodman to purchase a rifle. "but the deal was not made because he did not let me see the rifle." The witness also testified that Woodman attempted to rent him the home owned by Sedore for a sum of $3.00 a month, and when I asked him why he was renting the house, Woodman is alleged to have replied, "I have to kind of look after it," said the witness. Renaud did not rent the house and in answer to a question stated he saw Sedore only once this year.

Approached by Woodman

Robert Davison, an employee of the Rich Rock Mine was also approached by Woodman to purchase a rifle according to his testimony at the inquest. He stated Woodman had told him he had a 30-30 carbine rifle to sell and that he would throw in three boxes of ammunition for the gun. The witness stated he offered Woodman $15 for the rifle but he was "tight. I asked him, who owned the rifle" and Woodman said "Sedore". I never asked him, where he obtained the rifle," said Davison. Roy Reid knew Sedore for a number of years and also knew he had a car and that Sedore had bought parts for the car from him early in the winter. The witness stated he paid cash for the parts from a large roll of bills he was carrying. "Later," said the witness "Woodman wanted some rims for the same car as he said he had purchased the car from Sedore and he chased the car from Sedore and he the parts." "I axked him what condition the rims were in and he stated "good." Did you deal? asked Mr. Ham and the witness stated, "I saw him later and told him the deal was off."

Offered For Sale

Mrs. Everton Newton, sister of Robert Woodman and her husband, both testified, that a letter had received from Woodman asking if they could sell three guns for him but neither witness was able to tell the calibre or the make of the guns mentioned although they were repeatedly asked by Mr. Ham to give the specifications. "They could not remember" was the answer given. The price was quoted as $15.00 each. Both witnesses had told Woodman to bring them over and they would see what they could do but it was useless to try and sell a gun without the purchaser examining it. Mouni Wood, a returned veteran stated, that Woodman had asked him to purchase a rifle stating it was a 30-30 carbine with three boxes of ammunition. I said "where in hell did you get a 30-30?" and Woodman replied "From Aubrey Sedore." He said the rifle was one that Wilfred Freeburn had owned and I said if you paid $5.00 for it the amount was too much." Woodman also wanted to sell me a Ford car asking me $25.00 for it and two weeks later I saw the same car in Woodman's yard. "Did you know who owned the car?" "Yes Sir, the car belonged to Aubrey Sedore."

Told of Car Deal

Charles Champagne told of a car deal with Woodman, the later part of April stating that Woodman offered him the Sedore car for $20 and I offered him $15.00 and finally bought the car for $16.50. "He told me he bought the car from Sedore for $18.50. The witness said he had seen Sedore in the early part of February, when he asked me if I had any parts for his car and I told him to tear it down and I would see what I had but I never saw him again. Archie Woods identified the axe as the one Woodman brought to his place when he came to live there. Provincial Constable Barrett, stated the brush fire was 14 feet long by seven feet at its widest point and that the foliage on some of the trees was scorched as high as 24 feet. He produced pieces of both charred and virgin, and in all instances the wood bore the same marks.

DESERONTO

Deseronto—The residents of Deseronto and the surrounding district assembled at the Public Square to celebrate the Coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. At 3.00 p.m. the King's speech was broadcast over the radio, followed by an opening address by Mr. A. Burley. The Royal acoms were then planted by the youngest pupils Shirley McTaggart and Jack Baldree. Mayor Dr. W. C. Blackwell presented each of the pupils with a medal. A parade was then formed of the Public School pupils and teachers; High School pupils;the cadets from the Public and High Schools; members of the Home and School Club; Board of Education; members of the Canadian Legion, Branch No. 287; Town Council; the Fire Department; cars for the small children of the Public School and the citizens. The parade proceeded to Stanley Ave., Centre, Dundas and Brant Streets to the High School grounds where a tree was planted by the pupils. Mr. Wessels gave a short address followed by the presentation of medals to the pupils of Mayor Dr. W. C. Blackwell. The parade was reformed and marched down Thomas, St. George and Main Streets to Naylor's Theatre. At the theatre where which was gaily decorated in honor of the occasion, Rev. A.D. Waite acted as chairman. The program consisted of singing "O Canada" followed by a solo "God Bless the King" by Mr. Ken Wessman. Rev. C. E. S. Radcliffe gave a prayer followed by a Scripture Lesson by Rev. Herbert Prattley. All joined in singing the hymn " O God Our Help in Ages Past." Mayor Dr. W. C. Blackwell gave an address followed by "God Save the King" and the Coronation Anthem.

His Excellency the Most Rev. M. J. O'Brien, Archbishop of Kingston visited the Parish of St. Vincent de Paul on Ascension Thursday and administered the Sacrament of Confirmation on a splendid class . How CHEVROLET'S VALVE-IN-HEAD ENGINE "Steps-Up" Performance ... Yet Saves You Money

The Complete Car—Completely New

YOU hear Chevrolet owners mentioning gasoline economy in terms of 25 and more miles per gallon. You hear others enthusing over Chevrolet's "pick-up", pep, performance.

These people are not boasting, they're just telling the facts. And here's why: Chevrolet is a more economical car because Chevrolet is,the only car in its class with a Valve-in-Head Engine.

The great advantage is, a Valve-in-Head Engine gets as much as 10% more power out of every gallon of fuel than any other type. With the result that gasoline does more work, goes farther, costs you less per mile.

And because the Valve-in-Head Engine gives premium power and performance for the gas used, you find this type in many a costly motor car—in all airplanes, racing cars and speedboats that hold outstanding records.

Drive a Chevrolet for performance with economy . . . and the matchless all around satisfaction of Hydraulic Brakes—Unisteel Turret Top Body by Fisher—Knee-Action gliding ride (on Master De Luxe models) and Fisher No-Draft Ventilation. The business section of Main and St. George Streets are prettily decorated in honor of the Coronation with strings of small flags and colored lights placed at intervals across the streets. Two lighted banners are placed across the highway, one at each end of the town. Merchants have their windows decorated, the photograph of Their Majesties and Coronation colors are the main decorations. Flags and bunting adorned the Public Buildings and residences of citizens, making the town gay with colors befitting tribute to Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

A shower was held for Miss Ursula Brennan, a bride-elect of this week, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Malley, Main Street, on Monday evening. Miss Brennan received many lovely gifts from her friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown were recent guests of their son Mr. Sidney Brown and Mrs. Brown.

Frances Brennan of Toronto was a recent guest of his parents Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Brennan.

Mrs. L. Clement who has been confined to the house through illness is improved and able to be out again.

H. Hines of Picton spent the week-end here.

Garfield Macabe of Detroit is visiting at his home.

Paul Brennan of Montreal was a recent guest of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brennan.

Weddings

ANGELL-FRASER

A quiet wedding took place Saturday evening May 8th at 8 o'clock when Olive Isabella, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Fraser, Smith's Falls, was united in marriage to George Henry, eldest son of Mrs. R. Angell and the late Mr. R. G. Angell at Bayside St., city. The young couple will reside in Belleville.

WRIGHT — FROST

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Wesley United Parsonage this at 3.30 P. M. by the Rev. Mr. Pearl, when Miss Helen Frost, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Frost became the bride of Mr. J. A. Wright of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Wright of Yarker, Ont.

The bride and groom were attended by Miss Jean Wright, sister of the groom and Mr. Gerald Frost brother of the bride.

After the ceremony the happy couple returned to the bride's parents where about forty relatives and friends of the bride and groom were gathered to wish them a long and happy married life and to enjoy a very bounteous wedding breakfast with them.

The bride and bridesmaid were dressed in pale blue sheer and carried American Beauty roses with baby breath and fern, and a wreath of forget-me-nots for their hair.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid a compact, of green and gold to the pianist, Miss Marion Tucker of Sidney, cousin of the bride, a compact of cream and gold and to the best man a tie pin and clip to match.

A very pleasant afternoon was spent and the happy couple left early in the evening amid showers of confetti and good wishes for Oshawa and Detroit to spend a short holiday.

The bride's travelling suit was Coronation red with brown accessories.

On their return they will reside in Belleville where the groom is a successful motor mechanic and electrician.

PLEASED WITH PRESS

OTTAWA, Ont., May 15—Appreciation of the generous and enthusiastic support which Canadian newspapers and magazines from coast to coast are giving the Home Improvement Plan was voiced at a meeting of the National Employment Commission here.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Arthur B. Purvis, Commission Chairman, said the helpful attitude of newspapers and magazines has been the subject of favorable comment generally by Commission members.

"As a result of the generous and public-spirited support of magazines and newspapers, the Plan is becoming known widely and favorably," said Mr. Purvis. "Its advantages are being placed before the public in an attractive and helpful way. Remarkable cleverness and ingenuity has been shown by newspapers and magazines in publicizing the Plan. The net result should be an important speeding up of building and consequent increase in employment as spring opens up. The Commission appreciates greatly the co-operative spirit in evidence everywhere."

TAKES PRIDE IN BATHROOM

Little boys in the olden days, who didn't like to wash their hands before appearing at the table may have been affected by the unbeautiful, barren bathrooms and tin washbasins that marked the era.

Certainly in this day of decorative bathrooms that are given as much consideration as any other room in the house, anyone would want to linger as long as possible and handwashing should become a joy. A modern bathroom may be installed in your home with funds obtained from any Canadian bank under the terms of the Home Improvement Plan at a very low rate of insurance.

A bathroom was recently modernized and become a colorful room that was the pride of the house owner.

Walls were tiled a little more than half-way up. The tile was white with a wide black border at the top. Washable paper covered the remaining walls, with a design of turquoise, yellow, orange and brown. A black linoleum floor covering was used.

Indirect lighting fixtures were placed at either side of the medicine cabinet, affording adequate light for making the face. Two nearby outlets provided current for curling irons or other equipment.

The housewife purchased waterproof curtains for the window, which was over the tub, and a shower curtain. An orange chenille rug with a brown and white geometric design covered the floor, and yellow towels had brown and white stripes.

Love and laughs are adroitly mixed in the new W. S. Van Dyke comedy hit "Personal Property" co-starring Robert Taylor and Jean Harlow, now on the Belle screen.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Letter from Los Angeles

By John E. De Rosi

My dear Lona—

The sight again of this crazy scribble will probably startle you. Even little things were forever sources of infinite surprise and delight to you. Surely it will mean something—something more than the mere commonplace my darling —to realize that it is indeed I that have at last come back to you . . .

And yet, dear, it is no easy task for me to swallow the bitter pill of my pride and come to you in such humble fashion. If there were another manner of approach, less foreign to my nature, more flattering to my pride, I assure you I would have found it. Heaven only knows, Lona, the millions of black nights I have spent in futile search.

Simply, Lona—I love you.

My dear, with even a continent between us, I can vision the tears welling in your wondrous eyes. I can feel, too, the surest, sympathetic determination to come to me at once, believing that I am ill. No one but myself but caring only that I have come to you. How cajoled and swayed by sweetness you can be, I know; I have always known. Many times I have taken advantage of you thus. But now you must not think that I am merely trying to touch you with your generosity. Heaven again only knows the many times I have refrained from writing so in the past year! I swore to myself that I would come to you only when I could command you repeat as well as your love; and I have brought you the million black long months to accomplish this. And I have succeeded. I am no longer the weak irresponsible you once knew. I have lost my arrogance and conceit.

My dear can you remember a year ago on this approaching night? We parted? We had been somewhere and you had discovered my trifling intimacy with Gwen Carnegie. We quarrelled all the way home.

"Tell me, Nickie," you said, "we might as well finish everything. There never really could anything between us, anyway. I love you very dearly, Nickie, I shall always love you, but I am not in love with you. You're unstable and irresponsible, cynical, egotistical, irresponsible. And all when you could be so different. That's what I love in you, I suppose, what you need be. Or perhaps it's only what I think you could be. It doesn't matter, I only know I mean it this time. I shan't come back, Nickie. Good-by."

Outside, in the car, I sat for hours, thinking, the delicious sensations of sadness and futility dripping delightfully over my mind and heart. I was the misunderstood martyr and, as such, Lord how I relished it. I literally bathed myself in sorrowful contemplation, rubbing the bitter irritant of my woes almost gleefully into my spiritual sores. Smile, Nickie, as you leave. I with my own sadistic illusions, I decided to go away. I would become a vagabond, a derelict on the face of life's follies.

Fortunately, however, (or perhaps unfortunately) before I could embark upon my course of degradation and drivel I received a very lucrative offer to arrange music for motion picture musicals. It would be necessary to go to Hollywood. This Lona, as you can readily see, was a splendid opportunity for me to retain my ease and concern while still, in a certain sense, appeasing my primary impulse of vagabondage. I accepted.

Hollywood, however ,was not for me. I lost myself satisfactorily for a time, to be sure but came gradually to realize but one thing—how right you had been about me. I began to think solidly for the first time in years. I began to understand, too, your distaste for the insincere type of music I had been writing. And, finally, I came, to realize what you had meant by love and respect.

It was then that I threw over my job, left Hollywood, took a little place by the sea at Carmel and really began to work. Oh, Lord, how I worked! Night and day; day and night. I sweated blood into my music—out of the depths of my soul! A thousand times I faltered, fell. But always, thinking of you, fought incessantly on.

And now—

Well, now, Lona, there is little to say, except that my Suite: A Symphony In Sorrow, is to be presented the fifth of next month at Carnegie Hall.

I shall be waiting for you at the wings, Lona. Nickie.

Slowly she folded the letter and handed it to her husband. She watched his face as he read. He smiled, frowned, and then pleased eyes and mouth. Watching her husband, Lona thought, Nickie. She thought of his hard, cynical mouth, his sullen dark eyes. She remembered, too, in spite of herself, sensible petty evasions, deceptions, unreliabilities. Even this letter—what more was it than a dramatic exhibition of self?

She took the letter from her husband's lax fingers, and, smiling, folded the thin white sheets into countless small pieces.

PRESENTATION

About seventy-five friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Fox of Thomasburg on Friday evening May 7th to spend the last evening with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Grigg before their departure from the community.

The crowd was called to order and the following address read by Mrs. Harry Lovibond of Stirling.

Address:

Thomasburg, Ont.
May 7th, 1937

Dear Jennie and Sid:

We have assembled here this evening to spend a last pleasant hour with you before you leave our town for us.

It is with sincere regret that we witness your leaving this community. At the same time we all wish the best of happiness and good luck throughout your wedded life.

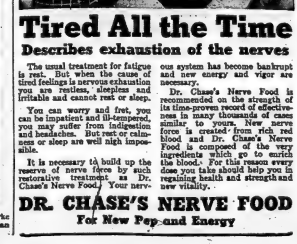
Although you have not been in our midst for the past few years, Jenny, we have always remembered your sunny smile and generous manner.

On all occasions you made every effort to be of assistance both at home and among friends.

We wish to express our gratitude for all you have done . . .

As a little token of remembrance, we ask you to accept this purse of money with our best wishes.

Signed,



Percy Ervine, Harry Cronkrite and friends.

The groom thanked all present in appropriate words on behalf of the bride and himself for the lovely gift.

"For They are Jolly Good Fellows" was then sung and the rest of the evening was spent in card playing and dancing.

Longshoremen's Strike Is Settled Today

Tired All the Time

Describes exhaustion of the nerves

The usual treatment for fatigue is rest. But when the cause of tired feelings is nervous exhaustion you are restless, sleepless and irritable and cannot rest or sleep.

You can worry and fret, but you can be impatient and ill-tempered, you may suffer from indigestion and headaches. But rest or calmness or sleep are well nigh impossible.

It is necessary to build up the reserve of nerve force by such restorative treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Your nervous system has become bankrupt and new energy and vigor are necessary.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is recommended on the strength of its fine, proven record of effectiveness in many thousands of cases similar to yours. New nerve force is created from rich red blood and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed of the very ingredients which go to enrich the blood. For this reason every dose you take should help you in regaining health and strength and new vitality.

ELDORADO

MRS. NICHOLAS BLACKBURN (Eldorado)

Eldorado—There passed peacefully to her eternal rest after a short illness on Sunday, May 9th, Mrs. Nicholas Blackburn, nee Mary maiden name was Elizabeth Saleman, eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Saleman of Madoc Township. She was born April 22nd., 1862, sixty-one years ago and was united in marriage to Nicholas Blackburn in the year 1905, who predeceased her seven years ago.

To this union were born five sons William, Clayton, Cecil, Leonard and Gerald. All settled on farms near the old homestead. She was a devoted mother to her sons and daughters-in-law and this happy memory of her they will never forget.

She spent all her married life on the farm now occupied by her son Clayton, until a year ago when she moved to the farm now occupied by the Gerald Blackburn family, where she died. She attended the Eldorado United Church and shared in all its activities and was also a faithful member of the Eldorado Auxiliary W.M.S. and was planning on having the next meeting in her home.

She is also survived by three sisters and five brothers, Jones and Sarah of Madoc Township, Richard, William and Mrs. Lee Richard, all of Marmora, Hamilton and Springbrook; Mrs. J. O'Rourke (Alice) of Queensboro and Mrs. Lee (Bessie) of Madoc and Charlie, Ben and Mrs. J. Reid (Annie), who predeceased her some years ago and also 27 grandchildren who are left to mourn.

The funeral service was held from her late residence on Tuesday, May 11th to the Eldorado United Church, where a host of sorrowing friends gathered testifying to the esteem in which she was regarded and held.

The service was in charge of her pastor, Rev. W. G. Fletcher, who spoke on "Peace". His was assisted by Rev. Stacey Allen.

The hymns sung were favorites of the deceased Mr. Vernon Reid and Mrs. A. Harvey contributed a duet.

The floral tributes were as follows: Pillow, the family; Pillow the grandchildren; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pigden and Eldorado and Union W.M.S.

The bearers were—Messrs. Charles M. McCann, Charles D. McCann, Fred Campbell, Alex Ferguson, R. A. Strebe and Henry Shaw.

The flower bearers were—Edward, Allen and Burrell Saleman, nephews.

The W.M.S. members were in attendance and followed the cortege to the cemetery.

Interment took place in the family plot in the Eldorado Cemetery.

MR. WM. McEWEN (Eldorado)

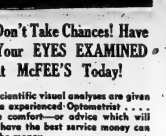
Eldorado—Mr. Wm. McEwen of Bannockburn, a well known and highly respected resident, passed away on Sunday, May 9th at the home of his son-in-law, Wm. McEwen at Kellar's Bridge. The late Mr. McEwen has been in failing health for some time. He was born in Bannockburn on July 3rd, 1873, and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thos. F. McEwen. He spent practically all his life in this village. In religion he was a Presbyterian until Union.

The funeral was held from the home of Mr. Wm. McEwen to the Eldorado United Church, where a large crowd had gathered to pay their respects.

The service was in charge of his pastor, Rev. W. G. Fletcher, who spoke from the text: "For we have not here an abiding city, but we seek after a city which is to be". He was assisted by Rev. Mr. Redding of Bannockburn, and Rev. Brazil of Ardoch-town. During the service the choir rendered an anthem "When they ring the Golden Bells for You and Me".

Left to mourn are his brother, Sam of Toronto; 4 brother, Thomas McEwen and sister, Evelyn, having predeceased him some years ago.

The bearers were Messrs. Alex Hunter; Frank Chambers; Findlay Harris, Stanley Sandford; Jim McEwen and Clifford McEwen.



The sympathy of the community is extended to those who are left to mourn.

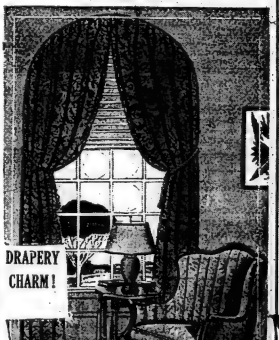
BRIDE-ELECT HONORED

On Tuesday evening May 4 about eighty neighbors and friends gathered together at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Frost, Front of Sidney, for a miscellaneous shower in honor of their daughter Helen's approaching marriage.

About nine o'clock Mr. Fred Wilson a close neighbor of the family called the gathering to order and Mrs. Mack Bird a friend of the bride, read the address to which Helen replied thanking her friends in her usual quiet and pleasing manner, for their kindness in remembering her at this time and invited each one to visit them in their new home.

The presents which consisted of silver, china, crystal and linen were both beautiful and useful and speak of the high esteem in which both Helen and Jim are held in the community.

DESCRIBES SCENERY OF NEWFOUNDLAND



A full house greeted Rev. Dr. Edwin Smith at Massassaga United Church last Thursday evening when he lectured on "Newfoundland and Labrador."

Dr. Smith is famous for his travelogues and this one was no exception. "It was one of the most interesting lectures I ever heard from start to finish" is the way one of his hearers described it "and the Church pictures—all taken by Mrs. Smith and himself were simply superb.

The natural scenery and the striking beauty of bays, lakes and rivers, mountains and moors, from south and west, to north and east coasts, were shown as well as the cod, salmon and seal fisheries. The iron mines of Wabana and the paper mills at Grand Falls—both unique in several respects—were also described in detail, while his photographs of Arctic icebergs were wonderful, almost beyond belief.

The hear Dr. Smith lecture is to receive a liberal education on any subject with which he deals. Dr. Smith spoke without "notes" and many of his comments were as amusing as they were instructive.

On Friday evening Dr. Smith will give the same lecture in Bethesda

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF ONTARIO
Graham vs. Graham et al

Pursuant to the judgment and final order for sale made in this cause, there will be offered for sale by public auction in the Court House in the City of Belleville at the hour of 2 o'clock in the afternoon on Monday, the 17th day of May, 1937, the following lands and premises, known as 284 Front Street, Belleville, being composed of and more particularly described as that part of lot No. 52 on the west side of Front Street, in the City of Belleville, according to a plan of survey registered in the Registry Office for the City of Belleville, having a frontage of approximately fourteen feet, more or less, on Front Street by a depth of one hundred and fifteen feet, more or less, as described in the mortgage made by the defendant, Ernest A. Moore, et al in favour of the plaintiff Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation, dated the 27th day of March, 1930 and registered as Number 30 in Mortgage Book "C" for the City of Belleville as No. 26624 together with all subject to all the rights of way as described in the said mortgage.

The property will be offered for sale subject to a reserve bid fixed by the said Local Master. The purchaser shall pay down to the Master's solicitor on the day of the sale 10% of the purchase money and shall pay the balance of the purchase money into Court without interest within thirty days from the day of sale. Adjustments to be made as of the day of sale. The purchaser shall search title at his own expense. The purchaser shall not be bound to produce any abstract of title or deeds or evidences of title other than those in the purchaser's and control. In all other respects the purchaser shall be subject to the standing conditions of sale of the court as settled by the undersigned.

On the premises there is said to be erected a brick building used as a store with three rooms in the second storey and electric lighting, gas for cooking, bathtub and toilet.

TENDERS FOR COAL AND COKE

SEALED Tenders addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Coal" will be received until 12 o'clock noon (daylight saving) Tuesday, May 25, 1937, for the supply of coal and coke for the Dominion Buildings throughout the Province of Ontario.

Forms of tender with specifications and conditions attached can be obtained from the Superintending Agent, Department of Public Works, Ottawa; and the Supervising Engineer, 36 Adelaide St. East, Toronto, Ont.

Tenders should be made on the forms supplied by the Department and in accordance with departmental specifications and conditions attached thereto.

In the case of tenderers quoting for one or more places of building and when the total of their offer exceeds the sum of $3,000.00, they must attach their tender a certified cheque on a chartered bank in Canada, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to 10 per cent of the amount of their tender, or Bearer Bonds of the Dominion of Canada or of the Canadian National Railway Company and its constituent companies, unconditionally guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Dominion of Canada, or the aforementioned bonds and a certified cheque if required to make up the 10 per cent.

The Department also reserves the right to demand from any successful tenderer security for deposit, in the form of a certified cheque or bond as above, equal to 15 per cent of the amount of his bid, to guarantee the proper fulfilment of the contract.

By order,

J. M. SOMERVILLE,
Secretary.

STUDY GROUPS ARE ORGANIZED

Will Discuss Thoroughly Co-operative Movement Plan

Thomasburg—During the past few months Rev. H. B. Herrington has been holding Study Group in the interest of the co-operative movement, while similar meetings have also been held at Stoco.

On Tuesday evening a meeting was held at St. Edmund's Parish Hall at Stoco when preliminary steps were taken to organize a co-operative movement in this district.

Mr. F. Blakely acted as chairman. Rev. Fr. Sharkey was introduced and during his talk tried to point out the benefit of a movement of this nature.

Rev. H. B. Herrington stated that during the Study Group meetings at Thomasburg, they have tried to determine why the farmers, to a certain extent have been purchasing power and have come to the conclusion that the co-operative movement is the one way out. However, the majority of the people should study this as it must be a movement that spreads to everyone throughout, and from the working man. There is too much profit for the middleman in disposition of goods to the public.

Under this movement surpluses are paid back to the people in the ratio of the money they spend and purchase powers are increased. Under the present system profits from sales of all commodities go to the wealthy people.

The organization for Study Groups must be got up with the view of the movement spreading so that the members are sufficiently educated along this line.

Mrs. Elliott was a guest for a few days last week of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Elliott and other friends at Ledgeroom.

Mrs. W. J. Brown has returned home after spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. R. Morton at Wombrook and Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Morton of Avondale.

Lake and ball team held a very successful dance in the I. O. O. F. hall on the 8th inst. Proceeds $20.

Mrs. W. S. Embury is the guest of friends in Tweed for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wright and children of Deerford were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Morton.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Lucretius Kennedy on the birth of a baby girl at Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday, the 12th.

Mr. George Walker received the sad news of the death of his brother Mr. F. Walker at Kaladar, Mr. and Mrs. Walker attended the funeral on Wednesday afternoon, interment being made in the Tweed Cemetery.

Local teachers and pupils of the local school enjoyed a holiday on Wednesday in observance of Empire Day.

Several girls of the C.G.I.T. Group and their leader Miss Lucille Herrington enjoyed a picnic at the "Flat Rock" on Wednesday.

Many in this vicinity were up in the early hours on Wednesday to hear the early radio broadcast of the Coronation service.

The most favorable weather Arbor Day was not observed at the School on Friday but was observed on Tuesday and during the afternoon a short Coronation program was enjoyed.

Two Royal Oak acorns were received at Thomasburg public school, the "Men of the Trees" from the Rotary Forest of Windsor and have been planted in commemoration of the Coronation of Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

A number of the local rebekahs visited Tweed Rebekah Lodge on Friday evening when that lodge was celebrating its fifteenth anniversary.

The regular monthly meeting of Thomasburg United Church Ladies Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Wesley Maynes on Thursday afternoon.

The May meeting of the Anglican Women's Auxiliary was held on Friday evening at the home of Miss E. Porter with a large attendance. The meeting was very tastefully arranged in keeping with the Coronation. The president, Mrs. Porter opened the meeting by all joining in singing "God Bless our King." Devotional followed by prayers. Mrs. Wesley Morton took the Scripture lesson which was taken from St. Marks Gospel Chapter 16.

Rev. Canon Bedford-Jones of the Board Meeting at Kingston was then read and the minutes of the previous W. A. meeting.

Arrangements were made to hold a progressive euchre for the months with Mrs. Clarence Jeffrey and Mrs. Lewis Morton as hostesses.

Mrs. Bessie extended an invitation to hold the June auxiliary meeting at the Rectory at Ivanhoe.

Miss Isobel Beatty who was the delegate to the annual meeting of the Diocese of Ontario held recently at Trinity Church, Brockville gave her report.

A vote of thanks was extended to the delegate. Master Reg. Mcock favored with a violin number and Rev. Mr. Beazor spoke a few words on the Coronation and brought the meeting to a close with prayer.

Lunch was then served and a social time enjoyed.

Coronation services were observed in the local churches on Sunday. At the afternoon service in the Methodist Church, Rev. H. Beazor conducted service choosing his text from 1 Samuel, 10-24. The form of service used was that recommended by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York and also the Sunday previous to the Coronation of Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. At the evening service special hymns were sung.

During the winter months Rev. H. B. Herrington has been holding meetings in the Hall of Tweedale a co-operative movement while also Rev. Fr. Sharkey has been holding meetings in the hall and one evening a joint meeting was held at Stoco and preliminary steps have been taken to organize a co-operative movement for this district.

"Personal Property"

The new and refreshing star combination of Jean Harlow and Robert Taylor, in the uniquely delightful romantic comedy, makes, "Personal Property", now on the Belle screen, one of the outstanding film treats of the month.

Taylor appears in an amusing role of a family black sheep who is trying to make good. Jean Harlow, beautiful, assigned to guard the chattels of a wealthy woman whose debts have gotten beyond her. Miss Harlow in the lady in question, of course and it develops that the need for the deputy to stand watch in the home, the scene of her duties on an occasion of social emergency and Taylor gets the role open for the handsome servant who admits a caller.

It is a foregoing conclusion that this mirthful couple fall in love, but the path of true love encounters many adventures that keep the picture laughing steadily.

"Personal Property" was based on the novel by Edward Hope hit, "Man in Possession." The supporting cast is exceptionally talented. Among the players are Reginald Owen, Una O'Connor, Henrietta Crosman, Forrester Harvey, Lionel Graham and Barrett Parker.

Miss Harlow who has never turned out an unsuccessful picture in his spectacular career directed this one and again comes through with flying colors.

"Hollywood Second Step", revealing the lives and loves of Hollywood's Second Step Late World News Events, and a funny comedy, "Mechanical Santa" is announced for presentation on the same program. Performances start at 7.00 and 9.15. The feature attraction begins at 8.00, 7.40 and 9.45.

Starting Monday, September 7, 10 and 11, the feature attraction begins at 8.00, 7.40 and 9.45.

The first actual scenes of the Hindenburg disaster at Lakehurst, New Jersey, are announced for presentation at the Belle theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday. Another featurette on the same program, "Hollywood Second Step", "Personal Business," produced all in full beautiful technicolor.

The feature attraction is the chuckling champion of 1937, "Call It a Day." If you like your film fare dished up in splendidly acted, delightfully humorous fashion, with a generous sah of light comedy, and seasoned with tender romance you can't afford to miss "Call it a Day," featuring Olivia Sutherland, Ian Hunter, Anita Louise, Roland Young and Frieda Inescort.

DIZZY HAD EARS PINNED WAY BACK BY THE PIRATES

Knocked Out in Fourth After Three Hits Had Been Registered

DETROIT GOES DOWN

In Second Division by One Run Last Year to The Browns

By SID FEDER

National League batters take warning. Dizzy Dean is back in ball's warpath.

All because those pounding Pirates from Pittsburgh plastered the season's most effective pitcher with the greatest of ease, yesterday, the great one has the bit in his teeth.

"Just wait 'un me the next time out," he told anyone who would listen today. "I'll really be foggin' 'em in."

And if he's anything like he was until yesterday, 14-4 pushing around his string of five-straight, "ole Diz" will be plenty tough from here on in.

Until he and the Cardinals were given a thorough going over in the smoky city, Dean had been plain and fancy poison to opposition batters. He had won four and lost one, had set runs in 46 innings, had muffled the enemy with 38 hits and 40 strikeouts and had compiled an earned-run average of 0.40.

Lasted Three Frames.

He lasted three innings and three straight Pittsburgh hits in the fourth frame before he took a walk yesterday, but still only two of the five runs scored off him were earned, since an error figured in them. As a result, his effectiveness still remained at something under one-run per nine-inning game.

After he'd slept on it, Dizzy wasn't sore at the Pirates. He gave them credit for the 30 hits they banged all over the lot.

"After all," he summed it up today, "when you get your ears pinned back, there ain't nuthin' to say. And believe me, fellas, my ears were pinned way back."

The victory for the Pittsburgh tightened their hold on the National League lead by a full game. They go into their home stand now with a 3½-game edge on the second-place Cards.

Schedule Washed Out.

Rain washed out all the rest of the National League program, as well as all but one tilt in the American. In that game, outside of the 6-3 surprise the St. Louis Browns handed the Detroit Tigers, the outstanding development was the way it shook up the standings.

The victory boosted the Brownies to sixth place over the hapless White Sox, and dropped the teetering Tigers into the second division, with the Browns taking sole possession of third place and the Boston Red Sox advancing to fourth, although both were idle.

JUPITER PLUVIUS DECIDING FACTOR

Preakness Will be Run Over Track Fetlock Deep in Mud

By ONLEY ROBERTSON

Baltimore, May 15 (AP)—A mile and 3/16ths journey over a rain-soaked track at Pimlico today stood between War Admiral and the turf's hall of fame as the son of Man o' War came down to the $50,000 Preakness the outstanding choice to whip the slushy three-year-old colts and a lone filly.

Ordinarily, that journey, over which only Sir Barton, Gallant Fox, Burgoo King, Omaha and Bold Venture travelled to victory after winning the Kentucky Derby, would be a breeze for the colt that left a much larger field far behind in the Derby a week ago.

Yesterday, however, Jupiter Pluvius took a hand in the proceedings, soaked the track with rain until it was fetlock deep in slop and threw a slightly different light on a race that's a few days ago figured to be a one-horse affair.

War Admiral's mud running ability is questionable. The majority of his backers stood staunchly by the Derby winner, however. Trainer George Conway said his charge would do, rain or shine.

While Merry Maker raised some consternation by his mud performances, the other entries remained strictly outsiders. They included: John Hay Whitney's Flying Scot, Julia M. Lott's Mogwire, Mrs. W. H. Jones' Sweep On Top, another offspring of Man o' War, and the filly, Joe W. Brown's Jewell Dorsett.

SOUTH HASTINGS BASEBALL LOOP DRAWS SCHEDULE

President Ed Shorey of the South Hastings Baseball League today released a 48-game schedule for the 1937 season. Five clubs have lined up for the playing season the loop being composed of Foxboro, Tweed, Centreville, Latta, Shannonville, Cannifton and the Belleville Kiwanis Juniors. The league opens on May 24 with games at Belleville and Foxboro. In a morning fixture the Belleville Kiwanis kids meet the fast travelling Latta squad. Their league rivalry starts at the local Pair Grounds with the opening ceremonies scheduled to open the season at 10.15 a.m. In the afternoon Cannifton meets Foxboro on the same diamond. Both games and in connection with a gala sports day program.

The 1937 South Hastings Baseball League schedule:

May 24—Latta at Kiwanis (morning game; Cannifton at Shannonville (afternoon).

May 28—Kiwanis at Cannifton; Shannonville at Latta.

June 2—Foxboro at Kiwanis; Cannifton at Latta.

June 4—Latta at Cannifton; Foxboro at Shannonville.

June 9—Shannonville at Cannifton; Foxboro at Latta.

June 11—Latta at Shannonville; Cannifton at Kiwanis.

June 16—Shannonville at Cannifton; Foxboro at Latta.

June 18—Latta at Kiwanis; Cannifton at Foxboro.

June 23—Shannonville at Kiwanis; Cannifton at Foxboro.

June 25—Kiwanis at Latta; Cannifton at Foxboro.

June 30—Latta at Kiwanis; Cannifton at Shannonville.

July 2—Kiwanis at Cannifton; Shannonville at Foxboro.

July 7—Foxboro at Kiwanis; Cannifton at Latta.

July 9—Latta at Cannifton; Foxboro at Shannonville.

July 14—Shannonville at Latta; Kiwanis at Foxboro.

July 16—Latta at Foxboro; Kiwanis at Shannonville.

July 23—Foxboro at Cannifton; Shannonville at Kiwanis.

July 30—Kiwanis at Latta; Cannifton at Shannonville.

All games scheduled at Kiwanis will be played as the Belleville Kiwanis Club and is also the Junior O.B.A.A. entry into the provincial play-downs, the Kiwanis juniors being the sole team entered in the Hastings County Junior League that is affiliated with the O.B.A.A. All games unless otherwise indicated will commence at 6.30 p.m. until further notice.

NO INDICATION OF FLOPPING

Leafs on Top by One Full Game in International

Toronto's young Leafs still headed the International Baseball League today—but in line with a nod to the weatherman.

Rain cold postponed the loop's program yesterday so the Leafs remain a full game in front of Newark and show no indications of flopping.

After hanging up seven straight wins to start the season, the hustling Bowlegged Bear Cubs have dropped five of their next six games. That they have what it takes was seen when they charged back into third place by annex six of their last eight encounters.

Toronto's fine start and the return of Jersey City has sent up season attendances soaring and presages a banner year. Another big reason for bumper crowds in Toronto is the presence in the lineup of Bobby Power, a home-town sandlot product who is hitting and fielding like a big league prospect.

WITH THE LAWN BOWLERS

By GEO. E. WATKIN

A meeting will be held in the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday evening to make final arrangements for the visit in Kingston on June 21 of the South African bowlers. This meeting will include members from all clubs in the district. Any of our members who are interested particularly be on hand at eight o'clock sharp Thursday, May 20. Our club is asked to send one team. There will be a banquet at the Galt Club in Kingston at which any of our members are invited who wish to attend. The party is made up of thirty-five men and fifteen lady bowlers. They are touring the Dominion and it is up to our district to give them a real reception. Mr. Cutcliffe of Norwood and Ira Green of Peterboro have in charge of the program so it should go over big.

Fred Harper informed me that he will have a short eight greens for May 26. The others will not be ready until the first week in June. This is o.k. There is not much bowling done until that time.

John Shaw spent May 12 making out a list of bowlers he is going to beat this summer. John was always a dreamer.

Charlie Sulman reports forty-seven new members to date. This is indeed good news.

One year ago last night it was exactly eighteen above zero.

This district will be honored this year when Dr. Carleton of Stirling will be president of the Ontario Lawn Bowling Association. The doctor is a real live wire and we wish him the best of luck. The election for this position takes place in October. He has been honored to have a member attain this position.

Mr. Jenkins of the Quinte Hotel bowls by the way is one of our new members has in his possession a photograph of a group of bowlers that played here in the early days the name each one in the group. Some of our old members should drop in to the Quinte and see it. It is indeed interesting.

(A safe bet)—Joe will be one of the first to play on the 24th inch.

Our new secretary, Bert Backus, will be out on the 24th looking the boys over to see how many are out.

It is the intention of Fred Hinde to give instruction to the new members before they join in the play-downs. The drive game is fast is a move in the right direction. Ab Wood and Jack Hall are willing to take the old players and do the same thing. Give Ab a ring and join his class.

For the information of the new players it is very important that you wear a flat heel shoe with rubber soles or running shoes.

Our clubhouse is getting a cleaning inside and out.

The Mayor's club held their spring meeting on Thursday afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. The meeting was of a routine nature. Several new members' names were handed in and a membership was appointed to deal with them.

Let us all make up our minds this year to make as few running shots as possible. The drive game is fast better and will win you far more games than the running shots.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Beau Bell, Browns—His two-run single provided margin of victory in 4-3 win over Cardinals.

Paul Waner, Pirates — His four singles drove in five runs in 14-4 win over Cardinals.

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT

Boston — Ed Don George, 220, North Java, N.Y., threw George (K. O.) Koverly, 225, Hollywood, Calif., 14:18.

Buffalo, N.Y. — Steve (Crusher) Casey, 228, Ireland, defeated Dr. Freddie Meyers, 215, Chicago, two straight falls.

HENRI PIERS

The Dutch heavyweight champion wrestler from Holland, who rasles John Katan, the former Canadian heavyweight titleholder, at the Belleville Arena on Tuesday night. Three all-star bouts are included on the card with Piers and Katan being headliners.

GARDEN DENIED AN INJUNCTION

Braddock-Louis Fight Will Go on at Chicago June 22

New York, May 15 (AP)—Elated by a federal court decision in their favor, Chicago promoters went ahead today with preparations for the Louis-Braddock championship fight June 22 as Madison Square Garden officials considered an appeal to a higher court.

While promoters of the Chicago bout, headed by Jim Braddock and Joe Louis, the Brown Bomber, looked for no further legal obstacles, New York promoters said they would not accept as final Federal Judge Guy L. Fake's decision in Newark yesterday.

He denied the Garden's request for a temporary injunction to restrain Braddock, under contract to fight Max Schmeling in the Garden June 3, from meeting Louis in Chicago.

Braddock, in training at Grand Beach, Mich., said he felt all along he would win," and Joe Foley, the Chicago promoter, announced tickets for the fight in Comiskey Park probably would be placed on sale Thursday.

June 21—Flying Canadians vs. Wildcats at Q.A.S.; Bluebirds vs. Tigers at Q.V.S.

Note: The title to the bantam championship goes to the team scoring the most games in the above single schedule. There will be no playoffs.

Ontario Softball Association rules govern the play in this league.

Team managers are reminded of the new ruling added to the rules and regulations of the Ki-Y which states that "players must refrain from playing in any other organized softball league during the period their division of the Ki-Y League is in operation."

Teams will supply their own balls. The league will furnish the balls.

All games will be played on the school grounds, indicated following the name of the home club of the day. All games are to commence promptly at 6.30 p.m.

INTERNATIONAL FLAVOR IN CARD

Every Bout on Card Will Have Wrestlers From Different Countries

It is quite a coincidence that every bout on the Queensbury Club wrestling show at the Arena next Tuesday will be an international battle. John Katan as a Canadian-Ukranian from Winnipeg and the former Canadian champion will be wrestling Henry Piers, born in Holland of which country he is the present champion.

In the semi-final will be Ralph Garibaldi of Italy and Eli Fischer, Jewish-American from Brooklyn, both of them main bout stars in the United States. Al Dunlop is a Canadian and his opponent,Joe Maynard, hails from Boston. It is sort of a carnival of nations but it was on their wrestling records that the men were selected and matched.

Jack Corcoran sends word that Garibaldi and Fischer, both comparatively fast in the heavy weights, should make a decided hit with the fans. The other bouts should furnish the classiest, cleverest wrestling of the show.

"Y" BOWLERS HOLD BANQUET

The annual banquet and presentation of prizes for five pin bowling took place last evening at the Y.M.C.A.

The long tables were prettily decorated and well laden. The Women's Auxiliary were in charge of the supper.

KI-Y SOFTBALL

Three games of softball were played in the midget section of the Ki-Y League; last evening with the Wildcats and the Flying Canadians and Bluebirds being returned victorious.

Hamilton Avenue School grounds the Bluebirds gave the Nationals a one-sided 17 to 1 trouncing, as the winners scored almost at a will.

The line-ups:

Bluebirds—Carson, Thompson, Tompkins, Morgan, Bartlett, Greene, Bowen and Davey.

Nationals—Dell, Young, Aeistikne, Davis, Brown, Ashmore, Adams, Boland and Hughes.

Umpire—C. Langabeer.

Queen Elizabeth School grounds the West-End experienced the Wildcats to a 16-7 defeat. The losers who failed to live up to their names, as the West End won by the score of 21 to 16.

The line-ups:

Wildcats—Smith, Symons, Reid, Ingram, Sligh, Langabeer, McCormick, Salisbury and Hutchinson.

Flying Canadians—Fellow, Parsons, Bedard, Minoe, Yome, Lockyer, Bateman and Ellis.

Umpire—Doug Martin.

Playing on the Bridge School grounds, however, a tidy battle ensued when the Tigers, and the Junior Y's Men battled to a tie for the Tigers got out a 13 to 11 victory over the "Y" boys after seven innings of thrilling ball. Both teams played exceptionally good ball for midgets.

The line-ups:

Tigers — Quinn, D. Herrington, Claus, Yorke, H. Herrington, Potts, Dewrick, Bye and Aylesworth.

Junior Y's Men—Fitzgibbon, Osborne, Ripess, McGuire, Cook, Watkin, Flindall, Rushbrook and Hall.

Umpire—Hall.

5 RUN SPLURGE DEFEATS CORBINS

Point Anne Come From Behind to Win First Game of Series

A five run splurge in the sixth frame gave the Point Anne softballers their initial victory of the season in the Belleville Softball loop when they came from behind to thrill a home crowd and defeat the Corbin Hardware 9 to 7 last evening.

The Corbins forged to the fore in the initial frame by scoring three runs in rapid succession and led the parade until the sixth when Murney Green gladdened the hearts of the home patrons with a mighty circuit blow that put the "cementmen" in the lead and resulted in ultimate victory.

Johnnie Bawden, local fireball pitcher, was in the mound for the Corbins and although he whiffed seven Point Anne batters in as many innings played, his wildness doubtless assisting in defeat as Bawden issued seven walks. Lorne Bateman was Coach Secore's choice to ascend the hilltop and he emerged victorious brook mountain hurled steady ball and was given excellent support by his team mates in their uphill fight for victory.

The hits of the evening were evenly divided, however, each team collecting seven safeties. Murney Green with a home run and a single was the big bat-swinger for the home team, while Whitehead connected for a triple and a single. Secro also hitting well in that department. Smith and Ebbler were credited with three base hits for the losers, although Hann was the most consistent of the Point Anne gang, getting two in the first, two in the fourth and five in the sixth to come from behind and win.

The next game in the local softball league is scheduled to be played at Coleman Flats this evening.

The line-ups:

Corbins—Genereaux 3b, Whitehead 2b, Secro ss, Green c, Guillin 1b, Fisher rf, Bawden p, Reid lf, Scott cf, Bateman p.

Point Anne — 200 405 x—11 9 1

Corbins — 300 040 2—7 7 4

Umpires—Thomas, plate; Rollins, bases.

Number 1255.

Many a bad score is made through wrong ideas about the course. A player will come to a certain hole or spot and, misjudging the distance to carry or roll of the ground, play far below his average. Then he's annoyed.

Even the travelling—you suffer from his handicap. In other words, he's a bad guy to play with and to meet. And it doesn't matter how much fun you have together, or how generous they are to play better the next time they come to this part of the course, you're annoyed and disgusted and bad.

The main reason for this lies in their failure to get a fresh viewpoint of the ground. Given them trouble. I believe that the best method of course, when you see it for the first time, comes through walking around without clubs. In this way you will get as well as a knowledge of Stirling and an Indian lad from Bloomfield, a trio of smart players, will also do as well as a couple from Kingston. There is also a course of Charlie Cole and four others from Napanee and Deseronto turning out to practice as well."—unquote.

If the local lacrosse squad can garner such a galaxy of lacrosse stars from Belleville and district they should provide plenty of competition, first and foremost as we can't go for the statement that George Laughlin will be playing for the locals. George, we have been informed from an unimpeachable source, will not return to his first love, lacrosse, as an active player. Mr. Laughlin's enthusiasm is all wrapped up in the fostering of minor league lacrosse and anywhere he will be best of summer at the Belleville playgrounds. Jabbing aside, however, if the newly acquired players mentioned are the phantom lacrosse, who we have every reason to believe is none other than Gordon Hall, president of the local lacrosse club, are not past their age of gentleman, maybe the fans will be surprise even their most ardent supporters.

Incidentally Coach Harry Moore is getting his Belleville team, the Belleville Braves, a very fitting nickname taking in all angles and considerations.

Unless the Duchess of Bedford runs afoul of a Spanish mine she should clock at Liverpool tomorrow and Belleville's own Georgs Pepper will doubtless be the most thrilled young man aboard. After visiting the factories to have his machines tested, George will proceed directly to the Isle of Man to practice on that dangerous course.

Coach "Twig" Woodley is highly impressed with the manner in which his Kiwanis juniors are progressing. Junior baseball practice will be held every night next week at the Pair Grounds, in preparation for the opening of the season on Victoria Day when Woodley will get cutting the individual players' form. Incidentally, Sherwood Skipper Woodley is still scouring the country for an outfielder, an outfielder that can bust a few fences with lusty clouts occasionally and speedy mountain goats.

Frank Sedore's Point Anne softballers hung it on the highly heralded Corbins with what seems to be light of 9 to 7 down at the cement village last evening. Tonight at Coleman Flats the Corbins will stage class for their initial test of the season and should all six clubs will have seen action.

The entire string of horses belonging to the estate of the late Edward Pengram, Hamilton, will be sold at auction at the Woodslee Race Track on May 21, there are those so interested locally. Among the lot are those being accumulated for the Kings' Plate. They are Cold Guard, Alibi Keiter, Poverty Stuck and Flying Acres, all three-year-olds.

"International night" is being featured at the Arena by Match-Maker Jack Corcoran next Tuesday in the gloaming, all of the contesting grapplers being natives of different countries throughout the world, including two Canadians, Al Dunlop and John Katan. Although Katan is noted chiefly for his wrestling abilities it is a fact he can match holds with the cleverest of them when hard pressed. Henri Piers, the lithe Dutch titleholder, is quite a favorite locally, especially by his orthodox manner of going about his business and doubtless the gallery will be with the Hollander a man when he meets Katan in the final bout Tuesday night.

To many of the old school the recent passing of Col. Dave Barragar was keenly felt as the Colonel was the school boy's champion in athletic circles throughout the public school terms. His death will be regretted by many of his old pupils who loved, him dearly.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 15—(AP)—It was fair weather for selected Rails and Industrials in today's stock market but other categories shifted aimlessly in a fog.

Dealings, almost as listless as last Saturday when the volume was the smallest since 1933, at times found favored issues up fractions to a point or so. Transfers were forced 350,000 shares.

Canadian Pacific, Dome Mines, Distillers-Corp Seagrams and Hiram Walker were steady to a bit higher in restricted trading. Dominion Government issues held unchanged. Montreal Funds moved 1-64 of a cent lower to 100.17 3-16 cents. On the Curb, Lake Shore Mines was a shade higher.

COLORS RUN RIOT ON CITY MARKET, FLOWERS SOLD

Asparagus Comes to Town in Large Quantities

RHUBARB OFFERED

A profusion of spring flowers and blooming plants ranged the city market into a veritable riot of color this morning when the brilliant sunshine of several hours brought out a large crowd of potential shoppers who were greeted with a fine display of farm and dairy produce. New spring vegetables are gradually displacing the winter varieties and a fair selection of cabbage.

Nearly every vendor with stalls made display of spring flowers and plants in flats or boxes. Multicolored blooms gave the usually drab appearance of the stalls a fresh springlike appearance. The popular daisy in all its gay shades was quoted at 25 cents the berry box. California Climbs, Single Petunias, Snapdragons, Pollage, Perpetuals and many other early blooms were offered at fifteen cents the box. The yellow of the Cowslip and the white of the Trillium added a wild flower touch, enhancing the gayer colors of the other blooms.

Raspberry sets were also fairly plentiful with the "red and the "reds" selling well at two cents each. Strawberry plants were offered at fifty cents the hundred. Tomato plants were quoted at one dollar per flat of 100 plants while some vendors quotes their stock at fifteen cents the fifty box. Cabbage and lettuce sets were offered at fifty cents the hundred while onions going at 75 cents for the same quantity.

Asparagus Plentiful

Asparagus came into its own today and thousands of stalks were in large quantities although the price apparently was not affected by the amount present. Vendors seemed to favor the new vegetable rather than lunch lots. Six and seven cents per bunch was asked in a number of cases but the majority sold their stock at prices ranging from twenty to thirty cents the pound. The better grades sold quickly although the general trend was toward this vegetable and vendors had little difficulty in disposing of their stock.

Potatoes were also plentiful contrary to a last week prophecy. A fair quantity of Quebec stock offered at $1.80 per ninety pound bag but the majority of vendors did a brisk business and the trade was mostly in Ontario stock ranging from $1.30 to $1.75 for this quantity.

Rhubarb in varying sizes, fresh from the gardens of the district found favor in the eye of several shoppers, and sold briskly at five cents the bunch. New onions, radishes and lettuce also moved well at the same price. The winter turnips were in evidence but moved slowly at forty cents the peck.

Whitefish made its appearance on the market today selling at twenty-five cents the pound while lake trout doing a thriving business following a big run, were put pound drop from the prices of a week ago. This fish sold at eighteen cents per pound. Soon after spring the first of the season staged a slight rise in price being quoted at fifteen cents the pound. Mullets were offered at six for twenty-five cents.

Boilers Plentiful

Young pigs squealing their disapproval of being confined in boxes and crates, were very plentiful. Five and six week old porkers were offered at prices ranging from $3.00 to $4.50. This proved a ready to attract many purchasers and a number of vendors were forced to return with their "ham on the hoof."

Young broilers dominated the inside part, being plentiful and offered at prices from sixty cents to one dollar the pair. Chickens and fowl in varying qualities were offered at from 75 cents to as high as $1.40 per head. Eggs were plentiful and showed little change in prices from those of a week ago. "A" large eggs were quoted 30 and 22 cents the dozen. Medians were offered at eighteen and nineteen cents with the quality of ungraded eggs offered at nineteen cents. Fresh butter is remained firm at all week prices selling at two pounds for fifty five cents, although some vendors sold out for thirty cents the pound. Whipping cream sold at fifteen and thirty cents for the half-pint and pint respectively. Home cooking vendors did a brisk business with attractive prices drawing a large patronage.

A few winter apples were in evidence with the popular Northern Spy being offered at sixty cents the peck. Cooking apples were quoted at thirty and thirty five cent for the same quantity.

Among the flotsam and jetsam that came ashore were bottles of stretcher, police coats, stools, operating tables and mosquito nets. Probably absent were the cushions supplied with the seats along the route. Apparently sitters decided they were good souvenirs.

Monuments are Climbed

The pond in Trafalgar Square gave up its treasures. There were no hooligan pranks reported such as chipping off Eros' nose or drawing spectacles on Queen Victoria's Statue, but plenty of monument climbing was done. Police, however, presented a burlesque to the thousands and a woman's high heel,

News of the World as Told in Pictures

50,000 CANADIANS RENEW ALLEGIANCE TO THE CROWN IN SIMPLE SERVICE AT OTTAWA

Canadian throughout the Dominion renewed their allegiance to the British crown on Coronation Day with huge and impressive ceremonies. At Ottawa, 50,000 persons surrounded the King's representative in Canada, Lord Tweedsmuir, and participated in a simple ceremony under the shadow of the Peace Tower. With Prime Minister King and other parliamentary leaders at the coronation, the service was a civil one with only a few honored guests from parliament and the Dominion privy council attending. The above photograph shows the huge crowd assembled on Parliament Hill in the shadow of the Peace Tower as they honored the new King. Inset is shown Lord Tweedsmuir planting an oak tree in commemoration of the coronation. The tree itself was only a few inches high.

MASS FUNERAL SERVICE FOR CRASH VICTIMS

Coffins containing the remains of 26 of the 35 victims of the burning and crashing of the huge dirigible, Hindenburg, as shown lined up on their pier at New York ready for a mass funeral service. Following the ceremony the coffins were placed aboard the S.S. Hamburg for shipment to Germany. All but one of the coffins are covered with Nazi flags, the remaining one being covered with an American flag.

COLLINS FOLLOWS IN FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS

Eddie Collins will long be remembered as the outstanding second baseman to appear in the major leagues. Eddie has forsaken the playing field for the front office of baseball, being vice-president and general manager of the Boston Red Sox. His son, Eddie Jr., is carrying on his dad's diamond tradition, by playing centre field in a starring manner, with the Yale Varsity team. Eddie, Jr., is pictured here in action.

ARCHBISHOP PLACES CROWN ON QUEEN ELIZABETH'S HEAD

The Archbishop of Canterbury is shown as he placed the crown, on the head of Queen Elizabeth in Westminster Abbey, May 12, marking the first time in 250 years that a commoner has been crowned Queen of England. The consort of King George VI is the former Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, daughter of the Earl of Strathmore, scion of an ancient line of Scottish nobles. This photo was radioed from London to New York.

LIME GROWER

Many persons of unfriendly nature have referred to the Brooklyn Dodgers Baseball club as a "lemon" club, although we don't agree with them. It seems strange that a former manager of the club, Mr. Max Carey, should decide to go into the business of raising limes. Here he is in Miami looking over some of his produce before shipment. "I grow 'em big as baseballs" boasts lime farmer Carey.

DUKE OF WINDSOR HURRIES TO WALLIS

The Duke of Windsor had to cross the track at Verenuil when he arrived in that French city from Austria during his dash to Monts, to rejoin Mrs. Wallis Warfield. Windsor is shown, surrounded by French officials, on his way to the automobile that took him to his fiancee after she had been granted her divorce by an English court.

DICTATOR EXERCISES

Included in the athletic curriculum of Colonel Fulgencio Batista, dictator of Cuba, is a session with the heavy medicine ball, as shown here. Several hours daily in his gymnasium at Havana, Cuba, are spent by Batista, as he keeps in trim for his arduous duties.

CORONER DIES

Chief coroner of Toronto and physician to the Canadian Olympic team of 1936, Dr. M. M. Crawford (ABOVE) died at his home following a short illness. Dr. Crawford who was also supervising coroner for the province of Ontario, was active in sporting circles and was well known as a surgeon and physician.

HIS MAJESTY KING GEORGE VI WISHES SUNDERLAND LUCK

King George VI shakes hands with members of the Sunderland football team during an inspection before the kick-off of the game climaxing the season. This was the final match of the football association cup competition which Sunderland won by a score of 3-1. Preston North End were the losers of the game played at Wembley Stadium in London, Eng., before 93,000 people.

PHILLY SOUTHPAW

One of the big reasons for Philadelphia Phillies' surprising showing so far this season in the National League is the sparkling pitching of Southpaw Wayne Lanaster. He is an old hand at pitching, having been going places for 11 years—never into the big jobs, however, until this year. Wayne was drafted from Louisville where he won 13 and lost 10 last season to get his big chance.

DEFEATED IN ENGLAND BUT STILL SMILING

King Levinsky, Chicago heavyweight playfully mauls Small Montana, flyweight, as the two arrive in the United States after unpleasant sallies into the British Isles. Levinsky lost to Doyle and Montana to Benny Lynch. Levinsky didn't like London at all because "It's tea, tea, tea!"

ATTENDED CORONATION

INSURGENT SPY

Juan Francisco de Cardenas (ABOVE) former Spanish ambassador to the U. S., is one of those mentioned by Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, as agents of the Spanish insurgent general, Franco, at work in the United States to aid the insurgents' cause. Others mentioned are Jose de Giral, former secretary at the Spanish embassy in Washington and T. Mateos, a former chancellor of the embassy. Senator Nye asked a far-flung congressional investigation into the activities of these gentlemen whom he charged with seeking to "violate American neutrality."

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

FIFTEENTH INSTALLMENT

Susan's heart ached, half with joy and half with pity. Gentle, self-tragic Kerin, not realizing that she was for the first time observing the simple consideration and friendliness which had always been her right. To Susan, twenty-five hundred dollars barely made a quite sum. Kerin would have to furnish the place, keep some kind of help, have a lot of new clothes.

Susan's mind cleared. She took Kerin firmly by the arm and her voice became almost reverential.

"Listen, Kerin my dear. Now stop your burbling and listen to me. Of course you've got this job. It's as real as—as I am. And let me tell you that one reason you got it was having the right clothes and a decent girdle. Now, Kerin, listen—You've got clothes to buy, and this house to furnish—"

"Oh—I've got the furniture, Susan. I'll ship that."

"You will not," said Susan. "You'll leave every stick of it here."

"Not that little dest that was mother's? Not take my old spool bed that Aunt Caroline Davis? Why, Susan! You're crazy."

"Well—then maybe. And the dish towels and the what nots. But in the main—Why, Kerin, it will cost you five hundred dollars to get those personal chairs and other atrocities crated and sent. For five hundred dollars you can buy yourself things that are nice and new and pretty."

"But I don't think I like things nice and new and pretty."

"Well, good old genuine early American antiques then. You are going to be hard that makes them, remember. So that's settled, Kerin. As for clothes—Kerin, you've simply got to cash in one of your bonds and blow it riotously in. Just blow it in, Kerin."

Alan laughed teasingly at Susan. "Kerin, ever since Susan heard about those five bonds of yours she's been spending them for you."

Susan withered him with a glance. "And what's money for? If the depression taught us nothing else it taught us the sense of spending our money while we have it, Remember 'What I spent, I had; what I saved, I gave away, I have; but what I've left, I've lost.'"

"Absolutely. The college has a pond they keep cleaned."

"And a barn! Mother! Do you think maybe I could have a pony? Do you?"

"Maybe. Maybe you could, Donny! We can see."

After he had taken his roller skates and gone, his eyes haunted her. Supposing it all fell through. Really, she should not have told him. But it was too hard to have held it in; it was impossible.

She busied herself with dinner, changing out of the slim dark blue suit and going out with a basket to the market for supplies.

The house was pleasant with the sound and smell of dinner when Carl came home and shouted "Stats!"

She met him in the hall, her hands covered with flour from her biscuits, and he caught her up and whirled her around and said, "Listen! It's good to have you back! Biscuits! Haven't had a decent meal since you left," and kissed her on the back of her neck where the hair curled, and set her down looking very rosy and gay and young.

"Well! So you landed the job"

"Oh, Carl, do you suppose I have? Alan says so, but the trustees haven't acted yet, and isn't that important?

"Not in the least—not if President Sheldon and the dean recommended it. Take it they have."

Kerin led the way back to the kitchen and her biscuits, and Carl perched himself on the table, his feet in a chair seat.

"What's the job, exactly?"

"Assistant dean of women."

"Good for you, Stats old girl! What's the salary?"

Kerin turned a rosy face from lighting the oven.

"Twenty-five hundred dollars, Carl. Would you believe it?"

Carl was munching cold chopped cabbage and finished a mouthful before he answered. "Pretty good, I'll say. Glad now I made you keep on studying economics while you rocked the cradle with your toe!"

Kerin laughed at the preposterous picture, but she said, "You know I am, Carl. You've always wanted me to."

Carl gathered up a handful of cabbage. "That's the function of a husband in the home." He threw the handful of cabbage in his mouth. "But the place of a wife—" He reached out and grabbed her as she flitted by to a cupboard. She laughed and blushed as he caught her back to him.

"Carl. Think how strange it's going to be—me working at Abbeyley you in Russia." The need to have him need her overpowered her. "I'm going to miss you. Maybe—sometimes—you'll miss me?"

"I say." Another mouthful of cabbage disappeared. "Missed you this last week, I'm getting soft."

Kerin drew a trembling breath. This was what she wanted to hear. Foolish of her to wish sometimes for peace and quiet comradeship. When she had instead—Carl. "If that's getting soft— I'm glad you are."

She drew back and looked into his eyes. They looked down at her, very blue, half-closed, tender. The light shone on the bright waves of his hair.

He tapped her nose with a big finger, while he finished his mouth full of cabbage.

"Shall I eat some more?"

"Nope. No more. I'll wait for the biscuits."

She disengaged herself from his arm. "I'll put them in. Donald will be here at six."

Carl nicked a morsel of cabbage from his tooth with a smack. "How are you going to manage about Donald? How are you going to live?"

Kerin closed the oven door and glanced at the clock. In her mind she saw the bright yellow kitchen. Maybe she'd get a bright yellow cat to match.

Oh Carl," she said, and her face was wistful, "such a sweet little house, on a hill, overlooking the town. A yard so big it's got woods in it. A barn maples all around, and lilacs looking in the windows. Such a funny, tiny crooked house. With a little crooked stair climbing up. Just for Donny and me! It only cost—"

"I'd fit in fine in a little crooked house, wouldn't I?"

But he noted her wistful mouth, her smiling yet tired eyes. He rubbed his two hands together. "But it sounds nice, honey, for you." He hunted out a crumb of cabbage from the table and put in his mouth.

"You know, Stats, sometimes I don't think I'm—a good kind of person to have for a husband, I'm not—no—I'm not lame enough. From the way you tell it, I know it means a lot to you to have a little house like that. While to me—What I mean is, it's kind of too bad, Wal—" He stretched himself. "Anyway, you'll have it soon, your own way you want it. You can fill it as full of doo-dads as you like, eh, old girl?"

Kerin was slicing more cabbage. She paused now. "I was wondering, Carl. What will we do with this furniture here? Shall I take it? It will cost a lot, I suppose, to ship it."

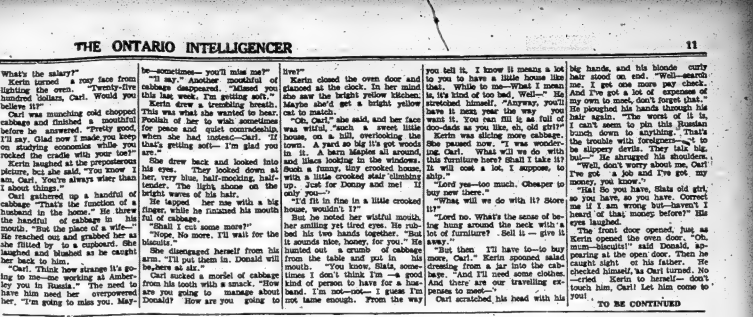
"Lord yes—too much. Cheaper to buy new here."

"What will we do with it? Store it?"

"Lord no. What's the sense of being hung around the neck with a lot of furniture? Sell it — give it away."

"But then I'll have to—to buy more, Carl." Kerin spooned salad dressing from a jar into the cabbage. "And I'll need some clothes. And there are our travelling expenses to meet."

Carl scratched his head with his big hands, and his blonde curly hair stood on end. "Well—search me. I've got one more pay check. And I've got a lot of expenses of my own to meet, don't forget that." His ploughed his hands through his hair again. "The worst of it is, I can't seem to pin this Russian bunch down to anything. That's the trouble with foreigners—it's to be slippery devils. They talk big, but—" He shrugged his shoulders.



"Well, don't worry about me, Carl! I've got a job and I've got my money, you know."

"Ha! So you have, Stats old girl, so you have, so you have. Correct me if I am wrong but—haven't I heard of that money before?" His eyes laughed.

The front door opened, but as Kerin opened the oven door, "Oh-mum—bloody!" said Donald, appearing at the open door. Then he caught sight of his father. He checked himself, as Carl turned. No one—cried Kerin to Donald— don't touch him, Carl! Let him come to you!

PICTON

Picton—"King's weather" prevailed all day Wednesday and the Coronation Day festivities passed off with glad acclaim in Picton. Several hundred people gathered at the Armouries at two o'clock for the line of march to the Collegiate grounds, Sergeant Major Jas. Mercer led the procession followed by town and county officials, the Kiwanis, the regimental band; the officers and men of P. E. and Hastings Co. regiment, members of the local post of the Canadian Legion, the Cubs, various patrols of Boy Scouts, the Guides and Brownies—the Collegiate girls—Picton Public and Separate school children—children of many county schools—girls and boys on decorated bicycles and two large, gaily decorated floats—"Crinkrods" and "Quinte Milk Products".

On arrival the formation on the beautiful athletic campus presented a brilliant spectacle as the bright sun shone down on uniforms decorations and flags. On a raised platform were representatives of the clergy of the various churches and members of the local societies. Following this the assembled throng sang "O Canada". Rev R. A. McGee offered prayer and Rev. F. E. Manktelow read from the Scriptures. The county school children then very creditably sang a Coronation Hymn under the direction of Mr. C. H. Simpson.

Mr. Carson Hubbs gave the address of the afternoon. He stressed the fact that King George VI was as much King of Canada as of England. All those of Scotch blood, he said, must rejoice also that the observing Queen is of Scotch lineage.

The Picton Public School pupils directed by Mr. F. E. Walden sang a Coronation Song in fine harmony. The voices of the gathering rose in the hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past". Judge McLean next presented the King's Medals to several members of the militia and the regimental band.

Following this was the fun de jour by the local regiment, followed by cheers for the King and Queen.

In the early evening steady rainfall did not prevent the procession of more than a hundred cars to McAulay's Mountain where the Boy Scouts set their 40 ft beacon afire at nine o'clock. This spectacle could be seen from all parts of the town and a display of fireworks also brightened the dark sky. Taken in all Coronation Day was one to live long in the memory of all loyal subjects of Their Majesties.

Winners of the decorated bicycles in the parade were—Boys 1—Vincent Cerdille tied with Donald Francis; 2—Cletus Vesterveit and Jack Lowry tied; 3—Danny Thomas and Donald McGinnis tied.

Girls—1 —Mary Spencer; 2—Gena Hicks; 3—Patsy Pope.

There were more than a dozen entries in each class and all were decorated in Coronation colours. The judges—Dr. Stothers, Mr. F. Van Cott and Silas Blakely did not have an easy task picking the winners.

TWEED

Tweed—Coronation Day was observed on Wednesday, May 12th, by the citizens of Tweed and district who turned out en masse to repledge their loyalty to a beloved sovereign on his coronation. The school children of the Separate, Consolidated and High Schools, the members of the village council, the school boards, the members of the Girls' Athletic Club paraded from Bridge Street to Memorial Park led by Tweed Citizens Band and the Army and Navy Veterans. Here they lined up before the steps of the pavilion where brief addresses were given by representative citizens.

Reeve Sayers who was master of ceremonies, in a few words stated the purpose of the assembly. The people of the Empire, said the Reeve, are gathered today in an Empire wide celebration, to do honour to our King and Queen. Their observances will be indelibly imprinted on the hearts and minds of all who have participated in them.

Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne who was then called upon, deemed it a privilege to join with others in honor of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. This Coronation ceremony will live long in the memory, said he, especially of those who listened to the radio broadcast and participated in the procession through the street. His recall of marching to a service held in honor of the Coronation of King George V and expressed the opinion that this march, through the streets of Tweed would remain the first part of the affair to the children, it means much, said Mr. Swayne, to us live in a free country where we can and do enjoy a liberty of thought and action that is denied to many millions of people in less favored countries.

Rev. R. R. Nicholson spoke of the appeal which King George and Queen Elizabeth make as a man and a woman to the people of the Empire. The King in sympathy with the working man and has studied his problems. While he is a King he is humble and modest in spirit. Mr. Nicholson paid special tribute to the charm and graciousness of the Queen.

Rev. Fr. Cullhane, who on Wednesday assumed his duties in Tweed in charge of St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church was pleased to join with the citizens of Tweed and district in observing this historic occasion. He noted that it was a splendid thing for people of all creeds and political affiliations to join together as they had done to express as a communnity their loyalty and devotion to our gracious King and Queen.

Following the addresses special coronation medals were presented to every school child present by the village council. Nearly 600 medals were distributed.

A particularly interesting and attractive feature of the parade was a float prepared and decorated by some members of the Girl's Athletic Club representing the Royal Coach, bearing the King and Queen, Richard Graham and Mary Locke. These two little tots were appropriately and completely costumed with robes in royal colors, trimmed with ermine, and wore crowns. The work of costuming the children was done by Mrs. Earl Graham who possesses remarkable talent along this line. The two children were deeply impressed with the solemnity of the occasion and added not a little to the effectiveness of the Coronation Day observance.

Tweed Citizens' Band played several selections during the afternoon.

Two softball games were played. In the first game the Town Girls defeated the High School Girls by the narrow margin of 12 to 11, Alex Simpson acted as umpire. The teams were:

Town Girls—M. Luffman, 1b; C. Long, lf; F. Wilson c; F. Graham 3b; M. Dark ss; K. Terry rf; A. Scott 2b; C. Luffman cf; Isabelle p; V. Freeman p.

High School Girls—C. Morrison 1b; C. Grills cf; Marjorie Tummon 2b; A. Thompson c; L. Wood, rf; Marjorie Tummon lf; M. Varty 3b; H. Ponte ss; F. Rashotte p.

In the second game Tweed Consolidated Schools Boys defeatde the Separate School boys in a very interesting game by a score of 10 to 7. The line-ups:

Separate School—Don Morsw 2b; Lawrence Chappelle c; P. LaChappelle 1b; Teddy Rashotte 3b; B. Trudeau lb; P. Donohue c; K. Mills ss; Henry Lajoie cf; J. Gourneyes cf.

Consolidated School—L. Vance lf; B. Sills cf; D. Palmateer 3b; C. Jones 1b; V. Frost 2b; D. Connor rf; E. Holmes ss; J. Wager c; F. Baldwin p.

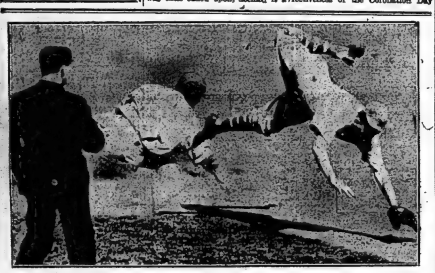
The members of Tweed Horticultural Society have obtained 12 Royal oak seedlings from the men of the Trees Society. These have been placed in a nursery bed in Royal Park where they will be cared for for two or three years. It is the purpose of the society to plant them in the grounds of the local schools and at Memorial Park where they will stand as living memorials to our loyalty and allegiance to our King and Queen.

The staff and pupils of Tweed Consolidated observed Coronation day on Tuesday with a short programme.

Short talks were given by the teachers, Miss Campbell gave some interesting facts about the Royal coach used in connection with the Coronation, Miss Moran told the children about Westminster Boys' School in which the King is especially interested. Two acorns presented to the school by the men of the Trees Society were planted with due ceremony. The children sang a number of patriotic choruses "May Peace and Love be near his Throne" and "Dear Canada, dear land O'dine."

A very interesting meeting of the Literary Club of the United Church was held on Monday evening. It was a joint meeting with the men's Brotherhood and took the form of a debate on the subject: "Resolved that the high cost of living and not the cost of high living is what makes the cost of living high." The affirmative side was upheld by Miss Bessie Gordon, B.A. and Miss Margaret Moffatt. The negative side was supported by Messrs. Ed. Way and H. Dunbler.

By means of a family budget Miss Gordon sought to prove that the high cost of commodities rendered the average income insufficient.



Mr. Way in a very humorous address pointed out that most people are not satisfied with things of moderate cost but purchase only those articles of food, clothing, etc. which are higher in price. Most people, he said, prefer to purchase canned goods instead of canning for themselves fruit and vegetables with the result that in the spring empty cans are carted away by the truck load.

Miss Moffat cited various contributory factors which resulted in living costing so much.

Mr. Graham named the instalment plan of buying in the purchase of luxuries for a share of the high cost of living.

The judges Rev. H. R. Herrington of Thomasburg, Rev. Wm. Fletcher o' Eldorado, and Rev. R. R. Nicholson. They decided that the affirmative had failed to prove their contention and awarded the decision in the negative side.

The Consumers' Guide to Quality

More than a century of service to the public has made the advertising columns of the daily newspapers the accepted source of commodity news in two million Canadian homes.

News of goods and services is necessary to every household. Comfort and economy depend on it. The success of every enterprise is determined in the home where the relative values of products or services are analysed and their claims for preferential treatment supported or disproved. Sales volume for any product is the sum of all these individual preferences.

The confidence consumers feel toward advertised goods is the result of personal experience. They realize that advertising reflects the integrity of the manufacturer and the merchant's belief in the value of the goods he thus publicly offers for sale.

Consequently, the advertisements in the daily newspapers are not only news, they are recognized guarantees of quality.

Today, Canadian consumers everywhere from coast to coast read their local daily newspapers for the latest information regarding the commodities and services they need. The advertisements are their guides to quality and their aids to thrift.

MUNICIPALITIES NOT TO BEAR CUT IN RELIEF

Matter to be Taken Up By Premier Hepburn With Federal Ministers

Not so Much The Cut But Manner of It Stirs Hepburn

NATIONAL ISSUE

Premier Claims Federal Gov't. Ignores Whole Problem

Windsor, Ont., May 17—(CP)—Premier Hepburn reiterated here today that the Dominion Government's reduction of relief grants to Ontario would not be passed along to municipalities.

Disclosing with the "tone of a letter" from the Federal Labor Department, announcing the reduction, Mr. Hepburn said he would take up the matter with senior federal ministers.

Complains of Methods

"It was not the cut in the grants so much as the way it was done," the Premier said. "They asked me to send some one down to Ottawa to discuss grants with them. I sent down Chester Walters, the Comptroller of the province.

"When he arrived he was told it was too late and that it had all been settled by order-in-council. During the federal election, relief was treated as a national problem. Since then the Dominion Government has ignored the whole problem."

Louisiana Tax On Chain Stores Held Constitutional

Washington, May 17 (AP)—The United States Supreme Court held constitutional today a 1934 Louisiana statute imposing a graduated license tax on chain stores based on the number of units operated throughout the country and elsewhere.

In ruling by a three-judge federal district Court at New Orleans sustaining the levy was affirmed. Justice Roberts delivered the 4 to 3 decision. Justices Sutherland, Butler, Reynolds and Butler dissented. Justices Vandeventer and Stone did not participate in the decision.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company and twelve other corporations attacked the law which levied taxes ranging from $10 to $350 per store.

MARK L. MORTON DIES IN 87th YEAR

Well-Known Thomasburg Resident Dies Early Today

After being in failing health for some time, Mark Liddle Morton passed away at his late residence at Thomasburg Out., early this Monday morning, May 17th., and to many old friends and acquaintances in the townships of Rungerford and Huntingdon the announcement of Mr. Gaik will bring deep feelings of regret.

The late Mr. Morton, who was in his 87th year, was born at Moira, in Rumlington Township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. William Morton. For many years he resided on the old Morton homestead in that township, and became a forty-six years ago, he took up residence at Thomasburg in Rungerford Township. When age prevailed he resigned successfully in farming. He was a man of most upright character and throughout his long and useful life he was held in high regard by all who knew him. He was of a quiet, unassuming disposition and held the confidence of all who enjoyed his friendship. In religion he was a member of the United Church at Thomasburg. Fraternally he was a member of the Orange Order.

Surviving to mourn his passing are one daughter, Mrs. Clarence Carleton of Thomasburg; two grandsons, Orville and Lorne Carleton, and numerous nieces and nephews.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon, May 19th. Service will be held in the United Church at Thomasburg at 2 p.m.

PEPPER ARRIVES AT LIVERPOOL

Cable Received by Family States He Enjoyed Crossing

Mrs. William Pepper, 90 Chatham street, received a cable telegram from her son George Pepper, that he had arrived safely in England and had docked at Liverpool early this morning. George's cable added his trip across the Atlantic from the time of being really enjoyed. Immediately after leaving Liverpool for Birmingham, where he expects to establish a branch in English motor-cycle company for the service of a 250 O.C. lightweight machine and also pick up a 500 O.C. Excelsior that has been in England for the past. Upon arrival for reconditioning George also shipped his 500 C.C. Norton machine, which will be reconditioned before he departs for the Isle of Man later this week. George hopes to be in the running for the Senior T.T. race. He is expected with other elements in the earth's crust, perhaps afterwards to be released again. We know that some are being lost into outer space now, hydrogen, helium, and carbon dioxide. Hydrogen and helium are probably escaping from within the earth as quickly as they are lost into space.

DUKE'S WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENT NOT IN GAZETTE

Ecclesiastical Objections Said to be Reason For No Action

DATE ON TUESDAY

Duke of Kent And Princess Royal May Attend The Function

London, May 17 (AP)—The British press today discussed the possibility of royal ceremony for Mrs. Wallis Warfield by means of the formal announcement of the engagement to the Duke of Windsor by King George.

While the Sunday Referee reported the King was ready to extend the Royal Family's sanction of the match by announcing the betrothal of his brother, The Express said such a move was impossible.

"Ecclesiastical objections" to Mrs. Warfield as a twice-divorced person, The Express said, prevented the King from taking any such action.

The Sunday Referee reported the King would announce his brother's engagement in the court circular this week.

The likely form for the announcement to take, the paper said, would be: "The King learns with pleasure of the betrothal of his brother the ..."

The Express declared editorially the participation of the King in any such ceremony impossible.

"Some newspapers," The Express said, "foolishly predict an official announcement of this event would be made in the London Gazette and published in The London Gazette.

"Of course this cannot be as long as the ecclesiastical objections hold good to the duke's marriage with a woman who has been twice through the divorce courts and who has two former husbands living."

Family Interested

The Sunday Referee said the Royal Family would be represented at the approaching wedding by the Duke of Kent, as best man, and the Princess Royal.

Winston Churchill, former cabinet member, and David Lloyd George, former prime minister, also attend, The Sunday Referee said.

In the meantime Mrs. Warfield's marriage to Ernest Simpson was made legal through publication of the decree absolute in the divorce case her divorced husband's name of Simpson.

As required by law, the formal document, which costs $2.50, was circulated in Ipswich, county of the public in morning newspapers.

Announce Date Tuesday

Monte, France, May 17 (AP)—Date of the marriage of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield will be further delayed, Herman Rogers, the duke's spokesman, has promised to announce the date at 10 o'clock tomorrow (Tuesday). He said he would clear up not only the "wedding date but other vital questions" as the possibility that the Royal Family will be represented at the ceremony.

The Duke and Mrs. Warfield motored to Nice from the Riviera today for their first social engagement since they were re-united. Going to the Chateau D'Amy-Sur-Indre, 30 miles away where they were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Grafton Minot of Boston, Mass.

While a toast was being drunk to their happiness, a ray of lightning disabled the electric plant across the road. All chateau and plunged the dining room into darkness. Candles were lighted and the dinner resumed.

Pope Fails to Respond To Invigorating Air At Castel Gandolfo

His Holiness Will Mark 80th Birthday on May 31st

NO AUDIENCES

Pontiff Experiences Difficulty in Breathing

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, May 17 (AP)—Physicians are keeping a close watch on Pope Pius' health because he has failed to respond to the invigorating air of his summer home here, private said today.

A semi-official note issued from the Vatican declared the Pontiff, who will be 80 on May 31, was experiencing some difficulty in breathing and speaking.

His Holiness followed his usual Monday custom in holding no audiences but he worked on documents in his private drawing room. It was said he probably would receive no one tomorrow, the "third feast of the Pentecost".

Alarmist Rumors.

The announcement said:

"Alarmist rumors have again been spread on the state of the Pope's health. No new occurrences have happened in recent days.

"Although there are no new facts for alarming symptoms, there is no doubt the general state of the Pope has aroused some preoccupation.

"The Pope has always been animated by the greatest energy and does not intend in any manner to limit his activities more than is strongly required during his illness.

Physique Shows Burden.

"Nevertheless his physique feels the weight which this limited activity also imposes."

The announcement principally noted are difficulty in breathing, abundant perspiration and sometimes difficulty in speaking.

"The health of the Pope is watched with more attentive care and diligence than ever."

MISS FLANAGAN STATED TO BE MENTALLY ILL

Toronto, May 17—(CP)—Miss Helen Flanagan, Port Arthur school teacher, charged with drowning said in the face of Hon. Charles W. Cox, Ontario Minister Without Portfolio, here today, she was "mentally ill" after thorough examination at the Toronto Hospital.

Whitby, Ira Humphries, K.C., Deputy Attorney-General, said today.

Miss Flanagan, who will be able to face trial until she was officially certified sane, he said, She still is undergoing treatment which, it is hoped, will effect a complete cure. When she has been certified well again, she will appear before the Port Arthur Assizes, Mr. Rogers, the duke's spokesman, has

The announcement said the 17-storey Sekins buildings, built in 1911 for the now-defunct Vancouver Electric Railway, purchased by the Sun Company. It will henceforth be known as the Vancouver Sun building.

'E. C. METCALFE DIES

Former Reeve of Deseronto and prominent member of the Hastings County Council for years and a leading independent canner in Eastern Ontario, whose sudden death from heart trouble, occurred in Toronto on Saturday. He was well-known in Masonry and a leading figure in Conservative party circles, having been mentioned as candidate for federal and provincial seats.

E. C. METCALFE DIES SUDDENLY

Deseronto Canner And Former Mayor Found Dead in His Bed

Elwood C. Metcalfe of Deseronto and Toronto, widely known pioneer Canadian canning industrialist and the eldest independent canner in the country, died suddenly late Friday night at his Toronto residence, 3 Amcroft Place. He was 80 years old.

Since his entry into the canning business twenty-six years ago, Mr. Metcalfe has built up wide canning properties in Eastern Ontario, and at the time of his death was President of Metcalfe Foods, Limited, and Canadian Frosted Foods, Limited. He had just completed a big plant at Whitby to become head office of the various interests he controlled.

Mr. Metcalfe was born in Milford, Prince Edward County, son of the late John Metcalfe. When he was 24 years old, he opened his first plant in Deseronto, known as E. C. Metcalfe Canning Company, and there packed 10% cases of Ontario fruit and vegetables in his first years operations. In 1926 he sold out his holdings to Associated Canneries, his plants at that time producing more than 200,000 cases of product a year.

In 1933, he returned to his business and owned a new company which rapidly assumed an important position in the industry, and a year later, he created another company, handling frozen products. Although for a brief time a director of Associated, he remained an independent canner, and was first President of both Ontario and Canadian Canners' Associations.

For ten years he was councillor or Reeve of Deseronto. Although he was a prominent figure in Conservative affairs he had always declined to seek public office.

Mr. Metcalfe is survived by Mrs. Metcalfe, formerly Florence Helena Case, and by two children, Clyde and Mrs. C. M. Dice. The funeral will be held from the Chapel of A. W. Miles 20 St. Clair Avenue West at 11.45 today, proceeding then to Picton for interment in the United Church there. Rev. F. S. Bowring of St. Catherines will officiate at both services.

F. C. COOPER REFUSED INHERITED BARONETCY

New York, May 17—(AP)—Frank C. Cooper, former newspaperman who refused to renounce his adopted citizenship for an inherited baronetcy, died in Mount Eden Hospital Saturday. He was 78.

Born in Kingston, Ont., he worked on Toronto newspapers before joining the staff of the old New York World. Later he transferred to the journal. He left newspaper work to become chief clerk of the International Mail, a transatlantic Special Sessions.

It was after he became a naturalized citizen that he refused the inheritance of Sir Horace C. Cooper, of Hall Barn, Buckinghamshire. At the time, English papers commented he had forfeited a French impulsiveness from his mother, a sister of Gerome, the painter.

BUSH FIRES CONTROLLED

Edmonton, May 17 (CP) — Bush fires which in the last few days menaced ten House area were reported under control today, according to Provincial government forestry officials. Recurrence of fires in the Peace River district, 50 miles southeast of Edmonton, was reported, but these also were brought under control.

BASQUE TROOPS BLOCK ADVANCE

Hand to Hand Fighting Near Bilbao Saves Important Sector

Bilbao, May 17—(AP)—Fighting hand to hand, Basque troops blocked the Insurgent advance against Bilbao today on the Heights of Bizcargt, about ten miles north of here.

After hours of intense bombardment of the series of hills held by the enemy, the government troops went over the top to take one of the mountain strongholds at bayonet's point.

They were met by a hail of fire as they approached the opposing trenches on the upper slopes.

Despite the bitter resistance the Basques succeeded in reaching the top of the Hill where they forced back the Insurgent defenders after a sanguinary hand-to-hand struggle.

Government commanders said the capture of the Hill left the Insurgents in a precarious position on the nearby heights of Mount Gondra.

(Insurgent dispatches from Guernika reported their lines had been shoved forward a half-mile towards Bilbao in the Amore-Bleta sector. The advance, the insurgent report said, placed the troops of General Francisco Franco within seven miles of the Basque capital. The Government troops were forced to abandon their positions on a spur of Mount Calvo and were driven westward from the Village of Cortezica in a slashing answer to a pre-dawn attack.)

PLEDGED NO STRIKE IN NEXT TEN YEARS

Hollywood, May 17. — (AP) Unionized film players, granted better pay and working conditions, voted today not to strike during the next 10 years, but a 17-day-walkout of carpenters still paralyzed Hollywood studios.

The strike front of the Federated Motion Picture crafts was broken however, when members of two of its locals returned to work today. These, the machinists and culinary workers, numbering some 300 of the Federation's 5,100 striking members, agreed to accept formal negotiations with producers in 10 days.

Continuing to return were the painters, plumbers, boiler-makers, electricians, hairdressers, sewing artists, utility workers and stationary engineers.

APPEAL PROCEEDINGS . . .

Edmonton, May 17 (CP)—Appeal proceedings seeking reversal of a decision of the Supreme Court of Canada, awarding the former Premier Malcolm, $10,000 damages in a seduction action against J. E. Brownlee, former Premier of Alberta, were begun Saturday with serving of a notice of petition of appeal to the Privy Council.

Forces are Trying to Improve German - British Relations

Coronation in German Press is Given Big Play

ENGLAND FAVORED

By LOUIS G. LOCHNER

Berlin, May 17 (AP) — Newspaper banner lines and other officially-controlled manifestations indicated today that Germany and Britain were bent on improving German-British relations.

To international observers it has been evident for some time that Germany is at least considering the relative advantages of British and Italian friendship. Hitler's Italian friendship, insofar as it goes, seems to remain steadfast.

From this situation may be drawn this conclusion:

Germany would like to be good friends with both Italy and Great Britain, which are having new friction. If an outright choice between the two becomes inevitable, Germany will be able to weigh all pros and cons and may command an attractive price for her favors.

On the side of better Anglo-German relations are these factors:

The controlled evening press spoke jubilantly of the "great success" of Marshal Werner von Blomberg, the War Minister, has achieved in recent months and which drove him to the Coronation period.

Ambassador Sir Nevile Henderson, new British Ambassador, is expected to further the mission of making clear that further support of insurgents in the Spanish War will not help prove Germany's value to the Reich.

Suggested were German authorities with the possibilities of rapprochement held out by Sir Nevile that the press was instructed to give the Coronation of King George VI a big and sympathetic "play". (Italy, on the contrary, boycotted the Coronation as a press story.)

Baron Konstantin von Neurath, Reich Foreign Minister, was courteous and friendly on his visit to Rome recently—but declined to commit Germany to anything more than parallelism of intellect and views",

New York-to-Paris Air Race Refused Licence by U. S. Gov't

Ocean Air Races Are Called 'Extra Hazardous'

AVIATION INTEREST

Lakehurst, N.J., May 17 (AP)—Colonel J. Monroe Johnson, assistant secretary of the Department of Commerce, said today the United States Department of Commerce had refused to issue licenses for the projected New York-to-Paris transatlantic air race.

Johnson is at the U. S. naval air station here attending the investigation of the dirigible Hindenburg disaster.

Speaking of trans-oceanic air racing, Johnson said:

"We consider them extra hazardous. We are trying to institute trans-Atlantic flying and don't want to jeopardize it. We are interested in commercial aviation and that has no thrills.

"The air race we consider extra dangerous and we are interested in aviation as we would be in train or auto travel."

GAS CELL CAUSE OF AIRSHIP FIRE?

Rigger on Hindenburg Says He Was Suddenly Enveloped in Fire

Lakehurst, N.J., May 17 (AP) — One of the Hindenburg's riggers, on duty close to the spot where flames first burst forth from her stern today told the United States Department of Commerce Investigating Board his opinion a gas cell started the disaster.

Leland Ewald was the first witness so far able to give any account of what took place in the stern when the fire and explosion occurred on May 6.

His story emphasized the speed and lack of warning which characterized the destruction of the dirigible.

Muffled Detonation

He had reached a station near the fins, he related, and was attempting to lay out a steel landing cable, when it happened.

"There was a muffled detonation and I was standing in fire," he related. "It was so quickly."

"Do you know from the source of the fire?" he was asked.

"I was surrounded by fire," he answered. "It came, of course, from the rear."

"I had the impression it was a gas cell," he added after saying he could not tell whether the flames enveloping him came from the forward or after section. The flames and explosion were simultaneous, he said.

STORKEEPER REMANDED

Hamilton, Ont., May 17 (CP)—C. Wray Patterson, Blackheath general merchant, charged with manslaughter after the death a week ago of Frederick Thake, youthful farmhand, appeared in court today for preliminary hearing and the crown asked for an adjournment until Thursday.

Walter G. Tuchtie, appearing for Patterson, requested bail be set, but his request was objected as the inquest is scheduled for tomorrow.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen Science Service Meteorologist

Where did air come from? Our present numbers have always been in possession of our earth. It was made, when, according to the theory, a huge star came close enough to our sun to pull a part of its mass. Of this our earth was formed. In that mass there were all the elements of our atmosphere. Those elements combined to form the atmosphere, that is, in gaseous form they were mixed or mixed with other elements in the earth's crust, perhaps afterwards to be released again. We know that some are being lost into outer space now, hydrogen, helium, and carbon dioxide. Hydrogen and helium are probably escaping from within the earth as quickly as they are lost into space.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, May 17 (CP)—Pressure is high from Manitoba southward over the Middle Western States and over the Maritime provinces, while it is low over the Pacific area, Southern Alberta and Southern Saskatchewan. Overnight showers have occurred in many parts of Ontario and Western Quebec and in Nova Scotia and light showers have occurred locally in the other provinces. Temperatures have been moderate throughout the Dominion.

PLANT OATS NOW IS THE SUGGESTION OF SEED INSPECTOR

"Farmers of the district many of whom are about three weeks behind in their spring work could, I would do well to plant early oats this year if they intend sowing that crop at all," warned Mr. Wm. Michael, Dominion district seed inspector of the local office in a statement upon weather conditions which have retarded work all through the rural areas.

"And when sowing, sow good seed. Don't purchase from transient traders who might want to offer "bargains" in seed grain. Although some of this seed is re-cleaned, much of it contains wild mustard and other weed seeds which will be hard to eradicate once they have been planted", it was added.

TO LAY NEW CEMENT FLOOR IN CORRIDOR OF JAIL CELL BLOCK

All was rush and bustle in and around the County Jail Buildings today, inmates were busy removing the wooden floor in the lower corridor of the cell block preparatory to the installation of a new cement floor. This afternoon another gang of men were put to work preparing the roadway between the Sergeant house and that of the County Treasurer. A new cement pavement will be laid down replacing the gravel one now in existence.

'BIKE-HIKE' CLASS TAKE DIP IN MUSCOTE BAY ON SATURDAY

"Bike-Hike class g ike Twenty bodies, gleaming in the afternoon sun, and flushed from the effects of their first dip, climbed out of the water at Muscote Bay lake Saturday afternoon, culminating the first "bike-hike" of the Prep. Class of the local Y.M.C.A.

The boys, under the supervision of Geoffrey Scott, "Y" physical instructor, pedalled their "steeds" over seven miles of country roads, then partook of the blue for two miles through the wet earth of uncultivated fields.

A camp fire was built and a hearty meal prepared and consumed. Later came the dip and the ride home. This is one of a series of hikes which the members of the class will enjoy during the summer months.

HASTINGS MEN TO INSTRUCT STUDENTS IN TIMBER SCALING

The science of timber scaling has not yet been lost by old time lumbermen of this county, but is being passed on to a younger generation, it is indicated by the fact Mr. Charles Duquett of Maynooth, and Mr. D. Fennock, Bonarlaw, have been chosen to go to Bonkonq Lake in Hastings county, for one week to give practical instruction in scaling to students of the faculty of forestry of the University of Toronto.

Fishing from the bank of the Moira River at the rear of an uptown hotel late Saturday evening, Albert Stewart, keen aged boy, demonstrated to friends his ability at landing them even if he has to wade in the water to do it. Three times in the seesaw battle with some unknown monster, the boy youth was pulled from the bank into the river in an effort to save pole and line. Landed finally, the huge prize was carried home in triumph.

Today after it had been weighed and photographed at his home, the catch was identified as a tackle and hook-scarred 15-pound channel cat.

DISTRIBUTION OF FISH FRY NOW GOING ON

Now in their busiest part of the season, employees of the local Dominion Fish Hatchery are working overtime in an effort to keep up with demands made for fish fry of various species which have been received from all parts of the province. One of the latest shipment was a consignment of 84,000 pickerel fry to Rideau Lakes district. The conditions was in charge of C. H. LaRue of the city, who will oversee the planting.

OPENING PICKEREL FISHING SEASON IS REPORTED POOR

Though Belleville's anglers migrated in fair numbers to nearby lakes and bays on Saturday and over last week end, following the special tackle and high optimism on the opening day of the pickerel season, reports of successful catches of the fish were few and far between in the city today. Moira Lake, northern lakes and even coves of the Bay of Quinte had their coterie of anglers, but pickerel were wary and scarce, it was generally reported. On the other hand fair catches of trout were reported from the brooks and streams of nearby Northumberland County where fly fishermen patrolled in hopeful fashion.

LT. COL. BARRAGAR LAID TO REST

Funeral Held Under Military Auspices on Saturday

Saturday afternoon the funeral of Lt.-Col. David Barragar, commanding officer of the 15th Battalion, A.I.F., from November 17th, 1915 to November 24th, 1918 and retired principal of Queen Mary School, took place, with military honors, from his late residence, 19 Holloway Street and was largely attended.

An impressive service was conducted in the home by Rev. R. P. Newman, pastor of Holloway St. United Church, assisted by the Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker, and the Rev. L. S. Wight.

At the close of the service the casket, draped with the Union Jack, was placed upon a gun carriage and headed by the pipe band ensemble, 15th battalion, 2nd Brigade, Canadian Infantry (Militia), Lt.-Col. N. Davison, the funeral party proceeded to the Belleville cemetery, where interment was made in the Barragar family plot. A detachment of the 15th Battalion Cadets in uniform, in command of Cadet Instructor R. J. Burman was in the funeral procession.

The service at the graveside was conducted by the Rev. R. E. Newman.

The "Last Post" and "Reveille" were sounded by Bugler Sergeant Major Wardle, and a firing party fired over the grave by the firing party in charge of Quartermaster-Sergeant Percy Bell.

The honorary bearers were Messrs O. B. Smith, K.C., Belleville; Chas. N. Sulman, Arthur McGie, B. F. Jennings and C. J. Frederick.

Pall Bearers Col. Gordon Vanderwater, D.S.O., V.D.; Lt.-Col. J. J. Doyle, M.C., Lt.-Col. A. E. Geen, V.D.; Lt.-Col. A. R. Gribble, D.S.O.; Lt.-Col. S. C. Donnan, E.D.; Major H. F. Alford, V.D.; Major C. P. Green, V.D.; and Major P. W. Geen, V.D.

Bearers—R.S.M. G. Lancaster; C.S.M. J. Bishop; C.S.M. H. Hobbs; Sergt. T. Jordan; Sergt. D. May and Sergt. P. Tilley.

Retirement of Anglican Clergymen at Age of 70 Is to Be Considered

A proposed canon to the effect that incumbents of any rectory, benefice or church in the Diocese of Ontario will be required to submit his resignation to the Bishop upon attaining the age of seventy, and that such resignation become effective only upon acceptance by the Bishop will receive the consideration of the Synod of the Diocese of Ontario when it meets for its seventy-first session in Kingston, next Tuesday.

The session will open tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in St. George's with the celebration of the Holy Communion with the Archbishop Bishop Lyons as celebrant. The annual Synod service will be held at 8 p.m. when a sermon will be preached by Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson of Peterborough. All laymen, the Rev. Thomas Leech M.A. of Amherst Island will be installed as canon.

At the mission session on the evening of May 20th, the speaker will be Right Rev. George B. Barns, Bishop of Labrador and the Rev. C. R. H. Whiamson of the Kangra Mission.

A special service of the session will be the musical offerings of a massed choir selected from the choirs of the larger centres in the diocese.

Twenty members of the choir of St. Thomas' Church under the direction of Mr. Ernest Bingley, A.R.C.O. and a number of the choristers of Christ Church, Belleville will participate in this part of the service.

The Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, Vicar of St. Thomas' Church, the Rev. C. O. Taylor, Rector of Christ Church, Messrs. N. E. Edwards, W. Davison and Col. S. A. Geen, lay delegates of St. Thomas' Church, and Messrs. Geo. S. Stokes, O. B. Smith, and O. H. Scott lay delegates of Christ Church will attend the session of the Synod.

Much Rain Hampers Planting of Grain

The persistent activities of Ol' Jupiter Pluvius in deluging the countryside with rain is causing grave concern among farmers in various sections of the county. Seen at the city market on Saturday morning a prominent Tyendinaga farmer stated that to date he had not sown "one kernel of grain". Another farmer residing north of Tweed, stated that many fields in his district were still inundated and continuous rains were making matters worse. H. A. MacDonald, of Gilead, Prince Edward County, was more optimistic. "Our land", he said is much higher and consequently we have had our seeding done for some time. I have peas out of the ground for a distance of three inches. I'm not worrying nicely, although we have had enough rain for the present."

Local Employment Bureau officials stated this morning that seeding conditions of roads in and around the construction projects in the northern part of the county will suspend spring operations indefinitely. Warm winds and sunshine are badly needed, it is claimed.

DANCE FLOOR AT ARENA OPENED

Artistically Decorated in a Coronation Motif

"What a difference a few weeks make." The gardens of the Belleville arena have echoed to some stirring sounds of dance music, and while it is a far cry from the coarse cheering of a hockey-mad crowd to the soft music of the saxophones and trumpets yet that is what has happened within the short space of a few weeks.

For on Saturday night, in a gay and colorful setting, the summer dance program of the arena was inaugurated before a large and enthusiastic crowd. Color and yet more color is the predominating note in the decoration motifs. Soft lights flash intermittently in clusters situated at various intervals around the dance floor throwing a softened light upon the dancing couples.

Above the heads of the dancers hang strings of multi-colored pennants streaching across the width of the floor. The netting, which acts as a protective against flying pucks during the hockey season is artistically arranged in squares of white paper ribbon, with the letter "A" standing out prominently in the centre.

Strings of colored lights encircle the dance floor. The orchestra stage is attractively arranged and decorated in a coronation motif. Saturday the conventional black and white of Bud Rowe's band. The Commodores orchestra showed in vivid contrast against the sky blue of the decorations. Enhancing the effect are music stands striped in futuristic effects of black and white.

A trio of attractive young ladys ushers completes the picture. Looking trim and neat in their button-on "sell-boy" uniforms, they add the finishing touch to what should become one of the most popular dancing spots of the city and district.

IVANHOE W.M.S.

The annual meeting of the Ivanhoe Branch of the Women's Institute was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday, May 11th with a fair number in attendance.

The meeting opened in the usual manner with the use of the Institute Ode. The Roll-Call "Pay Your Fee" was responded to. The president, Mrs. Kilpatrick after a few well chosen remarks introduced the three of the ladies namely, Mrs. J. Clements, Mrs. W. Shaw, and Mrs. C. Sills to give short addresses on the Coronation.

It was decided that we give $5 as

All the Comforts of Home —and THEN SOME

A basement recreation room that the entire family could enjoy and that would not be a strain on the finances was the aim of the home owner who created a den in the cellar of his cellar. He decided to use the materials at hand and produce a simple room.

The rest of the house had been re-papered and repainted. The part of the basement being made into the room was painted ivory with some of the paint remaining from work done on another part of the house.

A composition floor was laid over the concrete base and a rug was laid in the centre. With this colorful background, a combination of old and new furniture was used. The only other work that had to be done before the room was furnished, was the installation of electric outlets, to provide proper lighting.

Sectional book cases which had once been used in the living room flanked one wall of the new room, and a combination book case and desk was placed under a high basement window. A few old occasional tables and a magazine rack that were no longer needed in the newly decorated upper rooms were put in the den. A new, modern bridge set and a matching settee, upholstered in bright red leather were purchased.

The children of the family used the room as a study and a large mat of North America made a colorful wall decoration. A gay, red and blue color scheme end was used by the students in their studies as well.

Funds for remodelling and modernizing the home are now available under the Home Improvement Plan.

Obituary

MISS STELLA COOPER (Ialeboro)

The death occurred at the Belleville General Hospital on Sunday morning, May 16th, of Miss Stella Cooper, age 22 years, of Malone, Ont., R.R. 3. She had been a patient at the hospital since last Tuesday.

ALBERT A. EGGLETON (Thurlow)

Early this Monday morning, May 17th, Albert Andrew Eggleton passed away at the residence of his son, Mr. Percy Eggleton, Lot 25, 9th Concession of Thurlow Township, at the age of 74, failing health for some time.

The late Mr. Eggleton, who was in his 86th year, was born in Rawdon Township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Eggleton. For many years he resided in the township where he was born and was engaged in farming. For the past thirteen years he had made his home with his son, Mr. Percy A. Eggleton, in Thurlow Township.

Throughout his long life he was well esteemed by all who knew him. He was a member of the United Church at Ivanhoe.

Surviving him are one daughter, Mrs. Charles Bowlby, Madoc Junction; two sons, Mr. Thomas Eggleton of Deseronto, and Mr. Percy A. Eggleton of Thurlow Township.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

Fire Department Helps To Open Locked House

Residents of Chatham Street were given cause for excitement on Sunday when the hook and ladder apparatus of the Belleville Fire Department raced to a stop in front of the home of Police Inspector Herbert McCabe.

Failure to receive any smoke or flames issuing from the house increased their curiosity, and further investigation revealed the startling fact that a daughter of the Inspector had locked inadvertently locked one of her home.

The young lady called the Police Department and Detective Leslie Hand was despatched to the scene. He however failed to effect an entrance and the Fire Department services were commandeered. A long ladder was placed against the house and entrance effected through a window. That was the end of the inspector and Mrs. McCabe had been called away and apparently locked the door, behind them.

POLICE BLOTTER

Reeve Wesley Gray's automobile, that was stolen from his premises last Friday night, was recovered abandoned on Centennial Drive over the week end, Provincial Police Report. Prior to the stealing of Mr. Gray's car a valuable bulldog, the property of Harry Pound, Thurlow and owner of Gray's was stolen from his drive way. Authorities believe the parties responsible for the theft of Mr. Gray's car also took Mr. Pound's dog.

Glad Hanas, Ameliasburg, reported the theft of a radio to the Provincial Police over the week end. The police have made no conclusive headway in the matter.

Activities proved purely routine in and around local police circles over the week end. A number of minor investigations kept the constabulary busied while two parties were apprehended driving their motor cars while transporting four persons in the front seat thereof, contrary to the Highway Traffic Act, Summonses will be issued in these cases.

Egerton W. M. S. and W. A.

On Thursday afternoon, May 13th the regular May meeting of the Egerton W. M. S. and W. A. was held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Pitchett with a fair number in attendance. Mrs. Christie, Mrs. Pitchett and Mrs. Andrews of Stirling were welcome visitors at the meeting. Mrs. Andrews and Mrs. Pitchette gave interesting messages and workers in the Auxiliary here and we are always glad to have them with us from time to time at our meetings.

The President, Mrs. Pidgeon, opened the meeting with a hymn. Then Mrs. Christie led in prayer, The Scripture Lesson was read by Mrs. Harlow.

An invitation was read from Mount Pleasant Auxiliary inviting the Auxiliary to attend their meeting in June.

Another hymn was sung. A reading was given by Miss Marion Mc-Mullen. Mrs. Andrews sang a solo. Mrs. Christie gave a short talk.

A "Temperance Lesson" was read by Mrs C Pitchett. Mrs. R Chambers sang a solo, then Mrs Pidgeon gave a talk on the origin of "The Coronation Chair."

Another temperance reading was given by Miss L. Stapley. Collection was taken up and after the closing hymn all repealed the Mispah benediction.

The hostess then served lunch.

"THE BRIGHT HILL"

by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman

But Carl had never, before heard a cry when it came from Kerin's heart; why should he now? He slid from his chair and saying, "Ha, ole fella! Je vous le souhaite, too! Well, let's see how big you are!" chewed him along the hall and Kerin could hear him pummelling and patting and tickling the boy in the front room. If Carl could only walk, thought Kerin, ...only wait for Donald to come to him, instead of grabbing at him. But when he grabbed with those big hands, naturally a person, any person, wanted to escape if only for a moment, it only to breathe. Pulling her hands from the pan, she was too busy to apply the analogy to herself.

INSTALLMENT SIXTEEN

Kerin, pursuing her days as in exceptionally dull novel, left all her own plans in abeyance while Carl got himself off to Russia. At first it seemed that he would not be able to finish his college year, and made plans for his return after absence from examinations. But things hung along, and Carl read examinations with marred irritability; and still months hung fire. Kerin began to hear a good deal of explosive talk about slippery foreigners and "the world's-full" he lied and couldn't get things done. Sometimes Kerin felt as if she were thrown upon the city streets and she public playgrounds. If Carl's plans would only work out, Kerin thought, she could go immediately to Amherst, find a small house and said could have the countryside for a playground.

Of a sudden Carl went to Washington; but he returned in a few days, alarmed and excited as a tourist. July, hot, dry, windy, rent now said one, was the month of clonic thunderstorms characteristic of the Mid-west, was nearly past. And the date of the trial of all them, Carl got word that he was to come immediately to Washington for a last conference and the party would sail shortly thereafter from New York.

Kerin packed the two big trunkfuls and the two bags. Through the perspiration streaming from her in the hot July days she packed the heavy overcoat, his high, wool-lined winter galoshes, his fur lined gloves, his woolen and thicked underwear, socks, his two heavy winter suits, the new shoes that were necessary and had stitched in the room darkened against the corn-and-hog-raising heat. She put in the lightweight overcoat, his lighter weight suit, his underwear and shirts. She crowded in three pairs of his enormous shoes. She thought she had packed all done, that had he been a smaller man the effort of getting him peaceed would have been less.

But he was packed. A box of books and pipes without which he could not, or he could not move was added, and his briefcase, his typewriter. In the end he had packed and had to count out; and when Carl discovered he had to leave it behind he frowned and refused.

"Good heavens, Kerin!" he exclaimed, his eye, as he stood at last ready for departure, roaming nearly over the room, "I suppose! What do you think I am? A dray horse, Kerin, or a mule?"

"Just winter things. You won't need to open it for months."

"Probably I shall not unpack at all. I'll need. But this coat — Lord, Kerin! It's a blanket!"

"But you'll need it on the steamer—"

"Then I'll buy one! What's in here, anyway?"

He opened up the case of winter things with a jerk. It was solidly packed, it was filled with the rolls of socks, extra tubes of toothpaste, a few simple drugs.

"What's all this? Do you think I can't buy toothpaste in Russia? Or shaving cream? Kerin! Madcap!"

He scattered the articles out on the floor. "And all these socks — what's this for?"

"But Carl—"

"Clothes, that's all they are. I ought to have seen to this packing myself. But I thought you knew this and that, dug about the edges awhile, jammed his hand down on top of everything, and then let it go. Into the cover back on; the result is the same as it all is. Not a size or weight of the case when strapped but gave just a sense of well-being. Kerin was, perhaps, of more value at this moment to Kerin than his own life, and the packing cream would be to Carl. He gave the discarded articles a look of pandemic humor.

"I may raise a beard and not need a razor," he said. "Kerin! Where's Donald? Oh, there you are, Pet bedded Kerin's dear Schaeffer pen. "Don't cry, honey. You'll be better off without me — you'll see." A knock at the door for flunk it open. "Taxi! Yes. take these two big bags down. I'll take the others. Well, good-by, Kerin...old girl. By, Donald. Don't let your mother pet you too much. Remember, a boy grows to be a man, not a girl."

Then, standing lightly he dropped to his heels before the boy, not touching him. Incomprehensible, magnetic, he waited. There was a long moment of time while the two eyed each other. Then Carl said, "Son, don't you care a bit that I'm going?"

There was a moment of agonizing silence. Kerin could see Donald leaning drawn forward, as she was being drawn forward to that waiting figure. Then with a sob the child flung himself into his father's arms.

Then she felt his arms around her and clung to him in turn. Then there was a clatter and bumping of luggage down the stair, into the taxi; then was a slam, the roar of an engine, the drawing away of the car. In the darkened room, standing in a litter of socks and shaving soap and razor blades and a foolish cellophane package of three unopened chocolates, Kerin and Donald were alone.

For three days Kerin lay about the darkened house, flattened out as an utter exhaustion of body and mind. Life seemed too difficult, for once, for her to take up. She longed with a sense of panic, to run after Carl and beg him to return. Carl was her husband; the force of him, body and mind, had filled her life. Every day had been added to consideration of him. And now he was gone. There was no root, now, to her days.

But on the fourth day she felt a change. Perhaps it was the weather, which, with the turn to August, blew in, unaccustomedly cold wind across the dusty city. Perhaps it was Susan, who came in, her dark hair blowing, her cheeks red. It was not but who, even so, looked as cool and crisp and competent as her immaculate gingham dress, Kerin felt she deserved the quick look that Susan gave her limp hair and tired and the disordered kitchen table.

"Kerin, you look terrible!" said Susan, ingenuously. "Having to pack in this heat. I know how you must feel and I've come to see Kerin. Kerin, dear, her voice took on a forceful intelligence, "I've come to take you back with you and to tell that if I catch you sticking in that front room of the sewing machine I'll come over here and trounce you."

"But I haven't," said Kerin, feebly, "Oh, yes, — I see what you mean. I'll get up. I'll get myself out of from stitching up a little frock. I don't see how I'm going to get a thing done, back. I'll get up. But Susan, I thought I'd take Donald and go to Amherst for a visit. Why, Kerin there. It would be so marvelous in the hills. And Mrs. Winters served that my house would be ready by September first."

"Nuts!" There was magic in this words, and unconsciously Kerin sat up straighter, and a brightness came to her eyes.

"Now, that's sense!" said Susan "And I've come to help. I'll begin right here by doing the dishes."

She unhooked an apron from the back of the door, dropped a dish-cloth over her shoulder and, and the kitchen was filled with the hearty sound of rushing water.

Kerin looked at Donald's back in a small dismay. She did not feel in such strength as Susan, undertaking the accumulated dishes while she watched soap, said, "Been sick? Oh, I'm sorry. Kerin, you look as if you had been sick." Then, after a pause, "Mim," said Susan. "Well, get a hustle on, Kerin, — and we'll have these done up in a jiffy and then we'll take stock of the house."

Kerin felt a little rose, for, with self assist and sore when she moved, she began to feel energy. A flicker of smile dimpled her mouth.

Susan saw it. "What you giggling about, Kerin? Not me, I hope."

"Yes. You and Carl are kind of alike," said Kerin, dreamily.

Susan's eyes grew round and she dropped a cup. "Kerin! You don't mean it!"

Kerin flashed a look at her. "Why, Susan, I'm sorry. I didn't mean it—" ment. You're both so — positive, definite about things. You both have minds. I feel so — so dizzy about the cup. It was only a ten-cent one, and probably not a set."

But Susan was picking up the bits with a dreamy look. "Kerin," she said saying, "So it's true. How perfectly awful. It's true. How perfectly, perfectly awful. It's the nicest and it's a compliment." It was a subject which Susan could not dismiss. "How washed dishes and automatically polished the table and the stove and the sink. Kerin. But by the time she got to putting the dishes away in the cupboard, she was somewhat recovered, and she and Kerin became interested in discussing the new cloth to take. "The sheep from the goats," Susan said, "and believe me, Kerin, I'm all of it goat. Remember,—Kerin, — Susan forgot her embarrassment in her schadenfreude, "we are on in those big New York stores, and if you are going east now, today, I'll go with you. Why, Kerin, for two ninety-eight you can get a dress that will make people look at you. Donny don't need much, you know. Let me think. I've got a dress to allow. A light green — or a black Kerin! Wouldn't that be stunning? Black, some of that new brown and lery stuff with those sweet fat jingly stitches. I'm mad about it. Any stuff you have here," and Susan innocent of offense, "isn't worth the expense to ship, let alone the work of packing."

Kerin looked guilty at a picture, blue with white polka dots, with a ship in the sea. She had bought it cheap because of the shape, and thought that she had better hide it among her clothes. Susan, she should perceive, was going to know with uncanny insight just what she packed.

But Susan was a great bulwark. Kerin's heart for the evening never turned to her, as Susan went over the flat, picking and shrewding, Susan's definiteness cut across the sentimental twisting of this or that with refreshing acidity. "Here, leave it in my attic, Kerin love, if you can't bear to part with it. But I want to go on record that it's junk just the same."

As to Kerin's clothes, every item of her meagre wardrobe, even her hats, were subjected to criticism and added, piece by piece, to a growing pile for the attic.

"Alan says to get one of your bonds any time, Kerin, and get the best to sell it. He says it will bring better than nine hundred dollars." Every day had been added to consideration of him. And now he was gone. There was no root, now, to her days.

But on the fourth day she felt a change. Perhaps it was the weather, which, with the turn to August, blew in unaccustomedly cold wind across the dusty city. Perhaps it was Susan, who came in, her dark hair blowing, her cheeks red. It was not but who, even so, looked as cool and crisp and competent as her immaculate gingham dress, Kerin felt she deserved the quick look that Susan gave her limp hair and tired and the disordered kitchen table.

And Mrs. Winters served that my house would be ready by September first."

"Nuts!" There was magic in this words, and unconsciously Kerin sat up straighter, and a brightness came to her eyes.

"Now, that's sense!" said Susan "And I've come to help. I'll begin right here by doing the dishes."

She unhooked an apron from the back of the door, dropped a dish-cloth over her shoulder and, and the kitchen was filled with the hearty sound of rushing water.

Kerin looked at Donald's back in a small dismay. She did not feel in such strength as Susan, undertaking the accumulated dishes while she watched soap, said, "Been sick? Oh, I'm sorry. Kerin, you look as if you had been sick." Then, after a pause, "Mim," said Susan. "Well, get a hustle on, Kerin, — and we'll have these done up in a jiffy and then we'll take stock of the house."

Kerin felt a little rose, for, with self assist and sore when she moved, she began to feel energy. A flicker of smile dimpled her mouth.

Susan saw it. "What you giggling about, Kerin? Not me, I hope."

"Yes. You and Carl are kind of alike," said Kerin, dreamily.

Susan's eyes grew round and she dropped a cup. "Kerin! You don't mean it!"

Kerin flashed a look at her. "Why, Susan, I'm sorry. I didn't mean it—" ment. You're both so — positive, definite about things. You both have minds. I feel so — so dizzy about the cup. It was only a ten-cent one, and probably not a set."

But Susan was picking up the bits with a dreamy look. "Kerin," she said saying. "So it's true. How perfectly awful. It's true. How perfectly, perfectly awful. It's the nicest and it's a compliment." It was a subject which Susan could not dismiss. "How washed dishes and automatically polished the table and the stove and the sink. Kerin. But by the time she got to putting the dishes away in the cupboard, she was somewhat recovered, and she and Kerin became interested in discussing the new cloth to take. "The sheep from the goats," Susan said, "and believe me, Kerin, I'm all of it goat. Remember,—Kerin, — Susan forgot her embarrassment in her schadenfreude, "we are on in those big New York stores, and if you are going east now, today, I'll go with you. Why, Kerin, for two ninety-eight you can get a dress that will make people look at you. Donny don't need much, you know. Let me think. I've got a dress to allow. A light green — or a black Kerin! Wouldn't that be stunning? Black, some of that new brown and lery stuff with those sweet fat jingly stitches. I'm mad about it. Any stuff you have here," and Susan innocent of offense, "isn't worth the anything so beautiful. She said it came from Canada or Manchuria or the Caucasus or somewhere where in the world is the Caucasus Alan and she'd always slept under it as a girl. How what do you know about that? And that isn't all—" hurried on Susan. "Really, Alan, it's only the beginning. Kerin, you're rich in silver, and a picture of a little farm hiding in greeny grass and trees I could have cried over, and a box of carved chessmen—"

Suddenly Susan's eyes grew fixed on distance.

And then Aladdin rubbed the lamp—

But Susan had leaps from her chair, "It is! It's Janet crying!" and she was gone.

A half hour later she poked her head in again. "Dinner, Alan. And six days of carved ivory, Kerin dear!"

—! You just can't think how I wanted to talk to those things and Mrs. Herrick's dear face and eyes of them."

"Mrs. Herrick," said Alan, tucking Susan's arm under his, "hasn't a face — her empty marcelled head that compares with Susan's."

"I know, Alan," said Susan, in a dissatisfied voice, "but I'm not Janet's chin, "but Kerin's so easy, so soft and sweet. I'm always afraid that as soon as I'm out of sight she weak-mindedly pokes in some goofball bit of the old trap and Donny won't suspect. And she lets Carl get her just the same way."

She paused, and with lifted head and lifted chin, her eyes suddenly speculative. Then, seeing the astonishment in his, she stuck out her tongue at him. "Oh, you're her judgment was set against yours, I think you'd be as gently unyielding as now you are, her yielding. The thing is that she's for you, she's for Donny, wrong or right. I admire it, it stirs something in me to see such persistent and unassuming loyalty. Kerin's not being beaten by her life. You might be, I might be, in the same situation. But Kerin doesn't know few people who, to my mind, show the capacity, the flinal understanding, to make so much out of life. Alan," her voice was warm, his glance kindle "If you marry me," said Alan, "she has to my mind a rare gift for me, too. Alan, I think that first, before everything, she understands the other person."

"Alan!" breathed Susan. "You sweet, sweet thing! Janet, get up at once and kiss your father! And Alan saying hastily, Susan went around the table, gathering herself into Alan's lap, wound her arms around his neck. Helga, who was used to this, went on sleeping undisturbed.

Kerin was sitting in the stripped kitchen. Every thing was packed. The packers had come and taken away her mother's desk and Grandfather's bed and the old fashioned chairs and trunks. Before her on the table, in the bare kitchen, was the check book with its balance of nine hundred and odd dollars. Kerin had commanded now to do but the hardest thing of all; to have the second-hand man come and appraise with disparaging eyes the remainder of her household possessions, and then pack her bag and go. She sat this morning in the bereft kitchen, looking at the check book, at the little pile of odds and ends that she had kept out, and at three Haviland bread and butter plates, the last of her wedding china, carefully wrapped in newspaper and possibly abandon them.

There was the bundle of a key in the front door; some one came in —Donald? No, he had no key; the clicking of a heavy bag; a person going forward into the front of the house, also her guest, and Mrs. Kendall, Deerconte, were guests of Mr. Alan Herrick's overnight.

little running sleeps, with colstretched hands, with small inarticulate cries.

"Oh, Carl — Carl! What is it?" Carl's hands caught her, "It's all right, Kerin. It's the whole business."

"Not Russia? Oh. Carl!"

"Russia. Lord, Kerin, I'm nearly sick."

"Oh, my dear! Have you had breakfast? Let me make you some coffee."

Kerin flew to the accustomed task. Carl slumped heavily in a chair, Kerin's heart was beating, beating. It was a senseless panic. She felt lonely unwilling to question him.

But Carl was willing and glad to talk to Kerin. It just couldn't stand it any longer, Kerin. Ought to have known. Ought to have had no idea of it. Just finally threw up the whole thing, packed my bag and beat it for home."

He put his elbows on the table, his head in fingers through his hair, in the gesture she knew so well. The odor of coffee floated in the sunny room.

Kerin ventured a question. "Did they — they want you to quit?"

Carl shook his great head. "I don't know. I don't think so. I think they did, really. Trouble with them is the whole thing is a mess, any organization. Just a lot of fellows running around like chickens with their heads cut off. Not one thing that's really the head. They didn't seem to have a thing to say to me. Some would pick up this chap, and then another would pick up that chap. Willard Wright, who's one of the best, as I could see. Couldn't see, either, why I was there. I found they had no idea what they were doing. I had any assurance that the Russian authorities would be willing to have me. I'm sick of it, Kerin. We were just a bunch of enthusiastic fools. Nothing else. I'm sick."

"Who?"

"Me — a man in international law." Carl pushed back his hair with his fingers. "Just go the cut — his big blue cup — of coffee that Kerin had poured out. Enough to make you pick the way they all knowed around him. Well — if they want Conway they don't want me. That's the way I figured it out. Willard to pin some of them down. Like pinning down water. Pull of gestures and words, but — Lord! Kerin, I'm sick. Just going on with it? A bunch of windbags! I couldn't stand it any longer."

INSTALLMENT EIGHTEEN

"Then you're absolutely not going back?"

"No. Of course not—"

"But why not? Why do?"

Carl raised tired eyes to hers. "Don't look at me like that. Teach here. Of course. They haven't filled my place yet."

Kerin began to tremble. "But, Carl — I've accepted that job."

Carl looked at her blankly on his hand. "Well — that's easily fixed up. Just write him you can't go. They'll let you off."

Kerin sat down in the straight kitchen chair, her hands in her lap, knees were shaking. She thought incoherently that Carl was ill. He had sat down behind the table, where their weakness would be hidden. This was obviously unprotected, there against the wall.

A Tea Pool Office is assured for the village of Tweed with work to commence in a short time in the erection of the building. A business block has been purchased according to a report from an authoritative source but no announcement of the site will be made for a few days.

Rev. Father D. A. Cullinane, Novitiate of Dunbar, took over his new duties in Tweed on Wednesday. His predecessor was taken by Rev. Fr. Meagher of Madoc. Rev. Fr. Shannon who had been assisting the Rev. Father O'Riordan at St. Carlibagh's Church, Tweed, has left to carry charge at Wilberforce.

Tweed Army and Navy Veterans' Association met on Wednesday night attracted a small crowd. A membership, not carring to dance, were entertained at Elzevir Orange Hall. The prize winners were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wagar and Mrs. Alex Connachie and Mr. Chas. McCaw. Mr. Fred Caldwell won the door prize of $5.00. Little Miss Winifred Sheila Trudeau contributed a pleasing tap dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ruttan, Consecon, were honored by many friends at some pleasant functions following their marriage. Miss Alice LeBarge entertained a large number of guests in honor of the bride, who has been a resident of Sills. Mr. Ruttan was presented by the staff of the Hurst House with a floor lamp.

The funeral service of the late William Foley, former resident of Stoco, was conducted on Tuesday morning last by Rev. Father Cullinane in St. Carlibagh's Church by Rev. Fr. Cullinane. One sister, Mrs. Felix Foley of Stoco, survives; while a brother, Edward, was killed at Corbyville some years ago.

The late William Foley had resided in Kingston for the past three years and disappeared about three months ago. His body, badly decomposed, was found floating in the Rideau Canal near Kingston early in the week.

An interesting meeting of the Women's Association of Tweed United Church was held on Thursday afternoon in the Church Parlors. The program was arranged by Mrs. W. L. Kelcheson's group which had charge of the meeting. Plans were discussed for the organization of the church—the Sunday School, the Official Board, the Choir, the Ushers, and the W. A. Each occupying a very important place in the life of the church. The concluding Mrs. Herrington offered prayer and suggestions for carrying the meetings more successful.

Mrs. Alfred Davis, a former resident of Thomasburg, sang a pathetic solo. "There's a Land, a Dear Land." Mrs. Herrington, who also accompanied the church to the band. Each representing a

JACK MINER'S WORK

The Jack Miner sanctuary at Kingsville deserves to be perpetuated. The Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation has been incorporated by Jack Miner's friends with the hope of raising dollars to perpetuate the place and make the famed spot an international park, where young and old can go and see the birds live. One writer has called it "a park for the people of America, surrounded by the Christian influence of God's living creatures."

Accordingly any persons of means wishing to contribute by gift or bequest may obtain full particulars by writing to the Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Inc., at Kingsville, Ontario.

By this time every one in Canada must have heard of this park, the most unique and famous in the world, because it is the most natural.

This year it is expected that the numbers of visitors to the sanctuary will be greater than at any time in history. Curiosity has no doubt much to do with the visits but there is also the natural desire to pay tribute to that man who has taught the world many lessons, Jack Miner. Canada has been particularly blessed in having Jack Miner establish that bird refuge in Canada where it cannot but be the model of countless refuges in all part of the country maintained by public and private gifts.

Like those who contribute much to the welfare of their fellowmen, Jack Miner, one of the world's greatest naturalists and a man who is not a faddist but the most practical because he knows nature by experience, is not rich. No one could think of a rich Jack Miner, the man who has spent his own private means to do this miracle for the bird life of Canada. Of course his work has not been started without sacrifice. The results of this great self-denial are the lessons of kindness and common sense he has been the means of instilling into countless young hearts and his fostering of the wild things of nature.

It is the hope of every lover of the out-door life that the Foundation may see its desire attained, for it is doing a good work, a religious work. Did not the old Hebrew prophets, the Psalmist and Christ stress the elements of nature, the birds flying about the temple and all wild life such as the birds as symbol of the care of Providence for the race of men? They put the love of wild life in nature, it belongs, a part of the spirit of reverence for the Creater. Jack Miner has done something of the same kind as the old Hebrews. He has made a temple of nature at Kingsville where mankind may worship in the presence of the birds which have a lesson for man. Jack Miner is the high priest of the great wild life, those lovely things of nature, which have been associated with man since the dawn of human intelligence.

VISCOUNT SNOWDEN DIES

One of the outstanding men of this generation has gone, Philip Snowden, who was raised to a viscounty several years ago. Though a socialist of long standing and one of the builders of the Labor party he championed balanced budgets and orthodox finance. He was a brilliant debater, and his services were in constant demand on account of his brilliance on economics, on boards of inquiry.

Viscount Snowden had an accident as a young man which marred his entire life. He was left a cripple and his consequent ill-health imparted to his nature an element of bitterness. He exerted a tremendous lash with his acid tongue.

He lived through the crisis days of 1931 when Britain left the gold standard and it was he who introduced the bill suspending the gold standard. He remained at the Treasury through the financial crisis, then accepted a peerage and remained in the cabinet as Lord Privy Seal until 1932 when he retired.

Snowden left his mark on his generation, though for many years his stand was not popular. His was the unpopular side of public life which has to be demonstrated to provide a full view of the problems facing legislators.

His accomplishment whether popular or not must be admitted as important. His achievement in the face of constant illness was one of the most remarkable.

KING CHRISTIAN CELEBRATES

King Christian of Denmark and Iceland, celebrated his silver jubilee as sovereign on Saturday and the people of Denmark and Iceland marked the time in no uncertain way the popular ruler.

The English-speaking world has always looked upon Denmark as one of the happy nations. The people though sitting on the apex of troubled Europe, have succeeded in keeping their peace and enviably detached from the ills of other lands. To the British people the Danes and the Danish royal family have particular appeal and sympathy because of the fact that the grandmother of King George Sixth was a Danish Princess who was Queen Alexandra, consort of King Edward Seventh. That King Christian may live long at peace and rule his country is the hope of every Britisher.

WATCH CANADA GROW AND IN THE WATCHING TRY AND GROW WITH IT. Canada is certainly growing in a very material way. Growing lusty and prosperous although many seem to be blind to the evidence of national growth so manifest. We have only to look at Northern Ontario with its production of millions yearly in precious metals to gasp with wonder at the miraculous change of a few years. Muskeag and bush, trails few and far between and no highway west or north of North Bay, just on the fringe of New Ontario, marked a No Man's Land, sacred only to lumbermen and hunters a few short years ago. Today the country north of North Bay is a teeming hive of industry. Lumbering first, then the silver with Cobalt as a side line, then the great clay agricultural belt north, west and east of New Liskeard—on to the greatest gold belt in the world, with Kirkland Lake and other camps leading right on to the rich Porcupine country. Then onward and northward, spreading out to east and west, prosperous communities have sprung up, many mills and great activity in the pulp and paper busines. On and on into the fur country and the great copper and nickel deposits dependent on sale of untold riches in the once No Man's Land—right up to Hudson Bay where two lines of railway hurry folks to the original forts of the great Hudson Bay Company, that Company of Adventurers into the unknown land who first demonstrated the value of Canada as a part of the Empire and the wisdom of fighting for a heritage but dimly visioned then.

x

Back to Porcupine gold camp, which began with Golden City, a picturesque collection of rough lumber shacks and tents, to the fine city of Timmins of today, commemorating those enterprising early prospectors of the little community of Mattawa who dreamed dreams and saw visions of greatness far beyond the rough counters of their store.

x

Timmins has a daily newspaper, and that shows how progressive the new cities of the north are. Hardly have the first few huts been erected than a bozo comes along with materials to start a newspaper. Weekly,mayhap weekly, then semi-weekly, then mark it came every time—remember the Gowganda Quill, the Elk Lake Bugle, the Cobalt Nugget, Northern Miner,, Haileyburian, New Liskeard Herald, Cochrane Northland, and other publications of boom days and after. Now the Timmins Daily Press which recently published a Birthday Edition of many pages, at the same time launching a Kirkland Lake Edition. More power to it. We hope on to know some of the difficulties of running a newspaper north of North Bay with operating expenses just about double.

x

September, 1933 marked the birth of the Timmins Press published weekly.

April, 1934 The Timmins Press became a semi-weekly.

October, 1935, The Timmins Press became a daily of twelve pages and over.

April, 1937—Third birthday and going strong.

x

Some growth, eh, what Let's grow with Canada, or it wil grow away from us.

x

Remember it was Yankees who first realized the possibilities of Cobalt camp and picked some of the best plums while we were waiting for the plums to drop so that we could examine them more closely and see if they were really, truly, worth collecting.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA showed great interest in the Coronation ceremonies, almost as much as Canada, and sent many delegates across the water to take part. Even the Hearst newspapers which have a chronic grouch against Great Britan, spared no expense to cover the ceremonies fully with word and picture—and not a disparaging word was said by the press of our neighbors or the caustic commentators, nothing but praise and appreciation. 'Tis a fine thing to have good neighbors.

Rail Fences On Way Out

In the London Free Press there was published a picture of a rail fence on the Clark sideroad in London township, and it is the old zig-zag type, and the reason for the picture is that the fence is coming down to make room for one of wire construction. We learn it was built by a pioneer resident more than 100 years, and until recently had been considered in good condition.

No doubt the rail fences have to go, and we don't know what the objects are to be substituted, will do for a place along which to run and on which to sit, nor do we know that the wild raspberry bushes will find such another place to grow. And we don't know where the farmers will pitch all the loose stones and everything else they do not need in the field, and on a rail fence wasn't a bad place to sit and whittle with a new jack-knife, and there were places along the rail fence where one could sit without being seen and then no one would call or holler or order you to do some work from which needed doing. Probably the rail fences will all have to go in time and we hasten to refrain from a picture of one so folk will know what they looked like.

We Are Less Tree Conscious

In the column "Bygone Days" under the caption of 25 years ago, if a the following item recently appeared: "Citizens of St. Clements planted by about 200 trees in front of the church and school property." The saplings planted in April, 1907, are now fine trees and "improved" the property upon which they stand. It was the intervention of these pictures of the planted area as it appears on that date that set us to thinking.

The St. Clements folk who planted these trees were indeed men of vision. They saw ahead, peered into the future that would be made by these trees. They knew what they were doing, the planting have passed on. Others have lived to see the slender saplings become fine trees. The latter know that their hopes have been fully justified.

Forty years is quite a time in the growth of a tree. That space makes a vast difference in the appearance of the land to either side of which it has been beautified by judicious planting. Impatient folk may say, What's the use of planting a tree? I'll never live to enjoy it." We ourselves may not live to see a tree reach maturity but can at least have the pleasure of watching it on its course these will be objects of beauty and of usefulness. If every family would plant a tree, think of the difference forty years from now!

Gotham's 'Finest' Reduce Crime

Major crimes in New York City last year, as reflected in the notorious "seven" compiled by the police, increased about 1 per cent, over the 1935 level, although murder and cardinal offenses — murder, manslaughter, felonious assault, and felony burglary—showed a collective decrease of 2 per cent., it is recorded in Commissioner Valentine's report. He had 18,046 men and women in his department, to protect 7,000,000 citizens $61,429,582.47 to administer in 1936.

There were 364 murders, a drop of six, of which 122 were committed by shooting, 89 by stabbing, 152 by per sault, etc.; 14 by strangulation, seven by burning, five by thrown from windows and one from the roof; two by drowning and two by poisoning. Forty murders occurred in the commission of a felony, 106 during altercations, 32 as a result of domestic disputes, and passion, and 14 were in revenge.

Of 10,796 persons reported missing, only 400 were still on the list at the end of the year.

The police used up 32,266 cubic feet of oxygen on asphyxiation cases, they extricated children from vent pipes, sprinkler fittings, drinking cup traps and from revolving doors as well as more dangerous types of entrapment. They presided over the fate of 1,000 stray dogs and dealt, through their juvenile aid bureau, with 4,000 cases of juvenile delinquency. They investigated 1,000 cases of fire lines, suppressed policy games, and inspected 475 banners to be towed over the city by airplane. They licensed any number of things and recall with considerable type of misconduct including (by way of example) twenty-four distinct species of "peeping tom" alone. And in the doing of all this four of them were killed in action while 766 others won awards for meritorious conduct.

How Long Can You Fast?

Abstaining from food in what is familiarly called fasting, is said to be beneficial in the cure of several illness but there seems to be possibilities for injury in refusing to eat for an extended period.

Dr. Stanley Cook in Tennessee, Jackson Whitlow, an old mountaineer, is the latest victim of death because he is holding out until God instructs him to eat. Whitlow began fasting some of the peculiar religious rites characteristic of these people. Physicians stepped in but the fasting end has not partaken of food since. Doctors say he cannot live much longer, as internal hemorrhages have begun. Members of his family seem to encourage the belief that the old man is confident that God will give an order to resume eating, before death ends the devotee's career.

Perhaps there are people living who could abstain from eating for longer than 40 days and months, but medical authorities are not enthusiastic as to the benefits derived from that kind of enforced abstinence. Mahatma Gandhi is an outstanding example of the individual who can fast for many days.

Protect the Wildflower

The recent official adoption of the white trillium as the floral emblem of Ontario not only also prove its death-knell from indiscriminate plucking of the flower encouraged by the Ontario Horticultural Association has removed its chief safeguard, arouse public sentiment toward the protection of the trillium and of all wild flowers. From now on, presumably until the fall, the fields, woods and glens of Ontario will be scoured for flowers, more varied and quite as beautiful as may be found in the best gardens. Unfortunately many persons, particularly of the larger centres of population, regard such abundance as a free gift to be ravished at will. It is against this unrestrained gathering of the wild blooms that the Association is taking a firm stand.

The reckless plucking of wild flowers has already caused the disappearance of many of the finest plants of the woods through the ruthless picking of inconsiderate persons. In making a public appeal against the lavish gathering of wild flowers urges upon school teachers and pupils the necessity for protecting the white trillium. It is one of the wild plants which should never be gathered freely. If at all, because the blooms cannot be picked without uprooting all the foliage and on this foliage depends the maturing of the bulbous root for the following season's crop. Some species of wild flowers, such as viola,te begatticas, and others with flower stems which can be broken easily, may be freely picked as long as the plant itself is not disturbed. Other wild flowers, however, such as the white trillium, are best left undisturbed in their native beauty.

The picking of wild flowers should be done only in a most thoughtful manner with due regard for the future. Sufficient flowers should be left to form seeds and it goes without saying that no wild plant should ever be torn up by he roots. What is needed for the protection of wild flowers, declares the Past President of the Ontario Horticultural Association, is a knowledge of an attitude towards the native flora similar to that which has come to possess the people of Canada towards wild life. Instead of rushing for a gun at a strange bird or animal bird or animal is sighted, the normal lad now takes his camera in pursuing birds and feeding stations, and in other ways manifests friendship with the feathered or furry visitors which come and go or remain throughout the year. To add as much to the joys of life. With organized effort, this same sentiment can be developed towards the flowers of the fields and the woods throughout the whole Province.

Mr. Howard J. Snell of Toronto spent yesterday in the city.

Miss Clara V. Haynes, who has been associated with the Emerson College of Oratory of Boston, Mass., for the past year, has returned to her home in this city.

Mr. James Trainer, who has been in the city for some time, left today for Brandon, Manitoba, where he has accepted a position.

Mr. William Bowerman, the well-known popular G. T. R. engineer, has left in company with Mrs. Mack, for a trip to the Old Country. They will tour the British Isles this summer.

Mr. Ernest E. Valeck, M. E. is home from Cobalt on a short visit.

The results of the annual examinations at the Ontario College of Pharmacy, Toronto, have been issued and the following boys, Messrs. Charles T. Dolan and P. W. Green passed well up in the list. They are receiving the congratulations of their many friends.

The schooner D. Freeman is in port unloading coal for Capt. N. Allen.

The steamer North King laid here over Sunday while being inspected. The Fleet boats will run to the 1000 Islands and return.

Tweed is at present without a school board, as the terms of five of its members have resigned owing to disagreement, over the purchase of a site for a new collegiate.

The 15th. Battalion, A. L. I. will hold their annual parade this season to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday morning where the sermon will be preached by the minister, who is also chaplain of the Regiment, Rev. M. W. Maclean. The parade was headed by the cycle corps, pioneer's brass band and Company No. 1.

Col. M. J. Hendrick, U. S. Consul at Montreal, left the city for after a visit to his home in the U. S.

Capt. Thomas Stewart will sail for England early in June.

The city fathers are bound that those who have speedy horses and wish to exercise them, shall not use the city streets for that purpose. A number of complaints of fast driving on Hotel Street just before eight o'clock last night, have been made to the police. The authorities have instructed the police to go after the offenders. Fast driving park is the place for such sport.

The head of the first drive of logs will reach the city in about ten days. The new piers will be anchored in the mouth of the river and the boom swung without delay.

Mr. Marsh Conger of Picton Township, has been visiting here and will attend the Bachelors' Ball this evening.

The ball and catcher's protector have arrived for the city baseball team. The diamond has been laid at the Agricultural grounds. The team will practice at the hospital lot this evening.

From Waste to Usefulness

"Radio cabinets, wall panels, floor tile, table tops, bathroom scales, ash trays, electrical insulators and auto instrument boards are foremost as inexpensive products of wood flour and pulp mill waste, as the result of years of research work with lignin by the national scientists at the U. S. Forest Products laboratory.

The commercial world has been long acquainted with cellulose, the white shiny stuff in plants that expresses itself in a thousand forms, such as cotton, linen, hemp, commercial pith, and thistledown. Cellulose shirts and sheets woven out of natural fibers and thousands of synthetic things from rayon, artificial leather, paper, paint, celluphane, celluloid articles of milady's dressing table, to explosives are known to millions.

Forest products laboratory experts have now found a use for lignin, which next to cellulose is the most abundant and most widely distributed organic substance. Billions of tons of it are present in the world, and the supply renews itself constantly by natural growth, according to Carille P. Winslow, director of the laboratory.

"Limiting our view to present facts in the United States," he says, "we find the lignin problem pressing for attention in two forms; paper industry has a gas-dumped pile our streams annually as waste from the manufacture of wood pulp for paper making; and the sulphite liquor waste of 1,500,000 tons more, contained in four times that tonnage of waste wood and sawdust."

What laboratory chemists have accomplished in this new province of the lignin problem is a source of stream pollution and waste to a source of wealth and usefulness. Because of the very low cost of such transformation, estimated to be only two or three cents a pound, much less than for other types of plastics, it is not impossible that lignin plastics may win much of the field now occupied by its more costly competitors. They will also open up new uses barred to the others because of their high cost.

The comparatively simple process which, in last years of laboratory research to evolve, should make for the success on a commercial scale of "Kyllin" pronounced zillin, the name was just given by the laboratory, is the lignin plastic process.

To watch the shovelling of sawdust into a heavy iron kettle or "digester," to see dilute acid added the lid clamped down, and heat turned on, one would never imagine the result to be the attractive, black as ebony, hard, strong plastic which can be turned on a lathe, sawed, bored or otherwise machined rather like hard rubber is worked.

On Radio Announcing

The sixth book of broadcast English for announcers has been issued. Professor Lloyd James has collected the letters written to him about the pronunciation of some foreign names in a book which now completes about 80 pages.

Pronouncing foreign words, says the professor, is an old and familiar problem, and place-names are not the most troublesome part of it. An Abyssinian place-name may look harmless enough on paper, but an announcer called upon to deal with it may well tremble. Not certainly Poet Observes.

A native giving the local pronunciation would not satisfy English listeners, soldiers, sailors, but dons and professors would write indignant letters to newspapers saying it should be spoken in another way. Worse than that there might be criticism of the BBC's general attitude towards the subject.

In the official view "the function of pronunciation is to achieve intelligibility and when it has been achieved the announcer has fulfilled his task."

In other words, "Addis a Barber" cannot be recognized as anything but the original name of Abyssinia.

If one is to pronounce place-names as they do in the country of origin "then," says Prof. James, "the heavens defend us. We shall have to Toronto Telegram.

4 SCHOOLS COMPETE

Marmora, May 17.—(Special)—The final field day of the Central Hastings High Schools took place at Marmora Fair Grounds on Saturday, pupils of Tweed, Madoc, Stirling and Marmora and citizens of Marmora and the nearby towns, dotted the grounds, all anxious to see the sports. E. G. Perdue, A. V. Yeiser, Rev. Father O. Martin, M. Mumby and P. Gray and the teachers of the schools, officiated.

Results of Girls' Senior Events are as follows:—

Softball throw—1 Ena Thompson, Tweed; 2 Marion Sweet, Marmora; 3 Peggy Bateman, Madoc.

50 yard dash—1 Ena Thompson, Tweed; 2 Reta Stevenson, Marmora; 3 Ada Barry, Tweed.

High Jump—1 Ena Thompson, Tweed; 2 Marian Hamm, Madoc; 3 Phyllis Mitchell, Stirling.

75 Yard dash—1 Ena Thompson, Tweed; 2 Phyllis Mitchell, Stirling; 3 Marion Hamm, Madoc.

Running Broad Jump—1 Ena Thompson, Tweed; 2 Marion Sweet, Marmora; 3 Ada Barry, Tweed.

Relay—1 Marmora—R. Shannon, H. Sweet, Peggy Bateman, M. Vincent; 2—Tweed—Ada Barry, F. Rashotte, E. Thompson, and M. Derbecker; 3 Madoc—M. Hamm, A. Ellis, J. Tosh and B. Steward.

Recipient of a G.M.E.F. Scholarship for obtaining highest number of points—Ena Thompson, Tweed, having 15 points.

Girls' Intermediate

Softball Throw—1 Marion Tummon, Tweed; 2 Joyce Smith, Marmora; 3 Hazel Madoc.

50 yard dash—1 Joyce Smith, Marmora; 2 Betty Nicol, Madoc; 3 Elsie Chambers, Stirling.

High Jump—1 Audrey Smith, Madoc; 2 Elsie Kleinsteiber, Tweed; 3 Betty Nicol, Madoc.

75 yard dash—1 Betty Nicol, Madoc; 2 Betty Demorest, Madoc; 3 Elsie Chambers, Stirling.

Running Broad Jump—1 Joyce Smith, Marmora; 2 Betty Nicol, Madoc; 3 Audrey Smith, Madoc.

Relay—1 Madoc Audrey Smith, Betty Nicol, Marmora and Dorothy Keller; 2 Marmora—Joyce Smith, Maurice Meagher, Joan O'Connor, Shannon; 3 Stirling—Mary Donohue, Betty Jones, Eileen Chambers and Wanda Bateman.

Junior Girls'

Softball Throw—1 Winona Beckel, Stirling; 2 Ann Morton, Tweed; 3 Margaret Elliott, Marmora.

50 yard dash—1 Mary Elliott, Marmora; 2 Dorothy Henry, Marmora; 3 Winona Beckel, Stirling.

Running Broad Jump—1 Ann Morton, Tweed; 2 Mary Elliott, Marmora; 3 Margaret White, Madoc.

Relay Marmora—M. Elliott, T. Shannon, D. Henry and J. Paquet; Stirling—M. Beckel, R. Cranston, M. Shore and M. West.

Boys Senior

100 yard dash—1 Norman O'Neill, Marmora; 2 Ronald Sayers, Tweed; 3 James Keller.

High Jump—1 L. Wartman, Madoc; 2 R. O'Neill, Marmora; 3 Floyd Lovelass, Marmora.

Hop, step and jump—1 R. O'Neill, Marmora; 2 C. Mumby, Stirling; 3 J. Ward, Stirling.

220 yard dash—1 N. O'Neill, Marmora; 2 C. Mumby, Stirling; 3 R. Sayers, Tweed.

Running Broad Jump—1 C. Mumby, Stirling; 2 N. O'Neill, Marmora; 3 J. Bateman, Madoc.

Pole vault—1 J. Lajoie, Tweed; 2 S. Bonter, Marmora; 3 R. Thompson, Tweed.

440 yard dash—1 N. O'Neill, Marmora; 2 R. Campbell, Stirling; 3 M. Vance, Tweed.

880 yard run—1 F. Lovelass, Marmora; 2 J. Wood, Stirling; 3 N. O'Neill, Marmora.

12 pound shot-put—1 R. Campbell, Stirling; 2 L. Wartman, Madoc; 3 R. O'Neill, Marmora.

1 mile run—1 F. Lovelass, Marmora; 2 L. Wood, Stirling; 3 J. Bertrand, Marmora.

Relay Marmora N. O'Neill, F. Lovelass, S. Bonter and P. Bertrand; 3—Tweed—J. Tummon, J. Lajoie, M. Vance and R. Sayers; 3—Stirling—C. Mumby, Bateman, D. Scott and J. Ward.

Intermediate Boys

100 yard dash—1 J. Bertrand, Marmora; 2 E. Reynolds, Marmora; 3 R. Pyear, Stirling.

High Jump—1 R. Stewart, Madoc; 2 D. Bateman, Tweed; 3 G. Lufman, Tweed.

Hop, step and jump—1 R. Richardson, Stirling; 2 E. Reynolds, Marmora; 3 G. Leonard, Marmora.

220 yard dash—1 J. Bertrand, Marmora; 2 G. Leonard, Marmora; 3 P. Stewart, Madoc.

12 pound shot put—1 M. Irwin, Madoc; 2 E. Reynolds, Marmora; 3 G. Leonard, Marmora.

Running broad jump—1 R. Richardson, Stirling; 2 G. Leonard, Marmora; 3 E. Reynolds, Marmora.

Pole vault—1 A. Kelly, Tweed; 2 D. Bateman, Tweed; 3 E. Jones, Tweed.

440 yard dash—1 G. Leonard, Marmora; 2 R. Pyear, Stirling; 3 J. Bertrand, Marmora.

880 yard dash—1 B. Arber, Tweed; 2 G. Leonard, Marmora; 3 R. Richardson, Stirling.

Relay—Marmora—J. Bertrand, E. Reynolds, V. Bateman and G. Leonard; 2 Stirling—R. Pyear, West R. Richardson and Reid.

Junior Boys

3 pound shot put—1 D. Porritt, Tweed; 2 R. Osborne, Marmora; 3 C. Bailey, Tweed.

100 yard dash—1 R. Osborne, Marmora; 2 R. Gale, Marmora; 3 O. Bailey, Tweed.

220 yard dash—1 R. Gale, Marmora; 2 R. Osborne, Marmora; 3 O. Bailey, Tweed.

Relay—Marmora—Tom Byrnes, D. Rhind, R. Osborne and R. Gale. Tweed—Bailey, D. Bailey, Rutter, and Rashotte.

Winners of the annual C.H.I.S. meets are N. O'Neill, Marmora, boy senior champion with 18 points. Leonard, Marmora, intermediate champion with 11 points. Richardson, Stirling, junior champion with 14 points. Ena Thompson of Tweed, held honors for the greatest number of points, namely 15, for the girls' senior championship. Smith, Marmora, Madoc and Betty Nicol, Madoc, tied for the intermediate championship, each having obtained 8 points. Mary Elliott, Marmora, had high score of 11 points for the junior championship. Marmora pupils, showing splendid athletic ability, brought honour to their school by obtaining the large score of 134 points. Their nearest competitors, Madoc, as follows:—Tweed 62; Stirling 46 and Madoc 27.

CLAIMS PUBLIC OFTEN DEFRAUDED

Toronto, May 17.—Various 'Advertising' schemes are defrauding the public of a considerable amount of money," stated A. R. Hazell, Secretary-Manager of the Toronto Better Business Bureau, Inc.

"Many people think the office of a farm or city real estate not readily salable, or who may be approached by an individual who represents himself as a fancy price.

"The Toronto Better Business Bureau has on file complaints from individuals who have been induced to lose their money in this manner.

"The perpetrator of the scheme represents himself as a man of considerable wealth, a real estate circles, so much so, that several thousand dollars more than you ask for the property is "easily arranged."

"He then appears the first sign that an advance has been made is being worked. Any amount varying between $50. and $1000 is demanded and for this sum it is proposed to immediately commence work on your property over the radio. The individual's claims are so glowing that his victim is drawn into the net that an immediate sale can be made.

"The Bureau's Investigation

Investigation made by the Bureau has revealed that the counsel suggested by the victims give the latitude or no resource. In fact it has been stated that the "agent" reserves the right to use his own discretion in the matter of time, day, type of program and radio station."

The Bureau points out that in Timbuctoo. The Bureau has discovered that it has been broadcast on a 100 watt station in some cases, which authorities have advised could not be heard as far away as 25 miles. The victims of this swindle are usually women, but not in all cases.

The glib stories of his high pressure artist suggests many United States residents retain him as their advisor on property purchases. In fact, he claims to have escorted them personally across the border along with fabulous sums of money. This individual is not in possession of Provincial Real Estate License, nor has the Bureau found that such a license is required.

A local authority interviewed this scheme pro-moter and asked if any properties had been sold for clients. A reply was immediately forthcoming. He mentioned a settled client in Toronto, but when this information was checked by the Bureau the address was found to be false."

Before you fail for high pressure sales talks, be sure to get the facts. In other words, "Before You Invest!—Investigate."

YOUR HOME

HOME IMPROVEMENT PLAN

H I P

And How to Improve It

A Series of Articles on Suggested Home Improvements Advisability, Value, Cost, Etc.

Here's a question: If you were given $500 to improve your home what would you spend it on? The eternal male would probably give several answers such as improving the home heating system, insulation, new garage, or some such practical answer. Admittedly they are important, necessary and sometimes, to women at least, rather uninteresting. Mother, who spends most of her time in the home, had ideas. There are things she would like changed. A brighter, more modern kitchen would save mother many steps and make the work more of a pleasure—larger windows would give her a refreshing view of the garden in the lulls between tasks. Many mothers' hearts are in their kitchen so home improvement should start there. Perhaps the sink is in the wrong place. It is an old sink anyway and should have departed years ago. More cupboards in the kitchen would be a decided improvement, places to put the ironing board, broom, pots and pans. More towel racks would be a convenience. If the kitchen is too small enlarge if so that it will be bright, sunny and sanitary, and perhaps a sleeping porch could be evolved out of the improvements.

Sun porches have been proved to be healthy, and many people get considerable pleasure sleeping in them where plenty of good fresh air gives the body new energy and better health.

Home improvements add to the value of the home property, hence improvements are a profitable investment.

We only pass this way once—life is short and time is fleeting. Let us have comfort while we live—all the comforts of a modern home.

Hold a meeting—Ma and Pa and the children. Decide what home improvements would be in the best interest of the whole family. See a builder, get an estimate of the cost, peruse your bankey, or consult Mr. Herlihy, Manager Chamber of Commerce and find out how easy the improvements can be financed—any sum up to $2,000.

The home improvement fever is becoming epidemic from coast to coast. Fifty million dollars is available for home improvements, and it is estimated that two hundred million will be finally spent on home improvements as the result of the urge created by the working out of the Home Improvement Plan which it is hoped will give employment to thousands who have been out of work a considerable time, place a large sum of money in circulation which will go into wages, materials, etc., most of it in labor, helping the worker on the actual job, the worker in the store and factory as well.

Fifty million dollars placed in general circulation in Canada this summer is bound to create a much needed burst of prosperity where it is most needed.

Your neighbor is contemplating extensive home improvements. Extend your neighborly help, advise him and help him, and above all, go thou and do likewise.

One thousand dollars, borrowed under the Home Improvement Plan, gives net proceeds of $982.23, under the discount plan, with monthly payments of $27.78 for 36 months, or can be paid off earlier if desired.

Tankage Value for Livestock and Poultry

Through a new knowledge of nutrition, the live stock feeder realizes that the coarse grains and roughages seldom make a complete ration. The value of these feeds is considerably increased when the ration, whether it be designed for the production of milk or meat, is balanced with additional protein and other essential elements. Of such a supplementary feed is tankage and for the past ten years the Experimental Farms of the Dominion Department of Agriculture have carried out a large number of tests dealing with the feeding value of this supplement. The results of these feeding trials are published as a farmers' bulletin under the title of "Tankage Its Value in Live Stock and Poultry Feeding," prepared by the Animal Husbandry and Poultry Husbandry Divisions.

Tankage is a packing-house product, and is the two type generally used (digester and dry-rendered tankage) now distinguished by the process they undergo in production. In the digester method of producing tankage, the carcasses, bones and trimmings, and scrap bones are thoroughly cooked by steam under pressure. After the cooking is completed, the fat is skimmed off the top, the bones are ground fine, and the solid residue pressed in hydraulic presses to remove the balance of the fat and water as possible. The residue is then ground into a powder of stimulatory, dried and ground into meal. This product is called "digester" or "wet process" tankage. It is grade being usually guaranteed to contain 60 per cent protein, about 8 per cent fat, and 20 per cent minerals. Other grades are guaranteed to contain 50 per cent protein, 10 per cent protein, the reductions in protein content being made mainly to the increased proportions of bone in the product. The value of any grain or feeds primarily on the protein content, unless the additional bone is supplied in the form of minerals.

Digester tankage is generally considered the best form of tankage used with other classes of live stock. The other type of tankage, called "dry-rendered tankage," is largely used mainly in poultry feeding and is the product of meat scraps, which may be obtained free on application to Publications Branch, Dominion Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

False Ideas About Milk Still Exist

Many of the fallacies about milk which were prevalent years ago have gradually disappeared, but it is evident that even today certain superstitious notions concerning this indispensable food. Milk is low vegetable nutritionally to be associated with fevers, and that milk should have a tendency to decrease its use, and every effort should be made to discount misapprehensions by explaining that they are not founded on fact.

Persons who will not eat oranges or other citrus fruits in connection with milk believe that the curdling of the milk by the fruit juice is harmful. As a matter of fact this action is really an aid to digestion, since it relieves the gastric juice in the stomach of some of the work it would otherwise do, which is the first step in the digestion of fats and milk. The curd formed by the fruit juice is said to be smaller, and therefore more easily digested. It is also claimed that the action of the gastric juice on the milk, and the fruit juice combined, that buttermilk and other acid milks which are taken in the form of fruit milk combination in the stomach, are often recommended for weak digestion, and also for the aged.

Another existing fallacy is that fish should not be eaten with milk at the same meal. It is quite probable this idea arose from the fact that prior to adequate refrigeration when fish not strictly fresh would sometimes be served, and if milk were followed the eating of the fish, and it happened that both foods were at the same meal, the combination of milk and fish would turn the fish alone, was thought to be responsible.

Many people are under the impression that milk is fattening. In fact, as the name implies, but it degenes entirely on the way it is served. If it is taken with alcoholic beverages which have no food value, the milk adds extra nourishment to the meal. When fruit juices are used in place of foods having high-or caloric value it will tend to decrease weight. In reducing diets milk is important, it contains much more to body health than any other food. At the same time, taking milk in addition to the regular meals is recommended for those wishing to gain weight.

Very often the complaint is made that milk is constipating. This idea is no doubt due to the nature of this food. It is true that milk contains no cellulose and that its solids are well absorbed by the body. However, milk is the best food to use in the normal diet, and well balanced meals will provide sufficient roughage to stimulate the digestive tract.

Another impression that has been very evident during the past few years is that milk is excessive. The fact that K is in fluid form is responsible for this belief, but it should be kept in mind that milk contains more healthful essentials per the body than any other single food.

The opinion is sometimes expressed that the process of pasteurization has a deleterious effect on its nutritive value. Extensive, experimenta have proven that the destruction of vitamin C and the slight loss in calcium is negligible to the benefits derived in assuring a safe milk supply. By destroying disease germs which might be present in the milk, pasteurization removes the danger of milk-borne infections being transmitted to human beings.

Boiled milk is considered by some to be indigestible and inferior to fresh milk in food value. In reality the curd in the milk is softened through heating. This, together with the fact that boiled milk is free from germs, may cause physicians recommend its use for infant feeding.

It is the exception that proves the rule. If any of the above facts need to be disproved occasionally by the experience of individuals, this should not interfere with a clear understanding and appreciation of the truth as it applies generally.

Chick Mash For Baby Chicks

In the feeding of baby chicks, most of the commercial chick starters are satisfactory but care should be taken to see that they do contain too high a percentage of fibre stated by Alexan Goodfellow, Dominion Poultry Husbandman. The following is a starter which can be recommended as it has been used at the Central Experimental Farm Poultry Division, and has given very much higher priced feeds and has invariably given good results:—

Scratch grain, 2 parts; 1 part middlings, one part ground yellow corn, one part wheat; 1 part oatmeal; 1 part animal feed mixture. To this add 5 per cent alfalfa meal, 5 per cent meat meal, 1 per cent cod liver oil, 1-2 of one per cent of salt. This mixture is used by mixing dry and made up of equal parts ground beef and bone meal by the dozen parts. Where liquid milk can be had the milk powder is omitted and where it is not available it is necessary to replacement by either of the other meat products mentioned together with the cereals.

If changing the ration materially as may happen it should be done gradually, feeding the new ration in combination with the old ration which has been used to rather than switching from one to the other, thus materially when adding scratch grain to the ration a small quantity should be fed when the chicks are a couple of weeks of age and this gradually increased by the time the young chicks are on range at about twelve to fourteen weeks of age it may be fed with success and liberally.

The growing mash is identical with the chick mash except that when chicks get on to good range the cod liver oil and alfalfa may be omitted and bran may be substituted for the above.

The following grains are available they may be ground and used to advantage as follows: The rate of sexual development is largely dependent the amount of animal food supplied. Where pullets are developing too rapidly, increase the grain and the bigger the frame and the tendency will be to grow frame rather than to develop body weight.

An ideal range for chicks is a clover field beside a corn field, or a orchard, but where they eat all the succulent green feed they can get and still have a balanced ration. Given these conditions, once the chicks go upon range they can be left with very little labour, dependence being placed largely on the self-feeding hopper. A self-factory range hopper will be found most satisfactory. "Poultry Production," which may be obtained from the Publicity and Extension Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Should Eliminate Buck Lamb Menace

For several good reasons the docking and castration of lambs are two operations that have been performed annually by the majority of sheep raisers. Among ranchers the docking of lambs has been a factor in the marketing of lambs, and one of the first questions a prospective buyer asks concerns docking. Docker lambs have any bucks among them, and so forth. First, on account of the example set by the rancher, and second, owing to the showing season, the rancher knows that he may have to go-grain and feed his lambs for a time at undesirable as feeders.

In Eastern Canada the neglect of docking and castrating is much more general, although since premiums have been paid for well docked lambs both at Toronto and Montreal farmers have found that serious losses may be sustained if buck lambs are shipped to market.

The month of July is the most satisfactory month for docking and castrating lambs. The weather is warm and the young lambs are usually out on the pasture for a part of the day at least. Ten days to two weeks is the most desirable age to perform these operations and lambs should not be older than one month. The older the lamb the greater the shock. There is little or no danger provided the lambs are healthy and vigorous. Farmers should not fail to dock and castrate because they think they may market their lambs early. Weather conditions may be unfavourable for the rapid growth of lambs. A surplus of ram lambs marketed before the premiums are made effective always depresses the market price. Buck lambs if not sold before fall are, from that time on, and the farmer who sells buck lambs is menaced with the danger of producing and harming his own market center.

The market for good lambs is exceptionally readily because competition is on the increase. The consumption of lambs is demanding more and better lamb. The time to eliminate the buck lamb problem entirely and have the use of choice Canadian lamb is now.

The Human Side of Sport

The late Robert Cromie, brilliantly observant publisher of the Washington Sun, once described a soccer game he had seen in Moscow. It was not remarkable not only for the revelations of the Soviet reaction to sport, which was quite like that of any other country, but because, so far as we know, no one had bothered to write about sport in Russia. It was one of the first human glimpses of light through the Marxian cloud-bank. There had been countless stories about counter-revolutionary plots and sabotage, medical clinics and Red army parades, but nothing about the more human side of Russian life. Up to that time there had been some doubt generally as to whether the normal Russian-derived enjoyment or humor out of anything unless, perhaps, the spitting of a capitalist's skull or the sight of a saboteur falling into a pulp mill.

We are reminded of this by a current news reel showing a football game in Japan. The crowds they draw are the biggest in the world—hopelessly dwarfing those which crowd our stadiums of the U.S.A. This particular contest was viewed by over 130,000 people. The general scene was a prototype, of what one might see on this side of the water. There were the cavorting cheer leaders, the delirically excited fans, and it recalled the fact that few heroes of athletics have ever achieved the acclaim accorded by cheering thousands to Babe Ruth on his first visit to Nippon.

The international enjoyment of sports, both from the player's side and the spectator's viewpoint, gives possibly the most friendly sense of a certain kinship of all people that we can think of. We forgive even its occasionally unpleasant sides, because we understand them. Sport heroes are great ambassadors; they are beyond the artificial restrictions of national diplomats, and they are welcomed as men rather than national representatives. Few Canadians even now appreciate the way ice hockey spread like wild fire over the heart of Europe, and took its ways with it.

It might be that if we knew more about the way the people of far-off countries play and enjoy themselves, and less about the forced propaganda of military reviews and alleged political crisis.

"Nerves Went to Pieces"

WOMEN who suffer periodically, may have sideache or backache, and those about to become mothers, find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a splendid tonic. Read what Mrs. D. Kelly of Mount Forest, Ont., R.R. No. 2, Fellowship P.O., says: "I was run down to be up, my nerves went to pieces, but I began to pick up almost from the first bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and continued to use it until I was well every way. I could eat more, my nerves became strong, I gained normal weight and my health was restored."

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. William Wheeler announces the engagement of his second daughter, Edna Irene, to Frank W. G. Leggett, of Toronto. The wedding will take place quietly early in June. m17-15

Sergeant Arthur Booth, of the Belleville Police Department, underwent a serious operation in the Belleville General Hospital today.

Mrs. Thomas Hyland spent the week end in Toronto with her daughter, Mrs. Jack English.

Mr. Gerald Pybus, of Hamilton, visited with relatives in the city over the week end.

Mrs. Irwin Armstrong and Miss Margaret Green, Hamilton, spent the week end in the city the guests of their brother, Mr. Lorne Green.

Miss Irene Hick, Grove Street, is spending her vacation at Brantford.

Mr. Ernest Albert Berry has been successful in obtaining his Bachelor of Arts honor degree at McMaster University, and Miss Jean Mc-Laurin has obtained the same degree in the general course.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg Scriven, Dundas Street, West, gave a delightful party Friday in honor of their daughter, June Ellen, the occasion being her fourth birthday. The table was decorated in pink and white centred with a large pink and white birthday cake. June received many gifts from friends and relatives. After the games the little folks left for home tired but happy.

Mrs. J. St. Louis, Station Street, left this afternoon for Port Huron, Mich., to attend the funeral of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jas. Elliott.

Dr. R. H. Empson and Mrs. Empson left today for Toronto where they will spend some days. Dr. Empson will attend the Ontario Dental convention, which is meeting there this week.

John Clarke, son of Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Clarke, 23 Chatham Street, has returned home after completing his third year in the faculty of Dentistry at the University of Toronto.

Weddings

ORANGE-BRENNAN

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place on Coronation day in St. Vincent de Paul church, Deseronto, when in the presence of a large number of intimate friends and guests, Miss Margaret Ursula Brennan, M.A., only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brennan of Deseronto became the bride of Dr. Robert Orange, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Orange of Sudbury.

The altar was tastefully decorated with spring flowers, and tall standards of lilies were placed at the gate of the railings.

Rev. R. M. Lecoy, P.P., performed the ceremony and the nuptial Mass was served by two brothers of the bride, Francis Brennan, B.A., of Toronto and Paul Brennan of Loyola College, Montreal. Rev. G. at 66 Dundas Street, Toronto. T. Martin of Marmora was also present in the sanctuary. The wedding music was beautifully rendered by Miss Mary Connolly, B.A., of Cornwall.

The bride, radiant and lovely entered the church, on the arm of her father, Charles J. Brennan, who gave her in marriage. She was gracefully gowned in rich ivory lace over satin, made on princess style with pedels of net, set in the long train and sleeves. The front of the bodice was trimmed with a row of tiny satin buttons and high queen Ann collar. Her veil of embroidered tulle was held in place with a corset of lilies-of-the-valley, and a pearl necklace, a gift of her mother was carried by the bride.

Miss Madge Coulbeck of Toronto, who was maid of honour, was pretty in a quaint dress of pink net made with full skirt, pleated ruffles and tiny puffed sleeves. Pink pokebonnet faced with blue flowers, and wore blue lace mittens and sandals.

The bridesmaids, Miss Helen Hennessy, B.A., of Lonsdale and Miss Betty Gauthier of Windsor, frocked alike were charming in turquoise blue silk organza full skirts bordered in self applique and fitted jacket bodices.

They wore picture hats with long streamers lace mittens and sandals in pink. All three bridal attendants carried old fashioned nose-gays of roses and sweet peas tied with silver streamers. Frank Orange, B.Sc., was his brother's groomsman and the ushers were Dr. John Marrigan, cousin of the bride, and James Maher of Ottawa.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the Hotel Quinte, Belleville where the mother of the bride gowned in rich blue chantilly lace over taffeta, hat and shoes to match and wearing a corsage of American Beauty roses and blue violets received the guests.

She was assisted by Miss Louise Orange, sister of the groom, who wore pink flowered chiffon and a corsage of roses.

A. B. Collins, K.C., proposed the toast to the bride and later the happy couple left for New York where they sailed today for Naples, Italy and after some weeks abroad will return by the liner "Normandie" in June and make their home in Sudbury.

The bride travelled in a smart grey suit with felt hat embroidered blouse, and shoes in navy blue, and silver fox fur and wore a corsage of roses.

The bride's gift to the attendants and organist were white enamelled compacts with Coronation crests in brilliants. The groom's gift-to-be-bride was a grand piano.

The esteem in which the bride and groom are held was manifested by the beautiful gifts which they received.

FORSYTHE-PEACOCK

Thomasburg, May 17—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the United Church parsonage in Thomasburg, on Coronation Day, May 12th, by Rev. W. B. Herrington, when Miss Edith Irene Peacock of Tweed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Peacock of Corbyville became the bride of Mr. James Borden Forsythe of Tweed.

The young couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Drinkwater of Tweed, Mr. and Mrs. Forsythe will reside in Tweed.

ANDERSON-UTTER

The marriage took place quietly At 66 Dundar Street on Saturday, May 15, of Mr. Perry Melville Anderson, Napanee, and Miss Adah Eloise Utter, Athol, Prince Edward County. Rev. J. D. F. Knox officiating.

BLOCKSIDGE-McGOWAN

On Saturday, May 15th, Rev. J. D. F. Knox united in marriage Albert John Blocksidge and Miss Clara Pearl McGowan, both of this city, the ceremony being performed at the parsonage. The young couple were attended by John Clifford Irvin and Miss Maud Blocksidge.

MAPLE LEAF MISSION BAND

Mission Band was held in Maple Leaf School on May 11th. The president Glen Greenway presided and the meeting was opened by singing a hymn. Scripture call was answered by a verse of Scripture beginning with the letter "S" for the boys and the letter "S" for the girls, this adding a coronation spirit. The Scripture reading was read by Orwen Ray.

Watchtower was given, Canada by Harry Thompson, India by Norma Hicks, Korea by Mary Emerson and Temperance by Gerald Tummon. A piano selection was played by Lee Ray. Other Coronation stories and poems were given by Floyd Irvin and Glen Emerson and Jean Marshall.

A song was well given by Jean Sills and Allen Lott. The meeting was closed with the Mizpah benediction anthem and prayer by Miss Trevertson.

GILEAD W. M. S.

The regular May meeting of the Gilead W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. James Hoffman with 14 members present. The meeting was opened with the call to worship by the president. The Scripture lesson was given by Mrs. Fred Yorke, after which answer was called for in prayer. The roll call was answered by a verse of Scripture containing the word Faith. Mrs. Wilfred Clark gave a chapter from the Study Book Other Countries, Chapter 3, which Mrs. Thomas Howard, a reading "Our Duty" and Mrs. Walter Howard a vocal solo by Mrs. Wilmot and a reading by Mrs. James Huffman.

The meeting was closed by singing "God Save the King" and the Watchword. Collection $1.04.

HE DARE NOT MOVE IN BED

Nights Were Torture Through Lumbago

Only those who have suffered from lumbago know how exceedingly painful it can be. And when they discover a remedy for this complaint, they are anxious to pass on the good news to other sufferers. Let this man tell you how Kruschen brought him relief:—

"I had a bad attack of lumbago. When I got into bed I had to stay in that position—I could not move for pain. I didn't know what to take or what to do. I was advised to try Kruschen Salts and I am very grateful I did so. After taking a few doses I felt relief, and after taking one large bottle, I am glad to say that my lumbago had entirely gone, and I have not had the slightest trace of it coming back." —G. A. V.

Kruschen is a combination of numerous mineral salts which assist in stimulating your liver and kidneys to healthy, regular activity. They ensure internal cleanliness and so help to keep the blood-stream pure.

OLD TIME DANCE WELL ATTENDED

Popular Event Sponsored by Agricultural Society

MARMORA—The annual old time dance sponsored by the Marmora Agricultural Society took place in the Town Hall on Friday evening, with a very large attendance. Music for round, square and old time dancing was provided by a first class orchestra, most of the musicians of which were popular at the street dance last year and also later, on fair night. In addition to these were two of the greatest hits ever to appear in Marmora, under the direction of Russ Creighton whose musicianeer orchestra has been a well-liked program on Station CFRB. Jackie Perkins, prodigy boy singer, who will not have attained his fifth birthday until August and Shirley Smith, eleven year old tap dancer made three appearances. These young people who have had a splendid program on the radio to which they were introduced by Mr. Creighton, delighted those attending the dance with their excellent performances. Jackie, singing with the guslo of an accomplished vocalist, has about 200 songs and may be well assured of a future, more famous. Shirley has a dexterity of foot in her various dances that is winning her public acclaim. For the past few months Mr. Creighton's protegees have spent nearly all their time in Northern Ontario but in the coming season will be seen in several places in Eastern Ontario. During the dances a refreshment booth, was operated by the members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Marmora branch of the Canadian Legion in the Council Chambers.

The regular card party under the auspices of St. Paul's Layman's Association was held on Thursday evening in the parish hall. Holding fifth scores in the Euchre contest for the evening were Miss Ida Gillon and Mr. John Doyle. In the drawings which took place after cards the lucky winners were Gerson Scott the club-bag; Pete Brawley the cash prize and Miss Ehlier winner of the motor rug.

Mr. G. A. Gordier of the High School staff received word on Friday evening of the sudden death of his mother at her home in Williamsburg.

Mr. W. Kolak of Detroit, is spending the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Loveless, Deloro.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Walker of Toronto, spent the Wednesday holiday at their summer home at Crowe Lake.

A large number of young people attended the Coronation Ball in the Deloro Hall on Wednesday evening. Music was supplied by the "Aces."

SPRINGBROOK LADIES' AID

A Coronation tea was held in Springbrook Orange Hall on Thursday, May 6, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flags, pennants, streamers, pictures of King George VI, and Queen Elizabeth. The tables showed a nice display of silver candlesticks, coronation candles, tiny flags, yellow roses, flowering begonias. The centre table bearing the Coronation cake. The tiny place cards in shape of crowns bore names of famous women. Those in attendance were given duplicate cards and took their places at the tables as their name was called by Mrs. G. Williams.

The program as follows was in charge of the president, Mrs. Florence Sidenall. Opened with God Save the King in unison. Rev. Mr. Hayden then led in prayer. President then gave an inspiring address, responded by a speech from Mrs. H. Hall, president of Bethel L. A. A duet was rendered by Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. H. Sidenall. Rev. Canon Swayne gave a splendid address on Coronation.

A much appreciated solo was rendered by Mrs. George Williams with Mrs. J. Wilson at the piano. Rev. Mr. Foley explained the idea of Coronation in full which was enjoyed by all. All joined in singing "God Bless Our Land." Thanks, Mrs. Sid Mason, accompanying. Mrs. Sandford Meiklejohn gave a splendid reading. Solo, "Coronation Meaning." A selection of music from Deloro Band. Coronation address, Mr. George Bailey, secretary of the L. A. gave a splendid address on the Coronation Service." Mrs. U. Heath gave a brief address and congratulated the L. A. in the second. Everyone joined in singing the National Anthem.

Mrs. F. Penn being one of the oldest in L. A. work cut the Coronation cake.

Lunch was served by Misses Audrey Hall, Gertrude Hall, Hazel Lough, Bessie McMullen, assisted by Mrs. L. Cuddy. Contributions consisted of canapes, Coronation salad, sandwiches, tea, ice cream, cakes and candy cake last but not least came the serving of the Coronation cake by Mrs. Penn. Event closed by all singing The National Anthem.

Mrs. F. Williams and Mrs. (Rev.) Foley received the guests at the door. The register book showed an attendance of 85. The admission being 25c total receipts for the afternoon amounted to $18.00.

KING AND QUEEN IN CORONATION ROBES

This official coronation picture of Their Majesties, George VI and Elizabeth, radioed from London to New York, shows them for the first time in their official raiment as rulers of the vast British empire.

PREMIER'S WIFE PRESENTED AT COURT

The wife and daughter of the Hon. Allison Dysart, Premier of New Brunswick, are shown before leaving for Buckingham Palace where they were presented to the King and Queen at a pre-coronation court. Mrs. Dysart and her daughter, Mary, attended the coronation with Premier Dysart who was official representative from the maritime province.

T. O. M. SOPWITH AND HER THOMAS LIPTON

Taking up where Sir Thomas Lipton left off, T. O. M. Sopwith seems to have become the regular challenger for the America's Cup. He is shown with Mrs. Sopwith and members of the crew of the Endeavour II. just before they sailed from Cosport, Eng., for the U. S. Endeavour II probably race against an American defender selected in elimination trials; possibly Harold Vanderbilt's Ranger.

WALLACE AND DUKE SMILE FOR PHOTOGRAPHER

Happy smiles light the faces of the famous lovers, Mrs. Wallis Warfield and the Duke of Windsor, as they posed for cameramen shortly after their reunion at the Chateau de Candé of Monsieur Rialing, a life-long exile from England, the Duke is demanding that after Mrs. Simpson becomes his bride, she be given official recognition as "Her Highness." If this be granted, the American bride of the former king of British empire would be ranked with the Duchess of Kent and the Duchess of Gloucester, wives of the younger brothers of Windsor.

AT THE BELLE

"Call It a Day"

For a couple of years in London and then for over a year in New York there ran with great success a play by an English woman, Dodie Smith, entitled "Call It a Day."

It delighted audiences because it was "different." In fact, nothing just like it had ever been presented before. It was the story of the reactions of the various members of a nice suburban family to the first touch of Spring, with its balmy, pulse-stirring warmth and fragrance.

They all fell in love—or at least they thought they did—which seems perfectly natural. But as the end of the evening, when they were all ready to "Call It a Day," well, that was something different.

As a movie, the comedy-drama, a Cosmopolitan production released by Warner Bros., will open at the Belle today, tomorrow (Tuesday), matinee daily.

It is a smart, sophisticated film, depending to a considerable extent upon brilliant dialogue and upon brilliant performances. The dialogue was there already, from Miss Smith's pen, and so Director Archie Mayo insured his performances by assembling a marvelous cast.

Husband and wife of the family are Ian Hunter and Sheila Bennett, both famed on stage and screen. The young daughter of the house is Olivia de Havilland, fresh from her triumph in "The Charge of the Light Brigade." Roger Pryor, imported from the London stage is the young son. Youngest daughter is Moyna Granville, who played the "brat" in "Three Three."

The family friend who becomes infatuated with Miss Inescort is the droll Roland Young, with Alice Brady to aid and abet his suit. A girl next door and the object of the young son's affections, is the lovely Anita Louise.

An artist who is almost won by the elder daughter, Miss de Havilland, is Walter Woolf King. His understanding wife is Peggy Wood. An actress who comes near to sweeping the father-husband off his feet is Marcia Ralston.

It is truly an all-star cast—even the "bit" parts being played by such notables as Una O'Connor, Beryl Mercer, Elsa Buchanan and Mary Field.

"Call It a Day" won great acclaim in its previews when the critics called it a delightful comedy, with touches of deep and genuine drama. It was adapted for the screen by Casey Robinson.

"Romance of Robert Burns" produced in full beautiful technicolor, and the first actual scenes of the Hindenburg disaster, actual "on the spot" pictures taken by Metrotone News are cameramen are announced for presentation on the same program.

Robert Taylor Deporter and Joan Marlow are appearing at the Belle tonight for the last times in the new W. S. Van Dyke comedy hit "Personal Property" a very interesting mystery and love affair packed atmosphere and thrills. Robert Taylor is co-starred in W. S. Van Dyke's romantic comedy hit "Personal Property" at the Belle tonight only.

PRESENTED AT COURT

Robert Taylor and Joan Marlow co-starred in W. S. Van Dyke's romantic comedy hit "Personal Property" at the Belle tonight only.

Robert Taylor and Joan Marlow will be exhibited on the same program.

EXPLOSION WHICH KILLED EIGHT ABOARD DESTROYER BELIEVE CAUSED BY MINE

The British Admiralty, in a statement from London, announced that preliminary investigation of the explosion of the H.M.S. Hunter, which took eight lives and injured 14, was caused by the destroyer hitting a floating mine in Spanish waters. The Hunter (above) is being towed to Gibraltar where a more complete investigation will be made. The Hunter, launched last September, was one of the most modern destroyers and had a speed of 35½ knots. Experts believe the explosion would have occurred below ship hit a mine which had broken away from its moorings and floated to the top. They point out that had the ship hit a moored mine the steel

TENNIS

The finals in the Handicap

Singles Tennis Tournament were played at the Country Club over the week end, elimination play to the semi-finals being been halted by rain on Coronation Day and continued later.

Miss Grace McCreary defeated Miss Evelyn Jack 6-8, 6-2 to win the ladies' championship of the club.

Arthur L. "By-Line" Cole won the men's singles by defeating Murray Mitchell in the final round 4-6, 6-2, 6-3. Mitchell gained the final round by virtue of having eliminated Spencer Evans in the semi-finals, while Cole had previously disposed of Albert Faulkner in the same round.

The next important tennis tournament for the Bay of Quinte Country Club Tennis group will be on 24th, when regular league contest, the Bay of Quinte group, will open.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal itching, you will find quick relief when the oak oil ointment is used. Any itching, soreness or pain is relieved at once. It is nature's healing and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from a druggist or any druggist, a package of Peterson's Ointment. Use as directed. Peterson's, which is internal, quickly relieves the itching, sore, raw and angry sore and in healing the sore, tender spot. Hemrrot is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly to continue to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

PERCIVAL STORES HELD TO A DRAW

No Scoring in Game After The Fifth Innings

With no scoring in evidence after the fifth inning, the Percival Store 1936 intermediate O.A.S.A. championship, battled the Claco nine to a nil tie in a 12 inning struggle in a Belleville Softball Association fixture at Coleman Flats on Saturday evening, the game being terminated on account of darkness.

Don Harris, on the hillop for Percivals, hooked up in a stellar pitchers battle with Harold Sager, Claco moundsman, neither team being able to score after the fifth. Some outstanding fine fielding was seen with both clubs supplying defensive powers to save the day as the game progressed. Sager struck out two and walked four while Harris whiffed three, but passed six.

Ethier, Howlett and Sager swung heavy bats for Claco, while Bairstow, Thomson and Boldt hit well for the Percivals. Tonight the Kalmas juniors clash with the Forbin Hardware in a league fixture at the same park.

The line-ups—Percivals—Thomson c; Phelps ss; Riggs 3b; Hammett lf; Harris p; Boldt 1b; Barriage 2b; Sinfield cf; and Clarke rf. Claco—Lupenette 2b; Latchford ss; Sharpe 1b; Ethier rf; Moon 3b; Howlett cf; McDonald 2b; Sager p and Boyle lf.

HIGH TIDE OF Spring

BLOSSOM TIME and bird time .... new leaves gleaming on the trees, and grass of unbelievable greenness springing underfoot.

Let's get outdoors!

There's magic in May sunshine that stirs desires to fulfilment. The flower-bed we've planned for years—we'll plant it NOW! We'll get new screens, the shining kind, and throw away the frayed old things that flies came through last summer. We'll get a new lawn-mower . . . a bird bath for the corner by the hedge . . . a lawn-chair or two, and a big bright umbrella with a tiny table for tea.

Can you afford all these delightful things? Of course you can! It's astonishing what values are offered in the stores this month. As you go through your paper you'll see them. Smart, cool, outdoor dresses . . . gardening hats and tools and gloves . . . croquet and deck-tennis and badminton sets . . . comfortable porch swings and outdoor furniture . . . all so inexpensive that you can buy them NOW without waiting and wishing.

Read the advertisements. Plan your purchases. And let your Spring dreams come true.

Pirates Defeat Cardinals Maintaining 3½ Game Lead; Hospital List of Cubs Grows

180,000 Cash Customers Jam Through Gates on Sunday

YANKS ON TOP

Gabby Hartnett Sustains Split Finger And Out For Week

By SID FEDER

Just four weeks ago today, big league baseball lifted the curtain on its annual follies—and already a lot of the production heads are yelling for more aspirin.

Outside of Pie Traynor, who is forgetting all about those pepless Pittsburgh Nines of the past, and the various club magnates, who are having too good a time listening to swinging cash registers, there isn't a director in the show without a full-sized headache.

To mention only a few, there's suffering Steve O'Neill, who can't do a thing by the sway-from-home Hitlers of his Cleveland Indians, and Bill Terry, who wonders why the second-division clubs always pick on his Giants, and Charley Grimm, who finds himself in so hot and stuffy growing that he's thinking of installing hospital cots in the Cubs' clubhouse.

The week-end added a few more pains to these sufferers and a lot of others, but for Traynor and the moguls—particularly the latter—everything was beer and skittles. The faithful turned out all over both circuits yesterday, with 180,000 cash customers jamming through the gates.

Pirates Winging Along.

Traynor couldn't find a thing to worry about even if he looked for it. His Pirates, for years one of the clubs that had the stuff and didn't know what to do with it, have revered themselves completely and, at their current pace are going to be about as easy to catch as Jesse Owens. Continuing to show their new-found "zip" they knocked off Cardinals again yesterday to take a 3½ game hold on first place in the National League.

Joe McCarthy, whose Yankees didn't give him any cause to smile on their just-completed invasion, which found the clouds disappearing as his revamped lineup trimmed first place in the American League by topping the Athletics 5-4 before 39,728 fans, largest turnout since the champions-ship days of '29, '30 and '31, Rookie Tim Hendrix did the heavy chores and Red Ruffing made a seven-hit 1937 pitching debut.

Cleveland's Indians, dropping a 6-4 decision to the White Sox in Chicago, marked their farewell in their away-from-home games this season. So far, they've played four and lost four.

Giants Are Blanked.

The Giants, still third in the National League, would be a lot higher if they could get by those second division outfits. Claude Passeau blanked them 5-0 for Phillies yesterday, marking the eighth time out of eleven times this year that the league champions have been belted around by second-division troublemakers.

For a few moments things looked brighter for Grimm's Cubbies—yesterday, with catcher Gabby Hartnett and pitcher Tex Carleton returning to the Cubs from the hospital list. But Hartnett went right back with a split finger, and Warneke, as relief pitcher, lost a 3-2 decision to Cincinnati Reds. Chick Hafey, at bat for the first time in two years, drove in the winning run with a fly in the ninth.

Two distance battles marked the program, with Boston Bees beating out Brooklyn and Van Lingle Mungo 3-2 in 12 innings, and Boston Red Sox socking Washington's slipping Senators 6-3 in 11.

Detroit's Tigers finally clicked against St. Louis Browns with a 5-4 win at Briggs Stadium, although it with his fifth pitching triumph.

TULSA STENOS TO PLAY GRADS

Edmonton Cage Girls Repel Challenge of Wichita in 3 Straight

Edmonton, May 17.—(CP)—Edmonton Grads, having easily repelled a challenge of the United States teams seeking the international Women's Basketball Championship and the Underwood Challenge Trophy, today awaited the arrival of another team to do battle they have held since 1923—the Tulsa Stenos. Grads Saturday completed their second defence of the trophy this spring with a 46-25 victory over Wichita Thursday, their third straight win in the best-of-five-series. In April Grads took three straight games from Cleveland Fisher Foods.

Final challenge of the spring season is from Tulsa stenos, whom Grads previously defeated in challenge play. Dates for the series with the Oklahomans have not been set.

BOTH WRESTLERS CAN STAY LIMIT

Al Dunlop And Joe Maynard May Mix Matters in Prelim. Bout

The one-hour time limit won't mean a thing to John Katan and Henry Piers when they meet in the main bout of the Queensbury Club show at the Arena Tuesday evening. Each is noted for his stamina and neither is liable to show signs of tiring within that time, which means that the man who is better able to force the break in his favor will be the winner. Only an injury is liable to end either one.

Katan attributes his staying power to the fact that several years ago he trained daily with Ed "Strangler" Lewis former champion of the world.

The semi-final between Ralph Garibaldi of Italy and Eli Fischer, the former Rutgers University football star, will answer the demand for new faces and record as to their ability indicate that the fans won't be disappointed in the wrestling of either.

Al Dunlop and Joe Maynard are on to make their engagement a hectic one from start to finish.

LEAFS FALLING

Suffer Three Defeats by Jersey City Over Week-end

Although it is practically a brand new team this year, Newark Bears are ready to tell the world they will be in the think of the International League fight this year as they have been every season since New York Yankees took control.

The Bears served official notice over the past week-end when they climbed to the top of the standings by knocking off Buffalo Bisons, 1938 champions, in two successive double headers. That gave them a record of six straight triumphs and a margin of 2½ games over Toronto Leafs who dropped a double-header to the Jersey Giants on Saturday and another Saturday, then hopped to Jersey City to take a 9-0 shutout yesterday.

Newark capped its performance by hauling Bill Harris, Buffalo's mound ace, in yesterday's opener after their own rookie sensation, Alley Donald, had pitched them to a 7-4 triumph in the opener. Donald allowed eight hits and got the benefit of a homer by Bob Seeds and Ernie Bilson errors which let in four runs. The Bears had to go nine innings to take the afterpiece, 4-3, although three times Jersey City got the bases filowa and Keller helped out with a homer.

Bob Burke, veteran southpaw, made his Jersey City debut before 12,356 cash customers and celebrated with a two-hit flinging masterpiece. He also made two hits off Mike Meola and drove in a run in the fifth-inning rally that decided the game.

Two other Sunday bargain bills completed the job of thoroughly shaking up the standings. Montreal Royals laid down a haze-hit barrage to trim Syracuse Chiefs 12-6 and 5-4, while Rochester's Red Wings turned back Baltimore Kling Baltimore Orioles, 4-3 and 5-0. As a result Montreal took third place over Buffalo and Rochester fills while Syracuse skidded off to seventh.

WAR ADMIRAL IS BEST 3 YEAR OLD

Defeats Pompoon in Preakness by Head in Near Record Time

(By Orlo Robertson)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, May 17.— (AP)—War Admiral, 3-year-old son of Man O'War, today was heralded as the greatest offspring sent to the races by the famous old Red—himself creator of turf history 17 years ago.

There were few, who dared compete in the 63rd running of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness with the powerful daddy, but many ranked him supreme over Maryland Flag and Crusader, heretofore recognized as the best of the crop. Both were shed by Man O'War. Crusader won $60,367 and American Flag $82,725. War Admiral's earnings reached $121,-600 all except $14,600 of it this year, and the many rich stakes, including the $50,000 Belmont and Arlington classic, ahead of him.

After beating a Mr. Rockingham, Pompoon twice within a week, the latter by a head margin in the Preakness Saturday, the Brown Colt from Samuel Riddle's Philadelphia-owned stable left no doubt as to his greatness. He turned in the second fastest time in Derby history by beating Pompoon by 1 1-2 lengths Saturday. He came with in 1-5th second of the Preakness record as the pair hooked up in a thrilling duel for the 1 3-16ths mile.

War Admiral's time of 1:58 2-5 for the 1 3-16th mile was even more impressive than the Derby performance of 2.03 1-5 for the 1 1-4 mile. The Pimlico track, soaked by a heavy rain the night before and before the race, was rated at least a second slow.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, Time flies, William, but we get on. I mean our wedding anniversity is hardly more than a month away. And do you know, William, I've been thinking, and I've decided not to lower the spirit of the occasion by allowing you to give me a ginger jar. I mean you always find some ornate rather expensive little present to celebrate the event. And I've been thinking, and it seems to me that even alone would be in our own celebration, so to speak, so this year we'll just bust in the spirit of the occasion and have a quiet little dinner all alone somewhere, just you and me, and renew old times. Wont that be nice, William, dear?

Lovely is the word for it, but I'd kind of like to bring you home some sumthing useful, just to prove I haven't developed a taste for the luxury of living, ma said. So, I went over to pop and ma and said, Ma, I want you to go and get a nice little bottle of milk mayb. a nice little bottle of milk.

But at least you'll permit me to buy you a corsage, pop said to you to a movie afterwards, wont you, Ma? Sure pop, ma said, ma said. Dont be silly. If you really feel too badly about it you can buy your consience by treating me with a little surprise just as long before the anhiversity as possible, so it really wont conflict. Such as a bottle of French perfume like Lamotte's Breath of the Shoal, for instants, she said.

Anyhow this is the earliest opportunity that I can think of, pop said. It's a woman's world, and I always feel it's a privelege, for a mere boy to be allowed to inhabit it, pop said.

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Is baseball dying a slow but certain death throughout the entire Central Ontario zone? Glancing back over the past 19 years of existence of the O.B.L. we cannot but help wonder where the whole thing is leading to. From the inception of the Central League back in 1919, until along in 1923 or '24, reports were practically unknown. A team might bring in one player, but never any more in a season. Today, however, we find cities like the population of Belleville, Lindsay, Oshawa and Peterboro importing senior diamond stars in the wholesale lots. When cities with a population of nearly 35,000 or so cannot develop their own diamond talent, there are grounds for the general condition in which we find baseball in Belleville.

Much of the blame for the present situation locally can be laid at the door of non-resident stars and past managements, who failed to recognize and encourage the juniors of a few years ago, but today most of the fault lies solely with the teen aged boy, who seemingly is not interested in baseball. There are many reasons for the present state of indifference shown by the local teen aged boys toward baseball. First there are too many counter attractions to draw the attention of a boy from playing baseball, including the modern inventions too numerous to mention. Secondly many are too down-right lazy to practice, while thirdly there is a chance these boys have been disillusioned, following the indifferent reception graduating juniors have received from the senior ranks of baseball during the past decade. Fourthly, future doubtless holds good throughout the entire district.

The other night we attended a junior ball practice at the Fair grounds and are safe in saying there were not 18 teen aged boys on hand. We sponsored a junior ball club around 1924 and '25 when it was nothing to see from 50 to 80 ambitious youth battling for positions on one team and a merry battle was staged in many incidents. After these kids graduated from the junior ranks they naturally had covetous eyes on the day they would line-up on the local Belleville Nationals, but the reception they received in more recent years has discouraged many a youngster, but encouraging, the then-slipping veterans clinching jealously to their positions in which some said they took out-lived their period of usefulness.

We are not trying to detract from the glories and honors brought to Belleville by past baseball clubs, but we have failed to stimulate and retain the interest that was needed to encourage these youthful players, with the result that today we are as free from good baseball material as the proverbial frog from hair.

Let's review the personnel of any O.B.C.L. club back during the days of the league's infancy. Invariably one would find a man here and there interspersed with a team of boys-fresh from the field. The fans were perfectly satisfied, but when one club became a little more ambitious and imported a player or two, the next one tried to go a little better, until the general influx of home-town talent had reached the minimum. For an example, there is no junior club in Kingston or Lindsay this year, while we are not certain about Peterboro. Where are these cities think they are going to wind-up eventually, if they do not encourage the manufacture right now of baseball raw material? Behind the eight ball, we suggest.

Last year in the city of Niagara Falls they sponsored 37 minor league baseball clubs and no senior club at all. "As fast as we produce a promising junior some other city grabs him off, but we can develop these kids as fast as others can move them overnight," so maybe we are doing the best service after all," pointed out Fred' Ward, Niagara Falls baseball enthusiast recently.

How long will it be before the clubs in the C.O.B.L. are going to quit kidding themselves? No league ever survived but continued to import players in a wholesale manner, ask the Intercounty they know the answer. If the clubs in the Central league zone would but realize that they only and then return to the 'home brew system, and the sooner baseball will return to its former status in communities like Belleville, Cobourg, Port Hope and Lindsay. Did the C.O.B.L. ever enjoy the game as in the days of Freddie Cloyer, Joe Patton, Finnegan, Hills, Dick Turpin, Lloyd Chambers, Jack Coombs and other well-known baseball players, who were all natives of the town they played for? Even the patrons of the game took a more vested interest in Belleville in the indifference shown by the Kinning generation, but then there has been a certain neglect on the part of the sponsors, on whatever they called themselves, in not keeping the game alive in the later schools. That alone was a very serious delinquency on the part of some person, whether that be us, it all seems to be of no avail.

Wrestling fans of Belleville have one thing to admit, this John Katan doesn't wrestle defensively, the former Canadian titleholder is always into the attack at every opportunity and has enough he nerver figures in a dull bout. Henri Piers, his Dutch opponent, commands the respect of the patrons of the big rassler' racket, locally through his splendid performances here against Jim Coffield' Charlie Strack.' Any man to beat Strack is to be feared in any ring. Of course Piers first find the provincial Tartar in Katan, but personally we have been informed that Piers is nothing short of a rhythm personified, while his opponent is built on the order of Clarabidi, brother of the Primo Cino, is a corker and a crowd-

DAILY SHORT STORY

Little Coward

By Virginia Woodall

Margaret's scalp prickled as she stood in the middle of the living room staring nervously at the long shadow. Was there someone standing in the alley way peeping through a crack in the shade, watching her, waiting for an opportunity to enter?

A dry sob rose in her throat as she forced herself into a chair. She couldn't help being afraid but she could control her fear. With a new determination she picked up a magazine.

From the kitchen came a sharp, scratching noise! Her heart jumped, beat thuddingly against her bursting lungs. The kitchen window—had she locked it? But there were instruments for forcing locked windows.

She sat listening—listening to the still deeper quiet. Better to face her fear squarely than to sit cowering there, and with only a few steps she could look through the door into the kitchen.

Slowly she stood up and took the steps. The kitchen was as she had left it after her lonely supper.

Quarter to eleven. It was time to go to bed. With an effort at nonchalance she went into the bath room and took down the jar of cold cream. Bath razor and shaving soap were still there ni the medicine cabinet. He'd forgotten them that morning when he hastily packed a bag and took his departure for good.

She massaged the cream vigorously into her smooth skin and wiped it off with a tissue.

Large blue eyes under long arched brows looked solemnly back at her from the mirror. Blond hair, soft and wavy, hung down over her shoulders or her dressing gown. Bill had so loved to brush her hair, to run his fingers through it. Two little white teeth appeared to take charge of her rebellious lower lip.

"If I wanted to—I could get married again," she told herself, firmly. "It's not the only man in the world. He's just one among millions. And I'm only twenty-four and if I wanted, I could get married, again again!"

With her eyes fixed on the window she arrived by easy stages and slipped under the covers. She found she could see quite plainly the wall of the building next door.

Her lids were just beginning to feel unbearably heavy when suddenly they lifted wide. A man's shadow was creeping along the wall! It approached nearer and nearer—and began to shorten. He was slipping up to her window!

Breaking the nightmare paralysis which bound her she rolled from the bed and stumbled into the hallway. Her hand struck the telephone almost sweeping it from the table.

"Operator! Operator!" She jerked the receiver frantically. "Operator! Please—oh!—give me the police—quick!"

Two seconds later a voice—a man's calm, reassuring voice—answered.

"There's someone trying to get into my flat. He's at my window! —I'm all alone . . .

"A squad car'll be there in two or three minutes."

She sat clutching the telephone. Behind her was the door leading outside. If she heard the window being raised she could run out and scream.

The moments crept by. She thought she heard voices in the alley way but she wasn't sure. The door-bell made her jump.

A big, uniformed policeman stood just outside her door.

"We got the man, all right, lady. He says—here! Come along you! Let the lady get a look."

Another policeman shoved a bleeder, slightly disheveled young man forward.

Margery gasped.

The first policeman frowned. "He says he's your husband, lady."

"Oh Bill! Oh, Bill!" Margery flung her arms around his neck and he gathered her close.

"Say, what is this—anyhow?" growled the policeman. "What were you doin' prowling around your wife's windows—huh?"

Bill, holding his wife tight, turned a sheepish young face toward his captor. "I—uh—we quarreled and I left home this morning. Tonight I got to thinking about how scared Margery'd be alone and I just thought I'd stand around outside in case—well, she got too scared!"

Margery's smile was a dazzling confirmation. "Oh, Bill! You see we quarrelled because I was afraid to stay alone while he went to the bowling club and—and—"

"He's an awful coward," Bill interrupted.

Margaret frowned. "I'm not either! I'm just nervous . . ."

"Aw—stow it!" the policeman cackled and turned on his heel. As the front door closed behind him he heard her saying, "Have you had your dinner yet, darling?"

ELDORADO

Eldorado—The "Little Builders" Mission Band of the United Church held their regular meeting on Saturday at the home of Mrs. Clifford Chambers with an attendance of 19 children and four mothers. The meeting opened by singing Hymn 408 and the Call to Worship was given by the president, Miss Evelyn Chambers. Afterwards Hymn 408 and the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. Mrs. Arthur McCreary gave a very interesting story on the "Most Precious Gift". The memory verse was then given.

The strange romance of the famous Russian composer, Peter Tchaikowsky, and his patroness, Nadejda von Meck, who knew each other only through their letters, is told in "Beloved Friend," Written by Catherine Drinker Bowen herself a musician, and Barbara von Meck, granddaughter of Nadejda, the biography was chosen for February by the Book-of-the-Month Club. The entire history of the strange relationship is presented, based upon Tchaikovsky and Mme. von Meck's letters by her granddaughter. The volume is written with delicacy of feeling for the peculiarities and impulses of Tchaikowsky's genius. Throughout the story runs the thread of his compositions. He has been called the culmination of the Romantic Movement in music. Many people have studied his music, gloomy and violent but Catherine Drinker Bowen assures us that after reading of his life we will see a man who was friendly and fervent, who suffered but who knew how to laugh at himself.

One more name is added to that distinguished company of foreign correspondents. Gunther, Durant, Sheean, Parson and Webb Miller. The name of Granville Fortescue, born in Bridge, Empire is not breaking up but will endure, though possibly in a much altered form. The volume is stimulating, with pungent comments and the chapter on Canada is enlightening and well-informed.

"Cuban Tapestry" by Sydney A. Clark is a delightful light-hearted wanderings in the land "whose beauty made Columbus forget gold and turn tourist." Mr. Clark writes with a lively press of the many sided life of Cuba: the tobacco fields, the turtle grounds, the ghost towns of the Isle of Pines which was Stevenson's Treasure Island. He recalls historic memories of the battlefields of '98 and captures something of the busy rhythm of Havana and Trinidad. "Cuban Tapestry" is a happy holiday.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSE

Toronto, May 17 (CP)—With London closed for Coronation holiday today and New York in the dumps, the Toronto market was disinclined to stem the tide and the result was a generally sluggish market. Prices were fairly steady in the early trade but as interest lagged bids were lowered and the close was generally heavy, more than one gains showing in all groups with a possible exception of the oils, food and building stocks.

A few grades traded in sizable volume, mainly at slight declines. Bid-good-finished was again the feature, trading close to 50,000 shares but not quite coming close to Monday's final price. In quiet trading Brazilian Traction and McIntyre yielded fractions of the 2 to 19 cents were boarded for Pickle Crow, Macassa, Parmaster, Sherritt, Beattie, Central Patricia, Perron, San Antonio, Sharon, Powell-Rouyn and Sladen. Read-Authier was off 22 cents. Among the cheaper issues to do better were Bankfield, Bobjo, Lake Cap and Lamaque Contact.

Two active issues lacked the industrial group. Imperial Oil at Abitibi common sold down about ¾.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, May 17 (AP)—Stock market leaders shifted indefinitely today over a quieting ticker tape.

In one of the slowest sessions of more than a year the list inclined to less backbreaking. A handful of issues managed to retain modest plus signs near the day's top.

Transfers were at the rate of 500,000 shares.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

MARKET COMMENT

Last, week's market was an irregular affair, although the net result and a firmer tone was noticeable and some of the more nervousness had disappeared. It will require rising markets for some little time before the public completely recovers from the effects of the last shake-out.

Drury & Thompson in their Market Letter point out that those who state that "Roosevelt cooling reduce the price of gold now" should remember that the New Deal policy had been responsible in the first of "gold experimentation" and will doubtless be the method of securing living costs—and consequently commodity prices—higher. The last bull market was largely built on a rise in commodity prices, and Canada in particular, as a large producer of raw materials, will be vitally affected by any future trend of the general price level.

The price of gold in London has fallen again to a level at which there is little chance of around 5 cents an ounce to banks which bring the metal over to the United States Treasury. If offerings in London are large enough to depress in the U.S. will rise, increasing the demand upon Treasury cash to make payment for the imports. The British equalisation fund lately has done some yeoman work in buying large sums for delivery to the Bank of England, building up the bank's reserve of the old fund and fund with sterling available for the equalisation account. Should the gold recently bought by the Bank of England, about £8,000,000, be valued in old style pounds, the actual purchase was near $40,000,000. The well-informed London correspondents of the New York Sun notes that the recent purchase of gold by the Bank of England was done to gain care of higher note circulation, and not as a means of supporting the gold market or relieving the U.S. Treasury.

New Deals to Drill at Depth

Evidence of renewed interest in copper developments is seen in the revived activity now in progress in the Rouyn district. A few weeks ago it was announced Mad Lake had started drilling. Waite-Amulet is reopening and is already operating underground at that district. Several copper-gold prospects are being marketed including Powell Rouyn where a second shaft is going down. Latest to begin development is New Senator Rouyn Limited successor to Rubago Gold Corporation, with a property in Beauchastel township a few miles east of Noranda, and three miles south of Wasa Lake.

Noranda in Good Demand

On its record and prospects Noranda should be very reasonably priced. There are no bonds or preferred stock and the strong financial position makes it possible to distribute practically all net earnings to shareholders should the directors care to do so. The matter of discussing a dividend for the first six months of 1937 will be discussed by the board within a fortnight's time. It is clear, however, at this time, is being predicted by some quarters the company has no fixed dividend rate, but has been liberal in the matter of distributions. The latest has interesting possibilities for those in a position to buy it, and, indeed, could list as a sensational investment as a split-up in the capitalization of the company not may be forthcoming as Noranda's many subsidiaries develop.

While the circumstances of the resignation of Prof. O. M. W. Sprague from his former post as adviser to the United States Treasury suggest that his views on monetary and fiscal policies do not always coincide with those of the administration what he says is worth attention. In an address in Berlin Prof. Sprague said that to lower the gold price would be unwise, but that there is a need for one of the increasing world supplies of gold. One can understand why building up of central bank reserves. Our reserves already are perhaps too high, but that our position is special.

2 Dynamite Sticks Found on Coal Bin

Kitchener, Ont., May 17 (CP)—The Kitchener police have two sticks of dynamite at the city hall that they are not fussy about harboring long.

The Grand River Railway Company operator on Queen street south went to get coal for the station today and noticed the two sticks on top of the small coal bin. When the dynamite came from is a mystery.

Premature Quadruplets Die Within Day After Their Birth

Mrs. Paul Martel, Montreal, Has Multiple Birth

INCUBATORS USED

Montreal, May 17 (CP)—The last two of the Martel quadruplets died in hospital today, less than a full day after their birth to the wife of a French-Canadian bakery wagon driver.

Earlier in the day, about nine hours after their birth to Mrs. Paul Martel in her east-end Montreal home, their brother and sister died within an hour of each other.

Deaths of the four children, whose arrival was two months premature, left the Mahmoys of Saint Albert, N.B., as the only living set of quads in Canada.

Doctors had expressed hope they could keep life in the last two boys, born after the birth at the drowned of the four. But they weakened rapidly this morning.

Placed in Incubators.

The four were taken from their home last night and placed in incubators at Ste. Justine hospital.

Some time later their 30-year-old mother was brought to a room a few doors from the children. Today she was reported as resting comfortably.

Martel, 34, and his wife were little amazed at the suddenness of the multiple birth, stayed away from work for three days. They have been years to arrange a quiet burial for the three children.

The 32-year-old French-Canadian father had lingered to interrupt his work to see the quads on their first brute. Last time he had not turned his fog work at all. It was a huge little the first of his three other children was born.

Today wasn't just to have been another special occasion. Last night, after the birth, the father's friends had anticipated being "too busy at home for work."

Sorry For His Wife.

He learned of the death of two of the quads when he rose wearily after only a few hours sleep. His first comment was, "My poor wife, they'll die". Then, "It would have been little if all four lived," he said sadly.

The dark 30-year-old wife bore the three boys and the girl in a front bedroom in the flat which embraces Maisonneuve yesterday afternoon.

EIGHT YEAR GIRL IS FOUND SLAIN AT BROOK HAVEN

Mother Says Strange Man Attacked Her And Children

BOY IS INJURED

Mrs. Tiernan Questioned by Police at Brookhaven, L.I.

New York, May 17.—(AP)—Police said today that Mrs. Helen Tiernan, 38-year-old attractive waitress, had confessed to them in her seven-year-old daughter Helen, and assailed the 10-year-old boy, Jimmie Lee.

Kerz said the woman confessed she alone did the deed.

Deputy Chief Inspector Francis J. Kear announced the confession.

"She told me that she committed the acts because she was in love with a man, but couldn't accompany him because of children in the small flat the family lived in," the inspector said.

Kear said the woman confessed she alone did the deed.

Suspect Is Charged

Patrolman Raymond Kelly, 38, of Patchogue, N.Y., said he had arrested Mrs. Helen Tiernan in New York City on a charge of disorderly conduct and told him he saw her hit his sister.

The boy's seven-year-old sister was found burned to death in a wooded yesterday and the boy was found injured.

New York, May 17 (AP)—Police announced today that Mrs. Helen Tiernan, 38, said she was the mother of a little girl found slain in a wooded section of Brookhaven, N.Y. yesterday. She said a stranger man attacked her and her children.

Mrs. Tiernan was taken to an office of the Brookhaven district attorney, Frank Naughton after an official of a west side nursery said a picture of Mrs. Tiernan, allegedly seen in a car near the body of the girl, resembles one of the children.

Outing Is Reported.

Detective Naughton said he learned at the nursery that Mrs. Tiernan had taken her children, James, five and Helen, seven, on an outing yesterday and returned without them today. Naughton said officials also had displaced them in a home on Long Island.

Later, Naughton said, she related taking them for a picnic near Brookhaven.

Injured Child Incoherent.

Brookhaven, N.Y., May 17 (AP)—Incoherent from fear, injured four-year-old boy today as the only aid police had in their search for a clue to the brutal murder of an 8-year-old girl, the boy's sister, whose children remained unidentified, until later when Mrs. H. Tiernan said the victim was her daughter Helen.

Raymond Cataldo of Riverhead, who discovered the boy in the woods when he had not seen for a number of years, later found his boy and girl playing in the yard, he exclaimed wife in Brooklyn.

Boy Found in Thicket.

The girl's body was found yesterday in a thicket east of Brookhaven village. Her throat was slashed and her body was burned. Gasoline had been poured on her clothing and lighted.

The little boy, who said he was her brother, was found near by, wandering away. He lay as if asleep. He had been stabbed and also burned.

The city police said they were not the feverish replies of the little boy to their questions.

"Joe did it," the boy mumbled. "Mommy's hurt too."

Kaiffy and Schwers Stained.

But later he said "Mommy hurt us," and then "Joe bought a cream and then hurt."

Kelly and Schwers said, a pair of scissors, both blood-stained, and an unstained axe were found near where the bodies were discovered. A bottle partly filled with gasoline also lay nearby.

KING IS PRAISED BY PETTY OFFICER

Says He Showed Utter Disregard For Self in Sea Battle

Belfast, May 17.—(CP)—How the accuracy of the guns of H.M.S. Gallant depended on the skill of King George VI to work the calculating instrument in the forward turret of the ship was disclosed here by Petty Officer Arthur Price, who served with the present King at the time.

Wells Gallant's displayed an utter disregard for himself with great coolness and earnestness, put every effort into making manifest his fighting duty, for which he was highly commended, the petty officer said.

He described the King's work as "a very important duty, upon the efficiency of which the guns depended for their hits".

"The operation begins as soon as the enemy is sighted and continues until the 'cease fire' is sounded," he continued.

"During all this time the guns are laid accurately because the turret is completely sealed from the outside world.

No one ever enters or leaves the turret and the range-keeping instruments are in constant use at moment.

"It was the nearest person to the king during the battle, working my instruments in communication with the officers who were controlling away from the flight."

Price said a story that the King made cocoa and delivered it to the men only in the turret was entirely wrong

NEGRO EVANGELIST RETURNS TO THE AIR

"You've never heard anything if you haven't heard that famous negro parson Elder Lightfoot Solomon Michaux on the radio," so our informant told us last Saturday. Elder Solomon Lightfoot, etc., Michaux, has been off the air some months but no one who ever heard the famous "Happy Am I" will ever forget the stirring singing and the fervid preaching of this colored evangelist and on Sunday night at nine o'clock Standard Daylight (10 o'clock Daylight Saving Time) over WOR and Mutual station WLW, Washington, D.C., where Elder Michaux is evangelizing in a big church. He will broadcast with a full chorus of 150 voices, and Elder Solomon Lightfoot Michaux, himself, will play the role of the mother in the radio drama, "Another Language," with Belle Davis and Fred McMurray. Both popular screen, radio, stage and Time tonight. May Robson's stage success "A Majority of One," a delicious comedies will not soon be forgotten by pre-movie literate goers.

THREE TAXI DRIVERS REPORT KIDNAPPING BUT NOT HURT BY MEN

North Bay, Ont., May 17—(CP) Northern Ontario police today investigated reports that Hull, Que., and Montreal that might help them solve holdups of North Bay and Sudbury taxi drivers. Three drivers have reported thefts of their cabs under almost identical circumstances.

Edward McKay was the latest to appeal to police and it was his story, that turned investigations east. He arrived in North Bay Saturday night, telling officers he was kidnapped by three men while he drive them to Ottawa and Hull and finally released in Montreal.

The three men believed the same who held up Don Brunelle, Sudbury taxi driver, Friday morning and dumped him out between Sturgeon Falls and North Bay. Later that day Earl Vallancourt, another Sudbury taximan, was taken for a ride but was discharged in Jump-up at Coniston. The auto was found near Markstay, 28 miles from Sudbury.

Told to Charge $45

McKay told of receiving a call from the three men and of taking them to Sturgeon Falls, Ottawa and Montreal. He was told to charge $45 for his flight but he could not make the trip unobserved before one of his captors came along and spoke in French. He declared he believed the passengers thought he could not understand English and merely had been an argument over the fare.

When he was turned free at Montreal he had only $7 left, given back to him after the men had taken $36 from him, McKay said. He was not harmed.

Provincial Police at Montreal reported McKay told them the same story launching an investigation, while at Hull the Chief of Police said he would enquire concerning the taximan's story of asking a Hull policeman for assistance.

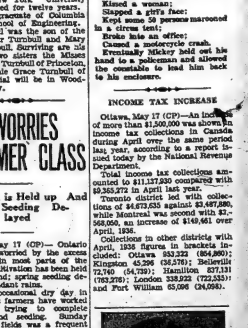
RAIN WORRIES FARMER CLASS

Cultivation is Held up And Spring Seeding Delayed



Toronto, May 17 (CP)— Ontario farmers are worried by the excessive rains which in most parts of the province. Cultivation has been held up and seeding delayed, largely by abundant rains.

While the normal dry day in some districts farmers have worked until midnight trying to complete ploughing and seeding. Sunday work in the fields was a frequent sight of the unemployed season in Toronto yesterday.

"While the earlier the better" is the farmer's motto late springs are not to be worried about, says Hon. Duncan Marshall, provincial Minister of Agriculture. He recalled that Scotland found it useless waiting but he assured there was still time to sow the principle staple crops of oats and barley. The prospects does not look favorable for wheat and the bulk of the potato crop was not usually planted till after the 24th.

"Give us some drier weather from now on and we'll be right on time," the Minister optimistically.

Ontario farmers proved to fair and warmer in many localities.

PERMANENT EMPIRE COUNCIL IS ADVOCATED

Dominions May Oppose Establishment in London; Pacific Pact Advocated

Australia Seeks Closer Trade Association With Britain

FOREIGN POLICY

Problems of British Nationality to go to Committee

By GEORGE HAMILTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 18 (CP. Cable) — Problems of British nationality are to be submitted to an Imperial Conference Committee.

Coronation visitors who still crowd the neighborhood of Whitehall were intrigued today by the sudden appearance of conference motorcars, each bearing the Star flag of some Dominion.

Remove Unfounded

They stopped before 10 Downing Street, deposited the delegates and departed. Rumors spread of secret meetings in the silences of the Prime Minister's official residence.

The reality was less romantic. Inquiry revealed the meeting merely discussed formation of a constitutional committee and decided to recommend it to the heads of delegations tomorrow. One of the constitutional questions to come before the committee will be that of nationality.

Preliminary talks indicate Australia plans to make a bid for closer association with Britain in foreign policy. Prime Minister Joseph Lyons already has proposed a non-aggression pact wherein all powers bordering the Pacific would participate.

Pact Discussed

Another Australian proposal — although not formally submitted to the Imperial Conference — is creation of a permanent council in London which would deal with foreign policy in the intervals between Imperial Conferences.

Both proposals are likely to meet opposition. Attempts to establish permanent organizations in London always are regarded jealously by the Dominions anxious of their autonomy. Difficulties in the way of a Pacific pact, particularly if it in-

Five are Drowned As Boat Sinks In British Guiana

Georgetown, British Guiana, May 18 (CP)—Five persons, including one woman, were drowned when a boat with 22 persons aboard sank in the Mora Rapids, according to a brief message reaching Georgetown today.

The Mora Rapids are situated on the Mazaruni River, which runs into the British Guiana hinterland, tapping the Mazaruni Diamond Fields.

URGES SUPPORT OF CHURCH PRESS

Bishop Lyons Points to Significance to Empire of Coronation

Kingston, Ont., May 18—(CP)—"This coronation season of the Synod of the Diocese convenes at a time when the eyes of the world are upon the centre of the Empire," said Bishop Lyons in his charge at the opening Synod service at St. George's Cathedral today.

"On May 12 the British Commonwealth of Nations shared with it in rejoicing in the Coronation of Their most Gracious Majesties, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, he said.

No Pension Fund

Referring to the Pension Fund, Bishop Lyons said: "Strictly speaking we have no pension fund in this diocese. The Clergy Superannuation Fund and Widows and Orphans' Fund are maintained largely from endowments and the Mission Fund. The only contribution made by our clergy is the small sum of $5 a year to the Widows and Orphans' Fund. Our beneficiary funds, as it quite evident, are not on a business or actuarial basis but depend almost entirely for their maintenance upon voluntary support. I feel that we should begin to pave the way against the day when we may be called upon through force of circumstances, or otherwise, to take action. I therefore, commend this matter to your most earnest attention."

Social Service Opportunity

The jails, police courts, hospitals and other public institutions which have no regularly appointed chaplains offer a fruitful field for voluntary social service work, he said. A campaign is to be launched July 1 of this year and continued throughout 1937 and 1938 to raise $150,000 for the support of the Church Extension Fund.

He regretted that so many church people gain all their news about the Church from the secular press and urged a greater support of the church publications.

1500 TO ATTEND CONGRESS

Toronto, May 18 (CP)—About 1,500 delegates will attend the Canadian Youth Congress three-day convention at Montreal May 22-24, headquarters of the organization announced here today.

Ontario will be represented by 600 delegates.

Why the Weather?

By MAYOR A. H. THIESEN
Science Lover and Meteorologist

Hailstones! Everyone has seen hailstones, but few examine them closely. Hailstones consist of alternate layers of clear and snow-like ice, arranged concentrically like the layers of an onion but not always symmetrically. They occur only in thunderstorms, but not all thunderstorms bring hail. They are formed in the forward part of severe thunderstorms. The hail part of the storm is soon over, and is followed by rain. But the heavy hailstone reported in this country fell at Potter, Nebraska, July 6, 1928. It was 17 inches in circumference and weighed one and one-half pounds.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, May 18 (CP)—Pressure is relatively low from Ontario eastward to the Maritime Provinces, but from Alberta southward over the Rocky Mountains the high pressure overcast is moving southeastward across the prairies while warm weather prevails northwestward to the Arctic. Light showers have occurred in Alberta and Saskatchewan but the weather in the western provinces has been generally fair with moderate temperature. Rain has also occurred in the Maritimes and Quebec.

Forecasts: Lake Superior—Fair today and Wednesday; cool tonight. Moderate variable winds today, becoming variable Wednesday.

Keiora and Rainy River—Fair today and Wednesday; not much change in temperature.

Manitoba—Fair today and most of Wednesday; not much change in temperature.

Saskatchewan and Alberta — Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday, probably scattered showers; not much change in temperature.

GORDON C. NICHOL TO STAND TRIAL MANSLAUGHTER

Driver of Car in Which Steve Cosick, Hockey Player Was Killed

ONE DRIVER FREED

Witness Testifies Car Was Travelling 50 Miles an Hour

Hamilton, Ont., May 18 (CP) — After hearing evidence concerning a car crash April 24 in which Steve Cosick, hockey star was killed, Magistrate James McKay today committed for trial Gordon C. Nichol, driver of the machine in which Cosick was riding, on a manslaughter charge.

Sam Pelker of Stoney Creek, owner of the other car, was dismissed on a charge of criminal negligence. Nichol, arraigned first with C. T. Bell, K.C., acting on his behalf, pleaded not guilty and elected to go court trial.

Pelzer testified the Cornick car was not within a block of the intersection when he started across Cannon Street and he reached the middle, the machine struck the front of his car.

Stanley Cowell of Hannon, riding with Pelzer, told a similar story. Both testified they stopped at the crossing.

Harold Bereth told of driving east on Cannon Street at the time of the accident, and being passed by the Cornick car.

Car Too Fast

"It was going about 50 miles an hour and went from Tisdale to Wentworth," he said. "It was a drove one block to Steven Street," Bereth testified.

The witness said he saw the headlights of the Pelzer car come to the intersection as Wentworth just before the crash.

When the criminal negligence hearing against Pelzer started C. W. Ballard, crown counsel, tried to call Nichol but Mr. Bell claimed that as his client was committed for trial he could not be cross-examined on incriminating facts and refuse to take the stand.

Albert Cornick, brother of the victim, and Gerald Lazerte, who were in the car with the Cosick family, told confusing stories, both admitting they were not sure what had happened, stating they had been drinking.

Laley John Evans, who with Alderman Orville M. Walsh, K.C., conducted the defense, moved for discharge.

Mr. Ballard then addressed the court, stating that his case had not strong and he did not think it warranted a conviction.

"The evidence of the two witnesses against Pelker was not very impressive," the Magistrate observed.

Security is Menaced, Niagara Bishop Warns

Hamilton, Ont., May 18—(CP)—While Britain's current defence expenditures are great as to leave people aghast, onslaughts on democracy and threats to world peace make her task so heavy that "we cannot but see the reason for the step," Rt. Rev. C. W. B. Broughhall, D.D., Lord Bishop of Niagara, declared today in opening the 63rd Anglican Synod of the Niagara Diocese.

Bishop Broughall warned that the blessings of security which British peoples had been credited with were menaced from within and without. Christian citizens should realize that fact, so their heritage might not pass away through indifference to its benefits or slackness to its duty," he said.

50 WEEKS' WORK PROVIDED YEARLY

Arrangement Relates Only To Windsor Plant

Windsor Ont., May 18 (CP) — Steady employment fifty weeks of the year has been assured 550 workers in the General Motors of Canada, Ltd., plant here, Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer of the Ontario Labor Department, announced today. Announcement followed conferences between company officials and representatives of the employees.

The company expects that operations at the local plant will carry

Windsor Weds on June 3rd In Quiet Chateau Ceremony

No Members of British Royal Family Will be Present—Date is That of Late Father's Birthday—Ceremony Will be Civil, no Religious Observance Contemplated

MONTS, France, May 18 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield set in motion late today the arrangements for a quiet, civil wedding at the Chateau de Cande June 3.

The ex-king will be married by Dr. Charles Mercier, Mayor of Monts, in the presence of "those who have been with them" in recent months. No member of the Royal Family will be present, other than the Duke himself.

Herman Rogers and the London attorneys for the Duke and Mrs. Warfield visited the office of the District Attorney at Tours and requested dispensation for suspension of these two banns:

1. Public posting of banns, which the law requires for fifteen days ahead of the wedding.

2. The law requiring that such a wedding be held at the Town Hall. It was indicated the demands would be granted readily.

The ceremony will be within the Chateau. Apparently no religious ceremony is contemplated.

The Duke chose the birthday of his late father, George V., for his wedding.

The announcement, which made no mention of the coincidence in dates, said the wedding party would be confined to "those who have been with them"—the Duke and Mrs. Warfield—"during the past months", and added tersely:

"There will be no members of the Royal Family present."

Many had supposed the Duke of Kent would be best man.

WOMAN'S SUITOR HELD AS WITNESS IN HORRIBLE CRIME

George Christie Charged With Acting on Concert With Widow

DENIES KNOWLEDGE

Mother of Children Confesses to Slashing Throats in Thicket

New York, May 18 (AP)—A 30-year-old restaurant store-room man and a mother of two, Hope Christofolus, confessed slayer of her daughter, was charged today with aiding in concert with the young widow in the crime.

The young man was George Christofolus, referred to by Mrs. Tiernan as George Christie.

Detective Captain Edward Mullins said she accused him late last night as the actual killer, but was attempting to kill both, her seven-year-old daughter Helen and her four-year-old son Jimmie.

Under an all-night questioning, Christodulus denied having anything to do with the crime.

Body of Helen was found Sunday in a thicket near Brookhaven, on Long Island's south shore, the throat gashed, the head bruised and the clothing and parts of her body burned. Nearby was Jimmie, his throat also cut but alive.

Christodulus said Monday he was born in Yrda, Greece, and he came to this country on his father's ship. He said he had known Mrs. Tiernan for several years.

Christodulus was taken into custody as a material witness. Mullins said Mrs. Tiernan changed her story.

Weapon Charged Story

Earlier, Mullins stated, she had said an unknown man had attacked her and the children, later maintained she alone was responsible.

Christodulus said he was not with Mrs. Tiernan on Saturday, and he denied also the statement attributed to her by Mullins that he had given her an engagement ring and sought to marry her.

Capt. Mullins said the 25-year-old widow told him she had known Christie about 2½ years and that, after being given an engagement ring, she asked Christie when they would be married. His reply, Mullins said Mrs. Tiernan told him, was:

"How can we when the kids are around?"

Strange "Picnic" Basket

Last Friday night after a similar question, Mullins said, Christie "got sick" for the children. Mullins said the picnic basket had an axe, a knife, a pair of scissors, and a bottle of gasoline. The three witnesses were found in the scene of the crime at Brookhaven, about 55 miles from New York on Long Island's south shore.

According to the young woman's story, as told by Capt. Mullins, in the Brookhaven thicket the mother and Christie struck the man his her with a hatchet and the mother then slashed the throats of both the boy and girl.

Chester Waiters to Take Holiday

Cutting Hole in Roof of House, Fireman is Fatally Stricken

Lieut. R. J. Nicolls of Toronto Able to Descend Ladder

DIES IN SHORT TIME

Toronto, May 18 (CP)—Stricken while on the roof of a burning house, Lieut. R. J. Nicolls, 51, veteran of twenty-five years on the Toronto Fire Department, died today while being rushed to hospital. It is believed a heart attack caused death.

Lieut. Nicolls was cutting a hole in the roof so a nozzle could be used to check a $3,000 blaze when overcome. He succeeded in climbing down a ladder to the ground and was noticed sitting on the steps of the burning building by his comrades. The fire forced six persons to leave the house.

ONLY FLOOD

Long Lac, Ont., May 18 (CP)—With communication and power lines cut off, this Northern Ontario mining town, 175 miles north-east of Port Arthur, was flooded today as the waters of Long Lake surged through the town.

The lake overflowed its banks following heavy rains during the week-end and yesterday. Local residents said the only flood in the town's history occurred in 1914 when a four-year-old son Jimmie.

Under an all-night questioning, Christodulus denied having anything to do with the crime.

Body of Helen was found Sunday in a thicket near Brookhaven, on Long Island's south shore, the throat gashed, the head bruised and the clothing and parts of her body burned. Nearby was Jimmie, his throat also cut but alive.

TO STAND TRIAL ON FOUR CHARGES

Wallace Schreider, Thurlow, Appears Before Magistrate Butler

Wallace Schreider, Thurlow, was committed for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction on four charges of theft, after evidence had been adduced by the Crown establishing a prima facie case before Magistrate F. J. Butler, K.C., in the municipal session of local police court this afternoon.

Schreider is charged with the theft of an automobile, the property of E. I. Shapiro; the theft of an automobile, the property of Reggie Bolding of the Canadian National Railways, the theft of an outboard motor, a water heater, the property of Riggs' Hardware, and other domestic accessories. He was represented by A. B. Colina, P.C., and the proceedings established a prima facie case.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., conducted the case. Schreider last Friday, on Monday and again today before submitting sufficient evidence to satisfy His Worship that a prima facie case had been established, elected to stand trial on the theft of the automobile today.

Schreider having elected trial, by a higher court on the minor charges previously.

Sergeant Arthur Harmon and Detective Fred Isard told of their investigations and of the finding by the number of automobile accessories on Schreider's premises last Wednesday. I. Shapiro, owner of an automobile damaged last November, stated the rear trunk door

D'Annunzio is Ill With Indigestion

Gardone, Italy, May 18 (AP) — Gabriele D'Annunzio, 74 was learned today, is suffering acute indigestion and is under the constant care of doctors.

The 73-year-old warrior-poet first fell ill Friday and has since left but little food. Advisers have been unable to find artifical ones to suit him.

LOUDSPEAKERS ORDERED

Castel Gandolfo, May 18 (AP) — Pope Pius today ordered loud speakers placed in the public audience chambers of his villa to magnify his failing voice.

Due to a heart condition, prelates said, the Pontiff's voice has been failing after only a few minutes and only pilgrims close by can hear him.

JOHN WHITEHOUSE INJURED BY BULL

Brighton Township Farmer Rolled About Ground by Enraged Animal

John Whitehouse, prominent farmer of Brighton Township, residing two miles north of that village is lying in Belleville hospital in a serious condition but with a chance of recovery after he had been knocked down by an enraged bull and rolled about the barnyard. Mr. Whitehouse sustained several fractured ribs and possible internal injuries along with a bad shaking up. Although the injured man is not aged his number of years of life will prevent a speedy recovery from his injuries.

Mr. Whitehouse was attending his usual rounds of duties on the farm late on Sunday and was taking the bull to water when it became enraged and wished the caretaker, knocking him to the ground. Mr. Whitehouse was taken entirely by surprise as the animal had never previously shown any traits of meanness and before he could get out of the way the animal had roughed him considerably on the ground. Fortunately the bull was distorted and this fact probably saved the man's life. Members of the family were soon on the scene and the animal was scared away and Mr. Whitehouse carried to his home where he was attended by Dr. Clarke who ordered his removal to the hospital in this city.

Dr. G. S. Cronk was called and on Monday an X-ray was taken and it was disclosed a number of ribs were fractured on the one side. His condition today is quite serious although he seems considerably better than on Monday, hospital authorities stated. Dr. Cronk is optimistic in the opinion that the man had a fair chance to recover but that progress would be slow, Mr. Whitehouse being known in the Brighton district.

MERRILL TO MEET PREMIER HEPBURN

Jack Lambie, Partner on Atlantic Crossing to Accompany Him

New York, May 18 (AP)—Fresh from his latest transatlantic flight and a meeting with President Roosevelt, Col. Wiley Post and Harold Gatty today set up an airplane visit to Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario.

Merrill said he and Jack Lambie, his partner on last week's flight to Croydon, will take off for Canada tomorrow in their trans-Atlantic plane to visit the Premier, probably at Toronto.

Jack Smith, an associate of Merrill, also plans to go with Merrill on flight with him from Toronto to Ottawa, Merrill said he didn't know of any such plan.

SLIGHT DECREASE IN ASPARAGUS PRICE

Asparagus noted a slight decrease in price this morning at the city market with pound bunches being offered at fifteen, twenty and twenty-five cents, a decline of five cents over the week-end price.

Potatoes held firm at three weeks and prices mainly pound lots being quoted at $1.75 and peck at thirty-cents. Rhubarb was plentiful and sold at five cents the bunch. Eggs were offered at twenty cents the dozen with farmer's butter quoted at two pounds for fifty-five cents.

Yellow Bantam seed corn, shelled was offered at fifteen cents the pound.

GOVERNMENT WHARF SCENE OF ACTIVITY

Government Wharf was a scene of activity last night, when the S. S. Coalhaven docked with a load of coal for the Schuster Co. Shortly after the Coalhaven's arrival the S. S. Acadiville eased into her berth laden with gasoline for the Imperial Oil Co. Both boats left for other ports upon discharge of their cargoes.

The S.S. Glen Allen will arrive on Sunday evening on her first trip of the season from Montreal to the Bay of Quinte ports and will continue on the service from that date onwards.

The water level at the Government Pier gauge was twelve inches higher than that of April 1st; Harbormaster Joseph Waddell stated today.

BEEKEEPERS MEET AT MOUNTAIN VIEW

Beekeepers of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties are looking forward to June 17th with interest, when the annual convention of the Beekeepers Association of Ontario will be held in Mountain View, Ont. Special speakers well versed in beekeeping lore, will address the convention which starts all day. Ladies of the Mountain View Women's Institute will cater to members of the convention.

BAY WATER LEVEL RISES THREE INCHES

Continued rise in levels of the Bay of Quinte has been noted by observers during the past few days, adding to this year's record high water marks. A rise of 3 inches, the rise of three inches has been recorded on the gauge placed by members of the Street Railway Bathing Club in the harbor.

BEACHES ASSOC'N. COMMITTEES TO MEET

Reports of sub-committees of the Bay of Quinte Beaches Association will be received from the various chairmen by the executive at the general meeting being held in the Y.M.C.A. this evening. Membership in the Association, which organized has been greatly increased lately by the purchasing ticket drive now on during the present campaign.

BELLEVILLE NETS $1,058.16 FROM BEVERAGE ROOMS

The Corporation of the City of Belleville has received a cheque from the Ontario Government for the sum of $1,058.16 being its share of the receipts from beverage rooms operated within the municipality during the period from April 1st, 1936 to March 31st, 1937.

TAMPERING WITH STEAM BOILER TO BE PROSECUTED

Evidently imbued with the idea of becoming "engineers" and quarry workers, youthful northside gangsters, who have been making their way to the north end city quarry under cover of darkness for the past few nights, opening draughts on the fire-banked steam boiler, turning steam and running grease cups, and other accessories from machinery will soon be the attention of local Provincial Police to whom the matter has been reported by officials of the public works department. Serious damage to valves or machinery may result from these pranks, it is reported.

PRACTICAL JOKERS ATTEMPT TO STARTLE WATERFRONT FOLK

The season is young yet, but already the waterfront practical jokers have declared an official opening of their summer's fun.

Moved to wonder by the sight of a strange apparition which bobbed lazily on the gentle waves of the Bay of Quinte early last evening, what appeared to be a ghastly sea-serpent form of marine life, a long, opaque-like serpent which protruded a green head, framed by staring eyes and long horn-like ears from the water was investigated by a local fisherman rowing slowly over to the spot. The specter was found to be nothing more than an empty gallon oil can, painted green, with tin ears soldered in place, and a long strip of canvas forming the trailing body. Eyes and ears were painted in contrasting colors of green, white and black.

During the latter part of last week an animated fish net, many yards long was observed to be moving in mysterious concentric circles in the harbor and was found to be an artificial fastened with a long length of fish line to a turtle whose shell had been drilled at the end to accommodate the tied string.

EX-SERVICE MEN ATTEND FUNERAL OF LATE LT-COL. BARRAGAR

Included among those who marched behind the funeral cortege of the late Lieut-Col. David Barragar on Saturday was a good representation of both active and ex-service men.

Wearing divisional berets and with medals flashing in the sun, they paid a last tribute to a gallant comrade, standing at attention while bugles sounded the "Last Post" and volleys were fired over the last resting place of a soldier and a friend.

COMBUSTION GIVEN AS CAUSE OF BLAZE

Spontaneous combustion is thought to be the origin of a small blaze which started in a pile of sawdust and shavings near the plant of the J. J. Cash Co. Ltd. Cutler Avenue shortly after ten o'clock last night. Thought to have been smouldering for days behind the wet surface covering of sawdust, the pile burst into flames, but the distance between the blaze and the factory proper prevented any property damage before the arrival of fire squads.

The chimney fires were the cause for fire alarms being sent in yesterday and today, calling blazes in the Doyle Block on Bridge street; and at the home of M. Parsons on Macdonald Avenue resulted in no damage being done.

NOVEL MANNER TO KEEP EVENT IN MIND

The Province of Saskatchewan has adopted a novel manner of keeping the fact that 1937 is coronation year in the public eye. Last night an automobile bearing a Saskatchewan license was parked on Front Street. On its markers were "Saskatchewan" the license number, and at the bottom the words "Coronation Year," in black and white.

TOURIST CAMP TO OPEN TONIGHT

Weather permitting the official opening of the city tourist camp on East Dundas Street will take place this evening with an open air concert by the Belleville Municipal Band, the first outdoor presentation of the season. Citizens of Belleville are invited to the opening of the newly remodelled Camp at which the city council and other civic officials will be guests.

Today workers who have been engaged in a thorough renovation of camp and buildings were adding the last touch while a large platform for the band has also been erected.

An invitation to Belleville residents to use the facilities of the camp this year for outdoor lunches free of charge will be given by Mayor Arnold. It is expected. Hot water will also be supplied free of charge, it was stated by Superintendent Vernon Orr.

CHAMBER ASKS GRANT INCREASE

E. V. Illsley, Spokesman For Large Delegation to City Council

A delegation from the Chamber of Commerce, which included Leo B. Riggs, president, and all executive officers of the Association appeared before the Council on Monday evening seeking a restoration of the grant from $300 a year to Industrial Commissioner J. O. Herity, which has of recent years been a matter of economy been reduced to $200 a year. Mr. E. V. Illsey, briefly referred the activities of the Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Commissioner's duties for the past fifteen years and pointed out what had been accomplished in securing industries for Belleville naming among others Stephens-Adamson, J. J. Cash, Canadian Optical, Corbin Lock and others, while credit was also given to the late R. J. Graham and others for the part which they had done in interesting the Ontario Corporation to locate in this city.

Mr. Illsey stated, that in spite of additional necessary economy the time had come, when more vigorous steps should be taken to acquire new industries and in consequence the grant should be restored to its former amount in order to assist the Commissioner to his solicitations.

Mr. Ackerman, Mr. Illsey and Mr. Ackerman also spoke endorsing the requests of the delegation which the delegation was favorably received by the council and Mayor Arnold promised that same consideration would be given to the request made by the Chamber of Commerce.

Opening Tourist Camp Set for This Evening

Barring rain, the citizens of Belleville are invited to visit the Belleville tourist Park this evening when the Belleville Band, with possible results of a decided scarcity of eggs and even chickens for cooking purposes.

They base their predictions on the fact that this spring many thousands less young chicks have been hatched in the province than orders have been placed for pullet chicks, and even now fryers are in demand that have been expected to be being raised for the market. And thousands of them have been killed off in order to avoid the cost of feeding them.

High cost of feed for baby chicks and chickens, low egg prices and prices for poultry this year have resulted in less attention being paid to chickens on the average farm, with the onus of raising and caring for them being placed in the hands of professional hatcherymen.

POLICE BLOTTER

Mystery surrounds the stealing of seed grains in Huntingdon Township of a recent date. Several hundred farmers have registered complaints to the Provincial Police regarding the theft of their seed grain. Today C. E. Ostwater, Plainfield, reported the theft of five bags of seed grain to Inspector Gardiner, O.P.P.

"Strange as it may seem I was ready to sow the seed today, if the weather had been suitable," complained Mr. Ostwater. In several other cases, those who had their seed potatoes, have been stolen the robberies were consummated during the night, previous to which the farmer losing the seed had intended to plant the same.

Local police have been confronted with a series of the finding of rear business house doors being left insecure of a recent date. Two more being reported in Belleville last night. No arrests were made in the city last night, leaving the cell block as the police station available for the accommodation of the 31 transients, who sought dry sleeping quarters.

MRS. MARY E. POWERS

After a lengthy illness Mrs. Mary E. Powers passed away at the Belleville General Hospital this Tuesday morning, May 18th.

The late Mrs. Powers was born near Napanee, Ont., her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John Powers. For many years she resided at Chicago, Ill., and it was her custom to spend each summer at Belleville. For the last three years, however, she had made her home here with her sister, Mrs. D. Hyland, Coleman street. By those who knew her here she was highly esteemed.

Surviving to mourn her loss are her sister, Mrs. D. Hyland, Belleville; one niece, Mrs. Alfred Draycott, Belleville; one nephew, Capt. Thomas Hyland, Belleville and a nephew and several nieces at Toronto.

The body of the late Mrs. Powers is resting at the Martin Funeral Home, Church street. The funeral announcement will be made later.

LATE FRED SULLIVAN

The funeral of Fred Sullivan, a former resident of Rawdon Township and Belleville, who died at Detroit, Mich., on May 12th, took place Monday afternoon, May 17th, from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home. Campbell street. Many friends gathered in the chapel at 2 o'clock for the service which was conducted by the Rev. R. E. Newman, pastor of Holloway Street United Church.

Interment was made in West Huntingdon Cemetery, the services at the graveside was conducted by the same minister.

The bearers were Messrs. C. L. Walters, W. A. Dolan, K. M. Dolan, C. McCormick, C. Pearsall and R. Sullivan.

WAREHAM HARRIS (Madoc)

Madoc, Ont., May 18.—(Special) —Following a lengthy illness, Wareham Harris, one of Madoc's most prominent residents passed away at his home here last night.

Born in Hazzard's Corners seventy-four years ago, the late Mr. Harris came to Madoc with his parents and after his retirement from active life on his farm some twenty years ago he still maintained a keen interest in poultry run at his home in Madoc.

Of a devout religious nature he devoted much of his time to the welfare and furtherance of his denomination. For years he was an elder of Trinity United Church in Madoc.

Surviving him besides his widow are two daughters, Mrs. William Hart, Madoc, and Mrs. J. E. Anglin of Peterborough, two brothers, Thomas of Madoc and George of Hazzard's Corners, and four grandchildren.

The funeral will be held from Trinity United Church here on Wednesday.

FRANK HORTON (North Wales)

The Rev. Fred Horton, of Foxboro, Ont., has received word of the sudden death of his brother, Frank Horton, which occurred at his home in North Wales, on Monday, May 10th, in his 62rd year. He was born in England, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Horton of Moriton. He was a member of the Methodist church. For many years he was a bank manager and retired one year ago.

Surviving him are his widow; two daughters; one sister, Mrs. F. Burrough, England; three brothers, Mr. Arthur Horton and Mr. Walter Horton, both of England, and the Rev. Fred Horton of Foxboro, Ont. The latter will receive the sympathy of his many friends in his bereavement.

MRS. (GLADYS) NETTIE I. IVERS

Mrs. (Gladys) Nettie Irene Ivers, wife of Mr. Lewis John Ivers, 274 Bridge Street East, Belleville, passed away at Belleville General Hospital, this Tuesday morning, May 18th, after a short illness, and to many friends her passing will bring deep feelings of regret.

The late Mrs. Ivers, who was in her 46th year, was born at Belleville, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bukard. All her life was spent in this city and by all who knew her she was most highly regarded. In religion she was a member of the Church of England and fraternally she is a former Past President of the Pride of Belleville Lodge No. 57, Daughters of England and a charter member and Past Regent of Women of The Moose.

Surviving to mourn her loss are her husband, Mr. L. J. Ivers; one daughter, Margaret, at home; two brothers, Mr. Charles Bukard, Toronto, Ont., and Mr. Walter Bukard, Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

King Honorary Member Of Artillery Company

Boston, May 18 (AP)—King George VI. last night became an honorary member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, 300-year-old military society.

He was formally elected to membership after his willingness to accept was announced at the meeting assembled in historic Faneuil Hall. Governor Leverett Saltonstall, honorary member of the society, for the first time in its history, received from Britain's royal family. The Duke of Windsor was elected to membership while he was King and that membership remains in force.

Prince Albert, consort of Queen Victoria, was the first of the Royal Family to accept honorary membership in the Ancients and each succeeding generation has furnished other members.

LIFE SAVED BY "PROTONSIL"

Lethal Agent Against Nearly All Forms of Streptococci

London, Ont., May 18 (CP)—A vial of ruby-red dye liquid was credited with saving the life of Constable Dick of Constable Dick McGillstrum's arm and possibly saving his life when streptococci infection developed after a minor thumb injury.

The liquid, a rare chemical known as "Protonsil," was developed by Imperial Chemical Industries, London. Dye Trust and has been found to be a lethal agent against nearly all forms of streptococci.

McGillstrum was taken to hospital here when blood poisoning infection spreading rapidly up his arm. He had received an abscess in his thumb and doctors believed a brass shaving had got under the skin, permitting entry of the germ into the blood-stream.

Protonsil was administered immediately at the hospital but authorities there had no idea the treatment would save the constable's arm. Within eight hours the infection had spread from thumb to shoulder. However, so effective was the Protonsil treatment McGillstrum was able to return to his home yesterday.

U. S. JURIST TO LEAVE BENCH

Associate Justice Willis Van Devanter to Retire at 78

By JOHN T. SUTER

Associated Press Staff Writer

(Copyright 1937 by the Asso. Press)

Washington, May 18.—Associate Justice Willis Van Devanter informed President Roosevelt today that he would retire from active services on the United States Supreme Court Bench on June 2.

The 78-year-old jurist, known as a leader of the conservative wing of the court, made his resignation effective at the end of President shortly before the Senate Judiciary Committee voted to vote on Mr. Roosevelt's court reorganization bill.

The chief executive's demand for "new blood" on the court has created a furore unprecedented in recency.

Simultaneously, officials rested with high authority said there probably would be no more resignations from the court this year. But others said that before the beginning of the fall term of the court in October, Justice Sutherland might take advantage of the retirement law.

Four other justices are eligible for retirement—Chief Justice Hughes, and Associate Justices McReynolds, Brandeis and Stone.

Van Devanter wrote this letter to Mr. Roosevelt:

"Dear Mr. President:

"Having held my commission as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States and served in that capacity for ten years, and having come to be seventy-eight years of age, I desire to avail myself of the rights, privileges and judicial services specified in the act of June 7, 1937, entitled 'An act to provide for retirement of Justices of the Supreme Court,' and to that end I hereby retire from regular active service on the bench—the retirement to be effective on and after the second day of June, 1937, that being the day next following the adjournment of the present term of the court.

"I have the honor to remain,

"Very respectfully yours,

SOLDIER'S THREAT TO KILL INSTRUCTRESS PROBED BY POLICE

Paris, May 18 (CP-Havas) — A threat by a soldier to kill Letitia Toureaux, Italian dancing instructress, if she were unfaithful to him was the clue police sought to follow up today in the strange "case of the Paris subway."

The dancer died in a first-class subway car at the Porte Dorse Station Sunday night with a clasp-knife buried to the hilt in her neck. She was believed to have had many male friends among them an unidentified soldier.

"If you don't stay faithful to me, the soldier is alleged to have threatened her, "I will kill you." Police were as yet unable to identify the soldier or confirm the threat.

Another theory advanced by newspapers was the dancer had been killed by a madman. The murderer apparently followed his victim into the train at the Porte Charenton terminal, stabbed her without warning and fled before the train left for the Porte Dorse station.

Huddled On Floor.

When the train stopped at Porte Dorse,the car was empty except for the body huddled on the floor.

Police established that Mme. Toureaux, 30-year-old divorcee, was accompanied when she boarded a bus outside a dance hall in the Charenton district Sunday night and drove to the subway. She went into the station alone.

This did not exclude the possibility the assassin was following her. The dancer—whose small apartment revealed letters showing she was involved in several love affairs—died without recovering consciousness.

She was dying when the train, grinding to a halt in the Porte Dorse station pitched her body from the bench to the floor. The knife imbedded in her neck a few inches behind the right ear.

Belief prevailed the killer did not have time to withdraw the knife before rushing out of the doors at the previous station and entering another car to mingle with passengers.

Several persons waiting for the train at the Porte Dorse saw the elegantly-garbed woman slip from the bench.

C. N. R. BLAMED FOR ACCIDENT

Jury Finds Company Did Not Take Proper Precautions

Springhill, N.S., May 18 (CP)—A coroner's jury inquiring into death of Engineer Charles Baiser of Moncton, N.B., driver of the crack Canadian National Railways "Ocean Limited" May 5 when the express crashed into a string of runaway cars, found the company had not taken proper precautions."

The verdict read the jury wished to "exonerate the crew of the shunting train from any blame in this accident" and found "The Canadian National Railways have not taken proper precautions in the past to prevent this accident taking place."

The crash took six lives.

Evidence at the inquiry last night before the jury retired for two hours to bring in the decision concerning the crew of the shunting train was that the railway did not have a derailing switch as a safety appliance, at the point of the runaway, near Springhill Junction, and a derailer would have prevented the crash.

The crash occurred when a string of nine loaded coal cars swept down a steep grade west of the Junction on the main line and towards the speeding "Ocean Limited."

AT THE BELLE

Bright Comedy of Spring is

"Call It A Day" Film

With one of the finest all-around casts that has been assembled in a' long time, "Call It a Day", the Cosmopolitan production adapted from the successful long-run stage hit of London and Broadway, comes in picture form today to the Belle Theatre, for two days, matinee daily.

It is a delightful comedy-drama based upon the sentimental experiences of all the members of an English suburban family when the first day of spring sets them wandering along love-paths.

Lovely Olivia DeHaviland last seen at the Belle as the heroine of "The Charge of The Light Brigade", is to be seen as the daughter of the family, big, good-looking Ann Hunter and Frieda Inescort, noted London and Broadway actress are her parents.

Then there are Anita Louise, Roland Young, Peggy Wood, Benita Granville and half a dozen others who become involved in the atmosphere of romance.

There is brilliant dialogue, plenty of laughs, and some moments of the deepest and tenderest sentiment, it is promised.

With elaborate settings of the country suburban home and countryside, the picture was produced on a lavish and beautiful scale.

Archie Mayo directed "Call It a Day", from a screen play by Casey Robinson, adapted from Dodie Smith's stage production. The film piece ran a couple of years in London and over a year on Broadway.

Hindenburg Disaster

The first actual scenes of "The Hindenburg disaster" remarkable "on the spot" pictures taken by Metrotone News ace cameramen are announced for exhibition on the same program with a special added multiple-reel screen treat "The Romance of Robert Burns", produced all - in full beautiful Technicolor.

With such a splendid program announced for exhibition today and Wednesday, no doubt the popular Belle Theatre will be favored with large patronage.

Performances start daily at 2:30; 7:10 and 9:10. The feature attraction "Call It a Day" begins at 3:00; 7:00 and 9:45 P.M.

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows was standing in front of our house arguying about different subjects such as if it would be against the law to have a sit-down strike in school for more recesses and longer vacation, and Reddy Merry came up in back of me saying, Hello Benny, how's bumps?

And he gave me a quick bump with his knee some place, me saying, Hay, what's you think you're doing, cut that out.

What for, give me 3 good reasons, Reddy said, and I said, Well just do it again and I'll give you a reason all right.

Sure, with pleasure, Reddy said.

And he did it again, saying, Anything to oblige a old friend, and I said, Hay, you do that once more go ahead and do it once more.

Which he did, saying, Are you satisfied? and I said, No I'm not, do it again, just you do it again.

With he did, even harder, saying, Well what's you going to do about it?

Did you see that, fellows? said. He did it every time I told him to, because he was scared not to, I guess he knows who's boss, I said.

Hay, look a here, Reddy Merry said, only by that time I was in my house and banging the door shut, and I pleeked out through the front window and Reddy was still looking as if he didn't know how to look, the general effect being mad.

Proving it's possible to win by diplomacy even if your side is the weakest.

MILLIONS ARE THINKING

The British Coronation has set many millions thinking about the spiritual significance of all rule and power and service to the state. The stress which the ceremony which dates back to the eighth or ninth centuries in portions of the service gives to the religious aspect almost entirely has pointed a lesson for the world. Even in the greatest of states, not sufficient stress is placed upon the moral aspect of all offices and services.

The world should thank Britain for preserving this noble ceremony. Though it brings back aspects of the coronations of kings in old Saxon days in England as in the "recognition," and though it points with apt symbols to the knightly quality of the warrior kings of old, the eternal aspect is stressed.

One would look to see now a greater stress on the things behind all human action. As neither His Majesty King George nor his peoples could pass through that service wherein rulers and rule are consecrated to high united service, so one would look to see a strengthening of the principle of rule with God as the source of all that is noblest and truest.

From the United States comes a declaration of Rev. J. Mohlmaker of First Presbyterian Church, New York, that he would rather rub his forehead in the dust before King George VI than say one salute to a dictator and had rather wave the flag for King Christian than once salute a dictator. Even if a king is looked upon as merely a symbol, he can, if he is a good king, set the tempo of a nation and establish his fame by always acting for his subjects. More can be said for kings than for dictators, for the tradition of kingship is that of kingly rule by the word of God. Today there can be no such thing as a dependable government that exists with no idea of God behind it. Jesus can be termed the Prince of Kings. He set the pattern for every king throughout the ages, and only to those whose primary concern was for the happiness of their people came lasting fame. The same moral holds today."

This opinion is no isolated one in the United States, the greatest of modern republics.

To Britishers the kingship is not only a symbol but it is one of the greatest facts—the spirit of unity which binds the nations of the Empire. Then too the King is a personality greater than any symbol in his capacity for good. The personality is the greatest aspect of Kingly rule. It is divine as all human personality is divine.

In standing by her coronation rites, Britain has shown how effective today in a disintegrating world, where modern thought has run amok with a devastating hand, the peoples which stand by the tried and true of the past weather the transition period.

The time, the age, the pulse of the world were such that no more opportune occasion ever saw such a demonstration of the power ideals. On the one hand a blatant world boasting its materialism and selfishness and narrowness of racial conceptions and on the other hand, the greatest of Empires acknowledging the spirit.

700,000 BECOME LITERATE

Seven hundred thousand persons have been taught to read and write during the past four years and illiteracy in the United States has been reduced at least one-sixth through the programs of the federal relief administration, it is stated.

What this means to the nation is intensely interesting in this economic age, when power to earn counts. It cost twenty million dollars to educate these illiterate but it is estimated that a literate person earns at least fifty cents a day more than an illiterate one, so there is an estimated increase on annual wage earnings of these people of $100,000,000.

This question of literacy is one of the great problems of educators and statesmen. It was estimated in 1930 there were 4,250,000 adult illiterates in the United States and at least as many more "functionally illiterate" unable to use their limited knowledge of reading for any practical benefit and unknown millions "so handicapped by meager education backgrounds that they are unequipped to perform the duties of responsible citizens. "In this class of underprivileged, says H. L. Hopkins, W P A administrator, are many whose children are handicapped "in school because of the intellectual poverty of their homes; unnecessary sickness is prevalent among them, and even in good times their earnings are far below a decent standard of living. Without the ability to read and write, these people are cut off from every means of assistance which depends upon the printed word and upon widespread dissemination of reliable information among the masses of the people."

With such figures one can realize the importance of training nearly three quarters of a million persons to read and write.

AFRICA IS CALLING AND OSA JOHNSON IS GOING BACK. Folks who have been following with interest in books and motion pictures the adventures of Osa Johnson and her husband, Martin Johnson, who died recently of injuries received in an airplane accident in California, will be more than interested in news that the intrepid lady explorer will shortly return to her beloved Africa. A despatch from Los Angeles states that Mrs. Johnson will head an expedition into Darkest Africa, accompanie bdy Director Otto Power and ten camera men to film scenes in the jungle land blended as background with "Stanley and Livingston", a screen play which Twentieth Century-Fox purposes making at an estimated cost of $1,500,000. Dr. David Livingstone, the Scotch missionary, who labored so long and effectively in Africa, and answered with his life for his zeal, was the objective of one of the first monumental newspaper stunts of which the United States is famous. Dr. Livingstone had penetrated far into the heart of Africa and for many months no news had come out about him. James Gordon Bennett, publisher of the New York Herald, engaged Henry Stanley, noted explorer, to search for the missing man. An elaborate expedition was fitted out and Stanley journeyed up the Congo through many hardships and adventures before he finally located Dr. Livingstone, who was ill and being cared for by the natives who worshipped him. Stanley's search, carried out at great expense, was a success. He found David Livingstone and David Livingstone wasn't lost, and wasn't keen to be rescued—so Stanley returned to the coast without Livingstone, but he got a good story and the newspaper accumulated a lot of good will and increased circulation. Now the story of Livingstone and Stanley is to be recreated and recorded in celluloid with sound effects, and who better than Osa Johnson with her knowledge of Africa from land and air to direct the undertaking.

At the Pimlico track, Baltimore, a week later, the same two horses fought it out over the mile and sixteenth route and "War Admiral" was again winner, but only by a head. Thus was "War Admiral" proved the best position in both races, while Pompoon was far outside in both races followers of the "ponies" believe that nothing short of a match race will settle supremacy as between these two gallant steeds.

Stray Bits

It was a drab alley cat with the nondescript markings of grimy white and dirty black, picking a precarious living from the garbage cans lining Front Street and eyeing apprehensively in aggrophobiac fear late evening pedestrians who meandered slowly homeward bound. Traffic was light, marked only by the appearance of an occasional car which sped briefly and disappeared, and the cat started from the shelter of its alley mouth, ever ready to look and listen for the slightest sign of the men as they sat on the curb benches.

Snakes swallow frogs with the greatest of ease; if disturbed in the act or soon after they will regurgitate the croaker, generally unharmed. In swallowing other prey they display less sense as witness the numerous times they have been found with the spines of a mudpout penetrating their throat. One was exhibited by Eddie Thomas last summer after being captured in the Trent River, a dead mudcat in its throat, sharp spines protruding on each side of the neck.

Snakes on the land were once fishes it has been said. The common lake gull can and does swallow unnumbered fish in the course of a day. Perch six inches long have been observed sliding down the gullet of a gull. Occasionally one is hooked in local waters after having been caught on the line being freed from some trolling fisherman's boat. Lake trout, pickerel, muskellunge and pike will bolt at times, will tie two fish on the end of a fish line and then try the bait to the swooping gulls. Two of them will pull the fish out of each fisher's throat, but usually the bird is roughly exhausted.

Still, against out local naturalists can produce some specie which are proverbially improvident. A loon, one of the best water birds known, will let its brood manage its own escape from danger until the chicks are exhausted. But when real danger impends, when the hook and line sinker under a capable wing and take the long, long dives that mean safety. A mud hen twenty-five feet distant will disappear invisibly while you gape at it.

Waterfront observers of the city will swear that red squirrels and chipmunks at times come from Prince Edward County to the north shore of the bay by swimming. Actually one or more of the animals are sighted or discovered in the middle of the bay, making brave progress. A squirrel is a good swimmer until his bushy tail gets wet and drag him down. Wild ducks in locomotive trains, headed northward arranging to have two or three of their flock fly into the air from the train with much noise and action, leading observers to believe they had stirred up the whole flock to flight. But other mother ducks sit tight on their nests, concealed and undisturbed. Mink will steal fish from under the fisherman's nose; bears do kill cattle and partridge with the young have been known to attack men. The latter swallow will quit the hungriest cat to flight; there are farms in this district where the keeper of the barn must wear a stick when entering the ban run or get a pitch fork. Bees and hornets' roosters who dispute the entry. Carp can be easily tamed and district fishermen who regard them the brainiest of all fish have repeatedly observed the location of a pile of corn which they might happen to encounter, with gills closed tight to the sides of the pile, yet when spawning they become easy prey in the hands of poachers by congregating in their hundreds, often being trapped in shallow pools. Skunks easily decoderized, can be made the most attractive and usefully intelligent of all pets, and a handful of ferrous sulphate is declared to make the most tractable horse wholly unmanageable. Do fish really learn and remember the lesson of being caught on a hook and line? Chas. Jessop, one of a party from this city who spent the week-end pickerel fishing down the bay and caught the same bass no less than three times within the space of a few minutes. Carefully unhooking and liberating it, Chas. put the water again each time, the fish which was readily identified by the deep scar of an old wound, managed to get caught again repeatedly until it was thrown into the stern of the canoe from the opposite side of the boat.

Homes on Wheels

At their recent convention in Sarasota, Fla., the covered wagon nomads, otherwise known as trailer owners, gave thanks for a carefree life. Travel home had to be paid for gasoline and registration. Rent? Though the day when a farmer swung open the gate and charged nothing except for the vegetables and milk that he counted on selling are over, a dollar a week is not begrudged to an enlightened camper. Within supplies for that pittance a lot, tap water, electricity, police to keep the revelers quiet, recreation halls, a sewage system and sanitary ways to dispose of garbage. In fact the gasoline sprays, pays less than any other citizen in these tax-burden United States.

With at least four hundred manufacturers making trailers and possibly as many as 500,000 persons living a wayside life, the prophet predicts that in another generation half the house in the country will be mounted on wheels. Mr. John E. Burchard, who has made cheap housing his special study, holds in his Technology Review that all this is moonshine. Also that the day of trailers is past. Latest estate owners are already protesting against the trailer colony's development on land values. Communities are asking themselves how to make trailer owners pay more than the meter rate for such schooling as wanderers' children ought to have, not to mention hospital and sanitary service. Proprietors of tourist camps are frankly resentful at the tendency of the nomads most welcomed by their trade. Only tradesmen and department stores are pleased; for the nomads must buy food and replenish utensils and clothes.

These more obvious social effects seem less important to Mr. Burchard than the new influence on housing. The trailer may be ill-adapted to the blizzards of the North, the blazing heat of the South and the needs of a family with several children, yet it does teach efficiency. If in a single room it is possible to pack away electric refrigerators, kinks, tables, chairs and the assortment of housekeeping, it seems clear that we who live in permanent homes have much to learn. Stout, the airplane designer, has even gone so far as to design a house-trailer. You pull the thing out like an accordion when you pitch your tent and open out the sides like an umbrella. Why not? When the automobile is reached for trailers, manufacturers may turn to permanent collapsible homes. There is even the possibility that whole rooms will be delivered on wheels, connected in a hollow square to form a neat patio, whereupon the wheels will be taken away to leave on the ground a house that can be passed on to the next generation. Basements, halls, second stories will belong to the past. Built-in furniture, sinks and bathtubs will take the place of the kind we have now. Windows will be made of one-car type. Instead of brick, plaster and concrete, there will be pressed plastics and metals. In a word, to Mr. Burchard the cheap prefabricated house is going to restore our eyes. And that is why he is far more important than the owners of land that prophesy mischief may cause.

—New York Times

The University Student

One of the problems of the university is the students who ought not to be there. There never seems to be any lack of supply. As each institution each new term there is a certain proportion which the faculty finds lacking either too high, of youths and girls who are sent to the university because their goolings are cypsels who will degenerate into mediocrity and even the young people themselves want to go for several reasons. Most often are good material and conscientious, but others want to go because their friends are going and because they want to get away from their mother's apron strings for a few years; because they think they can have a good time, or because they are not anxious to settle down to the serious business of earning a living. Such people are a bit of a faculty, and some fall completely, while others only struggle through after considerable trouble.

Columbia University has taken steps to reduce the number of unwanted students and the example will no doubt be followed by other colleges. Those seeking admission next term will have two methods of satisfying the authorities that the privilege—for such it is—should be granted. These are called the "old and the "new" methods, but whichever one is chosen the test will be found equally hard. The "old" is chiefly a higher standard of entrance requirements. The "new" plan requires entrance rating, but the student will be called the Thorndyke Intelligence Tests. No student will be accepted who did not rate in the upper half of the high-school class.

Obviously a university is an expensive thing, and the institutions are put to great expense providing for the unsuitable students. With government grants reduced there cannot afford to establish faculties for those who have not the mental capacity to absorb what they are taught. If the youth are rejected from the grading device without getting in at all, that is also an advantage to themselves and to their parents, because in some time and energy looking for jobs right away. It may also prevent them from having high ideals of white-collar occupations when they are more fitted for manual workmanship. —St. Thomas Times-Journal.

I'M A MACHINIST

"With a wife and family to support, I couldn't save $6,000 in a hundred years. But I've just found a plan that makes me worth that much to my family. It's the North American Life Preferred Policy. If anything happens to me, they'll get $50 a month for 10 years—long enough for the kids to get a start at earning their own living."

"And there's something in it for me too—an income for the rest of my life when I'm 65—and dividends every year on this redeposited plan."

The Romance of Rubber Is Unfolded to the Rotarians

When the Rubber Kings Turned to Coffee, and the Coffee Kings Turned to Rubber—How Brazil Lost The Rubber Industry Supremacy to Ceylon and in Return, Took Coffee Supremacy Away From Ceylon —Leader in Rubber Manufacture Industry Tells Interesting Story.

Belleville Rotarians learned many facts about the rubber industry which they did not know before at regular meeting Monday. The guest speaker was William H. Fuller, vice-president of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., Limited, Hamilton, Ontario, whose subject was "The Romance of Rubber". The speaker was introduced by F. Tansley, Bank of Commerce local manager, and Rotary appreciation was expressed by Kevin Thurman, ex-M.P. Incidentally it might be mentioned that Mr. Thurman was related to the late Brig-Gen. Fred Purston, of the United States army, famous as "Fighting Fred", noted for his courage in "fighting yellow fever and yellow people".

There seems to be much more to rubber than meets the eye and the speaker seemed to be familiar with every phase of this interesting industry, there being 43,000 different articles made from rubber. Going away back to the time of Columbus in 1492, and that doughty explorer's discovery of the "Weeping Tree" near the mouth of the Amazon in Brazil—the rubber tree, in whose juice the rich and milky sap flowing when wounded gave the impression to Columbus of weeping, the speaker slowly unravelled the romance of rubber.

Brazil's monopoly of the rubber trade for many years was sketched and the improved methods for collecting and treating rubber, from the tree to the rubber factory. An Englishman, Henry Wickham, succeeded in smuggling seeds from the rubber tree out of Brazil despite a government mandate forbidding export of seeds or saplings, and these were planted in Kew Gardens, London. Although fully protected, Disraeli, British Premier, recognized the value of the rubber industry, and transplanted saplings from Kew Gardens to Ceylon, destined to be the seat of the greatest rubber producing industry the world knows.

Rubber and Coffee Exchange.

Ceylon, formerly producing 50 per cent. of the coffee of the world, but took the supremacy of the rubber industry away from Brazil, and Brazil in turn took the supremacy of the coffee industry away from Ceylon. Brazil now produces 86 per cent. of all the coffee used in the world while Ceylon produces over 90 per cent. of the rubber used in the world. Strange as it may seem, early Spanish explorers, were among the first to come under the spell of rubber, and found the natives playing a game resembling modern soccer football, using a sphere which was light and bounced along the ground.

Brazil grew wealthy and insolent from the rubber industry and it is said that the city of Manaos, situated at the head waters of the Amazon, headquarters for the great immense rubber trade, was one of the most amazing cities the world ever saw with great wealth and perfect native poverty rubbing elbows in the streets. Rubber was selling for three dollars a pound and produced by natives, practically slave labor, the profits being enormous. Manaos boasted an opera house erected at a cost of two million dollars, giving an idea of the prodigality of the times, and the great expense of importing talent from Europe, so that the great operas could be sung in sight and hearing of the great jungles of this mysterious land.

Rubber in the War.

Another interesting fact related by the speaker concerned Germany's preparation for the great war, in which everything was prepared for except a suitable stock of rubber, the lack of which during the war was one of the strongest reasons for the defeat of the Kaiser's well laid plans. Verdun, bathed in blood and misery, but defiant of the onrushing German war machine until the last was relieved by the transportation of 190,000 troops, and 22,000 tons of ammunition on rubber tired motor vehicles in nine days, showing the importance of rubber in war as well as peace.

Rubber Smuggled Undersea.

The German submarine Deutschland's visits to Baltimore during the war were for the sole purpose of acquiring rubber, and this sub transported fifteen carloads of rubber back to Germany taking 22 days to make the trip in safety.

Great Britain notified the United States while that country was still neutral that any effort to supply Germany with rubber during the war would result in the supply of rubber being cut off entirely from the United States, Great Britain controlling the rubber supply of the world. Just another mistake the Kaiser made in his "Ma and Gott" plans.

The great rubber speculation period in England and the crash that followed was briefly sketched by the speaker, and many other ...ating facts cited of this very interesting industry, and speaking for the trade as a rubber manufacturer Mr. Purston said that the great endeavor of the trade is and always will be to promote safer transportation, and thereby excellent articles of commerce for the householder, citizen, and tradesman.

In Canada $65,000,000 represents the capital invested in the rubber industry, with annual output of $45,-000,000, and 13,000 employees.

Farmers' Day.

Rotary honored the agricultural industry by designating this meeting "farmers' day" and each member had as guest, one or more farmer friends. Those who did not bring a farmer guest were fined fifty cents (for the crippled children's fund).

Among the guests from a distance was Russel T. Kelley of Hamilton a Rotarian of many years' standing and a record of twenty-two years 100 per cent. Rotary attendance.

Also at the meeting Rotary tribute was paid the memory of Col. David Sarnoff, Rotarian, who died recently, the members standing in silence for one minute with bowed heads.

Three new Rotarians were introduced to the club, Howard Clark, Harry Walker and Jack Deacon.

Harold Sanders, chairman of the recent drive for funds for the care and cure of crippled children, brought the publication of a Rotary Edition of the Ontario Intelligencer, made his financial report showing very gratifying sum derived therefrom.

Hands Across the Sea.

In view of the fact that next Monday is a holiday and no meeting will be held that day Godspeeds and good wishes were extended Alfred Baird of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Belleville, who leaves shortly for Europe upon an extended trip and will represent Belleville Rotary Club at the International Rotary convention at Nice, France in June. Mr. Baird will visit most of the European countries as well as North Italy before his return, and will collect information in regard to insect life overseas and methods developed for dealing with the various insect menaces over there.

NO INDUCTION CEREMONY HELD

Officers of Y's Men's Club Elected in Body For Second Term

Due to the fact the entire previous year's executive of the Belleville Y's Men's Club was returned to office for a second term by the unanimous vote of the club members at the annual election of officers, no induction ceremony was needed for the start evening. Y'sman Newton Thompson, chief inducting officer and Past President of Y's Men's International, spoke briefly on the subject and like many of the members in the past necessary to hold the annual induction ceremony under the auspices of which prevailed President Jack Wilson and the whole executive was returned to office for a second term. It marked the first time in the history of the club that a full ninety per cent of the previous years officers were returned to office simultaneously.

When the local Y's Men's Club convened last evening it being their annual Induction Night and the second in the club's history, following summer vacation, the Belleville Y's Men's Club voted to assist the Belleville Beaches Association to the extent of providing a floral or landscape section and thereby maintaining this particular section of the beaches association's park project and adding to the beauty of the city at large. Whether the Y's Men's Club sponsor a float or prize, or a landscape plot will be left in the hands of the floral committee, however.

President Jack Wilson personally thanked the Y's Men for their assistance in making the past term of office such a pleasant one. President Wilson stressed the need of the club making a report showed a better balance than in some years past.

The officers of the Belleville Y's Men's Club for 1937-38 will be:—President—Jack Wilson; 1st Vice-President—Alex Weir; Secretary—Lorne McDougall; Treasurer—Harry Peter; Directors—Herb Mulr, Harold Vaughan, R. B. Morden, Dawson Boyd and J. W. Shortt.

WET PAVEMENT ACCIDENT CAUSE

Automobiles Crash at Intersection of Bridge St. and Dufferin Ave.

Wet slippery pavements, due to continued rains, were attributed the cause of a motor accident that happened at the intersection of Bridge Street and Dufferin Ave., at noon yesterday. According to Detective Fred Lant who investigated. Mr. Guy E. Smith, Port Hope, was proceeding north on Dufferin Ave., and as he approached the Bridge Street intersection, Smith applied the brakes of his car to observe the stop sign, but the momentum of the vehicle caused it to skid forward and halfway across the intersection, when Mr. Smith's car struck another west bound car being driven on Bridge Street by Joe Weymark of this city. The force of the impact forced Mr. Weymark's car into the south-west ditch, where it collided with a large tree. The damage reported to Mr. Weymark's car will amount to over $300.00 while at least $50.00 worth of damage was done to Mr. Smith's vehicle. No person sustained serious injuries in the accident.

NEGOTIATES TREATY

A treaty between Germany, Great Britain, France and Belgium which would guarantee peace for 25 years is reported to be the proposal of Adolf Hitler following a conference at London during the coronation ceremonies between Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Lieut.-General Werner von Blomberg (ABOVE), German minister of war. The treaty would pledge the four nations to mutual defence and would also contract the countries not to attack each other.

Our Success Means Other People's Welfare

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

The Ocronation tea held at the home of Mrs. Pitcairn MacDonald on Thursday, May 13th for the W.A. of Shannonville United Church was a decided success, both socially and financially.

The hostess welcomed each arrival and was untiring in her efforts for the comfort and enjoyment of all. The dining room was tastefully decorated in the coronation colors and pictures of the King and Queen hung on the walls. The late covered tables were centred with lovely bouquets of red and white flowers. White, red and blue candles glowed in gold candelebra at the long table where Mrs. (Rev.) Clark and Mrs. Charlie Keir poured tea. Mrs. Sam Elliott, the president, was kept busy dutting the teas. The waitresses were caps of red, white and blue and gave very efficient service. Among those in attendance was Mrs. Elmer Coyle of Colborne, who motored down accompanied by some lady friends to enjoy the tea. Over twenty-six dollars were taken in. Mrs. Claude Clarke, secretary-treasurer, was in charge of the tea. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. MacDonald for the use of her home and the W.A. ladies were much pleased that their tea was so well attended and so successful.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Refinement of Merrivel Jones.

By Nelson S. Bond

"You want to buy a horse?"

Merrivel Jones, despite the fact that he felt his announcement to be both reasonable and logical, reddened. To the two older men seated behind the desk he might just as well have said that he wanted to buy an elephant or a giraffe.

Their horrified faces at Merry ton thinking how the fish his lawyers, James and "Aaron Ritiner, looked.

"Yes—a race horse" he insisted. "Now listen. I'll start from the beginning again. I'm broke. I need money. My next allowance isn't due until next month. I have a three day option on the privilege of buying in a pair of Rye Ridge horse slated for the Sweepstakes next Tuesday. I want an advance of $1,000 on my allowance until after the race. When Rye High comes in you'll get your money refunded—my money back."

Aaron Ritiner cleared his throat "Er—umm!" he said. "As I understand it, Merrivel, this money is to be used for gambling?"

"It isn't gambling." Merryvel corrected carefully. "It's a sure thing. Rye High is a pushover for the race—and I have a chance to get in at ground floor."

Mr. Ritiner placed his finger tips together ecclesiastically. "As you no doubt recall, one of the provisions of our execution of your late father's estate was that we were to do everything within our power to break you of what your father considered to be a lamentable habit of wagering. To curb this, he imposed certain restrictions upon our administration of your income.

"I think both James and I can understand how you feel about this, Merrivel, but we fear we are unable to advance any such sum as you mention on a matter subject to the laws of chance. Therefore, Merrivel, I fear our answer must be negative."

After the door had banged behind him, the two partners regarded each other silently. Aaron Ritiner stroked a long "Lincoln" beard thoughtfully.

"You know, James," he said, "something should be done about that young man. His natural inclinations are entirely too frivolous. Perhaps it would be well to strive to inculcate in your Merrivel something of the culture and refinement that was his father's. But how can we accomplish this?"

James' immobile face registered silent accord with his partner's thoughts.

"I have it!" exclaimed Aaron at length. "The secret of the success of the older James lay in his intense devotion to literature. All his life he was a great reader. His library is a veritable storehouse of knowledge and inspiration. Young Merrivel on the other hand probably has never read more than the minimum required on the school lists. Tomorrow—tomorrow James, I will have the library of the late Mr. Jones delivered to Merrivel's apartment, accompanied by a personal letter. What do you think James?"

The secretary entered. "Ah! Miss Evans," said Aaron Ritiner. "I want you to take a note to Mr. Merrivel Jones, Jr.

"Dear Merrivel: These were your father's best friends and executors' allies. Each is in fact a veritable treasure trove. We regret your recent disappointment, but trust that stirring into these may serve to assuage in part, the disappointment that we felt it necessary to make. With kindest personal regards . . .

"That is all Miss Evans."

Two weeks later Aaron Ritiner, looking his way cautiously through down-town traffic, collided sharply with another pedestrian. It was Merrivel Jones.

"Oh, I say Mr. Ritiner," grinned the young man picking up the lawyer's umbrella and restoring it to him. "I'm sorry! I guess I didn't notice where I was going. You see, I'm in rather a hurry."

"Apologies are unnecessary, Merrivel," replied Mr. Ritiner genially. "It was the fault of both. You received my letter?"

The young man stopped and smiled broadly. "I should say so!" he said. "And I must say it was swell of you. You're a good egg, Mr. Ritiner!"

Aaron Ritiner stared. No one had called him a good egg for over thirty years. "Thank you Merrivel" he said. "I try to do what I feel is best. I presume then, that at last you are 'learning to value of the better things?"

Merrivel's face grew crimson. "I'll say so" he chuckled. "You sure are a sly old dog," he added digging the older man in the ribs. "I'll have to kid dad tight-mouthed brother of yours along I guess, don't you? Well, your letter gave me the hint!"

"The hint?" A dismal note of fore-boding shrunk in the lawyer's voice.

"Yes . . . you know . . ." Merry was edging away impatiently. "About those books being a very valuable treasure trove? They were. Practically all first editions. I got them translated. Then—thought to get in on Rye High and lay some on the side. See you're home Tuesday for a $30,000 dollar purse at 7 to 2. Gotta go now. . . . So long . . . and thanks!"

Big Business In Sport

Major league base ball club owners annually invest huge sums in new material all a gamble.

Where a club pays $50,000 or $75,000 for a minor league star it gets no guarantee. In addition to the ever-present risk of personal injury there is the chance that the promising youth will flop when called on to perform before big league crowds. There are any number of high priced rookies who have come up to the majors with brilliant records only to fail.

The business of purchasing thoroughbred yearlings for racing purposes is, perhaps an even greater gamble. The prospective thoroughbred burns a little more than the yearling's blood strain to guide him. Often that is enough. Race records show that the three year-olds which brought top prices at sales did nothing to repay their new owners.

NEW BROOM FAILS

New Broom went for $75,000 as a as a yearling and then amounted to little on the track. Hastily at cost $70,000. No one would remember Hastile On today has he not brought the second highest price on record. He never faced a barrier. Broadway Limited as a yearling brought $65,000. As a 2-year-old he started a few races without showing and speed and, before his ter. owner could get back any of his money, the colt dropped dead on the track.

Mr. Ethel V. Mars of Milky Way Farms did well by picking yearlings at the Saratoga Sales in 1935. Her purchases that summer were largely responsible for the $305,450 Milky Way Stables won to top all other stables for 1936. Last summer Mrs. Mars again invested heavily She paid the top price, $18,000, in two instalnes, for an offspring of Sir Gallahad and for a son of Man o' War.

YACHT AND CARS COST

It takes a fortune to float a yacht for the America's cup races. Only $500,000 would be a fair guess. After the big race a yacht owner gets a few thousand dollars for junk.

Automobile racing is a gamble, too. The average car that starts in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis in May is owned by $10,000 or $12,000 The winner stands to win only $30,000 plus a few extras.

A young heavyweight prospect is no small risk today. It takes time and money to instruct and to develop him. The odds against his gaining the heavyweight crown before what they are, a young boxer is not a good business proposition. —Christian Science Monitor.

Trout Fishing In May

This is the trout fishing season. A trout is a fish known mainly by hearsay. It lives on anything not included in a fisherman's equipment.

Fishing for some fish is a careless pastime requiring nothing but a natural instinct for loafing, but fishing for trout is a spellbinding occupation of hiking, swimming, sunshine walking, brisk rowing and angling, combining the most exasperating features of each.

Behin' which ambition lies the silly notion that a trout's favorite lunch is a horsefly fed to it on a buggy whip.

It is the only outdoor sport in which more territory is covered afoot than golf. All things considered, golf is a less expensive amusement.
